"I got a picture from my Scotch uncle yesterday."
"What does he look like?"
"I don't know. I haven't had it developed yet."

"What does a girl crying remind you of?"
"Wet paint."

"Wake up, Tom."
"I can't.'
"Why?"
"I'm not asleep?"

Night Watchman: "Halt! If you move you're dead."
Student: "My man, you should be more careful of your English. If I should move it would be a positive sign that I was alive."

"Do you really think sardines are healthy?"
"Well, madam, I have never heard one complain."

"Have you heard the Scotch story which begins 'once upon a dime'?"

Sugar: "Make a noise like a seal."
Daddy: "Nine Hundred Dollars."

PARTICULARLY FRESHMEN

The Class of '33 has thus far shown considerable interest and rightfully earned the attention of upper-classmen. However, it has seemed advisable to mention an important matter that deserves our special attention. It is not fair to ourselves or to the class to expect that our cooperation is not needed. There are some members of the freshman class that have not shown an ion of interest—not even to the extent of seventy-five cents. If the freshman class has a good reputation, why not share in it 100%! The officers request your presence tomorrow noon, in the chapel. The meetings are entertaining and there are always some clever ideas derivd from them. As has been proven in the past meetings, moonshining does not prevent your attending.

"Gag", it costs something to be a freshman; yes indeed—the sum of 75 cents each semester. It costs something to run the freshman class, but about one-third of the class apparently does not think so. Perhaps there are reasons for the failure of some to pay their dues, but it is hard to think so when reminded of the girl who paid her dues by the installment-plan with nickels and pennies.

To neglect the payment of dues is as serious as the neglect of a personal debt. Of course, the treasurer is one of the "gang" and he will not be so mean as to gossip about our failure to pay dues. However, the situation has become so serious that the faculty has threatened to take steps to overcome it. There is a step being taken by the officers this semester to remind those who are forgetful and to assist the treasurer of next year's sophomore class. Those who fail to pay their second semester dues will have that debt held against them next year by the sophomore class.

A.—Cut out small pieces of paper and paste over the freckles. This will give the rest of the skin a chance to catch up.

Q.—What should I do for Barber's Itch?
A.—Scratch him.

BROTHERITIS

There is a malady known as "brotheritis" which attacks the group of college boys who follow the footsteps of big brothers to college. This malady is characterized by great variations in its effects. Some suffer an enlargement of the cranium, others find themselves held in high esteem on short acquaintance by its magic effect, and still others find themselves in a situation strange in itself, for there is a repelling influence to those about them, especially those who knew the big brother. The germ causing this malady has never been isolated. It has been traced to the behavior of the big brother while in college, but others believe that there is an inherent character in the kid brother.

If you are a kid brother you understand, and if you have a younger brother coming to your school you should take the measures to make the disease an aid to him rather than a fatility. You are determining the effect which it will have upon him by the record which you are making. Will he find your record an obstacle to be climbed over or a ladder to be climbed up?

—The Tennessee Farmer.

Schlaman: Where's my shoes? I can't find them anywhere.
King: Here they are. I had my violin in one of them.

Annual Circus Plans Immense

CIRCUS

March 10—Saturday, March 29 has been set as the date for the annual circus, which is held under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. The committee in charge is rapidly lining up the program.

Events scheduled so far are: the big parade, gym review, circus, sideshows and stunts by the different societies, which will be judged and will count towards the cup. This year's circus will be much larger than last year's.

The committee in charge which consists of Jack Coughlin, Shorty Shaw, Grace Weller and Olive Clopton, will appreciate any suggestions as to the program. An admission charge of ten cents will be made. All proceeds of the circus will be used for the purchasing of gymnasium equipment.

Baseball Gains Interest

March 10—First organized practice for the 1930 baseball season will begin this week. Pitchers and catchers, who have been working out lightly for a week or two, will now start into intensive training with the rest of the squad. Several candidates have taken advantage of spring football to get in condition.

Coach Honaker faces the task of rebuilding a team as only five lettermen from the 1929 squad are present. The five veterans are: Captain Blazer, picther and infielder; Pete Park, southpaw pitching star; "Farmer" Watkins and Smith, outfielders, and Teffeteller, catcher. The first scheduled game will probably be on March 31.

They'll be taxing brains next.

I don't believe in taxation without representation.

You mustn't kiss me, I have ideals.

Why don't you use listerine?

Scots Defeated By King

Milligan College won the Smoky Mountain Conference tourney at Kingsport on Saturday, March 1 by defeating Tusculum College in the final game.

Milligan was the team that Maryville defeated on the home court and lost to on the foreign invasion.

Tusculum College defeated King College in the semi-final game.

Maryville College entered the tournament as one of the favorites but lost to the basketeers of King College in their initial appearance Thursday night. The game was a defensive battle on the part of both teams with King securing only three more points than Maryville was able to register. Reed and Cherry were the defensive stars while Woodard proved to be Maryville's best offensive bet.

Maryville's offensive attack could not click and consequently no team can win without some few or more points.

The final score was Maryville 16 and King 19.

ATHLETIC BOARD OF CONTROL MEETS

The Athletic Board of Control met Tuesday, March 4, for the purpose of awarding basket ball letters and to select a manager for football. Six letters were awarded and a committee, consisting of Ralph Waddell and Kemp Davis, was appointed to confer with the college treasurer concerning the awarding of sweaters with the letters. Lloyd McCulloch was elected football manager for 1931 with "Duds" Burns as assistant manager.

WRESTLING

INTRAMURAL MATMEN SHOW GOOD FORM

The wrestling tournament conducted by Farmer Watkins for all would-be wrestlers afforded much amusement to the loafers about the Y. M. C. A., the last three days of last week. The tournament included about thirty entries, and strange were some of the ideas about wrestling entertained by these aspirants.

Winners in the various weights were:

There were some good matches in the finals and semi-finals. The match between Underwood and Barnard was the first of these. Byerley and Osborne probably showed more science than any other participants. Taylor won over Robinson only after a hard fight.

The tourament had its lighter side. Preacher Young and Leland Gilmore, springing at each other like two game cocks, at every signal from the referee— Cyril Brown, getting up nonchalantly and announcing that he was tired—Cherry, winning over Waddell, because "Suitcase" landed on the bottom, at a time when each were too tired to move.

I am twenty-five cents. I'm not on speaking terms with the butcher; I am too small to buy a quart of ice cream; I am not large enough to buy a box of candy; I am too small to buy a ticket to a movie. But when I go to church on Sunday, I am considered "some money".—Presbyterian Magazine.

M. C. WRESTLERS ABANDON MATS

The togs (such as they were) of the Highland wrestling team have now been handed over to the track team, and the wrestlers have dispersed to their various other interests. From any standpoints, an even break from two such teams as the Knoxville and Chattanooga Y. M. C. A.'s is an enviable record. It is also a strange record. For the Maryville team conquered each of these teams, and in turn was conquered by each of them.

The first meet in Knoxville was by far the best of the season. Maryville won by a score of 20 to 15, every match being won by a fall. On the return meet here Knoxville brought the best team ever seen in Maryville, and defeated the home tam by a score of 23 to 11. This meet was rather slow, from the standpoint of the spectators, four of the matches going for extra periods.

The order was reversed in the case of Chattanooga. This time it was the Maryville team who was out for revnge. The Chattanooga team won the first meet 13 to 18, here, and Maryville evened things by winning 21 to 15, there. The sad thing about the season was the fact that they lost both home meets, and won both out-of-town meets.

Buchanan, 115 pound class, took the honors for individual scoring. Buch chalked up five points in every meet, winning each time with very little difficulty. Cash ran him a close second with 18 points for the season. Cash won all his matches, but was able to gain only a time advantage over Farrar of Knoxville. Coach Watkins, Shaw, and Overly were the only other men to tally two wins. Watkins gained two falls, and Shaw two time advantages. Watkins wrestled out of his weight one time and Shaw was out one meet, on account of injuries. Overly found Kelly of Knoxville too good for him, but he won each time over Chattanooga.

Lee and Kinsey each gained one fall apiece. Kinsey only wrestled in his weight one time. Peacock was the hardluck man of the team. In each of his three matches, he put up a great fight, but in every case he was thrown by men of superior training. Hatcher and Carr, while neither of them won their matches proved, to be good men and kept the team alert for their places all during the season.

Why are you late for chapel?

Well, you see, there are eight of us at the house, and the alarm clock was only set for seven.

Tennis Team Whips Into Shape

March 10—The annual Spring Tennis Tournament, which began February 27, has now progressed to the second round. The tournament has not been run off as quickly as was hoped for, due to bad weather conditions. Byron King and Richard Strain are favored to advance to the finals.

The final eight in the tournament will compose a squad, and form a ladder. Other players wishing to try for the squad may challenge the last man on the ladder. Professor Smith is coaching the team.

A tentative schedule is being arranged. The first match will probably be against the University of Tennessee the latter part of March. The tentative schedule also calls for matches away from home against the University of Kentucky, Chattanooga, Sewanee, Carson-Newman and others.

Professor Smith requests that the players cooperate in keeping the courts in as good shape as possible, by wearing tennis shoes while playing, and keeping off the courts when they are wet. After the Spring tournament the courts by the football field will be for the use of the tennis squad only.

Swimmers Start Training

March 10—Maryville swimmers have resumed intensive practice in preparation for the opening meet now only three weeks away. University of Chattanooga is expected to furnish the opposition for the local team. A women's team is now being formed as permission has been granted them to compete against outside teams.

The men's team as announced by Coach Jack Coughlin is as follows:

60 yard free style—French and Martin.

100 yard free style—French and Edris.

220 yard free style—Shields and Buchanan

440 yard free style—Edris

Breastroke—Cudney and Butten

Backstroke— Buchanan, Fitzgerald, Underwood, Vincent.

Diving—Crothers, Edris and Buchanan.

VOLLEY BALL

Women's Athletics have taken a turn toward Volley ball. More than the usual amount of, interest is shown and the games which will begin next week promise to be good. There seems to always be the same crowd of women out for every sport and we wish more would give a little time to sports in order to build up a better physical education department at Maryville.

Will you marry me?

John, I can't marry you, but I shall always respect our good taste.

"Meinholtz, the Times Wants You---"

FRED E. MEINHOLTZ of the New York Times sat in his home on Long Island, listening-in on a radio press dispatch from the Byrd expedition. Someone on the Times staff wanted to reach Meinholtz on his home phone. And quickly! But the receiver there happened to be off the hook.

Radio science was equal to the occasion. The Times radio operator sent a request to the fur-clad operator at the other end of the world. And Meinholtz was quickly made aware of the situation by a radio message from Antarctica saying: "Meinholtz, the Times wants you to hang up your receiver so that they can call you on the telephone."

The Debater Maintains

By Logic B. Reasons

To vary the method of judging debates of course adds interest to the program. As an observer in practically all our forensic activities it is interesting to note just how the decisions of the various methods agree with my own. There is little difference, perhaps, but I am sure that, if a debater is a psychologist, he can profit by knowing before hand who the judges are.

To me a very interesting method, and in many ways a very satisfactory one, is the expert critic judge method. It may be a little difficult to find men who are willing to serve as critic judges, but the method is often instructive and entertaining as well as correct in judgement.

—:—

A judge should not be willing to vote for any team unless he has some logical reason for it. The critic points out the reason to justify his own action. It worries me to win a debate and not know why, anyway.

—:—

In this method we have an opportunity not only to be judged by an expert but also to judge an expert.

And if we make "profoundly follacious" remarks, unperceived by our worthy opponents, they are likely to be pointed out in the critic's report.

In reality, it is often just the debater's psychological purpose that causes members of the audience to dissent from the opinion of the judges. In a throng of critics, judges, and "moonshiners" he cannot please all at once, and it depends largely on what class victory depends as to how the debater is going to present his case.

—:—

He must convince the critics, he must persuade the judges, and he must entertain the moonshiners.

—:—

In the next debate here the audience will be given an opportunity to decide for itself who wins. Be exalted into an assembly of judges.

—:—

Our women have kindly slipped one over on us going away for all their debates and not letting us hear them.

—:—

But we slip one over on them too, by having somebody else debate here everytime they leave.

DR. DUFF

"Oh Doc, I've got a Charley horse!"

This plaintive appeal is made to a tall lean Kentucky freshman, Al Duff, and his response is to cross the training room and fix up the sore limbs.

Duff comes from the mountains of Kentucky. At one time he contemplated entering the medical profession, and seized every opportunity to study medicine. At school in Columbus, Ohio, he met many doctors; once in a hospital he met Dr. B. F. Robinson who has been called one of the greatest surgeons of the South. He has also held down a job in the East Kentucky State Hospital, his duty being to administer medicine and keep records of the general condition of the patients. He is now doing a big thing here on the Hill by taking care of all the men who come to him. If there's any thing wrong with you, boys, his services are available in the coaching office in Bartlett on Monday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 3 till 5 p. m. or from 4 till 5:30 on Tuesday or Wednesday. He is not averse to mid-night calls because one sick fellow came to him in the middle of the night and was given treatment that enabled him to go about his work the next day.

Duff's Advice on Colds

The old theory that only the weak and run-down have colds has been disproved by the fact that even the strongest are subject to colds. It is generally believed today that colds are caused by too much acid in the body. This acid by irritating and inflaming the mucus membrane of the alimentary canal fixes the condition for cold to set in. An indication of over acidity is heartburn, a burning sensation in the stomach. Frequent colds indicate some unhealthy condition which may terminate in acidosis, which is a complete over-balancing of the alkaline reserve of the body. It might interest some to know that a toxic condition of the body discharges poisons through the skin which hastens grey hair.

There is a balance of acid and alkali in the system which is partially regulated by the food eaten. Certain foods such as milk, apples, leafy vegetables are alkali producing, while others such as fat meats, starches, potatoes, brown beans, and white bread form acids. An acid condition may be caused by eating too many acid forming foods. These acid foods should be eaten together as little as possible.

The old idea that one should stuff a cold is wrong. It is a known fact that the body eliminates ten times faster when fasting. A proof of this may be had by fasting for a few days and then smelling the skin. The poisons can be smelt coming out. Furthermore over-eating causes a clogging of the blood stream with unneeded nourishment preventing proper elimination. The energy in a body is dependent on a balace of stimulation and elimination.

Therefore the way to keep from getting a cold is to eat the right foods. At Pearson's we can balance our diet by careful selection of foods with more of the alkaline than of the acetic.

Then to cure a cold eat only alkaline foods and rather less than usual. A person with a cold should eat as many of the alkaline foods as are offered, such as milk, brown bread, leafy, green vegetables, unsweetened fruits, and should avoid fat meats especially in combination with a large amount of white bread, brown beans, or potatoes. A glass of milk three times a day is one of the best and simplest remedies for a cold. It is also advisable to take some simple medical remedy such as Bi-sodal.

$25.00 GOLD MEDAL?

Freshmen. Who wants a $25.00 gold medal? There is a perfectly good one waiting for the writer of the best essay on "The Value of Truth". The only conditions of the i.e., riddled with holes. that you wish to enter, and that you hand your paper to your English teacher by the 22nd of April.

The fund for this contest was established by the will of Mr. Rush Strong. Sufficient money was left to provide a gold medal each year in a number of the colleges of East Tennessee. The medal was won last year by George Brown.

Ministerial Association

There was a joint meeting of the Ministerial Association and the Student Volunteer Band at Bainonian Hall on March 5. There were about fifty present, including Dr. Stevenson.

The devotions were led by Tom Dixon. Willie Nell Harold announced that the Student Volunteer State Convention was to meet in Maryville this year and predicted a successful convention.

Bill Hannah spoke on the relation of the home church to missions. Testimonies were given by several of those present.

DEBATE

The proposition, Resolved: That the nations of the world should adopt a plan for complete disarmament except those needed for police forces, was debated Tuesday night, March 4, in the Y. W. auditorium. The negative team of Maryville consisting of William Graham and Forrest Robertson, and the affirmative team from the University of Chattanooga, consisting of North Callahan and Brantley Wilson, were the contestants.

HISTORY CLUB

Beyond this room was the main entrance on whose door is a lock of which its British manufacturers was so proud that his coat of arms is engraved thereon. Another room downstairs is of no particular interest beyond the fact that it contains period furniture and a good picture of the Governor himself. Some of the faculty members present tried to play a queer instrument found here, but with little success.

Upstairs were found excellent replicas of old papers of Washington and others. Several fine old four-posters were in the bed-rooms. The queer shaving boxes were of interest to the men but the girls found nothing of interest except a candle or two.

Souvenir postal cards, hand drawn were sold to us and after some effort Partee's hat yielded $2.50 for upkeep of the house.

CAMPUS UNDERGOING RAPID TRANSFORMATION

Students Spending Spare Time Swinging Picks and Shovels.

The Elements have been with the campus campaign. Last Friday, when the plan was submitted in Chapel, the rain descended and the flooded campus emphasized the need for paths. Then the weather cleared on Tuesday for the first day's work and remained pleasant all the week.

The paths are all cut out now, and display straight and curved lines. The surveyor and his aids had to re-outline one path three times before its appearance satisfied their aesthetic desires. Next week we shall be walking on the new paths and woe to him who does not use them but walks over the grass when going to classes and the like!

After the paths now planned are finished this next week, there are rumors that if the Campus Volunteers wish it, Brownie may be able to eke out enough cinders and gravel to help the men build a much needed path from Carnegie to Court Street, with some steps down the bank. Just rumors thus far, however.

The Volunteers have responded almost to a man and deserve our gratitude for their earnestness, for getting substitutes during their absences, and for the efficient work of the gangs and bosses together.

The Campus benches are practically assured, but there are a large number of students who have not yet paid their bench pledges. If all these were paid, the Committee would proceed to order the Benches, but cannot yet. The Faculty and Officers of the College have responded well. Persons wishing a Club or State bench must get their contribution of one dollar or more into the committee's hands by Friday, March 21.

Behind the scenes is a committee of thirteen student leaders working every day on all details and trying to keep everything going smoothly. They are alert and anxious as they meet from day to day, and appreciate the cooperation being given them by students and faculty.

The Campus Committee reports that they would appreciate hearing from anyone who knows where some beautiful shrubs and small evergreen trees could be obtained locally, either as donations or at very reasonable prices.

Y. M. READING ROOM PROCESS OF REPAIR

Biggs, Working With Brush, Making Big Crange.

Last week the Y.M.C.A. reading room was repaired. Bartlett Hall was filled with sights and sounds and smells; which usually are not found there, sights of paperhangers at work and of Morgan Biggs painting; sounds of the moving of furniture and of the changing of ladders; smells of freshly papered walls and of wet paint. None of the woodwork in the room escaped Morgan's transforming brush; he painted even the floor.

The work, however, is not going to be stopped here. The rough floor, having soaked up much of its first coat of paint, will probably need another coat. Moreover, attempts are being made to obtain new curtains, not only for the windows of the reading room, but also for those of the auditorium. If, in addition to these improvements, the "Y" men procure better lighting effects for the reading room, as they hope to, there will be a more suitable and homelike living room for the young men.

The Student Council took up the matter of building paths on the campus after Georga Burke had given a demonstration of tumbling, on the path between Baldwin and Pearsons while rushing to her 'a' class.

All those who wish to moonshine at night should apply for a position as library assistant.

THESPIANS CHOOSE BERNARD SHAW PLAY

Noted Author's Drama, "Arms And The Man" To Be Given!

Theta Alpha Phi has selected one of George Bernard Shaw's plays, "Arms and the Man", to be presented in the chapel about the middle of April. The entire cast has not been slected yet but wil be completed by the end of this week. However, it is known that taint outside the college wil be used.

The choice of this play seems to be a particularly good one, for "Arms and the Man" has laid its hold upon modern imagination and has been produced all over the world. It is quite true that the play is loose in form, oscillating between comedy and fantastic force, and that even now it is already beginning to "date".

"Arms and the Man" is one of four dramas of Shaw which may be classed in a category by themselves. The our plays are: "Arms and the Man", "You Never Can Tell", "How She Lied to Her Husband", and "Captain Brassbound's Conversion". This play which Theta Alpha Phi has selected was designed presumably to be "popular" and to amuse the London public. It is fantastically written and imbued with a mild philosophy. It is one of Shaw's farcecomedies which are the natural and spontaneus expression of his peculiar comic talent, the sport of his own humorous imagination.

Theta Alpha Phi should make this satire a most genuine success, theatric as well as dramatic.

COLLEGE CIRCUS IN PREPARATION

Bingling Bros., Darnum Daily Combined Shows Coming.

March 17—Featuring a sensational "leap for life", daring bareback riding, and fancy roller skating, the Annual Circus under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. will be held in the Alumni Gym, Saturday, March 29 at seven o'clock. Admission will be ten cents.

Each Literary Society is to stage a highly entertaining sideshow. The sideshows will be judged and graded. The main show beginning at eight o'clock, will last approximately an hour and a half. Popcorn and ice cream will be sold during the evening.

A great deal of help will be needed in building settings, and in ushering, the committee in charge of which Jack Coughlin is chairman, would appreciate any help that can be offered.

SENIORS GO ON SPREE

Riotous Rook Party Tonight. Glascock's Hosts.

The Senior Class will celebrate with a Saint Patrick's party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Glascock tonight. The program, furnished by underclassmen, will be made up of Irish folk-songs, instrumental music,—and Irish humor. (Butten will be present).

Committees in charge of the party are: Louise Carson, Anita Gigho, and Glenn Cross, entertainment; Peggy Mevis, Maxie Nelms, and Ralph Waddell, refreshment; Oakey Biggs and Helen Scroggin, decorations.

A. McCANN STATE PRESIDENT STUDENT VOL'TEER MOVEMENT

Three Day Conference Comes To Close. Hospitality of Town Appreciated.

The annual conference of the Student Volunteer Union of Tennessee was brought to a close Sunday afternoon after delegates from all parts of Tennessee had enjoyed a week-end of profitable speeches and worthwhile discussions under the leadership of Mr. Jesse Wilson, Dr. Alva Taylor, Miss Constance Runbough, Miss Ocie Sanders, Dr. H. E. Orr, Mr. Marshall Lovell and others.

The theme of the conference: "Christian Students at Work in a Waking World' ', was carried throughout the speeches and discussions. Some of the most interesting and helpful speeches were, "Unredeemed Geographical Areas", by Miss Runbough, and "Unredeemed Areas in the Realm of Life", by Mr. Howard Kester in which they pointed out the issues that are to be met in the Waking World. Mr. Wilson's address, "The Student Volunteer Movement in the Waking World", was especially inspiring in that Mr. Wilson brought out the importance of students dedicating their lives to the mission cause in a world that is realizing its need of such help. One of the most interesting and lively of the discussions was that concerning the race question. Miss Parker, the retiring president of the Student Volunteers in Tennessee, said that it was the most sane discussion on the race problem that she had ever heard. Suffice to say that it lasted an hour and a quarter overtime, and everybody is still friendly. Saturday night the delegates were initiated into the beauties of the college woods in which a picnic supper with plenty of food was heartily enjoyed.

Our own Dr. Wilson closed the conference Sunday afternoon when

MISS IRENE BEWLEY HERE AS 'Y' BENEFIT

To Read "Quare Women" Latter Part This Month.

Through the aid of Mrs. West the Y. M. C. A. plans to present Miss Irene Bewley, dramatic reader, during the latter part of this month. This will be an extra benefit number.

It is a privilege indeed for a Maryville College audience to hear Miss Bewley for she is known over the country and even in foreign lands as a reader of great ability.

The main reason why Miss Bewley has consented to come to Maryville is because of her kindred feeling for College Hill, for she came here to school.

Mis Bewley has made the reading of mountain-folk tales her specialty. She is well fitted to do so for she knows the mountaineer intimately and understands his difficulties. Of the two productions which she most delights to read, "Sun Up" and "Quare Women" she will read "Quare Women". Quare Women is an adaption from Lucy Furman's novel, "The Quare Women". When some time ago, Miss Bewley read this number before a Columbia University audience, it was enthusiastically received. So we may anticipate a real treat in hearing her read when she comes.

DEBATERS OPPOSE TEACHERS COLLEGE IN DUAL CONTEST

James and Frost Travel To Johnson City; West and Strain Here Tonight.

March 17—Tonight in Thaw Hall Maryville will meet Teachers' College in one of the most interesting debates of the year. The negative team composed of Richard Strain and Robert West will defend the use of arms in certain cases or the retention of armaments by the nations of the world while an affirmative team from Teachers' College will launch a broadside against the whole system of armaments. At the same time J. Stuart James and Wright Frost will carry the affirmative banner into the camp at their college for Maryville.

The decision at both places will be an audience decision, the first audience decision for Maryvlle this year.

There is a double debate with Berea College for March 25. There is one for men and one for women. This will be "Berea Day" at Maryville and "Maryville Day" at Berea. These contests will end the varsity season except the trip to Wichita, Kansas, for the National Pi Kappa Delta Convention.

The freshmen debates are scheduled to come after the varsity season has ended. Both boys and girls are now at work. The boys are Andrew Newcomer, Leslie Webb, and Homer Ellis on an affirmative team, and Winn Barr, William Marston, and Benjamin Groves on a negative team. These men will meet freshmen teams from the University of Tennssee April 11.

The women, Doris Dodge, Ruth Boyd, and Alfreda Scobey, affirmative members, and Mary John Metcalf, Violet Pollard, and Elizabeth Duncan, negative members will meet Tennessee Wesleyan College April 14.

EASTER PAGEANT IS 'THE RESURRECTION'

Y. M., Y. W. Turn Direction Over to Expression Dept.

This year's Easter program will be put on by the Pageantry class which is now organized on the Hill. From all reports the class has been doing excellent work, and on Easter morning at sunrise, they will present Mrs. Veech is in charge of the class, and her reputation for efficiency and managing ability is well deserved since she has already appointed her committee, and they are hard at work.

Every year at Easter time the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. put on a program in keeping with the spirit of Easter. This year the organizations requested the Pageantry class to take charge of the services, and the fact that they are already doing things is sufficient evidence that the Y.'s judgment is not poor. Below is a list of the members of the committee:

Blending Director—Margaret Haynie
Stage Director—Margaret Mevis
Music Director—Eleanor Kuhlman
Costumes—Muriel Hall

PASSION PLAY

March 15—This evening one hundred girls boarded buses at 7:30 and went over to Knoxville to see the Passion Play. The girls were well chaproned so that they couldn't escape into Knoxville, but had a most enjoyable evening. Many of the boys went to the performance, also.

LAST LYCEUM HERE THURSDAY EVENING

Royal Holland Bell Ringers In Picturesque Program.

March 17—Do you ever have a desire to visit that fascinating land of bright colored tulips, of wooden shoes, of great slowly revolving windmills and long narrow canals?

The Royal Holland Bell Ringers will suggest these pleasant fancies and many more when they appear on the Maryville stage this Thursday night, March 20, at 8:00 o'clock. It will be the last Lyceum program of the present season, and to many it will be the most entertaining of the entire series of entertainments.

Native song, native dance, native costumes and musical instruments—theirs is a truly picturesque presentation of the marvels of that quaint country called "The Netherlands".

The Bell Ringers have been eagerly accepted wherever they have presented their delightful program. Dr. Blandon, President Ward-Belmont College, Nashville says: "The Royal Holland Bell Ringers gave us a high grade, clean musical program. Their program is unique in its make-up, suitable for the young and old alike. I can cheerfully recommend it for any occasion."

If you want to hear Swiss Hand Bells, Farm Bells, genuine "Rattlebones", and the smallest musical instrument imported from Holland, the Ocarina (not bearina),—the Royal Holland Bell Ringers will adequately fill the bill.

LOU STANBERRY THETA PRESIDENT

Program Promises Several Surprises Next Week.

Theta Epsilon met Friday evening, March 14 for the installation of officers. The usual but impressive candle-light service was used and the following Spring-term officers were installed:

President - - - Lou Stanberry

Secretary - - - Frances Mingea
Program Secretaries - - -
Hazel Bowers and Nez Hamrick
Publicity Chairman - Ann Trewhitt
Critic - - - - - Sarah Bagley
House Chairman - Louise Marley
Sergeant-at-Arms - - Hope Snyder
Editor - - - - Tommy Hatmaker

Next Saturday evening we expect a big crowd out to see 'Nez and Hazel's first presentation. Also, the President will call a cabinet meeting this week and asks that members watch the bulletin board for the anonuncement.

EXTEMP CONTEST FRI.

Date Changed In Contest To Be Held at U. T.

March 15—The East Tennessee Extemporaneous Speaking Contest which was scheduled for Monday night, March 17, to be held at the University of Tennessee has been postponed until Friday nigt, March 21. William Graham, a junior and debater, will represent Maryville in this contest. There are five colleges in the contest. They are Maryville, Carson-Newman, King, Lincoln Memorial University, and Teachers' College. The judges will be from the members of the faculty of the University of Tennessee.

W. C. T. U. OFFERS ORATION PRIZE

Prohibition Is Subject; Prize, Twenty-five Dollars.

The State Organization of the W. C. T. U. is sponsoring an oratorical contest among the colleges of the State. There will be three regional contests and a final State contest. The prize in the regional contest will be $25 and there is a larger prize in the State contest. In order to have a representative, we must have a local contest with at least five entrants. Any student in the college is eligible to compete.

The general plans for the local contest are outlined as follows: Date, April 11; speeches eight to twelve minutes in length: speeches not necessarily memorized, but prepared as for an extempore contest; the judges to be members of the faculty; the subject assigned is "Eternal Vigilance is the Price of Prohibition."

Professor Hunter is in charge of arrangements for the local contest and students who plan to enter should see him before Thursday of this week in order to signify their intention of entering, and for further instructions.

When Henry Clay said "I'd rather be right than president," he was making a choice between the lesser of two evils.

A great man is one who seems to tell all, but yet has a certain dignity and reserve about him that betrays the fact that he has really told all.

Baldwin Women Hold Men's Beauty Contest

A Beauty Contest conducted by the women on the third floor of Baldwin Hall was suddenly terminated by a disagreement among the judges last Thursday afternoon.

It seems that the men were represented by photographs that had been unwittingly entered by the entire population of Baldwin Hall. The stage was all set for the severe scrutiny of the merciless judges of masculine puchritude, when an unseated member of the court of judges intervened in behalf of the men, and carried the entire beauty show to the first floor of the Hall. Here two disinterested parties perused the likenesses with a great interest. It took them until ten o'clock to finish the job, and even then, fearing to cause too much dissention in the ranks, no doubt, they returned the photographs without any definite decisions.

It is quite probable that another contest will have to be conducted, but it will have to be managed a little differently, according to those in charge of the last one. No date has been set for the next one as yet.

Nickel, nickel, who's got the nickel? That's the question, who's got the nickel. Such a question would not reach such gigantic proportions were the coin needed for most anything except as a slug for the telephone in Carnegie.

In these days of rapid communication, instantaneous service, and low toll rates, an easily accessible means of talking from one place to another is almost as important as running water, and as a matter of fact, more reasonable. According to the telephone charges in this community, a telephone could be installed and maintained at the surprisingly low cost of less than ten cents a year per resident of Carnegie.

The women's dormitories are all equipped with this modern convenience, but for some reason the men have not been enjoying a similar one. There is always the danger, of course, that the privilege will be abused by students calling out-of-town without paying for it. This possible difficulty could be overcome by instructing the telephone company to make the line purely a local one, retaining the present pay station for long distance calls.

We merely suggest that this could be done, and leave it to those whose particular problem it is, namely, the men in Carnegie, to take action.

—O—

It Can't Be Done?

They said it couldn't be done, some of these folks who have grown up with the college. And we must confess that we were a little bit inclined to agree with them. We hadn't seen much evidence of the old spirit that cause Kin Takahashi to build Bartlett Hall, or that made the faculty don overalls to take part in the Campus Beautiful Day long since disgarded. And so we, too, had our doubts.

The transformation which is gradually taking place in the character of the campus is likewise having a decided effect upon the general atmosphere of the college. The paths are a great improvement—we needed them. The benches are great for those who indulge in that form of exercise. But better than these is the spirit of comeraderie and fellowship which results from a concentrated effort to achieve something for the social group to which we belong. Maryville means as much to the men and women who throng her campus today as she did in the days of old, and those who say otherwise might do well to get out and watch the fellows swing pick and shovel—yes, and even taste the lemonade provided by the women.

—O—

It takes but little to please some people who are tremendously pleased with themselves.

The more a man goes around the less he is apt to develop into a crank.

Let us endeavor to so live that our yesterdays my look backward with a smile.

The ingredients used in making a good resolution don't cost anything—and anything that's cheap soon rubs off.

HIGHLAND FLINGS

We hear that someone is offering to sweep a room for a nickle. Rather a sweeping statement. He doesn't know what he is in for.

"Cleaning, pressing, dyeing, sewing, patching, mending!" They're all doing it, now. Well, we shouldn't kick; if a few more companies start we should be able to get our suits cleaned and pressed for nothing. By the way, there's 20 percent off for cash-and-carry and Scotty took a special trip to town to get a tie pressed.

Some men thirst for college, others become acquainted with thirst after they get there.

Give me a glass of plain soda water without flavor.
Without what flavor?
Oh, without vanilla.
You'll have to take it without chocolate, we ain't got vanilla.

I crept upstairs, my shoes in hand,
Just as the night took to wing,
And I saw grandma four steps up,
Doing the same darn thing.

It is harder to persuade someone that you are right than to persuade him that he is wrong.

"In Africa some of the babies are raised on elephant milk."
"Gosh! what kind of babies are they?"
"Baby elephants."

A man can still take a chew of tobacco without feeling that he should first offer one to a lady.

Some people get awful careless with jewelry when they leave a ring in the bath tub.

Her father was a toy merchant but she had her own notions.

"Paw, why was Adam created first?"
"To give him a chance to say something."

Why not collect revenue from a moonshiners luxury tax.

The Girl I left behind me
I think of night and day,
For if she ever found me
There'd sure be heck to pay.

"Would you object to kissing?"
"You know, Bill, that's something I've never done yet."
"What?"
"Object."

The way to grow old gracefully is to be able to change our minds easily.

Don't be too hard on the gold digger she's just a little girl after all.

He: "Do you smoke?"
She: "No."
He: "Do you drink?"
She: "No."
He: "Do you neck?"
She: "No."
He: "Well, what do you do?"
She: "I tell lies."

A stag might be called nobody's fool.

As Brigham Young said, "Give us this day our daily bride."

"Do you know, you'd make an excellent fireman?"
"How's that?"
"You never take your eye off the hose."

Here are some deep questions asked by Freshies:

1.—How many quarters in a football game?

2.—Was Joan of Arc Noah's wife?

3.—Is ink made from the water of the black sea?

4.—Is Webster's novel, "The Dictionary", fiction or non-fiction?

5.—Why is the picture of a skeleton on carbolic acid?

6.—Who wrote Poe's "Bells, Bells, Bells?"

The three wise men seemed to have been Stop, Look, and Listen.

Our definition of a Janitor is "A fellow that acts crazy with the heat while the rest of us are freezing.

Pay strict attention to the little things and you'll have no big things to worry about.

Brute Crow: "I just bought a new suit with two pairs of pants."
"Well, how do you like it?"
Brute: "Fine, only it's too hot wearing two pairs."

All's fair in love—if you don't care for brunettes.

DID YOU KNOW?

Of course you have heard of explorers seeking gold, long buried cities, strange lands and unknown peoples, as well as the more modern quest for rubber trees and oil wells, but recently Giles G. Healey, American, after months of hardships in the jungles, has presented for scientific investigation six pounds of an heretofore unknown poison known as Curare.

Curare, as the poison is called, is of a vegetable nature and Indians put it on pellets which they shoot from blow guns at their enemy. It paralizes the heart of the victim and causes instant death. It is also used in hunting game.

As a result of this trip, some interesting information has been given out regarding life in the jungle. Giant hornets and tiny fish proved to be the most dangerous enemy for the party. If the hornets drove you from the boat into the water the tiny Caribe fish made things more than uncomfortable.

Another unwelcome acquaintance was the Dahia snake, which coils on a tree and jumps suddenly upon the unsuspecting arrival. The snake is one of the most deadly of the species and the way the Indians get even with him is to eat him. Fried Dahia, the explorer found, tasted somewhat like eels. As a change from snake diet, the party often consumed ants often an inch and one-half long, which when roasted tasted much like kerosene oil. Monkeys and parrots were also held as rare dishes.

Queer fish of South America, which may be found in this country, are the guppies, also known as rainbow fish because of rings of rainbow cololr which encircle white and black dots on its body. The strange thing about this fish is that it is accused of being cannibilistic. It eats its young and the only way in which the young may be protected is to have growing plants in the aquarium where he can hide until the older guppie is removed after all the young are born. Guppies do not lay eggs, but bring forth their young alive. The female is larger than the male, which as a rule does not exceed one-half an inch in length.

Aeroplanes are used in hunting seals now by the large fisheries. They are equipped with wheels, skids, and floats so as to be able to start from anywhere. This is something new in commercial fishing but has been very successfully tried out.

To The Highland Echo:

This year seems to be an unusual one for the celebration of notable anniversaries, but we wonder how many people know that there is an anniversary soon to take place which is of direct interest to Maryville College?

March twenty-sixth will be the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the birthdate of Dr. Isaac Anderson who founded our Alma Mater. He was born March 26, 1780.

We wonder if some fitting celebration could not be arranged wherby the student body could show its appreciation of the man whose foresight has provided us with our present opportunities.

A great deal of interest in improving the campus has been shown lately by some of the state clubs, and, just as a tentative suggestion, what about a Campus Clean-up and Improvement Day on March 26, with the students working in organized groups to see what we ourselves can do to make Maryville a happier, more attractive place?

CURRENT CAMPUS COMMENTS

In the spring a young man's fancy, lightly turns to——what the women have been thinking about all year!

Heard in Biology Lab while studying The internal structure of the Earthworm:
Hazel: "Vivian let me see your gizzard."

Taken from Dr. Stevenson's sermon at Vespers:—And whoever heard of a clock having suspenders?

Willimara Minton: "I'm talking about the big Virginia plantations; take, for example, one of ten acres."

Eva Ellis: "Why did Joseph want the butler to remember him to Pharaoh? Did he want promotion or something?"

Gen.: "And Jacob kissed Rachel, and lifted up his voice and wept."

Prop: "What is an average?"
Frosh: "I'm not sure but I think it has something to do with poultry, because I've heard of hens laying on them."

BLAZER SHAPES FORMIDABLE ARRAY FOR SEASON'S CONTESTS

Strain Wins Race For Racket Title

King Runner-Up For Tennis Tournament Honors.

March 17—Dick Strain won the Annual Spring Tennis Tournament by defeating Byron King in a hard fought five-set match, Thursday afteroon, March 13. The scores were: 6-4, 2-6, 6-2, 8-10, and 6-4. Both men were in great form, and displayed some sensational tennis.

Strain and King had advanced to the finals, by defeating Buchanan and Swaim, respectively in the semi-finals. These men with four others will compose the tennis squad. A consolation tournament is now being run off to fill the last four places on the squad.

WOMEN'S TUMBLING CLASS

For the first time in the history of Maryville College, a women's tumbling class is being organized. So far, the results have been very satisfactory. Considering the fact that the equipment is very limited, very few wrists have been sprained or— — — backs broken!

The tumbling class will make their first appearance on Saturday, March 29 in the Circus, and there they willl do some stunts that will be surprising. (We won't give them away yet!)

At present there are only eight regular girls on the team, and it has been requested that more girls take an interest in it. All the material is new, so the work is especially for beginners.

The team meets every afternoon between four and five-thirty o'clock. Ed Buchanan (better known as "Buck") has charge of the class, and a better instructor can't be found! We appreciate the interest "Buck" is taking, and we want to show him that we do by having a larger class—Everybody out tomorrow afternoon!

RICKETT'S—Copper plates of three latest styles in type and 100 calling cards—Special this month $3.00

CINDER PATH ARTISTS WHIP INTO FORM

March 17—Thirty-five track candidates have reported to Coach Bob Thrower, and are working out daily on the cinder path, weather permitting. There is an abundance of men trying for the track events, but only a very few for the field events.

The track schedule as announced by Coach Thrower is:

April 5—Univ. of Tennessee—there
April 12—Interclass Track Meet
April 19—L. M. Univ.—There
April 26—U. of Chattanooga—Here

The Smoky Mountain Conference meet will be held the first Saturday in May. The place has not been decided as yet.

SPRING FOOTBALL

Spring football is still in session despite the fact that all of the baseball men have turned in their uniforms.

Some fifteen or eighteen men are still staying out hoping to be in the line-up that will meet the Alcoa High School sometime in the next week or ten days.

If this game is staged, as the authorities now think it will be, it promises to give some of the more inexperienced men a chance to show their ability to manipulate the pigskin.

This game will finally finish the spring training session and give the boys time to recuperate before "exams" start.

SPORTSMANSHIP

Are Maryville's Women's Athletics on a high standard as ranked with other schools? In some ways they are, but in others they aren't. Here we have ability—some girls who will later major in physical ed show excellent talent. Also we have good direction. Few of us would ask for a better and more patient coach than Grace Weller. Too, we have the time—how many have classes after three? How many would deprive themselves of not only the pleasure but also the necessary exercise if they but thought? Then why is it that the same girls are always out for every sport? The same girls are out because of lack of interest and ambition enough to give up even an hour or two every week to exercise.

To be a sport—every one's ambition. Is there any better way to develop that trait than by the teamwork and "give and take" of athletics? All right, "What price sportsmanship?"

Smile into the face of the world and a smile will come back—render good service to others and good service will be returned to you—show a spirit of helpfulness and that spirit will surely send a back aid to you of a like kind—think good thoughts and the same good thoughts will be of you. The only way to avoid getting a square deal with the world is by not giving the world a square deal yourself.

Beware of the man who wants to make you rich but is broke himself.

Success makes us intolerant of failure, and failure makes us intolerant of success.

Rain Fails To Dampen Spirits Of Highland Diamond Crew

J. D. Davis Coaches Squad In Fielding Work.

MANY TURN OUT FOR SPRING TRAINING

Parks Most Promising Horse-hide Hurler.

Maryville's first baseball games are scheduled for March 31 and April 1. Because of this fact all aspiring candidates were called forth last Wednesday for the initial workout.

About thirty men reported the first day and the squad is rapidly increasing as the days go by. Coach Honaker left town Thursday morning. The coaching duties are on the shoulders of "J. D." Davis who also has charge of Spring football. Coach said before he left that no cuts for the squad will be made until he returns.

The first day's practice consisted of throwing and limbering-up of the muscles with Coach Honaker directing the activities. The second day was very warm and the boys were allowed to warm up outdoors, later Coach Davis assembled all the men in the gymnasium for instruction on fielding ground balls.

The remainder of the week will probably be devoted to the fundamentals of the game with a little sliding practice.

Batting practice will not be started until this week and then only if the weather permits.

Only two more weeks remain in which to mould a winning nine and consequently all available time will be used.

The coaches face the task of developing an almost complete team this year as only five letter men are in the fold. Captain Earl Blazer is the only infield candidate that is back for a position. Three places are yet to be filled and from the number of new men that are out a capable inner ring should be developed.

Blazer has been a star on the team for the past three years and this year promises to be at his best. Earl is also being counted on for pitching duties this year as the hurling corps seems to be the weakest department on the team.

Maryville is sure to have one winning pitcher this year, namely, Pete Park. Pete won more games last year than any pitcher we had and he should be a sure bet in most every game he pitches.

Ralph Teffeteller seems to be sure of bearing the brunt of the catching assignments although he will have to hustle if he stays ahead of such new men as Bowman, Story and Adler.

Two outfield berths seem to be well taken care of by Watkins in left and Smith in right field. Smith was one of the leading hitters on the team last year and should play better ball this year.

Ferguson, a substitute last year seems likely to break in as one of the outfielders.

Some of the men who have been working for positions on the team are: Captain Blazer, Park, Teffeteller, Smith, Watkins, Stidham, Ferguson, White, McCulloch, Woodard, West, Storey, Bowman, G. Benn, Partee, Roddy, G. Johnston, Atkins, Adler, Myers, J. Johnson, Lewis, Bradshaw, McCall, Brashear, Collins, and possibly a few others.

Maryville always has a good baseball team and some of her more promising products have secured good berths in professional teams.

Maryville's team this year will be comparatively new in the personel but they should have a well-rounded nine before the season closes.

March 14—The Freshmen Class has just received the following letter from Dr. Roy E. Vale who conducted the February Meetings.

"March 11, 1930,

"My dear Friends:

"Your letter of February twenty-second was awaiting me on my return a day or so ago from a two weeks' trip to California. This is my first opportunity to acknowledge it.

"I appreciate from the bottom of my heart the feeling which it conveys, namely that I have been of some service and help to you in making Jesus Christ more real in your hearts and lives and that is one of the greatest rewards that has ever come to me in my ministry. God bless you each and every one.

"From the depths of my heart I send you both gratitude and good wishes and I am happy to have the privilege of subscribing myself as

"Roy E. Vale."

TUMBLERS PROMISE NOVEL THRILLERS

The tumbling team is working up a spectacular program for the coming circus on the 29 th of this month. There are more men on the team this year and they are earnestly endeavoring to put on a bigger and better program of gymnastics than Maryville has ever had the pleasure of witnessing.

Many new and thrilling numbers have been worked up. Buchanan, Herndon, and Underwood will perform as top men; Byerly, Bratschie, and Wood will be bottom men; and Cromer will assist Culver, Maryville's invertebrate, in enlivening the program with their curious antics.

ATHLETIC FRATERNITY

The swimming test for membership in the athletic fraternity was held last week. The candidates were required to swim 100 yards in 1 minute 45 seconds. Abshier, Buchanan, Edris, K. Martin and Underwood passed with ease.

The officials are waiting for warmer weather before the next tests. All contestants are urged to be in good form and to be quite sure they can pass before they try. This is done so that no one will be injured through excess strain and so that no time will be wasted. Everyone is eligible to try these tests so long as he has a chance of succeeding. The next test will probably be held in connection with track, and will be anonunced shortly.

Evrything interesting is good; but everything good is not interesting.

Sneed Elected Frosh Volley Ball Captain

Hale Manages Women's Team For Coming Season.

Women's volley ball practice has started full swing, with the tournament between classes coming off this week.

All the classes have been well represented and more interest has been shown this year than the preceding ones. The teams practice three times a week, and under the excellent supervision of Coach Weller, three good tams are being whipped into shape.

Owing to the fact that the Freshmen gave the Sophomores and Junior-Senior teams such a trouncing in basketball, these two teams will be out for revenge. This fact promises to make the tournament even more interesting than ever.

Everybody out and pull for his class team. Women's athletics will be just what we make them!

GOLF

Lately there has been a good deal of interest in the Scotch pastime of golf. Two holes have been laid out for practice back of Thaw and on many an afternoon students may be seen hitting a white ball and then walking after it. There are, apparently, not a few good golfers on the Hill who would make the nucleus of a good team. A rumor has been circulated that Maryville will have a nine hole course in the near future. This report has been received favorably by many as a hopeful sign of prospective golfing.

The Long and Short Of It

To let it grow or to keep it short—that is the question. This vital problem stares every girl in the face (when she looks in the mirror), it confronts her very being; it weighs on her mind until in desperation she is driven to—town by some gracious faculty member, and then occupies a barber's chair for about half an hour, still undecided as to whether or not, off her crowning glory should come.

There are all styles and manners of wearing the hair as is evidenced on our Hill, and perhaps a brief resume might be helpful to some undecided female. Clara Peterson has the longest hair of any woman on the Hill and she wears it braided around her head. A direct contrast to this is Nathalia Wright who wears her hair with the masculine aptitude of brevity. Since becoming acclimatized to the sunny Southland, Evelyn Seedorf has thinned her abundant store of auburn locks and now wears it in an attractive loose knot. Many are the Greta Garbo enthusiasts on the Hill, the most notorious of these being Marian Cutler, Ernestine Heddon, Frances McDevitt, Frenchy, Shorty's Lois, and Mary McKinney, with Lois Cupler runner-up. It is sometimes difficult to decide if this Greta Garbo length is just a convenient excuse for stylishness between the long and the short hair, or whether it is a permanent stage of chic.

And speaking of permanents, Louise Avery's permanent has about the most natural wave of any permanent on exhibition. Hank Hubbard and Lucy Ann Voorhees have a varety whch miight be termed the stick-out permanent. However, when it comes down to the real permanent waves, waves that will never wash out with the tide of fashion are those belonging to Janet Stanley, Lelah Ball, and Lucille Richardson are indicative of genuine permanency.

Of late, Alice Renegar has been wearing her hair hanging about her face instead of pinning it back as has been her custom, since it has attained the stay-back length. This sudden change may be due to the Elinor Glynn qualities of "It" that hair possesses when in this looser condition. As you know, or perhaps you don't, the women's debate teams are now becoming so disarming that they are diligently as well as intelligently studying Elinor Glynn's desertation on "It". "It" being that subtle quality with which girls of today win debates. Willie Nell has come to the parting of the waves. Its on the side now instead of the center. Whether or not it makes her mentally unbalanced remains to be seen. At least it makes her one-sided in her affection toward Hayden. Virginia Hecht's hair has the Colleen Moore style of straghtness, and thank goodness, Virginia doesn't curl it. Margaret Cragan and Kitty Hodges have hair that always looks just right—very rich dark brown, and very stay-in placeableness.

Wigs, also, are gaining headway on the Hill. Margaret Brigman appeared the other night in a wig of dazzling red, so dazzling that the Redhead Club held a called meeting in defense of its overhead principles. Marg's prospective membership was unanimously defeated.

For those girls who are undecided as to whether or not they should cut their hair, appointments for consultation may be made with Dot Weatherly, Leona Marsh, Lynn Nelle Lovette, and Louise Cline. And then those short haired damsels, who wish advice as to the advantages and disadvantages of long hair, may make appointments with Vivian Craig, Virginia Crider, Marian McMurray, or any other long-haired lunatic.

And that's the long and the short of the whole proposition.

MOONSHINING MADNESS

There was a young man and there was a young Miss,
Who, when they met, experienced bliss.
They went for a walk, but they didn't talk,
And what is strange in that?
There's many a day when a silence can say
A great deal more than a chat.

They sat for awhile; an occasional smile
Was called to do its part;
They drifted on streams of glorious dreams—
And that was just the start!

There was luminous joy in the heart of the boy,
The same in the heart of the girl;
Each face was alight from morn 'till night
And their thoughts were all in a-whirl.

Still it is quite true that they never knew
The trip they were doomed to take Down a long church aisle
That would seem a mile
Toward wedding bells and cake—

'Till one night very soon, 'neath the light of the moon,
(O, what things moonlight can do!)
They were very elate,
And set the date
To be one instead of two.

—Jaculyn O'Dell.

Ministerial Association

The Association met in Athenian Hall March 12. Three members, Thomas Dixon, Clifton Moore, and Ray Dollenmayer gave interesting and helpful talks on the following subjects: "The Authority of Preaching", "The Church's Greatst Need—Prayer", and "Advantages of Protestantism."

Next week the question of "Choosing a Seminary" will be discussed, a question of vital concern to every Ministerial Student. Members, let's all be present. Fellows, you're all cordially invited.

If all the students who slept in class were placed end to end they would be more comfortable.

The Debater Maintains

By Logic B. Reasons

The East Tennessee extemporaneous speaking contest is a new form of forensic program for East Tennessee. There has been established for some time the oratorical league, but the colleges have made little effort toward a similar league for extemporaneous speaking until this year. We are inclined to think that this is just as important as the oratorical contest, and our own forensic coach, Professor Queener, has developed the idea into a real program in this part of the state. This program is due to the ceaseless efforts of our own coach.

Of course, we had extemporaneous speakers last year at the Provincial convention. We had both a man speaker and a woman speaker. They won first and second places.

—:—

J. Stuart James who won second place in the men's contest should have had first place, but just as he was waxing eloquent about two-thirds of the way though on "Corruption in Certain Politics" he happened to remember that he was supposed to be talking to his judges.

—:—

He was in deep water then, however, and there was nothing he could do but "let down and wade out."

—:—

We think William Graham, our representative for the East Tennessee contest Friday night, has a good chance to bring glory to Maryville, but, knowing his opponents as we do in debate, we know he will be in a real contest.

—:—

In one more week the debate seasen for the varsity team at Maryville will have ended—except for the two who go to the convention.

—:—

A trip like that is worth a semester in college.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER CONVENTION

the Volunteers met with the Y. W. C. A. It is hoped that the good derived from these meetings will soon be put to practical use in the mission fields of the world.

The officers for the coming year are as follows:

President, Alvin McCann, Maryville
Vice-President, Gertrude Fielding, Scarrett
Secretary, John Hendry, Maryville
Treasurer, William Wallace, U. T., Memphis
General Council Member, Mary Parker, Memphis
Bulletin Secretary, Sara Bagley, Maryville
Alumni Secretary, Rev. Marshall Lovell
News Letter Editor, Elizabeth Sneeden, Scarrett
Medical Advisor, Dr. D. L. Mumpower.

The Maryville Student Volunteers wish to express their appreciation to the people of Maryville who extended their hospitality to the delegates of the convention.

OHIO CLUB

About twenty members at the Thursday evening meeting in Theta voted a contribution towards the Campus Bench Fund. Mention was made of the Ohio Club's starting the Campus Campaign by calling together the other State Clubs some three weeks ago, after which time the State Presidents were made the Student Council Campus Committee to put over the project. A committee was appointed for the next Club meeting three weeks hence.

The women on the debate team have acquired 'It'. Last Friday Ruby Lee Johnson and Alice Renegar had parlor dates till 11 o'clock in a men's dormitory at Milligan. They spent the night in the said dorm, and it was so unusual to have the women in a men's dorm that the women were on review for two hours after they had won the debate. ... KAYSER "SLENDO" HEEL
EVEN in our fondest dreams we never thought a hose could be as popular as this "Slendo" Heel of Kayser. All the smart feet of the day appear in it. HIGHLAND ECHO LUNCHEON IS UNIQUE FEATURE

Editorial and Business Staffs Celebrate With Food, Speeches.

SENIOR AWARDS MADE

Faculty Members See Bright Future For Newspaper On The Hill.

March 22—Tonight the first banquet which the Highland Echo has ever fostered was held in Science Hall. Besides the entire staff and fcaulty committee consisting of Dr. Hunter, Dr. Hussey, Prof. Davis and Prof. Walker, Mr. Earl Devon, Head of Journalistic Department of the University of Tennessee, was present. Mr. Devon came for the purpose of making an address on "The Influence of the College Paper."

Julia Terry, sophomore cub, had charge of the decorations. She put the freshmen to work, and it is to the frosh and their able supervisor that credit must be given for their original way of carrying out the jounarlism idea in the decorations. The black and white color scheme was faithfullly adhered to, and ordinary newspapers appeared as realistic flowers, fancy napkins for the glass and mint cup and clever napkin designs.

Prof. Davis was toast master. His stories from Greek Mythology, his dry wit, and humorous comments kept the entire group in laughter. Dr. Hunter, in his speech on Echo Progress, laid particular emphasis on the fact that the paper has been considerably improved within the last year because of the new system of choosing the staff. A number of "firsts" were enumerated. This is the first banquet in the history of the paper; this year's Business Manager is the first to provide means for such a celebration. Mr. Devon, in his address, said that though he had heard that we had no journalism course in the school, he believed we had the idea, and the news-getting ability. He also made favorable comment on the fact that the Echo contained so many write ups concerning literary and artistic things.

One of the features of the program which came as a surprise to a few, was the presentation to the seniors, of small Shaeffer pencils. The owner's name and his position on the staff were engraved upon each pencil. Dr. Hussey presented the awards, and his comments on each recipient were the richest things of the evening.

DR. KNAPP, 70 YEARS OLD, FELICITATED

Professor of Mathematics One Of Best Loved Men.

March 15 was the birthday of one of the best beloved persons on the Hill. "Daddy" Knapp celebrated his seventieth birthday on that day. The yells in chapel and the shower of birthday greetings are indications of the place he holds in the affections of his students and friends. He now has in his possession five beautiful volumes containing birthday greetings from people all over the world. "Daddy" Knapp said of his birthday,

"I've been rebelling all year at the thought of having a seventieth birthday, because I didn't want to get old. But now that it has passed and all this has happened I'm rather glad I had it."

JACK COTTON VISITS ON THE HILL

During the past week a Maryville graduate of the class of '29 has been visiting on the Hill. Last year's annual says of him: "Is there anything this versatile young man will not attempt? And is there anything that he does not successfully accomplish? From walking a tight rope to editing the Highland Echo, Jack is the man for the job. And he writes poetry, too. He has piloted the Glee Club through a very successful season."

Jack is now working for his master's degree at Ohio State.

UNDERGRADUATES IN VOICE, PIANO, PRESENTED APR. 7

Students Have Opportunity To Hear Best Talent In Recital, Voorhees Chapel.

An undergraduate recital in piano, voice, and violin will be given in the chapel on Monday night, April 7, under the supervision of the Music Department. Since the students have so few opportunities to hear the undergraduates in music, this program, which will display a wealth of talent, should be a treat to everyone.

The entire program has not been definitely arranged yet, but a few of the piano numbers have been selected. Miss Elvira Mieselwitz and Mildred MacKenzie will play an ensemble number, "C Sharp Minor Prelude", Rachmaninoff's, with duet accompaniment by Marion McMurray and Mildred MacKenzie.

Another selection which will be of interest is "Hungarian" by Koelling. This number will be played by Lee Calloway, Margaret Melody, Conrad Quinell, and Marion McMurray. A Schumann solo, "Grillen", will be given by Grace Proffitt.

In the next edition of the Echo there will be specific details as to the voice and violin numbers which will be presented. Miss Hale is endeavoring to make this recital a real treat to Maryville music enthusiasts

STUDENT COUNCIL BACKS CHILHOWEAN

Seniors Get Corner On May Queen; Fire Drills Soon!

March 21—The Student Council voted to put the Chilhowean on a different basis—that one half its price be included in each semester's bills. Several weeks ago, an editorial in the Highland Echo suggested that the annual should be placed on a safer financial bcsis. The council appointed a committee to ascertain just what plans other colleges follow, and letters of inquiry were sent to Vanderbilt, Alabama, Chattanooga, Wooster, Carson-Newman, Park and Berea. Vanderbilt uses the optional plan; Carson-Newman, Park and Berea use the optional, but hope to adopt the fee plan within a short time. Alabama, Chattanooga, and Wooster use the fee plan and find that it results in a yearbook that is more satisfactory and attractive in every way. Michigan State has a sliding scale of prices costing less in the fall and increasing towards spring. The matter will be placed before the student body for vote, soon.

The organization also voted to have fire drills in the women's dormitories; that the senior nominee automatically be May Queen and the other class nominees be her attendants. The Student Council is also sponsoring a Culture Week movement.

MISS DARBY'S BIRTHDAY

Miss Darby had her sixteenth birthday on March 15. Anyway, it must have been her sixteenth, for there were sixteen candles on the cake the waitresses in the dining hall gave her. Maybe, though, it was only the fifteenth birthday, because Edris and his yelling squad gave her only fifteen rahs. Fifteenth or sixteenth, we wish her many happy returns.

MISS IRENE BEWLEY

World famous reader, who will be presented by the Y. M. and Y. W. next Monday evening at 8:00 p. m. Miss Bewley will read "Quare Women", a mountain play.

DR. R. E. VALE SENDS GREETINGS TO ALL

Letter Accompanies Pictures of Christ In Garden.

First Presbyterian Church,
Oak Park, Illinois,
February 23, 1930.

Dear Friends:

I have sent to Dr. Wilson eight hundred copies of the picture which I promised the student body. If through the "Echo" I may have the privilege of addressing the students I should like to express my greetings in connection with this picture which Dr. Wilson will no doubt find means to place in your hands.

You will recognize this picture as a copy of a famous painting. In it you will notice the thorn bush growing, later to be woven into a crown of thorns. You will notice the robe without seam with its royal colours. You will see our Saviour's fingers interlaced in agony and His face uplifted in appeal, an appeal in which He is thinking not only of Himself but of you and me and all others for whom He is about to die. As though in answer to that appeal there is above and before Him the indication of a shaft of glory light. In the distance behind Him are the dim housetops and towers of Jerusalem, with the cloud of doom hanging above. In the shadow behind Him are some exceedingly dim outlines of faces. These appear more clearly in the original painting. We recognize them as the three disciples. We remember His words: "Could ye not watch with me one hour?"

As we look upon this picture we remember that our Lord, sinless though He was, passed through this agony that He might win salvation for us. In the Incarnation power was poured into the world; in the Agony that power was tested before the world; in the Crucifixion that power was loosed upon the world and in the Resurrection that power was certified to the world. It is the power that will enable every one of us to become what in our best moments we want to be.

I ask of you to accept this picture with my personal good wishes and to place it where you can daily see it as a reminder of the life to

GLEE SINGERS HAVE EXTENDED TOURS ARRANGED

Busy Polishing Program For Eleventh Series of Spring Concerts.

TheMaryville College Glee Singers are looking forward to one of the best years since the organization came into existence. Prospective trips this year have come in, in great abundance, and the itinerary which is being mapped out will be one of the largest ever attempted.

A varied program has been carefully selected and prepared for this, the eleventh annual concert tour of the Glee Singers, and it promises to be a treat to those fortunate enough to hear it.

At present two small trips have been arranged; the first, on April 3, will take the Glee Singers to Newport, Tenn., while on April 4 they go to Farragut high school.

The home concert later in the spring will contain many brilliant numbers as well as quite a few novelties.

MRS. STEVENSON IS GAY CONVALESCENT

Cards, of Cheer Pour Into "House In Woods."

Is yo' sick, honey?
Know what ah sends dese voodoos
Fo' to do?
Jes' to hoodoo al dem aches right
Out o' you!

Greetings such as this one have been pouring into the House in the Woods for the last three months and more. There are whole rows of them strung across the foot of Mrs. Stevenson's bed. It is not the greeting cards, however, that we are most interested in. It is the thought that such cards may not be needed after many more months that is so pleasant to us.

About three and a half months ago, when Mrs. Stevenson was put to bed with a fractured hip, the doctors said that there wasn't much hope that she would ever walk again, but in the last few visits Dr. Ellis has made there he has been greatly pleased by the progress she is making. He has been so pleased, in fact, that he doens't think it will be necessary to take an X-ray to determine whether the bone has healed or not; he is sure that it has healed. She is able to stand on one foot, now and swing the other one around a bit, so our hopes for a complete recovery are high.

Mrs. Stevenson apparently doesn't believe that it pays to be grouchy, at least if she does, she does not live up to her beliefs. She keeps just as cheery and bright as though she had nothing at all the matter with her, and she certainly puts a great many of us to shame who have no such cause for complaint. If ever you are in need of a little inspiration, go out and see her. She is always glad to see people, and it will do you a lot of good just to talk to her.

Girls, Farmer Watkins will be a good man to have around the house. Handy, you know. The way he washes windows is a delight to behold. We have seen him in action on the windows of the Y. M. reading room.

Two is company—and three is relatives.

LOVING CUP GOES TO BAINONIANS FOR 'EAST IS WEST'

Committee Selects Oriental Play As Best Mid-Winter Of Season.

The Theta Alpha Phi Dramatic Fraternity has elected to present the Theta Alpha Phi loving cup to the Bainonian Literary Society, having decided that her mid-winter, "East is West" was superior to the other plays of the year. The three factors which influenced their judgment were: choice of play, setting and scenery, and presentation. The judges were Dr. Hunter, Jennie Edwards Veech and Nellie Caldwell Morton.

This is the second time that Bainonian has won the cup. Last year it was presented to her on the merits of "Graustark". Should she win it again, it becomes a permanent possession of the Society. Since Jane Duke, Lois Cupler, Alice Renegar, Russell Gilmore, Robert Crothers, and many other members of the cast of "East is West" may still be on the Hill, it is thought that Bainonion with the aid of her Athenian brothers, will give the other contestants a close race for the cup next year.

The presentation of the cup is a yearly custom which was initiated in the spring of '28. Alpha Sigma's play "So This is London", received the honor in '28.

CAMPUS PROJECT DELAYED BY RAIN

Zeal of Workers Stimulated By Co-ed Delegations.

Every worthy cause seems to have its cloudy days—and so did the campaign for a more beautiful campus. For four days at the beginning of the week, heavy rain clouds darkened the Hill and prevented the enthusiastic volunteers from working.

Although some workers lost heart, most of them are sticking to their task—or rather, are being helplessly drawn to it by a certain powerful attraction. These volunteers seem to respond readily to lemonade and women. The women of Pearsons served refreshments on Thursday and Friday. A delegation from Baldwin took charge on Saturday, and was scheduled to serve again today for the Monday gang. This group of would-be pathmakers has not taken the field at all as yet. We hope they make a good start today both as to picks and to lemonade. On Tuesday and Wednesday Memorial Hall will do her share of the work.

The campus benches—fifty of them have been ordered from the Nelson Iron Works in Knoxville. Many clubs voted to have their names printed on the benches and have contributed the required sum of money. Almost all of the necessary cash has been collected. Whatever balance should be left will go toward purchasing evergreens. It is the hope of the Campus Committee to plant shrubs in front of Pearsons Hall and Thaw Hall.

Soon police signs will be set up in critical places along the walks. Judging by the inviting appearance of the paths already constructed, there ought to be no trouble whatever in keeping the students off the grass.

The officers of the committee ex-

BINGLING BROS. DARNUM DAILY CIRCUS IS SAT.

Thrilling and Exhilarating Is Exhibition of Big One Ring Carnival.

HERE FOR ONE NIGHT

Side Shows, Sawdust, Peanuts, Popcorn, All Under One Roof.

Ladies and gentlemen, you are now about to read about the greatest entertainment ever staged in the Maryville College Alumni gym. This entertainment will clearly surpass anything that was staged under the same name in previous years.

"The Circus" is coming on the night of March 29, and never will there be any better drawing attraction than this year's performance of home talent, original jokes and acrobatics.

Everyone in charge of the program assures us that this attraction will necessitate your patronage, unless you wish to be sorry and gloomy all spring.

There will be fun and frolic for everyone, young ones, old ones and everybody.

Jack Coughlin is directing and instructing the personnel ad he is being ably assisted by "Shorty" Shaw, Olive Clopton, and Grace Weller. These four have charge of all of structing the personnel and he is bejust what should develop from the imaginative brains of these four master minds.

The other committees deserve no the program and anyone can imagine tiringly the past few weeks to perfect a program that will surpass any five ring circus that Barnum and Bailey ever staged.

The property committee consists of Porter French and Carol Cushman; Al Foreman and Georga Burke form the decorating committee.

Tickets and Ushers will be in charge of Homer McCann and Billy Gruchy.

Animals and Freaks will be assembled by the following: Edwin Buchanan, Clarence Bratschie, Harry Wood, Julia Terry, Jane Duke and Lois Cupler.

Some new acts have been added to this year's program, one of which and of praise, they have worked unis a tumbling act put on by the women. This attraction alone is worth the admission price.

Another added attraction will be the side shows which open an hour before the main show begins.

No circus would be complete with-

MRS. VEECH PLAYS MINOR STAGE ROLE

Was In Passion Play Mob Scene Friday Night.

Mrs. Veech's most recent stage triump is her role as a member of the mob in the Passion Play. Finding herself unable to obtain tickets for the performance, she resolved to see the play by fair means or foul. She hired herself back stage and by a little coaxing succeeded in obtaining a costume. She wasn't sure about her part in the play, but her stage experience saved her from stage fright. She just followed the mob—and this was a time where to follow the mob was the correct thing to do.

Mrs. Veech says of her role, "The chief thing that I disliked about the play is the fact that every time I found a good peep-hole the stagehands shifted the scenery."

ROBERTSON LAUDED

Professor Davis, in a speech at the Echo luncheon, paid tribute to the college orator by referring to him as the "Cicero of the Chilhowees."

Blazer came in for his share of the honors when Dr. Hussey alluded to him as the "Roger Babson of Little River."

If the landlord should object to children tell him you are raising them to be landlords.

Confessions Of a Feature Writer

He awoke this morning muttering those three words. Over and over again he said them before he finally arose and went to Pearsons Hall in a foolish attempt to break his fast without a hammer.

He went to chapel; he went to classes; but ever and anon his lips moved, and more than once those three words almost found utterance.

He made several feverish but futile attempts to turn his thoughts toward something else, toward anything but——.

That feature article!

He sat down on the marble bench which was given by the class of 1913. That action brought no memories and no relief from the three-word obsession which held him remorselessly in a hand as of iron. He went back to his room feeling useless and insignificant and as if life were not half worth the living.

Only one hundred and seventy words. Oh, that feature article!

He pulled his hair. He wrung his hands. He bowed his head and moaned. He made every gesture of despair that people do in dime literature. He sighed. He paced the floor; he clenched his fists; he sank into a chair and let his head hang loosely on one side.

Those three wrods. Torture. That feature article.

The irate room-mate entered the room and found him thus. Too much,, too much!

"Hey, you moron, haven't you finished that feature article yet?"

No response. The echo of those three words, THAT FEATURE ARTICLE rebounded from each wall of the room back to the center—where he was sitting— and there set up a howl of echoed and re-echoed repetition.

Poor he——he was a good fellow, the room-mate thought—never refused to beg, borrow or steal anything that he wanted—always sang loudest after lights were out—cribbed in every class—poor fellow!

The room-mate plunged recklessly into his last resort, and great was the fall. His last resort to resuscitate the victim.

"Say, there's a committee downstairs waiting to see you. Napoleon, Caesar, and Alexander the Great." The room-mate quaked wth fear.

He answered. It had worked, magic trick!

"Oh, tell 'em I—feature article. I'm writing THAT FEATURE ARTICLE."

The room-mate may live.

CRASHING THE GATE

The last exclusive senior party is over, so we can speak freely. There still persists a group of self-designated privileged characters who think a party of any kind is an invitation to whomever they may wish to have a date on that particular night. The fault lies not so much with those who accept the unauthorized invitations as with those who issue them. The senior party is not the only affair that has been, to use college vernacular, "crashed". It is only that we have had the breach of etiquette called to our attention in regard to the last two senior functions.

It is not that we mind putting out the extra mouthful of food for the starving individual, but if every one who had the desire for an outsider's company were to bring him along, the organization that has to bear the "crash" would go bankrupt.

It is not only unfair to the members of the class who have foregone the company of an outsider in order to be loyal to the best interests of the class; it is decidedly bad taste in any realm of society.

And while we are on the subject of parties, we cannot help raising the question of why the importation of entertainment material. We enjoyed the various forms of enterment that were presented, but the talent from our own class far excelled the importations, and we are confident that more of the same calibre could have been secured within our own ranks.

Everyone had a good time at these parties, but there is enough cause, we think, for a few gentle reminders for future guidance.

After College, What?

Next month's issue of a current magazine will print an article on what college people can and may do after graduation. It may be, as this article will suggest, that the business world is anxious for the services of the man getting out of college, but our limited experience and observation has not pointed to anything so optimistic. We were made painfully aware of the fact that big business is not so anxious as some would have us believe, when a representative of a widely known organization departed without making any definite promises to prospective business men of the senior class this year.

If we cannot get a position in which we think we would like to go upward after we graduate from college, what are we in college for? Our answer is, nothing. While the educators may talk of attitudes and values, social betterment of the race and conception of ideals, the cold fact remains that we are, at least for the most part, in college because we feel that we can make more of an economic success of our lives than we could if we did not go to college. Not that the ultural and ethical are not worthwhile, but unattended by a fair degree of economic independence they become loathesome reminders of a longed for success.

Employment in this country today is undoubtedly in perilous straits. Jobs will undoubtedly be harder to secure than they have been in some time. Some seniors will find opportunities scarce, and will, as so many do, enter the teaching profession "until something else turns up." Many such have been teaching in the same position for twenty years. Others will take the first position that offers itself, with little or no foreknowledge of what the possibilities or demands are.

To the seniors a word of warning will do little good,—the seniors will probably be too busy to read this anyway—but to those who are yet to face the task of finding employment, we should like to suggest that a careful survey of the fields of work by undergraduates will pay big dividends about this season of their senior year.

HIGHLAND FLINGS

A college man was injured in a wreck, and when the doctors tried to identify him by his clothes, it looked as though the whole school was injured.

Senior: "What would you advise me to read after graduation?"
Professor: "The 'Help Wanted' column."

"Do you mean to say that you forgot to meet me at six?"
"Well, since I put grease on my hair everything slips my mind."

Jess Peirce: "I'm a little hoarse from yelling."
Mrs. Minton: "Where'd you say you were from?"

You can't trust a man with a watch when there's a woman in the case.

"Muscle Shoals, Muscle Shoals,"
"Why do you say Muscle Shoals?"
"Because I'm mad and that's the biggest dam I know of."

"Say, your father was pretty wealthy when he died, wasn't he?"
"Oh, yes."
"Did he leave your mother very much?"
"Oh, about twice a week."

CURRENT CAMPUS COMMENT

Hessie Keeton: "I wish I were a blonde and looked dumb."

Dr. Orr: "The Maryville Student Volunteers are thirty-six years old."

Peggy Mevis: "When I was in high school I used to say a lot of bright things that got in the school paper, but I haven't been in the joke column for years now."

Edith Nash: "Some of the girls go out into the woods to meditate, but when I go I always get ants or something on me."

Margaret Auld: "The Holland Bell Ringers should have had Miss Mollie's bell, too."

Miss Mollie: "If I had another matron with a personality like Mrs. Butcher I would have no more trouble with my girls."

Miss Jewell: "If you can't remember this story what's the good of studying it?"
Roberta Hickman: "That's what I often wonder."

DID YOU KNOW?

The common eel, a long bodied fish found in the mud and ooze of brakish and fresh water regions has the most interesting life history. For example, the breeding place of the eel is in salt water, although as a rule it is a fresh water fish. All of the eels which are found in small lakes, rivers, streams, etc., have made the trip from the Bermuda Islands to that spot. This is not only true of the American eels but also of the European eel. The water or ocean in the vicinity of the Bermuda Islands is the breeding place for eels from all over the world.

Another peculiarity of the eel is the fact that when the parents return from their trip abroad, to the spawning ground, the female lays the eggs by diving to such a great depth that the eggs are squeezed out of her. Immediately after this she dies. The male in turn scatters the sperms and dies—so the new generation is born fatherless and motherless, and yet some unknown or strange sense directs the European eel to Europe and the American eel to Amreica.

—How To Run A Paper—

If we print jokes, people say we are silly or vulgar.
If we don't they say we are adolescent and too serious.
If we publish original material, they say we lack authority.
If we print things from other colleges, we are lazy.
If we are not rustling news, we are not tending to business.
If we are rustling news, we are wasting time.
If we print local stuff they say we hurt people's feelings.
If we don't print contributions, we lack appreciation.
If we print them the paper is full of junk.
Like as not someone will say we stole this from some other paper—So we did.

Y. W. NOMINEES

The election of next year's Y. W. C. A. officers will take place Tuesday. The nominating committee met Thursday and selected the following women as candidates for the various offices:

President—Mabel Dickerson, Carol Cushman
Vice President—Anne Smartt, Julia Terry
Secretary—Naomi Willingham, Lucy Ann Vorhees.
Treasurer—Kitty Hodges, Betty Wilbar.
Nu Gamma Leader—Christine Foster, Rachel Grubbs.

CARE OF THE EYES

The eyes are about the most important organs of the human body. The most important thing about the eye is the color. Different colored eyes have different meanings. For example. When you see a man with a black eye it means that he has run into a doorknob. Ask him, he'll tell you so. If you see a man with green eyes, it means that he is in love with his next-door neighbor's wife. If you see a man with red eyes, it means that he has been to a filling station. A man who has a yellow eye advertises to the world that he has a glass one. A man with an orange eye has just walked under a ladder and the painter spilled orange paint on him. Thus we see that eyes are very important and should be taken care of.

Weak eyes is the most common of eye ailments. This condition is caused by straining the eye muscles and can be remedied by wearing smoked glasses. Pink eye is also very common. This is caused by the reflection from red dresses. Beware of red.

The muscles of the eyelids should be kept strong so they cannot cause trouble or embarrassment by an accidental wink. A handsome young friend who has twitching eyelids has to run for his life every day when going to work. Look to your eyelids.

The eyes are not a big enough subject to talk on without giving serious trouble to the owner of the eye, hence we shall conclude our talk with the admonition, "look at your eyes, eveyrone else does."

LOST—Gold pencil, on campus. Reward if returned to Frances Leisenring, care of Echo office.

Dora Waite, '33, was called to her home in Perry, N. Y. last Wednesday evening due to the serious illness of her mother. At the time of writing Mrs. Waite is still very ill but her condition is slightly better than it was when Dora left Maryville. The prayers and sympathy of the student body are with the family at this time of anxiety.

SPORTS

VETERAN HURLER WARMS UP IN BOX

Stationed At Mound For Final Season

Captain Blazer Ready To Fill Any Position.

March 24—Earl Blazer, captain of the 1930 Highlander baseball team would be a valuable man for any college baseball club. A man that can play three or four positions and play them all well, as Earl can, is very handy to have around.

Captain Blazer, a southpaw, came to Maryville as a pitcher. After scoring in this department for a year, Blazer spent the second year dividing his time between pitching and outfielding. Last year Earl cavorted around second base, and took the mound when needed. He has always been a dependable hitter and flashy fielder, and we are certain that this will be his best year. The Highlanders are very fortunate in having such a versatile leader.

AERIAL DART

Last Monday morning Aerial Dart held sway at the gym. Most of the contestants were eliminated then but a few women played off matches during the week. The last ones were close, and by the fatal process of elimination we yet have Foster and Hamrick to play and the winners of this to play Ruth Buchanan.

Speaking of Tournaments—this is just to remind you to keep the tennis courts in order and sign up since Miss Weller wants to start the games by March 29.

"I dare you to jump in like you are."

"I will if you will."

"All right; lets go!"

Splash! All fools aren't dead yet!

French and Cudney offered much amusement to themselves and the rest of the swimming team by jumping in the pool while fully dressed. After that a thrilling 25 yard race was won by Cudney in which the dog paddle was the only stroke allowed.

VOLLEY BALL TOURNAMENT

The volley ball tournament got well under way this week, with two tournament games played off.

On Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock the Junior-Senior team trounced the Freshmen by the large count of 40-29. The game was slow from the start, with neither team making any spectacular plays. The Freshmen were off their game, losing out on their serve and passwork.

On Friday afternoon at four o'clock, the Freshmen met the Sophomores and beat them 49-30. Both teams were on their toes and much brilliant playing was done during the game. The Freshmen, however, used more team work, therefore won by a large score. The outstanding players for the Sophomores were Foster, Gamble, and Hitch, while Mitchell, Carpenter, and Houston were the highlights for the winners.

The final game of the tournament will be played off between the Junior-Seniors and Freshmen Monday morning at nine o'clock. This promises to be a good game, and even though the upperclassmen are doped to win, the Freshmen intend to give them at good game.

HAND BALL

March 22—Handball seems to have gotten lost in the rush lately but many may still be seen in the gymnasium swatting a tennis ball against a plaster wall slightly the worse for wear. This international sport is very fast and interesting and is excellent training for any other sport as it develops both wind and speed. If you want a good workout, just play about three fast games of hand ball.

M. C. To Meet N. Y. Giants On Diamond

Many Interesting Games In Store For Fans.

March 24— Providing proposed plans are completed, the Maryville Highlanders will open their 1930 baseball schedule against the New York Giant seconds, March 29 at Caswell Park, Knoxville. The New York team had a game scheduled with the Knoxville Smokies, but as Knoxville has dropped out of the Sally League, and will have no team, Maryville hopes to take their place. Though the Giants will be somewhat out of their class, the Highlanders hope to put up a good battle.

Following this engagement, Michigan State College comes here for two games, March 31 and April 1. The Highlanders will then play Lenoir Rhyne, Catawba, Lincoln Memorial University and others. The schedule, of which some of the games are still tentative is:

Racket Squad Meets Tenn. Wesleyan Today

Racket Squad Meets Tennessee Wesleyan Today.

March 24—Four Maryville netmen departed this morning for Athens, Tennessee, where they will engage Tennessee Wesleyan in the first tennis match of the season. The four men: Strain, King, Buchanan, and Swaim were picked to represent Maryville, as the result of the Spring Tennis Tournament, in which Strain was the winner.

The match will consist of four singles and two doubles. Each man playing singles, then teaming to play doubles. Professor Smith, coach of the team, is fairly confident of victory.

COLLEGIATE SOCKS

As every college man will affirm, holey socks are of three general varieties: those with holes in the heel, those with holes in the toe, and those which are completely shot, contest are that you be a freshman,

From a strictly sartorial standpoint, holes in the heel are the most calamitous. Their origin is relatively simple, being most frequently a fractional over-size in the shoe, resultant in a frictional contact between shoe and sock. The seriousness of such a case is evident, for, starting out in the morning the size of a mere pin-head, at night the gap may be plum-sized. The following evening it indubitably will have risen above the top of the shoe. It is then that action must be taken. Although certain college men have been known to result to high-top shoes or spats, there is an element of cowardice in such a gesture which forbids its universal acceptance. There is but one generally-accepted solution to this problem and that is restricbted to wearers of black hose. With the sock placed on the foot, quantities of black ink (not blue-black) are applied to the exposed portion of the foot with the aid of a match-stick. Care must be taken to administer the ink in the exact location of the hole. As the orifice becomes larger, additional applications of ink are made. Experiments have been conducted with blue, brown, and even vari-colored socks, but satisfactory results have not as yet been obtained.

The second type of holey sock is that which centers its activities in the toe. This variety may be caused by too-large shoes, sudden stops and starts, or prolonged mountain climbing. The objectionableness of this type lies in the physical discomfort rather than any sartorial embarrassament. The big toe, being largely responsible for the existence of this hole, takes full advantage of it, which results in an estrangement between the big toe and its four compatriots. Only one remedy to this condition has been evolved: It is to change about socks, that is, place the left sock on the right foot, and the right sock on the left, thus locating the holes before the smaller toes, which by their size are incapable of utilizing the outlets.

The third general type of holey sock is that most frequently termed "shot". It usually combines both the holey heel and holey toe, but that is not all. Every shot sock possesses some distinctive features, perhaps in the ribbing at the top of the sock, perhaps in the sole, and therein is its originality. To the uninitiated, the shot sock would seem los,t but the sophisticated collegian does not so quickly despair. The remedy is a form of superimposition. Instead of wearing one sock on each foot, two socks are worn (holes rarely occur in precisely the same area or to the same extent) and the foot regains its privacy.

Closely related to the problem of holey socks, is that of unmated and divorced socks. Experts working on problem for years have reached no real solution. However, leading authorities now strongly advise that divorced and unmated socks be relegated to the ranks of shoe-shining equipment.

"Angus, they tell me that you and brother Donald were in a railway accident. Did you collect any damages?"

"Aye, we did. But never a shilling wud we hae got, had I no kicked Donald in the face."

Two Should Make Honor Fraternity

Tests For Events In Track Soon To Be Given.

March 24—Present indications are that at least two Maryville men will qualify for entrance into the Sigma Delta Psi, honorary athletic fraternity, by the end of the year, according to Dr. McMurray, sponsor of the local chapter. Four men have passed the swimming test, and a few track candidates have successfully passed some of the track tests.

National officers of the fraternity are very anxious that each one of the forty-five chapters qualify at least one man by the end of the school year. They stress March, April and May as the months in which tests are most likely to be given.

THOSE THAT HAVE EARS!

When one sees a man with exceptionally thick ears, one may know that here is a man, whose toes one must not carelessly tread. The reporter once remembers sitting in a Raleigh, North Carolina theater, beside a man, who had ears a half inch thick. This lowly reporter said to himself: "If that guy makes any requests of me I will grant them."

In the parlance of the mat, such ears are known as "cauliflower" ears. This probably means that the ears resemble a cauliflower in appearance and would taste quite as bad.

Of the local mat artists, only one has yet been given his trade mark. A trade mark which might prove valuable in case the wearer ever participates in a quarrel with a taxi driver. Sam Hatcher is the proud wearer of a right formidable cauliflower ear. Sam can strut with impunity.

SPRINGTIME COMES

Bare trees standing strong, wind-swept,
Long stilled water, leaping, runs;
Nature, silent, long has slept,
Now she wakens—springtime comes.

Spring with all her laughing grace,
Borne on March's wild wind-drums;
All earth stands with lifted face—
Waiting—for the springtime comes.

Birds sing wildly, sweet, and shrill,
Flowers wake to bees' soft hums;
All life springs with glorious thrill
Calling glady, "Springtime comes'

Moist brown earth smells cool and sweet
Lying 'neath the warming suns;
Children play; their dancing feet
Cry the message, "Springtime comes!"

THETA EPSILON

Theta Epsilon will meet Saturday and get a chance to see its new officers in swing. They had their chance last week in planning a side-show for the circus. This shouldn't be hard considering the members of Theta.

'Nez Hamrick and Hazel Bowers will present a little satire on the Freshmen. They advertise that our President, Mr. Duff, will have his double there to preside over a typical Freshman class meeting. Be there, Loyal Freshmen, to defend the honor of your class.

ART CLUB MEETS

The Art Club met in Bainonian Hall last Thursday night. The first number on the program was a piano solo by Beulah Duggan. Eleanor Henry then gave a brief sketch of the development of Sculpture. The last number was a discussion of Leonard Devinci,, led by Ann Banks.

CAMPUS PROJECT DELAYED BY RAIN

pect the paths to be finished sometime this week if spring showers stay away. They could, however, use more men—they hesitate to ask the girls to swing picks. It is up to the men to do that. The fate of the whole campaign lies in the hands of the workers themselves.

Mr. Proffitt has agreed to provide for a path and steps from Carnegie to Court Street, if the students finish the rest of the work soon enough, and if they are willing to offer their free labor a little longer. The time required to finish the task depends entirely on how well the Campus Volunteers keep up their eager spirit, which they have shown so far.

DR. R. E. VALE GREETINGS TO ALL

which we pledged ourselves in our great metings together a few weeks ago and a reminder of Him Who loved each one of us even unto the death.

I wish it were possible for me to acknowledge personally all the letters that came to me as well as the many personal messages. Because of lack of time I can not do so. Will you not therefore accept this expression of my appreciation in lieu of such personal reply?

You have a wonderful college and a splendid faculty. Each of you has a great future ahead. If I can ever be of personal service to any one of you in reaching that future please call upon me and I shall count it a privilege.

With personal regards to each of you in the student body and to each of your outstanding faculty and to your beloved President, I am,

Sincerely your friend,
R. E. Vale.

Ministerial Association

March 19—The Ministerial Association met in Athenian Hall tonight The members were favored by having Miss Adkins present. She played two songs, "Abide With Me" and "In the Sweet Bye and Bye". Joseph Hacker spoke on the importance of our recognizing Christ's presence with us in order to be truly successful. The meeting was very inspiring in character.

LYCEUM

The Holland Bell Ringers were eagerly accepted by the Maryville audience Thursday night. The program was delightful in its variety of native songs with costumes and native dances, and music of bells and instruments.

The Bell Ringers suggested the pheasant fancies alluded to by another writer in the Echo last week. After having heard them, one really did have a desire to visit the land of windmills, dykes, and tulips. However, the wonder of the evening to many is how they can walk in those heavy wooden shoes!

The last lyceum of the season came up to its reputation, which preceeded it here, in giving us a high-grade, clean program.

DEBATE

The men's debate teams won one and lost one during the past week. At Johnson City, Tennessee, the affirmative team, J. Stuart James and Wright Frost, lost to the negative team of the East Tennessee Teachers by an audience decision. The Maryville team received two fifths of the votes cast by the audience. Prof. Smith accompanied them.

At the Y. W. auditorium here the negative team of Robert West and Richard Strain won from the Teachers affirmative team. This was also an audience decision, Maryville receiving four-fifths of the vote cast.

Before the debates began, at each place, the audience cast ballots showing which side of the question they stood for. After the speeches were over they then cast ballots on the question of: "Which team do you believe did the most effective debating this evening?"

The Debater Maintains

By Logic B. Reasons

An enthusiastic send-off for a debate team or any other kind of representative helps more than is sometimes known. A school that will back its representatives through thick and thin has the right spirit It is true that there is danger of giving a team too much confidence in itself sometimes, but I am inclined to believe that more encouragement than discouragement is needed.

We lose enough to keep us discouraged and support is needed from the backers to off-set that.

—:—

After all winning a debate is not all there is in it.

I suppose it will have to be admitted, however, that it is all anybody ever asks you about.

—:—

But whether anyone asks you or not, he who participates in a clean program of debate wins even when he loses.

—:—

If a presidential candidate were taking such an extensive speaking tour, he would have a private physician to look after him. Then every day reports would be sent out saying the standard bearer was bravely standing up under a terrific strain.

HAYNIE-McCOOL INITIATES

Margaret Haynie and Stanley McCool are suffering the necessary humiliating experiences which precede one's initiation into Theta Alpha Phi.

By next Wednesday night these two people, if they have come up to the desired standard, will be formally admitted into this national, honorary, dramatic fraternity.

The students note with delight that the more cumbersome pair of doors has been removed from the south entrance of Anderson hall. To pass securely through that hazardous entrance with one's arms piled high with books, an umbrella, and what not was more the task of a juggler than of a student. Now half of the menace has been removed, and one can pass to the exterior from the interior, or vice versa, without peril of being assaulted by doors on front and rear.

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas our all-wise Heavenly Father has taken from us the father of our friend and classmate, Anna Belle Burns,

Be it hereby resolved that we, the members of the Sophomore Class do extend our heartfelt sympathy and love to the bereaved family, trusting that the Holy Comforter will bring peace to their heart in the hour of sorrow.

Be it further resolved that a copy of these resolutions be read in Chapel, a copy sent to the bereaved family, and a copy published in the Highland Echo.

Signed, Resolutions Committee:

APRIL FOOL!

To Every individual and organization who might be "panned" in this column we dedicate this editorial

APRIL FOOL!

—o—

PRETENTIOUS QUOTATIONS

There is not one man in 10,000 who ever develops himself to all that is in him. When he reaches a certain level he is willing to ride along on what he has accomplished. He may seem ambitious, but examine him closely and you will find he wants success to come to him. He is not willing to work and sweat to climb to success.—Henry L. Doherty.

It is easier to work with people than against them. Many a capable man has lessened his usefulness to any organization or society by the fact that his disposition and characterstics, which are purely of his own making, prevent him from aimibly working with others. If anyone would strike a balance of good and bad qualities periodically and regularly, each could improve himself and increase his value to those with whom he associates and also make things easier for himself.

Nothing in the world can take the place of persistence. Talent will not; nothing is more common than unsuccessful men with talent. Genius will not; unrewarded genius is almost a proverb. Education will not; the world is full of educated derelicts. Persistence and determination alone are omnipotent. The slogan "Press on", "Push Forward", has always solved the problems of the human race.

The one whom you hear say "Never had a chance" lacks something. If you look far enough you'll find that something to be a capacity and a disposition for work.—Chas. M. Schwab.

THINGS YOU CAN'T IMAGINE

Hypo Mann wearing a tux.
Leland Gilmore working on the campus.
Ed Cooper having a date.
Jesse Peirce with lots of hair.
Dr. Hussey with a low collar.
Earl Blazer without Conchita.
Tiny Waters dating "Runt" Hunter.
Bill Hannah returning borrowed goods.
Miss Molly playing cards.
Ray Dollenmayer as a cowboy.
Dean Barnes playing tennis.
Forrest Robertson wearing overalls.
Florence Wallace madly in love.
Daddy Knapp mad at someone.
"Sis" Carringer wearing a dress.
Kitty Hodges not wearing red.
Zelma Alexander leading cheers.
Evelyn Seedorf with a boyish bob.
Irish Terry really serious.

At a recent senior class meeting Miss Viola Petitt was elected Senior Class poet. A number of Miss Petitt's poems have already appeared in the Echo and many of them are worthy of serious consideration as good poetry.

CURRENT CAMPUS COMMENT

Frank Baker: (in German class reading just before bell rings) "One does not look at these else to thank God"—the bell rings and Frank sighs.

Roger Kingsland: "Miss Hudson, is that a human ear you're drawing?"

Miss Hudson: "I'm sorry, but it is."

Scotty Thompson: "Lice come from filth, don't they?"

Fritz Cromer: "Does having a standard ring mean that it will be changed just once a year?"

Gilbert Shermer: "He did most of his work in the latter part of his years."

Bill Graham: "I wish I had a girl to talk about."

Roberta Hickman: "Copernicus was from Egypt."

Jesse Peirce: "No, Copernicus is along the Sea of Galilee."

Hessie Keeton: "Joe Hacker and Ira Morrison were precipitants in the Student Volunteer Conference."

Jesse Peirce: "When I sing, I make frogs green with envy."

Lula Mae Rockett: "This place is all wet."

SLY SAYINGS
By Miss Jewell

"The French always did things in tens."

Alton Partee: "Why, Miss Jewell, next Tuesday is April Fool's day."

Miss Jewell: "I hope you'll fool everyone and have your lesson prepared."

Miss Jewell: "The kings lounged on beds of justice, but I suppose they sat up straight when they felt strongly about a matter."

Miss Jewell: "Well, between Mr. Hope and the rain we find that Tilly was defeated."

Miss Jewell: "Hayes outlines this study quite well.'

Miss Jewell: "If you can't remember a thing more than one day, what's the use of studying?"

Roberta Hickman: "That's what I've often wondered myself."

Miss Jewell: "If you pull through four years, make enough quality credits, and pay five dollars, you'll get a piece of parchment."

SATURDAY NIGHT IN BAINONIAN

Next Saturday night the members of Bainonian Literary Society will be given a bird's-eye view of Scottish literature, music and customs. Bainonians' Saturday night programs have been unusually good this year. The different program committees deserve much credit, and our new committee members, Miss Hodges and Miss Seedorf, are carrying on the excellent work. Miss Seedorf says that her idea is to make the programs instructive as well as entertaining, and it is with this aim in mind that she has planned the following program.

Orchestra Number— Anita Ghigo, Eleanor Henry, Elizabeth Myers, Agnes McGuire, Georga Burke.
Biography of Burns—Hessie Keeton
Violin Solo—Elizabeth Myers
"Ye Flowery Banks"
"A Red Red Rose"—Viola Petitt
Parody on Burns—Margaret Auld
Coming Through the Rye—Veta Moe, Catherine Smith, Jeanette Spainhour
Piano Solo—"Bill" Renegar
Scotch Jokes—Edna Hampton

BREATH O' SPRING

Breath of Spring 'N Everything is on the Wing about to Sting—the Poet in Action.

(from Johnson City (Tenn.) Chronicle 1927)

Spring have came. According to the calendar, the clock and the thermometer, the little sprite of love-thoughts came tripping o'er hill and dale at two minutes after four A. M. Sunday. It was a beautiful day for motor wrecks. Then it rained.

The equinoctial storm is usually present at or nigh the equinox. Equinox is a foreign term derived from the two Latin words, equus, meaning horse, and nox, meaning night; hence "nightmare". That's why it always reins at that period.

That's when Spring wakes up.

Spring is the time of year when onions sprout. That's the origin of the poetic term, "breath of Spring". The winter flannels also begin to get itchy—the origin of the Charleston; and the Charleston suggests music, and music begets poetry. Hence, spring poets.

Spring poets are the product of evolution in every nation except Tennessee. Down here the poet was just born all of a sudden. Spring sprang forth and he sprung a few rhymes; that's all there is to it.

That's all there is to most Spring poetry. Spring poets are compelled to write about the weather and its accessories, mostly birds and creeks. So far as can be ascertained, the birds and creeks have never taken offense; but when the astronomical clock hand gets around to Equinox, the weather gets mad. Then it rains.

But never enough to dampen the ardor of the Spring poet.

"Spring, spring, spring,
Yo-ho, likewise ho-hum.
Tum tiddy um dum; G-r-r-r-r, woof, woof!
I smell the breath of an onion!"

GLEE CLUB

Everything will quiet down on Thursday and Friday evenings and peace will again reign supreme over the campus. The Maryville Glee Singers start on their eleventh annual concert tour and their first program will be given at Newport, about forty miles from Knoxville. Farragut High School, about sixteen miles from Knoxville will receive the benefit of the concert to be given on Friday, April 4.

The same program is to be given at both places and promises to be very interesting and entertaining. Such stirring music as "Song of the Vagabonds", "Song of the Toreador", and the "Riff Song", will be intermingled with the soft, melodious strains of "The Desert Song." "Goin' to Shout All Ober God's Heb'n" and other lively negro spirituals add the necessary southern touch for every good program.

Several specialty numbers will be given, including Donald Briggs in his inimicable readings; Buck on his golden saw; and the sacred quartet who will show what real harmony is.

The whole program has been very interestingly worked out and promises to be one of the best ever given by the Glee Singers.

Miss Gamble felt highly complimented the other day when Kitty Hodges asked her for one of her dresses for use in the Circus Saturday night. When Miss Gamble asked Kitty which of her dresses she wanted, Kitty replied, "Oh, the one you wear the most."

CIRCUS CUP

Saturday night, the circus cup, presented annually by the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. organizations to the Literary Society putting on the cleverest stunt, was awarded to Bainonian Literary Society on the merits of her original and realistic side show given in connection with the celebrated Bingling Brothers, Darnum and Daily Circus. "Faculty Meat" proved a source of amusement not only to the students but to certain members of the faculty who had an opportunity to see themselves as their students see them. Dr. Hussey, Prof Davis, Miss Gamble, Dean Barnes, Miss Jewell, Dr. Hunter and other well known faculty members were grouped under such signs as lamb, brains, beef—according to their respective characteristics.

This is the second time that Bainonian has won the circus cup. It was won last year by Theta Epsilon.

Miss Bell Smith will not be able to speak to the Art Club on Thursday evening. Miss Smith states that she is preparing an art exhibit of the public school work, which will probably be of interest to the members of the club. However, there will be a meeting of the Art Club as usual on Thursday evening.

WOMEN'S TENNIS TOURNAMENT

The women's spring tennis tournament started today with thirty-six entries. The tournament is to be played off by the end of April, and it has been requested that all the matches of the first round be played off by Saturday of this week. Women, don't put your match off until the last day, because there is only one court and everyone can't play at once. Arrange to play while the weather is fair and play on schedule. Don't let the tournament drag! There are going to be some hotly contested matches, and there is much discussion as to whom the champion will be.

The rules of the match are as follows:

1. All matches in the first round must be played off by Saturday, April 5. If you have not played by then, you must forfeit, for no matches of the first round are to be carried over to the following week.

2. When the tournament reaches the quarter-finals, it will be delayed for one week in order to give the girls who have previously been eliminated a chance to challenge any woman who has reached a position in the quarter-finals. If she wins this match, she will regain a place in the tournament.

3. The points awarded will be twenty points for entering, or fifty points to the ones reaching the quarter finals.

4. No heels are to be worn on the courts at any time. Only tennis shoes or crepe sole oxfords should be worn. Those violating this rule will be charged a fine of twenty-five cents.

Viola Victory's Verses

SENIOR'S FAREWELL

Four years have we been at Maryville,
Lessons hard we've learned.
And because we've studied,
Many the honors earned.
Now we are leaving you Maryville
With heavy hearts and sad,
But when we are blue,
Sweet memories of you,
Will return to make our hearts glad.

Chorus

Farewell, dear old Maryville
Farewell, teachers, too,
And to all our schoolmates
We bid a sad adieu.
In our hearts we'll carry
Memories fond of you
And to you Maryville
Always we'll be true.

Memories of Maryville we'll cherish
As down through life we go,
Dear "Orange and Garnet", we love thee
And always shall, we know
To all our friends and teachers,
We bid you a fond adieu
And in our hearts we'll carry
Memories fond of you.

POSSESSION

My hands are tense;
They crush the thing they love.
They have not learned the gentleness of rain;
They do not know a snowflakes soft caress;
They have not learned forbearance,
That can love a flower,
And leave it there with God.

My hands are eager
To reach out and hold the dew
To clasp a moonflower's fragrance
In their grasp.
They have not learned the wisdom of the hills,
That are possessed by silver morning mist.

SINCE GOD CAME

The cedars were all breathless,
Standing mysterious aginst the night.
They knew what I did not,—
That God was coming.
And then He came.
I walked with Him out there among the stars.
The cedars know,
And I know too,
For they leaned down, and brushed the straying star dust
From my hair.
We have an understanding
Since God came.

YOUTH'S PRAYER

They tell me youth's high dream will pass away,
The vision splendid will dim e'er life's day
Moves on to noon.
And yet I cannot think that dawn
Is the beginning of the night;
That spring is traitor to the harvest fields.
But if indeed these things be true, O God,
And if the years bring not fulfillment
To the soul's high faith—
Grant me the folly to be ever young!

MISS BEWLEY TO READ IN CHAPEL TONIGHT

Miss Irene Bewley presents "Quare Women" Monday evening in Voorhees Chapel." You have seen posters announcing this fact all over the campus, but do you know what a privilege it is to be able to hear Miss Bewley?

She is one of the outstanding readers in the United States. Her reputation has gone abroad and she has had the experience of reading before royalty. Everywhere she goes she captivates her audience by her inimitable portrayal of mountain-folk character. She has read several times at Columbia. On one occasion she was called back to the University the following year to read the same number to a larger audience for a double fee.

And you have the opportunity of hearing her tonight for thirty-five cents. To use a trite expression "It's the chance of a lifetime!" Come and hear Miss Bewley tonight at 8:00 oclock in Voorhees Chapel.

FORENSIC FORAYS

On Tuesday morning at 6:00 the men and women debate teams left here to debate Berea College; the men's debate to be in the afternoon and the women's debate to be that night. This was the crowning trip of the year as, after the Berea debates, Coach Queener, accompanied by Forrest I. Robertson and William Graham, went on to Danville where they debated Centre College the next night. After the debate with Centre the team had a four hundred mile trip, on Thursday, to Lebanon, Illinois where they debated McKendree College that night. On Friday they continued to Fulton, Missouri where they debated Westminster College. From there, on Saturday, they journeyed to Empria, Kansas where they debated the Teachers College of Emporia. They arrived in Wichita on Sunday.

They have three debates today. According to the rules of the tournament each team must lose two debates before it is eliminated and if our boys win six debates before being eliminated they go to the quarter finals.

While at Wichita they will stay at the Broadview Hotel and any mail addressed to them at that place will go through. All letters which are sent will be appreciated. On the return trip they will debate Oklahoma Baptist University at Shawnee, Oklahoma, Hendrix College at Conway, Arkansas, and Union University at Jackson, Tennessee before they get back to Maryville.

Both debates at Berea were highly satisfactory to Maryville. The critic judge gave Maryville the decisions because he thought they were better acquainted with their subject and better coached. The treatment accorded the debaters while there was very fine. In welcoming them the Berea man said that when he went to school in Tennessee he was taught the difference between a pump-handle handshake and a rag handshake, and that he extended to Mryville a pumphandle handshake. The trip was enjoyed by everybody, even tose who didn't sleep well.

Terrific Blaze Ravages Hall

Thousands Left Homeless As Fire Razes Hall.

Sunday night during Vesper service a fire started from an electric stove left burning in Mrs. Worley's room on the first floor of Memorial Hall. Little damage was done.

Some girls in Memorial Hall who smelled and then saw smoke issuing from Mrs. Worley's room screamed, "Fire", and some boys in Carnegie answered their cry. Many rushed to Memorial, while Partee called the fire department on the phone. Hearing the fire engines on the campus and the sirens blowing all the students including those in Vesper turned out. On entering the building the firemen found that the fire was already out as the heat had set off the sprinkler system. However, the smoke was thick and the flames had charred the wall. The chief damage was done by the water which soaked everything.

APRIL FOOLS

April showers are supposed to bring May flowers, but evidently the only thing an April fool gives rise to is the May poet, who bursts forth from his bud of seclusion and creates flowery verse, the leaves of which are very green, and very, very fresh. This kind of April fool is an annual nuisance and is usually excited to such an increase in versification that a serious case of spring fever is the result. Such April fuel might be put to a much more profitable use in the power house where it could be used for heat production. It might at least warm the dormitory showers to an uncomfortable degree of tepidness.

Another kind of April fool is the student who, knowing that midterms are over, believes (he doesn't think) that he can continue his interrupted hibernation until the June finals. Great is his despair when he learns that such relaxation is not permitted. So he gives way to his grief by intermittent lamentations, known by most people as April showers.

The problem, however, that confronts the majority of ordinary mortals is the question: Why are fools limited to April? Surely there is an over supply of them. Otherwise, why should the eleven remaining months be contaminated in this way. Evidently, these months with their idiocyncrasies deem it wise to dedicate a month to the honor or dishonor of these creatures who always wish to appear as budding poets or modest violets, but in reality are April showers, rainstorms, and brainstorms.

Alumni In East Engage In Feast

Special to the Echo:—

Maryville College Alumni in the East are showing a good deal of interest in their Alma Mater. On February 8 some 35 grads met at Union Seminary in New York City to renew past friendships and to relate many stories concerning fellow students and faculty members as well.

Again an invitation goes out to all Alumni members in this section to assemble themselves at Princeton, New Jersey where they will be the guests of the Princeton men on April 5th and 6th.

Miss Annie Vanderslice has worked out two interesting features for the program Saturday evening. Dr. Gillingham has been secured as Toastmaster and it will seem like old times, on the Hill, sure enough for we have all attended banquets when Dr. Gillie was officer in charge. Also, for the first time, the Alumni Association is sending us a College Representative to address us at the banquet. Mrs. F. L. Proffitt has been able to arrange for Miss Clemmie Henry to speak to us on the subject, "Present and Future Plans For M. C."

Sunday will be given over to recreation and walks over the beautiful Princeton Campus. The complete program for the banquet is as follows:

Toastmaster - - Dr. Gillingham
Welcome - - Gordon Harold
Toast to Maryville Hikes - - Mrs. Walter Buchanan
Vocal Music - - - Princeton Men
Toast to Maryville Snaps - - Mary Broady
Toast to Maryville Escapades - - Forrest Brown
Instrumental Music - Robert Broady
Address - - - Miss C. Henry

HAROLD HONORED; FRANKLIN FAVORED

Two graduates of Maryville College have been honored by election to offices in the Student Association of Princeton Seminary, according to word from Princeton.

The men are Harold Gordon Harold, who received his bachelor's degree here in 1927, and has since been studying at Princeton, and Wilbur Mitchell Franklin, who graduated from Maryville the following year. Harold was elected to the position of secretary of the Student Association, and Franklin has been chosen senior representative on the Student Cabinet of the institution. Both have been active in Seminary affairs, and have taken a prominent part in student work.

Harold's home is at Middletown, Ohio, while Franklin is from Erwin, Tennessee.

NO ECHO NEXT WEEK

We have to skip another issue of the Highland Echo this year, so we'll take next week off.

"SUN-UP" SENIOR PLAY

The committee appointed by the Senior Class for the selection of a play has chosen "Sun Up" by Lula Vollmer.

This is a well-known drama and has been enthusiastically received wherever it has been presented. Perhaps you will recall that Miss Irene Bewley read "Sun Up" when she gave a program in Voorhees Chapel last year.

"Sun Up" is a gripping story of mountain life. The characters represent typical western North Carolina mountain people as they were at the time of the World War. The scene of the play is supposed to be near Asheville. To illustrate the utter ignorance of these folk, one of the men believes that France is only forty miles beyond Asheville.

Nearly all of the male characters have been selected. The women's parts, however, are presenting more difficulty. Faith Taylor, Gladys Graham, Evelyn Seedorff, and Roberta Hickman are trying out for the part of Widow Cable, the major role. Margaret Haynie, Edith Woolsey, Lois Dillow, and Peggy Mevis are working out the juvenile lead, "Emmy". Announcements of the entire cast will be made as soon as definite assignments have been made.

With so much excellent dramatic talent as the Seniors have to select from, there is no reason that the play, when presented, will be nothing less than a remarakble success.

UNDER GRADUATE RECITAL

A most varied and interesting music treat is in store for those who attend the concert in Voorhees Chapel on the evening of April 7. The pupils who represent the Voice, Violin and Piano Departments need no introduction to a Maryville College audience.

The Voice Department will present a mixed quartette and a duet. The Violin Department will feature solos and a duet. Selections which will be given by undergraduates of the Piano Department appeared in last week's Echo.

The program for this undergraduate recital has been planned with great care, and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance, for to hear the undergraduates is to appreciate their talent and ability.

THETA ALPHA PHI INITIATION

The initiation of two candidates for Theta Alpha Phi was held in the Y. W. reading room on March 26. The sufferers, Margaret Haynie and Stanley McCool, are now full fledged members of the organization.

Ten or more old members were present to see what the details of the initiation were. After the great ordeal, refreshments were served, and a good time was had by all but two.

Banquet For Seniors Spread By Juniors

Montvale Springs May See Much Service

Plans are well under way for one of the biggest events of the year— the Junior-Senior Banquet. The Junior class has appointed two of the Banquet Committees, and they are already at work to make the affair the biggest and best ever swung by a Maryville Junior class.

The scene of festivity is to be Montvale Springs, and the time April 28, which is a little earlier date than usual. The class has not revealed its plans yet, thus living up to their reputation for keeping things dark. Last year the Junior class held a regular feed for their superiors, and it is only just and right—that as Seniors they should be royally served in return.

The committee on Arrangements and the Program Committee have been chosen. The Decoration and Clean-up Comittee are to be appointed soon, and if they are as efficient as the two at work we predict a "wow" of an affair. The committees chosen are:

Committee on Arrangements—Carl Story, Bob Byerley, Jane Glascock, Kemp Davis.
Program Committee—Mabel Dickerson, Elizabeth Caldwell, Leland Gilmore, Euel Nelson.

Dr. Hunter: "I'm not sure whether or not that test hit you where you live."

Y. W. C. A. ELECTION

Y. W. C. A. officers for next year were elected today. Ballots were cast in the lobby of Thaw Hall. The returns of the election are as follows:

President - - Carol Cushman
Vice President - - Julia Terry
Treasurer - - Kitty Hodges
Secretary - - Naomi Willingham
Nu Gamma Sigma - - Rachel Grubbs

Each one of these girls is known as a cheerful willing worker. We look forward to next year confident that the new officers will do all in their power to make it successful.

MAY QUEEN

The May queen and her attendants were selected by the various classes last Thursday. Elizabeth Myers is May queen. She has chosen Kitty Copeland as her maid of honor. The junior attendant is Pat Chandler; the sophomore, Frances Mingea; and the freshman, Mary Ellen Anderson.

The queen chooses a king, and each of the attendants selects her escort. Plans are under way for a festive May day celebration.

Death of Miss Hale's Sister

Miss Hale left on March 25th to attend the funeral of her sister, Mrs. Goodrich, of Columbus, Ohio. Mrs. Goodrich had been in the hospital for a few days, but her death was not expected. She was buried March 27.

The student body extends to Miss Hale its sincere sympathy in her bereavement.

Baseball Bunters Batting Bravely

March 31—Many new faces will be seen in the line-up of the Maryville Highlanders for the 1930 diamond season. The departure of Bird, Delaney and Davis in the infield, Gabbard in the pitching department, and Banks and Wooten in the outfield leaves many gaps to be filled.

The returning letter men, Captain Blazer, second baseman and pitcher, Watkins and Smith, outfielders, Teffeteller, catcher, and Parks, pitcher, will probably be seen at the same positions this year. Last year's reserves and a number of new men are fighting for the vacant posts. At present Woodard at third and West at short appear to be the class of the new men. Woodard is big and fast and takes a terrific cut at the ball, while West seems to be a sure fielder.

Three men White, McCulloch, and Bowman are battling for the first base assignment and honors appear about even. Hurst, Meyers, Lewis, and Johnson are the newcomers trying for the outfield.

Continued bad weather has not dampened the spirits of the Highlanders and they are raring to go.

Do It Electrically

Some one with an analtyical mind and an electric education has worked out a few simple rules for handling a woman electrically:

If she talks too long—Interrupter
If she wants to be an angel—Transformer.
If she is picking your pockets—Detector.
If she gets excited—Controller
If she goes up in the air—Condenser.
If she wants chocolates—Feeder
If she sings unharmoniously—Tuner
If she is away from town—Telegrapher
If she is a poor cook—Dicharger
If she eats too much—Reducer
If she is wrong—Rectifier
If she gossips too much—Regulator
If she becomes upset—Reverser.

THE OLD TIMER SAYS

The Maryville-New York Giant Yannigan game scheduled for Saturday in Knoxville was called off to enable the New York team to open a series with Bridgeport at Johnson City.

The Highlanders are somewhat disappointed on not being able to meet the big leaguers, but are all set to repeat last year's double victory over Michigan State.

In the Michigan State games, local fans have their first opportunity to see Woodard and West, the two freshman infielders in action.

These two boys have helped greatly to solve Coach Honaker's infield problem.

A few more men in the field events especially a high jumper would come in mighty handy to Coach Bob Thrower to use against Tennessee, Saturday.

The high jump was well taken care of last year by Vincent, who did not return to school this year.

Speaking of track reminds us that Captain John Taggart has never lost a 440 race in three years of college competition.

We are looking for John to uphold that fine record again this year.

Bad weather during the past week slowed up to some extent the preseason conditioning of both the baseball and track squads.

The tennis match between Maryville and Tennessee Wesleyan last Monday at Athens, was stopped by darkness with the score standing at two all.

CAMPUS

The Campus Committee has accomplished the task of enriching the beauty of the college grounds. Under the able and inspiring leadership of Phil Vogel, and with the support of the student workers, it has constructed five new paths, bought fifty benches, and strengthened the sentiment among the students to be careful of the campus.

Nearly four hundred dollars has been received for the Campus Fund, to be exact, $393.48. The receipts were:

States and Clubs	$ 35.30
Faculty and Officers	118.43
Friends through Miss Clemmie Henry	82.50
Total	$393.48

Fifty iron benches painted green are now rapidly nearing completion and will soon be on the campus. The contract price for them is $375.00. Whatever money remains, after paying for the benches, will be expended in purchasing several small evergreens and shrubs which the Campus Committee desires to place at different points on the campus, such as at the junctions of paths.

Five new paths have been constructed by the Campus Volunteer Workers, various other spots gravelled, and old paths recovered. In addition, the committee still desires two more new paths; one around the south end of Thaw Hall, and the other from Carnegie to Court Street. The committee believes that the College will see that the form is constructed, while the men in Carnegie will probably donate some free time on their own path down to Court Street. With this work done the committee feels that no more paths should be built at present.

All this work will be of no use, however, unless the students observe certain requests the Campus Committee has made.

First, the committee requests that the students avoid making any new paths, and that they keep off the mud paths that have already been worn into the campus, as from Anderson to Carnegie, from Carnegie to the corduroy, and from Thaw to the Y.M.C.A. In each of these cases, just a few steps farther will take one by the proper path or road and will prevent the unsightly dirt paths.

Second, a habit of some students, which is most disagreeable, is that of throwing food and apple cores on the campus after meals. Anyone who does this should try to stop such a filthy and ill-mannered custom at once. Put your waste in the cans provided.

Third, keep on the paths. The paths are not fifty feet wide, and so those who walk three or four abreast and have to step off the path into the grass, when passing others should walk behind each other instead.

The committee also suggests that clubs or individuals who are planning a contribution of flowers or shrubs should supply a small, leafy shrub, or evergreen tree, instead of flowers. Flowers are not desired because they break the sweep of the green campus expanse, they are usually pretty during only a few weeks of the year, and finally, flowers require so much attention that they often cannot be given proper care, especially during the summer months.

The Campus Committee thanks the women of Pearsons, Baldwin, and Memorial for serving refreshments to the campus workers on six days. It was a big help.

Dora Waite Returned

Dora Waite returned to the Hill on March 24. Her friends are glad to know that her mother has improved and is recovering rapidly.

On entering the chapel last Tuesday morning we observed a change in complexion of the floor. Whether the change was affected by oil or water we cannot say. Irish Terry thought the rain had just blown in and forgotten to blow out.

Clever Circus Clowns Cavort Continuously Capably Cutting Capers

Contented Crowd Kept Constantly Clapping

Society Side Shows Startle Several Severely

GIRLS GAMBOL GAILY Trainers' Tart Terms Pacify Pachiderms

Before the largest crowd ever to attend a Circus on College Hill, Maryville performers put on a wonderful exhibition of tumbling, apparatus work, etc., that has never before been equalled in the history of the institution.

Each participant carried out his or her part to perfection, from the instigators, directors, committeemen down to the freaks and the ticket catchers.

The program arranged for this year's entertainment was the best outlined so far and the managers of the affair should be proud of their achievement in the theatrical line.

An added attraction to this year's circus was the side show which enjoyed a one hundred percent patronage at the expense of teachers and students alike. Each society sponsored a separate side show. The Bainonian Society, winner of the cup for the best show this year, had a representation of "Faculty Meat". Theta Epsilon put on a doll show and sold bean bags with which to knock down the babies. Alpha Sigma had a "live" wild man on display. (He was carefully guarded by Topalian.) Last, but not least, was Athenian's presentation of their idea about "Evolution today and yesterday". It might also be stated here that boarders of Pearsons hall secured an ample amount of "popcorn."

Led by the band the big parade was reviewed by all and the main go for the evening began.

Women's tumbling was an act that obtained more applause than any of the succeeding events. Some of these women are *even better than men and there should be even more of the women on the Hill who are interested in this sort of physical education.

Jack Coughlin and his cohorts put on a nifty and exclusive demonstration of apparatus work that was a thrill to many of the audience. In the writer's mind most of the praise of this outfit should go to the little fellow who performed equally as well as the rest by his stubby stature.

Terse Track Tryouts Terminate Many Men Make Miraculous Marks

Taggart's Team Takes Trip To Tennessee Saturday

March 31—With the opening meet against Tennessee less than a week away, track candidates are going through their paces with renewed vigor and energy. The track men hope to do as well or better than last year, when Tennessee was barely able to eke out a victory.

Coach Thrower faces a stiff task as there is a lack of field men, and some must be developed. There is no candidate for the high jump, and Felknor, who comes to Maryville with a great reputation as a hurdler and pole vaulter is out with injuries. Captain Taggart besides competing in the dashes will be forced to take part in the broad jump, while Bowman, in the javelin throw, is on the sidelines due to an injured ankle. In an effort to develop some hurdlers Coach Thrower plans to try Richardson and Owens, dashmen, in the obstacle races.

Tryouts, which will have a lot to do with the placing of men for the Tennessee meet, were held Saturday. Results of the tryouts were:

100 Yard Dash—Taggart, Abshear
220 Yard Dash—Taggart, Abshear
440 Yard Dash—Taggart, Richardson
1 Mile—Benn, Bratschie
2 Mile—Taylor, Martin
1-2 Mile—Crothers, Carper
Javelin—Bowman, Carper
Shot—Carper, Byerley
Discus—Carper
High Hurdles—Young, Foreman
Low Hurdles—Young, Foreman

AERIAL DART

The finals of the aerial dart tournament were played off between Nez Hamrick and Ruth Buchanan Saturday morning, with Nez the winner. Nez won by a margin of eleven points—15-4, but the game was much closer than the score indicates.

There were twenty-eight women who entered the tournament and many exciting games were played. Ruth defeated Sue Prince, Georga Burke, and Mildred Purviance. Nez won over Olive Clopton, Pattie Houston, Carol Cushman and Ruth Buchanan.

Maryville College tumblers showed an improvement over last year's group and performed very brilliantly in their prescribed feats. Although they do not belong to the class known as invertebrates they showed marked agility in their act. Culver, a freshman, also come in for a lion's share of the applause.

Probably the most unique act was staged by President Duff and some of the other notables in the dance routine.

Plenty of pep and spice was furnished by Farmer Watkins, Bill Peacock, Skinney Waters, Tom Cooper, Jack Levine and other interesting personalities.

The college band is steadily improving and should attain unheard of heights in music as well as in class. The music was well timed and "pepped up" the program in the rough spots.

Many were the acts and no adequate review can be made, if you missed it, whose hard luck is that? Yours!

YELLOW YO-YOS

Where have they gone? No one seems to miss them. When did they go? We were not aware of their departure. Surely they have not gone for all time. How much everyone seemed to enjoy playing with them. How they used to twist and twirl. Were they not beautiful with their multi-colored coats of paint flashing as they dashed and spun in the sunlight? Again we ask what has become of them? What has become of all the Yo-Yos?

GIRLS' GAMES GETTING GOOD

WOMEN'S INDOOR BASEBALL STARTED

Women's indoor baseball started last week with twenty-four women out. The material looks good, and Coach Weller hopes to put out three winning teams! This is a good chance to make some points on a letter, so why not come out and give it a trial? Don't let some one tell you that indoor baseball is slow and no fun;—you'll get out of it just what you put in, so let's have everybody out next Friday afternoon at four o'clock in the big gym.

JUNIOR-SENIOR VOLLEY BALL TOURNAMENT

On Monday morning at nine o'clock the Junior-Seniors won the volley ball tournament by defeating the Freshman by the close count of 34-33.

The game proved to be the most exciting of any played, although the first half was slow, ending with the Freshmen holding a ten point lead.

However, the Junior-Seniors came back with a determination to win and on their first three serves had tied the score. In the last few minutes of play, the Freshmen failed to return Clopton's swift serve, either misisng it entirely or knocking it out. This fact caused them to lose by one point. Few substitutions were made for either side—Howe and Swam for the Frosh, and Bowers and Taylor for the Junior-Seniors.

In all the games the teams fought hard, and showed clean sportsmanship. And even though there were few spectators to see the games, we feel as if the season has been a success.

Fifty Nifty New Hymnals

Voorhees Chapel was the proud recipient last week of fifty new hymn books. They are the same Orange and Garnet Hymnals. Dr. Stevenson can no longer refrain from announcing a hymn because of its being torn from his book.

Tennis Team Ties Tennessee Wesleyan, Winning When Wary

March 24.—The Maryville Racket Squad went to Athens today to engage Tennessee Wesleyan in their first match of the season. The outcome was not as gratifying as was desired, the match being called a tie. Our men were not up to their usual form during most of the matches but they expect to win by an easy margin when the return match is played, on April 7, on the home courts.

The first match between Dick Strain of Maryville and Thomas of Wesleyan was a very closely contested one, the score being 7-5, 2-6, 6-4 in favor of Maryville. For the most part the servers cashed in but once in a while one or the other would weaken. One peculiar thing about this match was that both players won exactly the same number of games. Some very spectacular and beautiful tennis was demonstrated in these sets and both men were putting out all that they had.

King was decidedly off form, today and was beaten by Vestal 8-6, 6-2. King staged a great comeback in the first set, his opponent having the edge on him to the tune of 3-0.

Strain and Swaim also lost their doubles match to Thomas and Leon, by a 2-6, 7-5, 6-4 count. The first set was easily won by our racket wielders but their opponents pulled out of a bad hole and finally sent them down in defeat.

King and Buchanan won their doubles match 6-2, 8-10, 6-4 against Vestal and Pope. Our boys played a very high brand of tennis but just as victory seemed apparent their opponents rallied and won the set 10-8. The final set went to the Maryville men by the close count of 6-4.

The next match was to be a singles with Buchanan and Leon on the courts. Two sets were played, each winning one, but the final set was called on account of darkness since it was imposible to see the ball.

Before the match, Coach Smith and the team met for the purpose of electing a captain and manager for this season. Dick Strain was given the honor as captain while Buchanan was elected to hold the manager's position.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Miss Caldwell recently gave her consent to a mixed doubles tennis tournament. The matches will be played off as soon as possible on the two varsity courts and the Baldwin and Memorial courts. Twenty couples will play and the partners will be drawn. All those wishing to play, see Olive Clopton, Nez Hamrick, Dick Strain or Ed Buchanan in the early part of this week. Since only a limited number of players may be used, come early if you want to play.

CLAIM TO SCIENCE MARVEL QUESTIONED

Campus Chemists Find Inconsistency In Account.

Those who know anything about chemistry will be interested in the following mis-account of a demonstration at the society. The extract is from the Atlanta Journal.

Chemical Society Startled
As Scientist Inhales Gas
To Freeze Candle Flame

Through the medium of a human breath, science literally froze a candle flame at the meeting of the American Chemical Society Tuesday. The demonstration proved the highlight of the dozens of group meetings held Tuesday by the chemists. More than five hundred of them heard Mr. Midgley explain the chemical composition of his new gas, and watched him arrange the simple apparatus for the demonstration.

He lighted a candle and placed it in a glass beaker of about a half gallon capacity. Into another beaker he released a charge of fluorine gas. Being stable, the gas remained in the open container, forming a pearl gray cloud. Its temperature was about eighteen degrees below zero.

Then Mr. Midgley ran a long rubber tube into the beaker with the candle, placing the end below the

U. T., TENN. WESLYEAN ON FROSH SCHEDULE

Girls, Boys Teams, Clash Tonight, Friday.

April 12—The varsity debate season has been completed, satisfactorily in many aspects, and now only the freshmen debates remain. Monday night, April 14, the freshmen women will meet Tennessee Wesleyan College in a dual debate on the question, resolved, That there should be a uniform minimum wage law for women throughout the United States. Our negative team composed of Mary John Metcalf, Violet Rowland, and Elizabeth Duncan will debate on the home platform. Doris Dodge, Ruth Boyd, and Alfreda Scobey will go to Tennessee Wesleyan at Athens to debate the affirmative side of the question.

Following this debate the freshmen men will meet the freshmen from the University of Tennessee on Friday, April 18, in a dual debate. The question for this debate is resolved, That compulsory liability insurance should be required of all automobile owners. Our men will debate the affirmative at Knoxville. On this team are A. Newcomer, Leslie Webb, and Homer Ellis. The negative team which will be at home is made up of Winn Barr, William Marston, and Benjamin Groves.

In the absence of Professor Queener while on a trip to the National Convention of Pi Kappa Delta at Wichita the freshmen women have been coached by Mildred Crawford and the boys have been coached by Wright Frost. Both are experienced debaters and we will have an opporutnity to see the application of their ideas in coaching.

FROST HEADS NEW ALPHA SIG OFFICERS

Meet With Athenian Society Next Saturday Night

Mr. Wright Frost was elected to serve Alpha Sigma as president for the last term in an election held in Alpha Sigma Hall on Saturday, April 5th. Mr. Frost has been a loyal and faithful worker for his society and he justly deserves the highest honor that Alpha Sig can give her sons. The other officers elected are as follows:

Vice-President—Oakey Biggs
Recording Secretary—Stuart James
Assist. R. Secretary—Alan Herdman
Program Secretary—Wilson Gillingham
Assist. Pro. Sec.—Raymond Young
Censors—Floyd Waters, Donald Briggs, Robert Wellwood
Editor—Kemp Davis

PROF. HOWELL AND PROF. GRIFFITTS ATTEND CHEMISTS' SOCIETY MEET

Prof. Howell and Prof. Griffitts attended last week the American Chemists' Society in session at Atlanta. This includes, to be sure, the capacities of both student and instructor.

IMPRESSIONALISTS' VIEW OF SOCIAL LIFE

Campus Culture Reviewed In Unlimited Detail.

By Julia Terry

The past week was culture week at Maryville and it might be well to give a brief review of the culture that was presented in chapel for the benefit of those who were so uncultured as to cut chapel and also to give a few additional suggestions concerning campus culture in general.

We learned how to behave ourselves at almost every possible social function except the bi-monthly social festival held in the alumni gymnasium, the social festival known as snap. The masculine habit of snapping fingers within two inches of a woman's eyes is not only uncultured but also very harmful in that the woman may be compelled to buy glasses as a protection. (See Dr. Chick West for further advice). The writer does not know much concerning snap culture but the subject was broached by Hessie Keeton, the dark-haired damsel has learned by experience.

Another form of campus culture that needs a previous explanation is that which will develop soon after the new benches appear. How must one (or rather two) sit on these benches? Should the feet be flat on the ground? I am not speaking of flatfooted individuals, for naturally their feet will be flat wherever they are placed. Should the gentlemen (all are gentlemen now, that is, those who are ladies) cross his left leg over his right knee and the lady crss her right leg over her left knee, or should it be vice-versa? No doubt the trial and error system will come into effect soon after the benches appear, and perhaps some new moonshining technique will develop, benchitis, shall we call it?

Among other campus cultures, seriously speaking, that are already

LE CIRCLE FRANCAIS

Elect Officers at Interesting Program Wednesday.

The members of Le Cercle Francais who were not present at the regular meeting on Wednesday, April 3, missed an entertaining program, brief though it was.

The first number was by Donald Briggs, who successfully imitated a Frenchman relating the story of Adam and Eve and the serpent.

Then several selctions were sung and accompanied on the ukelele by Henry Otto. "Little Brown Baby" by Dunbar was characteristically read in the "Lasterian" manner.

The program came to a close after the singing of several French songs by all those who were present.

For the next meeting of Le Cercle Francais, which will be held on April 16, the freshman French classes are in charge of the program. The committee is composed of Allan Foreman, Merle Beebe, and Arthur Dinsmor. The following program will be presented:

Vocal Duet—Ann Smartt, Merle Beebe
Mandolon Solo—Porter French
Vocal Duet—Edwin Greene, Porter French
Piano Solo—Conrad Quenelle
Yodeling Solo—Sylvia Tregillus

'ARMS AND THE MAN' GIVEN THURS. BY THETA ALPHA PHI

G. Bernard Shaw's Comedy Has Cast of Experienced and Talented Actors.

"Arms and The Man" by Bernard Shaw will be presented by Theta Alpha Phi in Voorhees Chapel, April 17.

This has always been one of Shaw's most popular plays and should draw a large and eager audience. Those who play the major roles are experienced actors and possess an abundance of dramatic ability, as will be shown by their excellent character interpretation.

Nellie Caldwell Morton, who plays the woman lead, is known on the Hill as a most talented and charming actress. Mrs. Morton is a graduate of expression at Maryville College and at Martha Washington and has been a member of Theta Alpha Phi for several years.

Mr. Harry Gauding, who carries the male lead, is widely recognized for his dramatic ability. In fact he is among the very best that the college has ever produced. Mr. Gauding also is a graduate of the Expression Department. He has played in Knoxville with the Peruchi Players and has long been a member of Theta Alpha Phi.

In addition to these two favorites of the Maryville stage, the cast is composed of experienced performers. Some of them are expression graduates and all are members of Theta Alpha Phi. The cast, in order of appearance:

Raina Petkoff - - - Nelle C. Morton
Catherine Petkoff - - - - - Dorothy McCulloch
Louka, her maid - - Hazel Bowers
Captain Bluntchli - Harry Gauding
The Officer - - Edward Sprouse
Nicolu, the man servant - - - - Hayden Laster
Major Petkoff - - Jesse Peirce
Sergius Soranoff - - - Frank Baker

Coach—Mrs. Louie Veech
Stage Manager—Stanley McCool
Asst. Stage Manager—Margaret Haynie

CULTURE WEEK SEES CHANGE IN COLLEGE

Miss Gertrude Meiselwitz Gives Students Fine Points.

Last week, April 8-12, was designated as "Culture Week" by the Student Council. Tuesday morning in chapel we listened to an instructive as well as interesting talk on "Culture" or, to use the more common term, "manners". Miss Gertrude Meiselwitz of the Home Economics Department gave us some useful pointers on proper conduct. She told us the latest rules concerning street etiquette as well as those concerning table etiquette. That her advice was taken to heart was proved by the various references one heard in the diningroom. "Excuse me, please,—that was premeditated.' "Oh! he's folding his napkin, he must expect to come back." Or, "Don't you know how to place your knife and fork after using them?" and "You should seat yourself from the left, always." The tables, too, present a different aspect, for several of the dishwashers have begun to place the silverware acording to specifications given by Miss Meiselwitz, i.e., knife and spoon to the rght, fork to the left. All in all we are convinced that this "Culture Week" was good for Maryville—why the Spanish Club even had an address on "Spanish Table Manners."

ALPHA SIGS AND ATHENIANS TO MEET

On next Saturday night, April 19, the Alpha Sigma and Athenian Literary Societies will hold a joint meeting in the Y.W.C.A. auditorium at 6:30 p. m. A snappy program has been arranged and plenty of refreshments will be on hand. There will be a slight admission fee.

Frosh Capture Inter-Class Track Honors When Seniors Weaken In Late Stage of Meet Taggart Leads Felknor Two Points For Individual Honors of Meet.

JUNIORS CLINCH CELLAR

Taylor is "Iron Man", Winning Mile and Two Mile And Second in Half.

April 14—For the second successive year, the Freshman class won the annual interclass track meet, held Saturday. The first year track men amassed a total of 44 points, followed by the Seniors with 34 1-2. The Sophomores finished 2 1-2 points ahead of the Juniors.

Captain John Taggart, Senior, and Dip Felknor, Freshman, staged a spectacular dual for scoring honors. Taggart finally came out ahead 20-18. The versatile track captain won firsts in the 100, 220 and 440 yard dashes, and broad jump. Felknor won the high and low hurles, pole vault, and placed second in the discus. Other high scorers were Carper, Senior, 12 points; Taylor, Junior, 13 points.

The Seniors and Freshmen both won six firsts, the Juniors two, and Sophomores none. Taylor was the outstanding performer for the Juniors, with two firsts, winning the mile and two mile events, and a second in half mile. Abshear and Calloway performed well for the Sophomores.

Summary of Events—
100 Yard Dash— Taggart (S.); Abshear (Soph.); Wood (F.); Time: 10 2-5 sec.
220 Yard Dash—Taggart (S.); Abshear, (Soph.); Richardson (F.); Time 24.5 sec.
440 Yard Dash—Taggart (S.); Calloway (Soph.); Richardson (F); Time 55 sec.
1-2 Mile—Crothoers (F); Taylor

ROBERTSON, GRAHAM BACK FROM WICHITA

Success Crowns Efforts of "Cicero of Chilhowees", and "Youth From Detroit".

April 10—The return of the Maryville forensic team from its extended tour through several western states marked the close of a highly successful season. The record of debates for the season for Maryville shows sixteen victories out of twenty three decision contests, and four no-decision debates.

The delegation which attended the National Pi Kappa Delta Convention at Wichita, Kansas, engaged in thirteen debates in all, winning five, losing the same number and participating in three no-decisions. This tour took them through the states of Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas. The schedule which they completed was:

At Berea College, Berea, Kentucky Maryville won judge's decision; Centre College, Danville, Ky., no decision; McKendree College, Lebanon, Illinois, lost the audience decision; Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., lost the audience decision; Kansas State Teachers' College, Emporia, Kansas, no decision; At the Convention at Wichita, Kas., won from Nebraska Wesleyan and Ottawa College; lost to Baylor University, North Central College, and Oklahoma A. & M. On the return trip—at Shawnee, Okla., Oklahoma Baptist College, no decision; Hendrix-Henderson College, Conway, Arkansas, Maryville won the judges' decision; Union University, Jackson, Tenn., Maryville won the judges' decision.

The tour was the largest that Maryville has yet attempted, lasting sixteen days in all, for the three delegates, Forrest Robertson, William Graham, and Debate Coach Queener.

The next national convention will be held at Oklahoma City in 1932. Mr. Queener already has plans under way to send a delegation to this meet.

The members of this year's debate squad were: men, Forrest Robertson, Richard Strain, William Graham, Stuart James, Roy Taylor, Wright Frost, and Robert West; women, Viola Pettit, Ruby Johnson, Elizabeth Cannon, Alice Renegar and Mary Lovette. Several of the above will be initiated into Pi Kappa Delta soon.

DRISCOLL-THOMAS

Well Known Grad '29 Marries Former Maryvillian.

The marriage of Miss Eva Thomas to Mr. Edward A. Driscoll was announced following the ceremony at the Reformed Episcopal Church, Tarrytown, N. Y., on Monday, April 1. After a short honeymoon in New York, the bride returned to Hartford Seminary from which she will be graduated in May with a B.R.E., and Mr. Driscoll resumed his work at Union Theological Seminary.

Ed will be remembered as cheerleader and member of Thtea Alpha Phi. Eva was a member of Pi Kappa Delta. Both were active in Christian Association work on the Hill.

The good wishes of their many friends here go to the newly wedded Maryvillians.

KARNS HIGH SENIORS VISIT THE COLLEGE

On April 3rd the principal and senior class of the Karns High School visited Maryville College. They inspected the laboratories, the library, the classrooms, and the grounds. After a thorough tour of inspection of the campus and all it contains, the company repaired to the college woods and enjoyed a picnic supper.

NEW JOURNAL WANTS UNDERGRAD POETRY

Offering Money and Prizes To Gifted Versifiers.

The Poetry Journal, in a recent letter to the Highland Echo, announces its entrance into the field of verse. It has entered this field with one pronounced purpose in mind, to wit: to promote the cause of the unheralded and unknown versifier. It is this purpose which makes the announcement of interest to Maryville students.

The Journal prefers short verse, up to thirty two lines, of the serious type. However, one or two longer poems with an open theme will be used in each issue and humorous verse with a general appeal may be published. Dialect, of course, must be exceptional. It is understood also that only verse with a strikingly human, present-day touch will be especially welcomed.

Details for an annual poet's prize have not been completed yet; but an announcement will be made by the Poetry Journal when this is accomplished.

Those who are especially interested in learning more concerning the type of poetry which will be accepted and the amount of money paid for each poem printed can find this information in the Highland Echo office.

DR. WILSON AWAY

Attends Meeting of Presbytery At White Pine.

Last Tuesday and Wednesday Dr. Wilson attended at White Pine, Tennessee, the regular spring meeting of the Presbytery. The moderator was the Rev. Mr. T. J. Miles, D. D., an alumnus of Maryville College.

The most interesting feature of the meeting was the adoption of overtures from the General Assembly providing for the election and ordination of women as ruling elders in the church and for the ordination of women as ministers.

Tammany Tactics

In spite of the fact that careful consideration was given last year to the annual election of Young Men's Christian Association officers when the amendment to the constitution prohibiting nominations from the floor was enacted, another faree has been perpetrated in the name of an election. The system plainly has not worked.

In the first place, the list of nominees showed a surprising scarcity of potential officers, and an equally surprising plenty of the nominating committee. In comparing the nominating committee and the nominees for office, it looked like a mutual admiration society of some kind, playing a Gaston-Alphonso game with the nominations. One man, a leader for the opposition, was nominated for a job he didn't want, and was confident he wouldn't get, in order to keep him quiet. The men who were on the nominating committee were probably the men for the "Y" offices, but the voting strength of a college or a nation raises its eyebrows at that sort of politics.

The election itself was as crooked as anything Tammany Hall ever conjured, with embryo Bill Vares and Bill Thompsons casting votes "by proxy" (a kind name for stuffing the ballot). The election as a whole was an unsatisfactory method of choosing officers. We have no quarrel with the officers chosen. It is the method only that we challenge. Already there is proposed an amendment to the constitution to annul the nomination amendment of last year, with a vast majority of the student body behind it. Let us admit, then, that the thing didn't work as we had hoped.

It is a student organization and a student problem. Perhaps the situation could be handled by a student council committee after careful study and consideration. The council has been instrumental in remedying other evils of similar nature, and we would like to see it tried.

We would suggest active and inactive membership, wherein only active members be given a vote. Thus those who attend elections with only the spirit of a politician in the midst of a campaign would be eliminated, and only those who had a real interest in the association would be allowed to run it.

Whatever method is taken to remedy the evil, it is time we removed from our campus all traces of the prevailing Tammany tactics.

Senior Privilege

One of thecoveted senior privileges has been that of inviting an underclassman to the senior open party, of which there are two every year. This privilege, it seems is being somewhat limited by those in authority, and it seems also that the choice of a partner for these veryimportant social events is being restricted.

As we understand it, those who moonshine consistently are not encouraged to invite an outsider, since the privilege of open parties was granted in order to give seniors who go with students of other classes a chance to attend a senior festivity. This, of course, means that the class dues paid by all go to pay for the party for the chosen few. and cannot by any means be in harmony with our principles here.

Then, too we are told that seniors shall not bid underclassmen who habitually are seen together on the campus. This may be a crime worthy of such punishment, but what constitutes consistent moonshining? This at least ought to be determined beforehand.

Tonight we have a senior party. We will watch with interest to see how things work out. Before another such event, however, some arrangements ought to be made whereby we may know our exact status in relation to his matter.

AN ERROR

In last week's Echo there appeared a poem under Miss Pettit's name, which was written by Miss Emma Grace Howard. Miss Howard's poem, "The Senior's Farewell", was considered the best one submitted to Mr. Baker, senior class president, in a recently announced competition. Mr. Baker was judge of manuscripts.

flame. He leaned over the gas and inhaled deeply, slowly.

The chemists in the audience held their breath. A faint, audible gasp rppled over the auditorium. They had been told that the gas was nontoxic, but they were chemists, and cautious, and it startled them to see a man breathing the gas so casually.

When his lungs were filled, Mr. Midgley straightened, and breathed gently into the end of the tube which he held in his hand. The frigid breath drifted into the beaker holdng the lighted candle. It was so gentle that the slight flame did not even flicker. Then, as the bitterly cold gas filled and chilled the beaker, the flame suddenly dimme.

One moment it was burning with a slightly paler flame—the next, it disappeared. There was no flicker, The flame died. It was frozen.

Mr. Midgley looked up and smiled. If the gas had frozen his lungs, he didn't show it.

Southern Student Conference at Blue Ridge, June 14-23

AN IDEAL TEN DAY VACATION FOR Y. W. AND Y. M. REPRESENTIVES

Life Guidance Project To Be Featured.

MINIMUM PRICE

Invaluable Counsel And Diversions.

The Intercollegiate Student Conference held annually at Blue Ridge, North Carolina begins June 14. For fifteen years Blue Ridge has been maintained for Southern Conferences by the national organization of the Young Men's Christian Association, and every student owes it to himself to attend, at least once during his lifetime, this coference. No resort in the south is more attractive, and it will be ten days packed full of worth while diversions, broadening influences and opportunities for making friendships. Maryville College always sends delegats to this conference and they give glowing accounts of the value derived there. Last year, the Y. W. C. A. sent Louise Carson, Viola Pettit, Mildred Crawford and Helen Crowder. The meeting was held June 5-14. There were two general themes for discussion, "Understanding Jesus" and "Understanding Ourselves." The Y. M. C. A. representative was Jesse James.

The center of the programs of this summer's conference is a "Life Guidance" project. This means that the individual himself will be the major concern. The ideals and facts required for sound vocational guidances will be discussed by experts in these fields. The conference has secured thirty or forty able leaders, four of whom are particularly outstanding. They are: Rev. E. M. McNeil Poteat of Pullen Memorial Church, Raleigh, N. C. who will deliver three addresses on "Coming to Terms with our Universe"; Dr. Frank S. Hickman of Duke University, the author of "Introduction to Psychology of Religion", who will present the topic "Coming to Terms with Ourselves"; Dr. Fletcher Brockman, a Vanderbilt graduate who will interpret to the students their relationships to others; and Kirby Page the closing speaker who has won a unique place in the nation's life as editor, author and lecturer. His message in three addresses will bring to the conference the heart of his book "Jesus or Christianity". There will also be opportunities for a limited number of students to obtain counsel from the faculty members who participate in the conference.

Excluding transportation, the nine days June 14-23, will cost $25.00 for board and room. There is also a $7.00 registration fee. This a small sum to pay when one considers the returns. Blue Ridge has, (1) the ultimate in good leaders, speakers and lecturers; (2) campus leaders from practically every important university in ten southern states, athletics of every description, the most beautiful scenery in eastern America and accommodations to satisfy the most metriculous.

"Will you ever stop loving me?"

Eighteen Summers Work Show Big Results.

ATTENDANCE INCREASES

A Christian Educational Enterprise.

Blue Ridge arose out of the needs of the Young Women's Christian Association, the Young Men's Christian Association, and the Missionary Education Movement for the Summer Training Conference center. The Blue Ridge Grounds were opened for Conferences during the summer of 1912, and during that summer more than 1400 people were served and trained in its buildings. In the eighteen summers of its operation, Blue Ridge has furnished Christian inspiration and educational uplift to more than fifty thousand people. The Blue Ridge Association was incorporated March 6, 1907, under the laws of the State of North Carolina with a broad and liberal charter for religious and educational purposes. It is a non-commercial, non dividend paying, and hence is not a taxable institution. Its property is held in trust by an executive committee composed of twenty-one men and women representing the three organizations naed above. All members must be such as would be qualified for membership in the Y. M. C. A. or Y. W. C. A.

The present officers of the Association are P. S. Gilchrist, Charlott,, President; F. C. Abott, Charlotte, Secretary and Treasurer; C. H. Hobbs, Cocoanut Grove, Fla., chairan of Business Committee; and W. D. Weatherford, Executive Secretary. The property consists of some 1619 acres of land. There are about two miles of roads, and fifty-six buildings. These provide among other things, comfortable housing for at least 600 guests at one time, ample class and conference rooms, auditorium, dining hall, gymnasium, swiwwing pool, lake, cottages for faily groups. The first summer at Blue Ridge, 1912, there were four conferences with 1452 present. Through 1928, 50,000 persons have been served.

CAMPUS CULTURE

in evidence are four forms which can be classed as first: floriculture, which is represented by the little tree that has recently taken root in the side yard of Pearsons; second: horticulture, which is worthily represented by the college garden from whence spring onions, turnips, and spinach; third: biology cultures which are obtained from the ole swimmin' hole in front of Science Hall; and last, but indeed not least, agriculture, for an example (?) just scan the college cow.

Doubtless more cultural needs could be expounded upon, but that would be uncultured since I've already taken up more than my share of space. However, big girls need lots of room, even in the Highland Echo.

M. C. Racket Wielders Defeat Tennessee Wesleyan Quintet 6-1

Match With Tusculum Here Thursday, April 17.

April 7—The Maryville racket wielders were successful in defeating the Tennessee Wesleyan five in the return match played here today to the tune of six to one. Two doubles matches were played, Strain and Swaim teaming together to win one, and King and Buchanan to win the other. Fine cooperation was used in both these matches and the games were hard and fast.

April 10—The weather was again warm and dry today and allowed a stiff match to be played between U. T. and Maryville. Although they defeated by a score of 5-2. The first two matches went to Maryville but the strong Tennesse quintet carried away the honors in the last five.

Excellent tennis was displayed throughout and it is hoped that more loyal Maryvillians will be out on the 17th when we engage Tusculum on our home courts.

Water Carnival To Be Held April 19.

Many Freaks, Stunts, Novelty Races Planned.

The swimming team is planning to present a water carnival on April 19 at 8:00 p. m. with an admission of ten cents. The team has six meets scheduled for the near future and is holding this carnival to buy suits. The team has been working and deserves the support of the college. The carnival program, subject to change is as follows: A Houdini Act—a man will be nailed in a box, thrown in the water, and will come to the surface in 15 minutes.

Water Statuary—something new. A demonstration of this has never been presented to the college before.

Captain Kidd and His Pirates—a typical pirate scene will be given in which the prisoners walk plank, bound with strong rope, and never come up again.

Fancy diving and speed swimming will be done by experts.

Button and Coughlin will give comical pantomines.

French and Cudney will give an exhibition of comical swimming.

Oswald and Katrink—a new and unusually funny act.

Fire diving,—the climax of the evening. Fancy dives through a pool of flaming oil. A death defying dive into a seething cauldron of scorching flame.

Volunteers Defeat Highlanders Cinder Path Artists 71-46

April 13—The University of Tennessee Vols proved a little too strong for the Maryville tracksters, in winning the annual dual meet, 71-46, at Shields-Watkins Field, Saturday, the fifth. Captain John Taggart with 13 points was second high scorer of the meet, being topped only by Maurice Cosbitt, Tennessee's All-Southern basketball forward who chalked up 15 markers for the Vols.

Captain Taggart won the 100, 440, and placed second in the 220. Corbett won the high and low hurdles, and the broad jump. Tennessee's Captain, Tillman Stewart was very impressive in winning the mile and two mile events.

One of the prettiest races of the day was the half mile, won by Crothers of Maryville, in the fast time of 2:06.3, only three-tenths of a second slower than the local record for this event. Crothers was hard pressed by Dysart of Tennessee, but won out by virtue of a strong finish.

Judge Carper, won the discus and placed second in the shot put, while the high jump and javelin both were won by Tennessee. Felknor, handicapped by lack of practice, due to an injury, placed second in the two hurdle races, and won the pole vault.

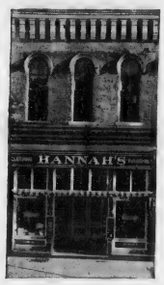
Maryville started impressively, winning both first and second in the hundred, first and second in the pole vault, and first in the discus. This gave the Highlanders a nice lead but Tennessee gradually overcame it and forged ahead.

BASEBALL

Parks Pitches Air-tight Ball For His Mates.

April 11—After being beaten by the Lenoir-Rhyne baseballers from Hickory, North Carolina on Tuesday, the Highlanders came back and licked the Jefferson Woolen Mill team today. The entire Maryville team played better ball than they have at any time this year. Park, pitching for the home team, limited the Knoxville team to four safeties and pitched airtight ball in the pinches.

West, one of the freshmen, has been showing up the best and should have a great year if he keeps up his present pace.



The final score was 7 to 2 in the Highlanders' favor. The scoring seemed to indicate that the game was more of a walk-away than it really was. Maryville had to play hard to win and as Coach Honaker sys, should have larger attendance at the games.

Maryville is to play Jefferson Woolen Mills at Caswell Park in Knoxville one day this week. There is a game with the University of Tennesee nine this week, probably Tuesday. No definite arrangements have been made as yet and consequently we impart all that we know at this time.

CAMPUS BEAUTY HEIGHTENED BY BENCHES, PATHS

Students Make Excellent Use Of New Addition to Campus Beauty.

SENIORS STEAL TEN

Many Paths Constructed And Improved In Recent Campus Project.

Forty-four of the fifty benches purchased by the College recently have been set out upon the campus, and the students are already taking advantage of the comfort and convenience thus offered. Names of various clubs decorate the benches, indicating that that particular club or organization has contributed toward the purchase of the bench.

Geographically, the names represent places from Massachusettes to Isle of Pines.

It is comforting to know that when we have visitors these hot April, May, and June days, we can ask them to have a seat under the crowning points. We may also point with pride to the fact that we helped purchase these comfortable resting places.

The Senior Class Party last week was the cause of a bad precedent as to our new campus benches, when about ten benches were taken to the gym and used at the party, and then were left in the gym all week while the students who paid for them were deprived of their use. Regular places have been chosen for some of the benches, those for the Y. and Literary societies in particular, and if they have to be moved, they should be brought back at once.

Although a few students have shown poor sportsmanship by dropping paper and peelings around the benches, Dr. Wilson has been complimenting the students as a whole on the care they are taking to keep all such things off the ground and in the waste-cans instead.

Although the finishing of the Paths Project was delayed due to lack of helpers, Mr. Proffitt has now instructed Mr. Brown and his helpers to remake the path from Thaw to the front of the Postoffice, and has agreed to furnish materials for the path around the South end of Thaw if the students furnish the labor. Other bare spots, as in front of the Chapel and of Anderson, will be taken care of also. The Triangle Club has set to work on the triangle bed of flowers-to-be-pretty the year round which has been approved for the campus in front of Thaw.

Not subtracting expenses of $4.00 for paints, envelopes, etc., the Campus Committee has thus far received these amounts of money:

Students	$213.90
Faculty and Friends	$185.93
Total	$399.83

The College Maids deserve much credit for their contribution of $16. raised through collection and the sale of garments they have made.

GRAHAM-FULLERTON

Former Student Weds Newspaper Man In San Antonio.

510 Mission St.
San Antonio, Texas,
April 12, 1930.

To the Editor of the Highland Echo,
Maryville, Tenn.

Greetings from Texas—While The Lone Star Highlanders, (students of Maryville College living in the vicinity of this city) were having a meeting at the home of America Moore Saturday, March 22, the telephone calling for Henry Fullerton announced that his sister Martha and Frank Graham, a member of the Staff of the Daily Light this City, had slipped off to an adjoining county and were now man and wife. Martha will be remembered as a Freshman, class 1927-28, and her classmates at College will be ready to throw rice at her even at this distance. Mr. and Mrs. Graham are at home at the Carolina Apartments corner Carolina and Peach Streets, San Antonio, Texas.

'ARMS AND THE MAN' IS HIT OF SEASON; SATIRE APPRECIATED

Gauding, Mrs. Morton, Star In Shaw's Play; Cast Shows Experience.

April 19—The presentation of Bernard Shaw's "Arms and The Man", by Theta Alpha Phi last Thursday night was undoubtedly one of the best productions seen on the Maryville campus in quite awhile Although superlatives are quite generously applied to the quality of most of our campus activities, such a practice is not repeated at this time merely to observe polite tradition; but rather because those who took part in this play produced a work which must be highly commended as a matter of fact and not fiction.

Harry Gauding's interpretation of the "chocolate-cream soldier" was probably the outstanding work of the production, though the other actors were not far behind. All seemed to be enjoying their parts on the stage, a reflection of the experience which each of them has had in dramatics. At no time did it seem that lines had been forgotten and had slowed up the play.

Bernard Shaw's satire was brought home to the audience in a delightful and capable manner, and except for two very noticable "burbles" in the stage-managing, the play stands as an example of polish and excellence in dramatics. Mrs. Veech, the director, has another really good production to her credit.

The selections played by the orchestra and Eleanor Kuhlman's voice selections were rendered capably.

ANNUAL 'Y' ELECTION HAS BIG INTEREST

James Re-elected To Office; Amendment Stands.

April 8—The annual Y. M. C. A. election took place tonight in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium in Bartlett Hall. The final results of all the votes cast in the packed auditorium were:

President—J. Stuart James

Vice President—Raymond Young

Secretary—Edwin Shelley

Treasurer—Richard Strain

The event took place with the usual degree of intense interest displayed by the men students in the election. At the outset of the meeting, it was evident that a clash was ensuing when Morgan Biggs, this year's Secretary, read aloud the amendment to the constitution to the effect that all nominations for Y. M. C. A. are to be made through a nominating committee. This amendment precludes the possibility of nominations from the floor and the subsequent "dark horse", who might attract a majority of votes through the peculiar psychological position which is his at the immediate time of the election.

Numerous speeches by different members immediotely followed this amendment, the matter finally being settled when Dr. McMurray pointed out that, although the amendment itself was unconstitutional, the fact that it had stood without criticism for almost a year

MISS HALE PRESENTS ADVANCED PUPILS ON PROGRAM IN K'VILLE

Tuesday Morning Music Club Asks College Students To Play Again.

The Tuesday Morning Music Club of Knoxville, one of the largest and oldest organizations in Tennessee, has invited Miss Hale to give a guest concert in Knoxville on Monday night, April 28, using her department talent.

This is the third time this honor has been shown our Music Department. It is indeed a compliment to the college and to Miss Hale that the music students should be asked to appear before such excellent musicians in public concert.

Miss Hale has chosen the advanced musicians of the department to represent the college. The program will include numbers in piano, voice, and violin. Those who will contribute to this concert are: Miss Fancher Smartt, Miss Garnet Manges, and Miss Marion Johnson, postgraduates in piano; Miss Margaret Melody, Miss Elizabeth Myers, and Miss Mildred Butcher in a trio for cello, violin, and piano; Eleanor Kuhlman, Merle Beebe, Yervante Topalian, and Philip Vogel, representing the voice department.

This concert will be given in the auditorium of the First Christian Church, Knoxville.

VESPER CHOIR SINGS CANTATA OF EASTER TO FULL HOUSE SUN.

Miss Henry Ably Directs Voices In "The Resurrection And The Life."

Those of us, who, on Easter Eve, attended the Vesper Service were inspird with the reverent manner and dignity with which the choir sang the cantata, "The Resurrection and the Life", by Ira B. Wilson.

Dr. Stevenson in his usual inimitable way gave an appropriate introductory talk.

The soloists, Eleanor Kuhlman, Anne Smartt, Norma Spilatore, and Wesley Culver sang their parts well. The choir, however, attained its greatest heights in the ensemble work showing careful attention to unity, diction, intonation, cooperation, and effect.

From the first note of the Adagio movement, "The Earth in Darkness Lies", to the Grand Amen of the final chorus, "Victory", the choir sang with much feeling.

Much of the credit for the success of the cantata should be given to Miss Frances Henry, who very capably directed it, and to Miss Adkins, the accompanist, and Mr. Frank Neff who assisted at the organ.

This should bring to our attention the Vesper Choir which we are apt to not fully appreciate but take entirely for granted.

THE OPEN FORUM

James Objects

April 21, 1930.

Editor The Highland Echo,
College Station,
Maryville, Tenn.

Dear Sir:

I believe all who read your editorial styled "Tammany Tactics" which appeared in last week's issue of this paper, will agree that one occupying my position must necessarily feel something of an encumbency to reply to the direct charges as well as the misleading insinuations contained therein. I believe that the students expct, and itis only fair that a word be said on the other side. And so it is with this kind of an attitude and not in a spirit of retaliation that I address this letter to you and to the Student Body.

In the process of electing the Y. M. C. A. Officers it appears that the activities of the Nominating Committee, or if you prefer, the "Mutual Admiration Society" are the first in order of condemnation for having chosen just four (4) of their number to be among the nine (9) nominations which were made. Should you care to refer back to previous years you will discover that such has always been characteristic of the Y. M. C. A. Nominating Committees as well as other Nominating Committees, and therefore, the impression your article gives that such things are more or less unprecedented here is entirely erroneous and misleading to those knowing nothing different. It is interesting to note that in past years such nominating of its own members by the Committee has been taken as a matter of course and the great howl after the election was because some one not on the list of nominees was elected from the floor. You say that "one man, a leader for the opposition, was nominated for a job he didn't want and was sure he could not get, in order to keep him quiet." If he was sure he couldn't get the office and didn't want it anyway, why did he not refuse the nomination or withdraw and "Spill" anything sensational he had to say? One cannot but wonder, too, just why you failed to enlighten us with an editorial about the corruption of the Committee until after the election was over, although two weeks intervened between the Committee meeting and the election.

The election itself, you unhesitatingly assert, "was as crooked as anything Tammany ever conjured, with Bill Vares and Bill Thompsons casting votes 'by proxy', a kind name for stuffing the ballot". If true, this statement certainly reflects in no slight degree upon the integrity of the one presiding and all of the tellers for allowing dishonest or "stuffed" proxy votes to be counted. Frankly, the charge is utterly lacking in proof or substantiation of any kind and was apparently made without any serious forethought by one who was not even present at the time. It has become a habit on Maryville's Campus for some persons to suppose and herald abroad the existence of some mysterious group significantly called "Tammany" which invariably usurps privileges, mixes the dope, and runs things the wrong way generally, particularly the Y. M. C. A. This group, of course, has no regard for the well-being of the Organization and every actual or imagined ailment is always attributed directly to this group whoever and whatever they are.

Regarding the present system of

EXPRESSION DEPT. GRADUATE RECITAL TONIGHT IN CHAPEL

First of Series of Recitals Features Woolsey, Mevis, Haynie, Laster.

Tonight four students of Expression will appear in a recital to begin at 8:00 o'clock in Voorhees Chapel. These graduates are Edith Woolsey, Margaret Haynie, Margaret Mevis, and Hayden Laster, pupils of Mrs. Nita Eckles West.

Edith Woolsey will read "The Patchwork Quilt" a fantasy, by Rachel Fields. The story reveals the consequences of inconsideration on the part of children to their aged mother, who loved her patchwork quilt dearly and was grieved when it was taken from her. It is a beautiful selection and will reveal Miss Wolsey's ability as a reader.

Another work by Rachel Field, "Bargains in Cathay", will be given by Margaret Haynie. This is quite different from "The Patchwork Quilt", for its lighter, being a delightful one act play full of gayety and charming in every respect. Because it expresses so well lighthearted youth, love, and springtime, it should meet a very appreciative audience.

Margaret Mevis will read David Belasco's "Madame Butterfly", a Japanese tragedy in one act. Those who have heard the opera know that it is the story of a charming little Japanese girl's intense love for an American man, Lieutenant Pinkerton.

Hayden Laster will read "The Crumbs That Fall' by Hubbard. It is a very pleasant, dramatic piece which centers about a rich-man's club in England.

GLEE SINGERS TO MAKE TWO TRIPS

Madisonville and Richard City On Club's Itinerary.

The College Glee Singers will take two trips within the next two weeks, going to Madisonville on Friday, April 25th and to Richard City on the 29th. On the Madisonville trip they will come back the same night but on the Richard City trip they will remain over until the 30th, coming back in the afternoon. They expect to spend several hours in Chattanooga sightseeing and will probably go to Lookout Mountain and have a good time in general. They have been to each place several times in past seasons.

The same program will be rendered at both places and some highlights from it are Negro Spirituals by the Glee Club and negro impersonations by Ernie Ross, selections from the "Desert Song" in costume, Song of the Vagabonds, and Danse Macabre with pale blue lights and costumes a la cemetery. Also other novelties and other equally interesting numbers.

Miss Elizabeth Crow, a graduate of tht Class of '28 was the guest of Faith Taylor, during the past week. Elizabeth is accomplished in literary lines, having been a member of the Writers' Workshop, associate editor of the Chilhowean, an English assistant, and holder of other important offices while attending Maryville.

GIGANTIC PLANS ON FOR ANNUAL MAY DAY FETE

Attendants Choose Partners For Grand Parade On May First.

KING BAKER TO MARCH

Various Departments To Aid In Carrying Out Helen Crowder's Ideas.

The Annual May Day festivities which will be held in the College Woods, Thursday, May 1 bid fair to surpass all other celebrations of its kind. The plans for program and costumes are the products of the master brain of Helen Crowder who has been planning for this event several months. Should the weather permit, the celebration will be staged in the College Woods May 1, if not, the program will be postponed until the weather conditions make it possible for the Queen of May to have her natural setting. Helen says that, contrary to the usual custom, a play will not be rendered, ,but that music, dancing and pantomine will make up the program. Eighty of the College students and some town children will take part.

The Queen, Elizabeth Myers, a member of the Senior Class, chose as her King, Frank Baker, and as her attendant Kitty Copeland. The Junior, Sophomore, and Freshman attendants are Patsy Chandler, Frances Mingea, and Mary Ella Anderson; the men of their choice are Leland Gilmore, Ralph Cherry, and Bob Crothers. May Day, like weddings, has always been a gala day for the girls, with the man acting more or less as a figure head. But this year's program will include men, especially those having musical ability.

The program promises to be both unique and interesting. We will see, in the beginning, old winter on the throne, the snow sprites flee, and the sunbeams gather up the snow in preparation for spring. There are rosebuds that open in response to the appeal of Byron King's solo, fairies fall from trees. If the program may be said to have a theme, it will be that of the Nation's paying tribute to Queen of May. Holland, Hungary, America, Scotland, England, Persia, and Fairyland are represented each in native costume. The music will be furnished by the Women's Glee Club, the College Trio, and the College Orchestra. Mrs. Queener's advanced gym class will give the dances.

The teachers have been very helpful. The Misses Meiselwitz are furnishing suggestions concerning the colorful and cleverly designed costumes; Misses Henry and Butcher are aiding with the music, and the Expression department is lending costumes.

The Y. W. C. A. will have an attractively decorated booth, and will sell everything from hot dogs to

CHILHOWEANS READY

Will Not Be Issued Until All Accounts Are Settled.

The staff for the 1930 Chilhowean announces that the book will be ready for delivery by the end of this week. However, not one book will be issued until every class and club has paid its account in full.

The year book is featuring a theme which has never been used before in a Maryville annual, or any other annual. This theme has been ingeniously carried out through the entire book, even to its binding and dedication. Those few fortunate persons who have seen the new Chilhowean were particularly impressed with its handsome binding, complete unity throughout, and appropriateness in every respect.

A very attractive feature section is also an asset to this year's annual. The staff has been wise and fortunate in keeping the theme and details unknown.

"SWEETHEARTS ON PARADE"

By Nez Hamrick

"Two by two they go marching through—Sweethearts on parade!"

And so it was Easter Sunday morning. The sweethearts on parade made a georgeous spectacle, with the women in many colored dresses and the men in dark suits.

The parade started about eleven-fotry and lasted till twelve-ten. Heading the porade was Merle Beebe and Roy Dollenmayer; second in line came Marian Johnson and John Taggart; and third, Leleah Ball and Sumpter Logan. In all there were fifty couples.

The first break in the line came when Lois Crotwell and "Shorty" Shaw side-stepped to walk up toward the court house. Lois was dressed in pink and wore a corsage of pink roses and valley lillies. We don't know just why they started for the court house; it was locked.

Mary Lovette and Byron King blocked traffic for a few minutes, but they soon stepped aside and let "Tootsie" Nash and "Brute" Crow, who were just behind them, pass.

One of the most oustanding couples of the parade was Ruby Miller and Professor Griffitts. Ruby wore a gown of misty blue chiffon, and a blue hat of the latest style. Her corsage consisted of lillies of the valley with an orchid as the center. Professor Griffitts wore a conventional dark suit and a new gray hat.

Another oustanding couple was Gretchen Bowers and Tom Cash. Gretchen wore perhaps the most "Eastery" looking dress of all. It was of white silk crepe with orchid accessories, made in the extreme new style. She wore a shoulder corsage of pink roses and fern.

"Farmer" Watkins over-stepped one of the conventional customs, by carrying a large arm bouquet of bridal wreath. However he was his usual cheery self.

The peacock strut was very well portrayed by Forrest Robertson, and he was an exact caricature of what the well dressed man will wear The small figure of Edith Kitts whom he accompanied seemed shrouded in a large and lovely corsage of pink roses and lillies of the valley.

The state known for its beautiful women and fast horses was also represented. Miss Catherine Lowry, a former student of Maryville, was escorted by Mr. Ralph Teffeteller, our star catcher. Quite a catch!

Porcine Players

We hesitate to call the attention of the student body to such a matter as common courtesy, but it seems that despite previous pleadings from these colums, some insist upon occupying the tennis courts for infinitely longer periods of time than good manners warrant or good nature should be expected to endure.

To those students whose lack of judgment, or perhaps abundance of audacity, allows them to overstay the accepted time limit for tennis matches, the following information is set forth. Players never occupy the courts for more than one set after the arrival of others desiring to play. Those who have accepted the courtesy of the court play only one set before ceeding it to the waiting players. This holds in all cases except scheduled macthes, which are to be run off without interference.

We are sorry the Culture Week program did not include a lecture on this subject, as it might have been more effective. No one, we trust, honestly wants to be seen as lacking in the rudiments of courtesy and sportsmanship, so the people who have been hogging the courts through ignorance of tennis etiquette will be found no longer guilty, and those who disregard these rules show themselves up in an unfavorable light.

Stage Doors

An unsuspecting young actress stood at the stage door—not awaiting a position as one might expect, but actually—that is she was acting, and she started to go out through the door. As she pulled resolutely upon the bar to passage, the door parted company with its hinges, and the young lady faced the audience with a tray in one hand and a door in the other. Quite embrassing to say the least. Just imagine yourself standing anywhere with a door in your hand—but before a crowded auditorium, well, excuse us.

That incident is now a humorous anecdote which will travel the dramatic circles of Maryville College for years to come. However, it shows us one thing that the college has needed for a long time. We need a stage.

We marvel at the effects that are gotten on the inadequate platform we call our stage, and the expression department is to be highly commended for the progress it has made in staging. Nevertheless, our staging facilities are far from the criterion that the high standards of acting seen here deserve. We do not know how we are to get the much needed improvement, but it strikes us that the glaring inefficiency of the present stage ought to be met.

Kathryn Hodges (in staff meeting): "If I cover the trips of Miss Henry and Professor Howell and leave Miss Jewell alone, will I be doing enough this week?"

Hessie Keeton: "Do you play tennis?"

Roberta Hickman: "Not in public."

HIGHLAND FLINGS

Behavior is a mirror in which every one shows his image.

Ignorance never settles a question.

According to the latest fashion, the "feminine form divine" is being restored. For the past many months it has been wandering anywhere from the knees to the shoulder.

Ashes to ashes and dust to dust; if midyear's don't get you finals must.

Some people have to be told to fall in love.

Ignorance is where you don't know anything and let someone find it out.

How is it that lightening never strikes in the same place twice."

"Because after it hits once, the same place ain't there."

"Has your son's college education proved of any real value?"

"Yes indeed. It's entirely cured his mother of bragging about him."

CURRENT CAMPUS COMMENT

Paull Lequire: "I think that books are essentially feminine."

Olive Clopton: "Yes, I've taken anaesthetic dancing."

Miss Adkins: "I can't play Illinois. Illinois is in the basement."

In disscusing the educational tours made by several colleges, O. K. Biggs mentioned the fact that Maryville had two. When pressed for further details he said: "The mountain hikes."

Naomi Willingham: "I think I'd make some man a good wife, but I don't seem to be getting any chances around here."

Patsy Hall: "There's hardly a boy in that dining-hall who will put a girl under her chair."

Sumpter Logan: "That section of England was thickly populated with underbrush."

CASEY'S SECOND CHANCE

By Brent Stearns

Last night I dreamed a dream so strange
I knew it was not true,
An angel took me in her arms
And through the skies she flew.

We came upon a great white cloud
A million miles from here,
She set me down and told me then
That I should have no fear.

She left me and so I explored
To see what I could see;
I saw a fence with just one gate,
A sign "Admission Free".

In I went, I always do,
When anything is free,
And what I saw was stranger than
The strangest ere could be.

A diamond there with two fast nines
All ready for a game;
Large stands were filled with Heaven-folk
Who knew on earth great fame.

I always like a game of ball,
I quickly found a seat;
On one side was Julius Caesar,
The other, good Saint Pete.

The time was near, the game must start,
The umpire took his place.
I knew he was Columbus for
I recognized his face.

"The batteries," Columbus said,
"For Golden Bears will be
The catcher good old Abraham,
The pitcher, Sam McGee."

"Wise Plato wll be on the mound
For Holy Red Sox nine,
And the catcher Chaucer's dainty nun,
The Madame Eglantine."

The Umpire walked out to the box,
Put on his head his hat,
The crowded stands rose to their feet,
The Red Sox were at bat.

The game went on, both teams played well,
The pitchers were air-tight,
The eighth inning had seen no score;
It was an even fight.

To start the ninth the Red Sox left
The field to do or die,
They shook their bats, they wanted runs
To break the scoreless tie.

Cleopatra, center-fielder,
Swished firmly to the plate,
The pitcher then let go the ball,
Alas! She swung too late.

She took another mighty swing,
A loud sharp crack was heard,
Saint Peter tapped on Caesar's arm,
"She singled over third."

"I know", said Caesar, full of gloom,
"My bet is two to one
That the Golden Bears by sun-set
Will have the game well won."

His gloom soon left, for Sam McGee
Struck Alexander out,
And by mixing curves with fast ones
He put the Sox to route.

"The ninth now ends, the Bears will bat,"
Great Caesar said to Pete,
"Watch these boys go, they're bound to win,
This team just can't be beat."

The first man up was old King Lear,
He walked and Job got on,
But then there was a double-play,
Matthew to Luke to John.

"Two outs there are and one man on,"
Saint Peter said to me,
"But here comes the famous Casey
To bat for Sam McGee."

The crowds loud cheered and rose as one,
They knew this man's great fame,
One time on earth he was struck out,
Which cost his team the game.

Now here he had a second chance
To make his home-run good,
I wondered if he'd hit the ball,
Somehow I knew he would.

Wise Plato threw his fastest ball,
But Casey sent it back
Much faster than it came to him—
All Heaven heard the crack.

Then Casey ran full speed to first,
Saint Peter swore out loud,
The ball flew past fleet Joan of Arc
And rolled down off the cloud.

By second-base great Casey flew,
And he was flying fast,
Then he crossed home-plate and he smiled—
Casey made good at last.

A Freshman's conception of a Senior:
A senior stood on the railroad track
The train was coming fast;
The train got off the track
To let the Senior pass.

"No sir! I wouldn't cash a check for my own brother."

"Well, you know your family better than I do."

5000-kilowatt turbine-generator installed in 1903 at the Fisk Street station of the Commonwealth Edison Company, Chicago

When Small Machines Were Big

MORE than a quarter century ago, the Commonwealth Edison Company, prophetically alive to the immense possibilities of the future, ordered from General Electric a 5000-kilowatt steam turbine—in those days a giant of electric power.

To-day, a General Electric turbine-generator of 208,000-kilowatt capacity sends out its vast energy to the Chicago Metropolitan District.

College-trained men played a responsible part in the engineering and manufacture of both machines—just as they serve in important capacities in the engineering, production, and distribution of all General Electric equipment, large or small.

Racket Wielders Take 4 Day Trip

Georgetown, Centre Colleges Play Tuesday and Wednesday

TEAM RETURNS THURSDAY

Maryville Swamps Tusculum Squad, 5-1.

April 21—The Varsity Tennis Team and Coach Bob Smith left at 9:00 this morning for Lexington, Ky. They will spend four days on this trip and will engage Georgetown College on Tuesday, and Centre on Wednesday. University of Kentucky was on the schedule for Thursday but due to a change in their schedule, the match was cancelled. The team, Strain, King, Buchanan and Swaim, has been working hard and deserves a great deal of credit. Trips to Chattanooga and to Tusculum are also planned.

April 17—The Maryville netmen swept to an impressive win over Tusculum Racket-wielders here today, five matches to one. The Highlanders won two doubles matches and three of the singles.

The fine team play in the doubles, which has been prominent in the last two encounters with Tennessee Wesleyan and U. T., continued to mark the play of the Highlanders Much improvement was also noted in the singles events. Strain, King, Buchanan, and Swaim seem to be on the road to a very successful season.

James Madison was the first President to habitually wear long trousers.

HORSE SHOE PITCHING IS LATEST SPORT

Some day if you should happen to be walking under the trees between Baldwin Hall and the tennis courts, and all at once stump your toe, cutting a double flip—don't be surprised! If you will look closely, you will find two stakes driven in ground about twenty feet apart. They are not very tall, so therefore it would be easy not to see them. However, every day they are becoming plainer and plainer. The grass is being worn away and a hole dug at each stake. Now can you guess what is happening? Some of the most dignified students of Maryville College have started pitching horseshoes! Every day at 12:40 there is a grand rush for the horse-shoe pitching ground, and some days even the moonshiners take a hand at it.

"Hank" Hubbard seems to be the best girl pitcher, with Anne Banks running her a close second. "Sleepy" White and Joe Woodard are vying honors for the boys.

The horse-shoes are part of the school's athletic equipment and are kept in Pearson's lobby. They are large and heavy, and "Hank" says pitching them is one of the best ways in the world to develop muscle.

Since there are so many contestants, the rule is to play two out of three games, with two new players taking the winners. If you don't play tennis or baseball, here is a good chance to get your hour's exercise every day. It isn't hard—some say "just a simple twist of the wrist"—and who knows,—some day some of Maryville's own students may be the world's champion?!

BOYS PLANS SWIMMING MEETS FOR VARSITY

April 21—The Varsity Swimming team will meet the crack Knoxville Y. combination in their pool on Thursday, April 24. The team showed its merit in the water carnival last Saturday and is expected to run Knoxville a close race. The carnival contained many spectacular events and showed a great deal of preparation.

LEARN TO SWIM; KEEP THAT GIRLISH FIGURE

About thirty-five women have been out for swimming every day and although it is supposed that most of them are just trying to reduce, a good deal of advancement has been made. Swimming is ideal: it makes slender people gain weight and those with a more rotund build drop off a little avoirdupois. This applies to men as well as to women and it is apparent that the former need it more.

Swimming is also very good exercise as it puts nearly every muscle n your body in use and promotes coordination of the muscles. Don't wait! Do it now! Everyone else is. The pool is open at regular hours and everyone is welcome. Join the navy and learn to swim.

WOMEN'S TUMBLING

The women's tumbling class is still being conducted on Thursday and Saturday afternoons at 4:30. "Buck" has requested that all the old members of the team come out and also those who wish to learn tumbling from the beginning. The class is still held in Anderson Hall above Professor Kiger's classroom.

BAINONIANS

Saturday night the Bainonian Literary Society was favored by another unusual and delightful program. Miss Frances Henry gave an evening of musical numbers. The songs which were numerous, were varied in theme and ranged from the lightest ditty to classical songs of more serius nature. She concluded with an Easter Hosanna.

The program was in charge of Miss Sedorf who is doing excellent work as program secretary. Miss Hodges, too, is planning some interesting programs. It is rumored that she has persuaded the Misses Mieselwit to take charge of next Saturdays program.

J. W. M. vs. Maryville

Maryville baseballers journeyed to Knoxville Wednesday afternoon and succeeded in handing Jefferson Woolen Mill team her second straight defeat at the hands of the Highlanders.

Maryville bats could not be silenced and the team made up for some of the poor fielding. Maryville garnered eleven runs to six for their erstwhile opponents.

Jefferson Woolen Mills used two pitchers neither of which showed any ability to hinder the pent up fury of the Maryville batsmen.

Bowman was the offensive star for Maryville, securing two well-earned bingles—West was the defensive star for Maryville.

Maryville used three pitchers, Park, Blazer, Stidham, either one of which could have easily handled the Knoxville team.

U. T. vs. Maryville

On Friday afternoon Maryville again invaded Caswell Park to meet the University of Tennessee Volunteers on the diamond.

In the second slug-fest of the week Maryville failed to emerge victorious. The final score was U. T. take a thorough liking for Pete Park's left-handed offerings and Darden first man up for Tennessee hit a Texas leaguer over second base that got through Watkins for a home run. From then on it was a real slug-fest with Tennessee seem-15, Maryville 14.

The Tennessee team seemed to ing to have a slight edge in the hitting department. In fact only one Tennessee man, Dyer failed to get a hit (he must have been sick).

Cox, McEver, Hackman, Dodd and Overton led the attack which accounted for most of Tennessee's twenty odd hits.

While Tennessee was hitting the ball at will Maryville succeeded in taking advantage of miscues and boneheads by the Tennessee defense to amass a total of fourteen runs. Blazer, White, Hurst, and Benn led the Maryville attack.

Both starting pitchers Overton for Tenessee and Park for Maryville gave way in favor of Moser and Blazer, but still the storm raged.

Tennessee came to bat the last half of the ninth with the score tied at 14 all. The first two men up, Cox and Hackman succeeded in reaching first base and a passed ball allowed a double advance placing runners on second and third. Thayer, substitute for Dyer, had two strikes on him when he lit on one of "Lefty" Blazer's slants for a triple to right center field which won the game for the Vols by one run.

Tennessee comes to Maryville for a return game sometime this week.

Maryville Cinder Path Artists Down Weakened L. M. U. Team, 74-44

Strike Keeps Several L. M. U. Athletes From Races.

FELKNOR, HIGHSCORE MAN

Carper, Taylor, Chalk Points For Alma Mater.

April 19—The Maryville College Cinder Path artists buried the weakened Lincoln Memorial University team under a 73 to 44 score in a dual track meet at Harrogate, Tenn., today. The Highlanders took eight first places and twelve seconds, The Lincoln Memorial team was considerably handicapped by the absence of several stars, on account of the strike now taking place there.

"Dip" Felknor, Maryville freshman, won high point honors, scoring 16 points. He took first place in the pole vault and high hurdles, and placed second in the discus and low hurle events. Felknor was closely followed by H. Jeffries of Lincoln Memorial.

Carper scored 11 points, and Taylor was responsible for eight points of the Highlander total. "Judge" won the discus with his best throw of the year, 107 feet, 2 1-2 inches; he also placed second in the javelin and shot. Taylor won the 2 mile and finished second in the mile. Captain Taggart, Crothers, Bowman, and Richardson were other first place winners for Maryville.

The poor condition of the track, which was rough and very hilly, prevented any fast times being made.

DISARMAMENT

Time: Any morning, 8:30.
Place: Interurban, Bronxville to New York.
Enter Van Every. Takes seat beside J. H. Taylor, daily commuter.
Van Every: 'Morning.
Taylor: Rotten weather, isn't it.
Taylor: They must be pretty bad over there, yes sir.
Van Every: You're right. Nothing like a London fog, unless it might be the fog that the Disarmament Conference is in over there. By the way, did you hear Admiral Adams on the radio last night? He made a fine talk on the question. Didn't get all of it myself, but the wife said he was pretty good.
Taylor: I haven't been following the Conference much myself, but I guess it is a pretty good thing.
Van Every: Bet your life. I see by the paper up the aisle that Stimson is doing something or other—wait a minute. Aw to bad, he turned the page. Well, anyhow—
Taylor: The Sun over there says the French refuse to do something. Can't make it out without my glasses.
Never buy a paper—try to rest my eyes on the train.
Van Every: Always have to run for the train in the mornings myself, and besides the men at the office always have one.
Taylor: Nothing like keeping up with the news, though, as I tell my wife.
Van Every: Yea, a fellow ought to keep up with what the country is doing. I've been following the Disarmament Conference pretty close. I guess you read about the opening, though.
Taylo: No, must have missed that.
Van Every: Well, the King was there, and the different countries had representatives. They had to have interpreters to tell the Americans what the rest of the countries said. Everybody was up early listening in on their raddios—you'll have to pardon my pronunciation of that word, I'm a Democrat. Dawes was there, too it seems. Also Will Rogers. They seem to be quite good friends. I've read the report of Mr. Rogers in the paper—they must be having quite a time.
Taylor: Who are the nations represented at the conference? My ignorance on the subject, I must confess, is refreshing.
Van Every: Now, let me see. Probably the big ten. Russia, Belgium, The Balkan States, Italy, and so on. I think China or Japan—I forget which is in on it too. It doesn't matter much. If they are going to do away with war, it's all the same.
Taylor: America must have had a large delegation there.
Van Every: Well, old 'Hell and Maria" would be enough. You know who he is. There is one one thing I can't understand, though, and that is why they let so many women in on it. I saw in the paper the other day pictures of Mrs. Morrow, Mrs. Adams, Stimson, Dawes, and a lot more. I think they were in court gowns, too. Imagine going to a navy conference in a layout like that? Ill bet old Charley Dawes didn't get all decked out in the silk pants they wear over there. No sir!
Taylor: I wonder if they will get anything accomplished over there, after all the fuss they make about it.
Van Every: Bound to. I've been keeping close tabs on what's going on, and it looks like everything would be all right.
Taylor: What have they got done by this time?
Van Every: Well, I don't think they are giving it out just yet. It will be in all the papers, though. No doubt about it.
Taylor: Yea, no doubt.

The Debater Maintains

By Logic B. Reasons

For the varsity debate team the schedule has been completed and the season is over. This was climaxed with the longest and most extensive debate trip ever taken from Maryville College. The trip to the National Convention at Wichita touched eight states. It was a straining journey but worth its miles in gold.

Many interesting things occurred on this trip. To begin with Bill almost lost his tennis racket and one shoe before he could secure another racket to make him a pair of snow shoes.

—:—

Once when we stopped at a ten cent store in Kansas City it taxed the persuasive eloquence and reason of the debate team to coax Professor Queener out because he thought that a little clerk had short changed him in a post card deal.

—:—

Bill purchased several cards and walked out on the street, and mailed them to his friends in a trash can.

—:—

Graham also had a difficult role in staying awake long enough to eat, which partly explained the amount he ate.

During the convention week, we felt sure that Wichita was subjected to more discussion on disarmament than London has been for some time.

The judges at this convention had an opportunity to see just about how well representatives agree in disarmament conference.

—:—

Those who have not lost a decision this year are Viola Pettit Mary Lovette, and Elizabeth Cannon on the women's team, and Richard Strain, Roy Taylor, and Robert West on the men's team.

—:—

The only debates left on the program now are freshman debates The freshmen are confronted with good records of last year's fresh men team and that of the year before. They will have to shoot high to beat it.

—:—

Forrest Robertson, a senior who has debated four years says it is interesting to think that the nex debate in which he participates will probably be a real divorce case in court.

WICHITA SIDE LIGHTS

The debaters were not satisfied to produce volumes of hot air and other forms of combustion on their trip—so they have a few tales to tell after getting back home again.

They traveled over 2500 miles without a puncture or a flat tire (same thing), and will sell this testimonial to the highest bidder among the tire industries.

The whole trip was marked by Bill Graham asking "When do we eat?"—by Forrest Robertson actually eating the most, and by Professor Queener smiling weakly afterwards.

Oklahoma remains distinguished for four things—a few cowboys quite a few Indians, many oil wells, and more hitch-hikers than every thing else.

During each of the first two days at the convention at Wichita, the boys participated in four contests, two debates and two individual speaking contests. This type of program is a novelty they recommend to anyone for relief from nervousness, etc.

Even then, they did not know the results of these contests for two days.

The evening suppers and the final banquet on the roof garden of the hotel were pronounced "great" by everybdy—except for the time that the photographer successfully filled the whole hall with a heavy smoke screen.

The three Maryvillians took their first airplane ride at Wichita. This was one time that little Queener's interests were coldly disregarded. Prof. did come down safely, though, thus retaining the "status quo" of the family.

At almost every place they stopped, someone would introduce himself as a former Maryvillian. This was truly one of the best aspects of the entire trip, and one which the delegates appreciated sincerely.

At Fulton, Missouri, the debate was held before a rural literary society meeting in a rural schoolhouse. The house was so packed that the speakers had to wade into the middle of the crowd to obtain standing room. Queener managed to squeezez in about a minute before the debate started. Aside from the babies crying, and the inadequacy of Graham and Robertson to shout as violently as the Westminster debaters, a riotous time was had by all.

Incidentally, Westminster College is quite a good deal like Maryville. It is a Presbyterian College with about the same enrollment as Maryville.

Wichita was truly a hospitable city for the convention. The newspapers issued special souvenir Pi Kappa Delta editions, and many of the larger stores had banners welcoming the six hundred delegates to Wichita. The delegation coming the further est from home wsa probably from Pullman, Washington, with students from Oregon and Maine running a close second.

Robertson acquired the title among many of the delegates as "the gentleman from Dixie". Maryville was the only represented school from Tennessee. Southerners really were a scarcity at the convention.

By the time the convention was nearing its close, our boys were thinking of the friendly hills of the Vol state, after seeing nothing bu flat country for awhile. When they crossed the long bridge across the Mississippi River to Tennessee at Memphis it was a real thrill.

Anyway, Robertson won his last intercollegiate debate, Graham did not get lost but once, and Professor got over his sore throat, and that's that!

had definitely established its validity as an amendment.

The regular election procedure then followed. In the presidential race Stuart James obtained a fair majority over Porter French for the office; for vice-president, Carl Story was eliminated on the first ballot, and Raymond Young bested Leland Gilmore by a small number of votes on the second ballot; Edwin Shelley established a substantial majority over Lawrence Somers for the secretary's office; Richard Strain was elected treasurer on the first ballot against Robert West and Homer McCann.

YOUTH GROWS CONSERVATIVE

"Because they all seem as young to us as we seem old to them, we fail to see much difference between the so-called new genration and the newest," says Jesse Lynch Williams, asking "What Next?" in the May College Humor. "But the boys and girls now in college, or just out, who nave quietly come into their majority without the advertisement of a great war—they see it and feel it and wonder how we can miss it.

"'Why put us in a class with that bunch of dead ones who still call themselves the new generation?' an undergraduate recently asked. 'There is nothing new about the noisy post war crowd. Their dope is all old stuff. Nobody takes them seriously any more, except themselves.' He seemed amused by the quaint folk-ways of the early twenties, the archaic slang, the queer costumes and customs, the loud insistence upon being the first and only generation to discover truth and sex, freedom and—futility.

"'Oh, she's one of those old-fashioned girls who get tight at parties,' a debutante of nineteen remarked the other day, upon a pretty painted antique who must have been nearly twenty-seven. 'She still thinks it's the thing to be vulgar. We don't go in for that any more. They ran it out. Ordinary people have taken it up.'

"The novelty of bad manners, it seems, has worn off for those who inherit breeding and good taste Total depravity is no longer such a blessed luxury. In some circles, a loss.

'Make no mistake about the new bunch. They are not going back to Bunk. They are just as keen about Truth as their elder brothers and sisters. More so. But they are beginning to see that Truth includes Beauty as well as Bunk. They want all sorts of facts, not just one sort. They will face and accept the grim kind with the rest, but they don't revel so much in grimness now. They are essentially a healthier, more normal brood because they have come to their intellectual birth in peace times, not in the abnormal conditions of war and its aftermath. In the case of their predecessors, the natural exurberance of youth was perverted through no fault of its own into a sickly sense of futility. But even the philosophy of futility is futile when health returns, when the effects of a long drunk wear off."

The Freshman women's debate team made a fine showing Monday evening when both teams, in their first and only debate of the season, defeated the teams of Tennessee Wesleyan. The question was, resolved: That there should be a minimum wage law for women throughout the United States. The affirmative of the question was upheld at Wesleyan by Doris Dodge, Ruth Boyd, and Alfredda Scobey, while the negative was upheld at Maryville by Mary John Metcalfe, Violet Rowland, and Elizabeth Duncan.

April 16—The Ministerial Association held its weekly meeting on the lacon of Anderson Hall because of the warm weather. Bob Wallace and Paul Edris sang a beautiful duet. Bob Jones' talk on "The Meaning of Easter" showed much thought and preparation and brought home to us all what Easter really does mean. The date for the Ministerial Banquet was set for April 30. election of Officers only through a nominating committee elected by the classes ,sevral of us have never been strictly in accord with it, but the old manner of elections from the floor should not be returned to for many and obvious reasons. The petition system, in which any person desiring to become a candidate for a certain office must present or have presented his petition with a prescribed number of signatures thereon, seems to be the more desirable in every way. If the members of the "Y" so desire, the Constitution can and will be amended in this or some other practical and satisfactory manner.

Thanks, but the Young Men's Christian Association does not need the assistance of the Student Council in solving any of its problems great or small. This is far from a reflection on the Student Council, but simply means that with regard to government and organization the Y. M. C. A. is self-sufficient.

Dean Barnes Gives Valuable Vocational Guidance

PSY. DEPT. HEAD WRITES ARTICLE TO AID STUDENTS

State Factors That Advisor Must Handle That Affect Guidance.

URGE DELIBERATION

Advocates Less Lovemaking And More Thought To Future Occupations.

By Dean Barnes

Every college student is eager for vocational guidance. He takes it for granted that one who is versed in vocational psychology is competent to give vocational guidance. The average student assumes that a man who has been successful in his profession is competent to assist the individual in his choice among the many vocatonal possibilities.

Vocational psychology is studied from the aspect of both practice and research. The former is concerned with the enterprises of vocational guidance and personal selection. The college student has little interest in the latter which has developed chiefly in the interest of employers who realize the importance of fitting workers to their jobs.

Vocational guidance is more comprehensive and should be given by experts. The adviser must necessarily consider numerous factors that must be handled which have little to do with scientific vocational psychology. Some of these factors are educational, social, economic, physical, geographic, healthfulness, supply, wages, dangers, stability, future development, as well as general mental ability, special mental ability, physique, health, interest, temporary and permanent.

It is an economic waste for individuals to engage in occupations for which they are poorly suited, and for them to be perpetually changing their work. It wastes materials, tools, time, energy, and the cumulative effects of practice.

Hollingworth of Columbia University says: "The economic aspect of vocational psychology hinges on the important fact that human beings are neither free, equal, nor alike. Instead, they exhibit through heredity, through early training, through accident, through social pressure through personal preference a great diversity of talents and defeats. The ultimate problem of vocational psychology is that of fitting as many as possible of these diversitites to the equally diverse requirements of the world's work."

All of the major projects of vocational psychology are now in their earlier stages. These projects involve the analyzing of vocational activities and human aptitudes,, the measuring of human capacities, and the providing of information and advice.

Every young person should choose an occupation adapted to his level of general mental ability and to his physical capacity, endurance, and health. Work that is too difficult or too heavy will discourage and irritate him and so make him unhappy in his work. If his task is too easy or monotonous it is equally bad for the mental health. Every intelligent person knows that his enjoyment of life must be derived primarily from his work. A person who is not adapted to his occupation can not fully enjoy life. One should not only have the capacity for a given occupation but he knows he has a permanent interest in that particular line of work.

The young person who chooses a vccation hastily usually makes a mistake. Many young men, and perhaps young women as well, would be happier men and women in later life if they would give more thought to planning their future occupation and spend less time in love making. Both are very important, but love that is not supported by work and benevolence will fail.

Prof. Davis At Tennessee College Association Meet

On April the sixteenth and seventeenth Professor Davis attended the convention of the Tennessee College Association at Nashville. An interesting feature of the meeting was the reading of papers on the following subjects:

General Intelligence Tests and English Tests for College Entrance
Freshmen Orientation Courses
Non-credit Remedial Courses
Raising the Standards of Teacher-training in Tennessee.
Moral Coddling versus Character

The president of the Tennessee Association for the following year is Mr. E. L. Atwood of Tennessee College.

BENCHES PAINTED

Last Tuesday a coat of shellac was carefully applied to the names of the states or clubs painted on the new campus benches. Patronizers of the benches were warned in chapel to bware of wet paint. Hessie Keeton and Edith Nash, two high notes in the Echo, went sauntering over to the Middle Tennessee bench. Hessie started to sit down but was interrupted in the process by a shriek from Edith: "Oh, Hessie! there's wet paint there!" Hessie, martyr-like, refrained from sitting and replied, "Well, at least we found some news."

ON CLASS DUES

An Editorial

Every one admits that it does not cost much to attend Maryville College. The board, room rent and fees are kept down as low as possible in order that students may get the benefits of a college education who would not get it otherwise. This is admirable, but the attitude that many students are beginning to take regarding expense is not admirable. There seems to be the general tendency among some classes to get all that they can without paying the price. They crash class parties, attend banquets without having paid their dues, and practice other such objectionable things that are not in keeping with the true Maryville spirit. Not in the least of these is the matter of class dues. Even before Duff came the subject of class dues has always been a matter of much controversy on the campus, and it seems that something must be done in order to make each student meet his obligations. In the history of every class there has always been a member of students who could or would not pay dues. Such students should refrain from taking part in class activities. Each person should feel that paying off this debt is as important as paying his regular semester bills. If every student decided to evade payment the result would be the death of the greater part of our social life on the Hill. The 1930 Chilhowean will be reay for distribution on Thursday. However students who have paid all dues, class, club, etc. will be unable to get their books on account of the delinquency of the sophomore class.

M.C. ALUMNI FURNISH NEWS OF IMPORT

Sarah Moore Writes Play "Canes". Cruze To Teach At L. M. U.

April 26—In the last issue of The Cue, the official publication of Theta Alpha Phi, national honorary dramatic fraternity, there appeared a one-act play entitled "Canes" by Sarah Moore. Maryvillians remember Sarah as an actress of unusual talent. She was an active member of the Writer's Workshop here, and during that time wrote several plays which were presented. This latest work, "Canes" indicates that her attempts at play-writing are achieving the recognition which their quality merits.

Sarah was graduated from Maryville last June, and is now teaching in Alcoa, Tennessee.

April 25— Another Maryville alumnus is making a name for himself. Wendell W. Cruze, graduate of the Class of 28, has been invited to teach at Lincoln Memorial University at Harrogate, Tenn. Cruze, after obtaining his bachelor's degree at Maryville, received his M. A. degree at University of Tennessee in 1929, and during the past year has been teaching at Porter High School. At L. M. U. he will act as professor of philosophy and psychology. He has a sister, Dorothy Cruze, in college at Maryville.

On Monday evening, April 14, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Rusk of Knoxville entertained at their home in honor of Miss Fancher Smartt. Others present were Florian Hopkins and Reggie Voorhees. Together these five made up 5% of the Class of '29. Mrs. Rusk was Miss Ruth Blake before her marriage.

The faces of several grads were seen on the campus, Easter Sunday. Among them we caught a glimpse of Peggy Byrd, also of the Class of '29.

JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET MONTVALE, MAY 5

For the Junior-Senior banquet, which will be held at the Montvale Springs Hotel on May 5, two new committees have been chosen. The decoration committee consists of the following members: Dorothy Kellar, Dorothy Bassel, Lucille Richardson, Wilhelmina Gruchy, Harold Baer, Edwin Buchanan, Alice Renegar.

The invitation committee consists of Grace Stevenson and Donald Benn.

About two hundred Juniors and Seniors plan to attend the banquet. Bus conveyance will be furnished. Carol Cushman says that the program is going to be "so unusual."

GLEE CLUB SINGS AT MADISONVILLE

Richard City Will Be Last Trip of Season.

April 26— The Maryville Glee Singers returned from their third trip of the present year. This spring marks the eleventh annual tour of the Glee Singers, and the third engagement was filled last night at Madisonville, Tenn. There the program was enthusiastically received by a crowd of one hundred and fifty in the Madisonville high school auditorium. The program was as follows:

Morning
Song of the Volga Boatmen
Goin' to Shout
My Lord, What a Mornin'
My Little Banjo
Negro Impersonations - - Ross
Riff Song
One Flower and One Alone
Readings - - - - Briggs
Danse Macare
Song of the Vagabonds
Musical Saw - - - Buchanan
Lord and Father, I Call on Thee
The Lost Chord
Alma Mater

The men's chorus probably did their best in the "Song of the Vagabonds", which was especially well received. Ernest Ross' negro impersonations and Don Briggs' readings seemed to hit the right spot, and Buchanan handled his saw in his usual capable manner.

Their next trip will be to Richard City this Tuesday, April 29. A spring concert will be presented at Maryville early in May, and the Singers will close the season with a banquet about May 15th.

"Tell me, Willie, have you any other sisters?"

"Huh, you don't need any others. She's made up her mind to marry you."

MAY DAY FESTIVAL, THURSDAY NATIONS PAY TRIBUTE TO QUEEN

Music, Dancing, Pantomime Feature of Unique Program.

Y. W. HAS BOOTH

College Orchestra, Women's Glee Club and Trio Furnish Music.

Thursday the annual May Day fete will be held in the College Woods, provided that it does not rain. The committee members, consisting of Allan Foreman, Marion McMurray, Roberta Hickman, Ruth Person, Georga Burke, Olive Clopton and Kemp Davis—have been doing some hard work, and they in turn look to Helen Crowder who plans and plans to make this a bigger and better May Day celebration. The Misses Meiselwitz are willing helpers, coming forward with timely and helpful suggestions concerning the costumes, (which by the way, will be striking features of this unique program). Maryville's expression department very generously consented to lend costumes; Miss Frances Henry and Miss Butcher are assisting with the music. Eighty college students are on the program, and this year, they are not all women since several men—especially those possessing musical ability—take part in the celebration.

The program consists principally of music, dancing and pantomime. Music will be furnished by the Women's Glee Club, the College Trio, and the College Orchestra. Mrs. Queener's advanced gym class will give the dances. The representatives of the nations, Holland, Hungary, America, Scotland, Persia, England, and fairyland, dressed in native costume and rendering characteristic dances, will pay tribute to the lovely Queen of May, Elizabeth Myers. The entire program will of course be in keeping with the significance of the occasion. Hayden Laster, as Father Time, will banish Winter from the throne and welcome Spring. Girls will represent sunbeams, birds, flowers, sprites and fairies.

An attractively decorated booth will be erected near the scene of festivity. Bring your pennies along to secure good eats and refreshing drinks.* The proceeds go to Y. W. C. A.

EXPRESSION GRADS PRESENTED TONIGHT

Bowers, Taylor, Hall, Dillow The Evening's Readers.

The Expression Department will present Misses Hazel Bowers, Patsy Hall, Faith Taylor, and Lois Dillow in a graduate recital, Monday evening, April 28th.

Miss Dillow will read "Happiness" by Hartley Manners. This play is a story of rich people in search of real happiness, which they discover cannot be bought with their wealth.

"When the Whirlwind Blows", a tragedy by Essex Dane, will be read by Patsy Hall. This is a highly imaginative selection which portrays the conflict between aristocracy and peasantry or intelligence vs. physical force. The setting might possibly be in Russia.

"Fourteen", a comedy in one act, will be presented by Miss Faith Taylor. This is a delightful tale of an ambitious mother's desire for the marriage of her daughter to a wealthy man.

Miss Hazel Bowers will read "Miss Civilization" by Richard Harding Davis. This is a one-act play which tells of the bravery of a young girl who succeeds in holding three dangerous bandits in her home until the police come to arrest them.

Since all of these graduates have had much experience in dramatics on the Hill, this recital should be one of the best of the year.

CAST SELECTED FOR SENIOR PLAY "SUN-UP"

As perhaps many of you already know, the Seniors will give "Sun Up" by Lula Vollmer. This drama is a story of typical western North Carolina mountain folks as they were at the time of the World War.

Those who heard Miss Irene Bewley read this play last year will enjoy seeing it actually per formed. Those who know nothing about it have a great treat in store.

The Senior class possesses such a large number of talented actors and actresses that it was necessary to compete for some of the roles. Finally, after careful consideration and much deliberation, the following cast was selected:

Widow Cagle - -	Gladys Graham
Pap Todd - - -	Jesse Peirce
Emmy - - -	Margaret Haynie
Bud - - -	Stanley McCool
Sheriff Weeks -	Hayden Laster
Rufe Cagle - -	Frank Baker
Preacher - - - -	Ed Sprouse
The Stranger - -	Edwin Osborne
Bob - - - -	Ernest Ross

There are 1,800 publications in the U. S. devoted to business and trade interests.

Amendment Presented To Change Echo Regulations

The Highland Echo faction of the Joint Committee on Selection presents the following amendment to the present regulations for the consideration of the faculty and student body. The amendment will be presented to the students by the student council this week. The staff editors of the Echo, the faculty committee on publications, and the representatives from the student council met last week and agreed that the staff needed another junior member. The Echo staff feels that two additional freshmen would facilitate matters in handling the news and in selecting the cubs for the following year.

The proposed amendment is as follows:

Amendment 3. To substitute the following for Article 1, Section II: The editorial staff is to consist of four Staff Editors, of Junior or Senior classification; of three Associate Editors, Juniors; of six cubs, Sophomores; and twelve Apprentices, Freshmen.

This amendment will become effective when approved by the student body and the faculty.

"In spring a young man's fancy turns slightly."

"How do you spell financially?"
"FINANCIALLY and there are two r's in embarrassed."

HELPFUL HIKE HINTS—By Julia Terry

The famous spring mountain hike is but a little over a week off and for the benefit of those who did not participate or compete in the fall mountain hike or even for those survivals who did, a few helpful hike hints would be of value to perhaps every student and chaperon on the Hill.

Moonshining groups should be especially careful in selecting a disinterested chaperon, that is, disinterested from the moonshining standpoint, but very interested in the natural beauty of the mountains. It might be well to suggest here that the nightwatchman would be the ideal chaperon for a group of girls. He would be intently occupied in discovering unsuspecting moonshiners. However, before leaving the referee to pursue the haunts of nature, be certain that he is left with sufficient food so that he will not be forced to rely on the natural resources of the wild surroundings. Also make sure that he does not have any field glasses, for he may receive some startling optical illusions or perhaps allusions. Also supply him with a deck of Rook cards so that he can indulge in a game of solitaire with himself if he tires of nature, its beauties and its beasts. Each chaperon will be supplied with a campus bench. New folding ones have been purchased for this purpose by the committee in charge.

During the trip to and from Old Baldy all moonshiners should sit in the back part of the busses because of the better riding qualities of the busses when they are compactly loaded. Girls' groups should sit in the front in order to entertain the bus driver and also to get a chance at moonshining which is denied them on the Hill.

Life savers would be a valuable asset to those who anticipate swinging bridges or onions in any shape, form or degree of intensity, although condensed Listerine might serve the purpose as well. Each couple should be supplied with a pair of roller skates so that they can arrive at Maryville in due time in case they miss the bus. However, to avoid such a catastrophe it would be well if all groups have radio sets to receive orders and aid from the broadcasting stations sponsored and under the direction of the chaperons. Television, however, would not be advisable.

In making adequate preparations for the approaching event, films (not those advertised by the Pepsodent Toothpaste Company) should be reserved at the various drug stores and cameras should be carefully dusted and tried out on the unwilling roommates. Reservations for the development of the above revealers of natural beauty in its primitive state should be made with Daddy Webb before the end of the week. It has been suggested that a display should be made of all the pictures that will be taken on the mountain hike but the cost of such an exhibition is not included in the budget, although the Campus Beautiful committee might have charge of it.

It is hoped that these words of wisdom will be helpful to those who intend to go on the hike, and if any wish further information, the advice of any experienced senior will be graciously given and gratefully received.

That a mile race in London between a roller-skater and a motor cyclist was won by the skater.

Shall I See?

As the time draws near when I shall end my career as a college student at Maryville, many attachments begins to struggle for places on my calendar of memories of college days. The friends, the campus, the traditions, all are there, firmly entrenched, and cannot be erased. However, I have ambitious hopes of progress for my Alma Mater, and hope to see memorials of certain improvements when I return some ten, twenty, thirty years hence. Perhaps a notable beginning can be made soon.

I would like to see the power plant in a new location. At present the obnoxious smoke and flying cinders create one of the gravest nuisances on the campus. This is in addition to the disagreeable sight of the plant itself and the huge coal pile which mar the beauty of our campus which we have been trying to improve this year. Of course, they are all necessary evils until a more satisfactory source can be supplied.

I would like to see a women's gymnasium and Y. W. C. A. building. The athletic needs of the women at Maryville have been largely neglected (because of lack of resources to supply them, I am sure) and it is becoming more and more evident that this phase of college life must be met in the near future. The fair co-ed will not always be satisfied to sit complacently and watch. She must participate.

I would like to see a new college auditorium with adequate staging facilities. Only a few, comparatively speaking, realize the enormous task of "building in" a stage for every dramatic performance that we have at Maryville. Setting up the equipment alone requires a full days' labor for a crew of workers. Even then, though our dramatics are above the average in excellence, the staging can never be satisfactory to ourselves.

I would like to see a well kept golf course. Golf is one of the really lasting sports. Only professionals will play baseball or football after college days, but we do not grow too old for golf. It would not be a very difficult matter or expensive proposition to convert part of the campus below the hospital and around behind the chapel into perhaps a nine hole course. A small amount would keep it in shape and the college would be endowed with a great recreation course for the men and women.

These will all come in time. They must. They are needs. It is only for those of us who remain as students and those of us who leave as alumni to work to bring them into realization soon.

—Robertson.

Many Examinations

About this time of year a young man's fancy, and for that matter a young woman's, turns, however lightly, to thoughts. This is to say that examinations are beginning to appear on the horizons of many. Luckily the seniors are spared somewhat this ordeal of answering for a certain number of hours spent in class. This is no doubt done to save embarrassment. We are duly grateful.

There is, nevertheless, a phase of the examinations idea that bothers many of us, and we would like to call the attention of those responsible to what we think unfairness, so that they may give it consideration before planning their final examinations.

Several teachers have adopted the plan of giving final examinations in three or more parts, thereby spreading the work over a slightly longer period of time, and covering the material more thoroughly. This is very good of itself. When one teacher does it no one is particularly overworked, but when as many as three included in a student's schedule give three examinations in each subject, it becomes two or three weeks of examinations. If the examinations were all the students had, it would not be so bad, but other classes must be met during the week before exams.

Examination week we meet only for examination, and hence have more time to devote to review. As it is we have fully half of our exam work to do before the time specified for it.

We realize that we should be ready at any time for any sort of examination, but somehow we are not.

A HYMN TO ANCIENT GREECE

One Christmas morn when bloomed the rose
On Iceland's cheery level peaks,
The tide of war just comes and goes;
There's a tint of red on her cheeks.
A poet and a poet's wife
Were composing beautiful rhymes,
A Russian took a carving knife
And read aloud the New York Times.
The sun sank low into the sea
And a frog sang sweetly above,
Eggs are more than they used to be;
Is there anything sweeter than love?
Across the college campus green
It often comes to me, my lad,
That monkeys are not what they seem
And onions aren't so very bad.
Just then of a sudden I heard,
This sentence refuses to rhyme,
The snort of a beautiful bird,
Unless next is written this line.
Enough, enough, my time is done,
My readers dear will tire I fear,
The game of life is nearly won,
Though it is clear don't come too near,
For I this rhyme have scarce begun.

The Campus Market

By Forrest J. Robertson

Writing letters is an art in which few college students are accomplished, but in which all of us try our hand. It would be interesting just to try to surmise what opinion would be bound in one volume of a collection of all the letters written from Maryville in one month.

But even in such a volume there might not be as much incoherence as repetition. It is usually just one line home and one line everywhere else.

Here is an excerpt from a letter of a school boy of the second century:

"Theon to his father Theon, greetings. If you won't take me with you to Alexandria, I won't write you a letter nor speak to you nor say good-bye to you; and if you go to Alexandria, I won't take your hand nor even greet you again. That is what will happen to you if you won't take me. It was good of you to send me presents on the twelfth, the day you sailed. Send me a lyre, I implore you. If you don't I won't eat, I won't drink; there now!"

And yet we sometimes hear it said that the "modern college man expects great things from his father.

Incidentally, the ancient school boys were quite modern in many respects. In his "Life of Agustus", Suetonias gives us a brief account of a thrilling football game on the campus Martius.

—:—

Campus Martius is not ancient Latin for College Campus.

—:—

Just now there is some question as to the origin of football. Florence is trying to establish its origin from the game of "calcara" or "calcio" played in the fourteenth century. But the British claim it was derived from the gleeful kicking of the heads of conquered Danes along the streets.

Well, I guess we will go to Calderwood for our mountain hike. It is interesting to watch an audience vote on anything like that. Nobody reallly cares where we go. We all want to go somewhere. And a majority of us are in favor of changing it to anywhere.

CHILHOWEANS READY

The 1930 CHILHOWEAN is finished and ready for distribution Tuesday afternoon if the sophomore class, and the East Tennessee Club will pay their assessments. Every other class, club and organization has paid up and the sophomores are the ones who are holding up the distribution of the annual.

For those who have paid their reservation fee, the final payment of two dollars will be due when presenting their receipt for the annual. For those who have made their reservation, it is absolutely necessary that they shall bring the receipt with them when calling for the CHILHOWEAN. A few annuals are left for those who have not as yet made their reservation.

Announcement will be made in chapel as to the exact time of distribution. Let's get behind these sophomores and East Tennessee Club members and persuade them to pay up in order that those who have paid will not be deprived of getting their CHILHOWEANS on time.

MY SWEETHEART

Far off in a mythical country
By the side of a mythical sea,
A beautiful mythical maiden
Sat a-drinking her afternoon tea.
Her fingers were slender and shapely,
On the ends of her arms were her hands.
She had elbows, shoulders, and ankles,
And everything nature demands.
Her eyes were as blue as the bluest
Blue skies that were ever made blue;
Her nose was a mark of pure beauty
Betwixt her two ears where it grew.

The really funny part about the "Sweethearts on Parade" article appearing on another page was our remembrance of Nez Hamrick's sitting on a tree stump, collecting the evidence for her remarks.

THE FINANCIAL WIZARD

Time: Any morning, 8:30
Place: Interurban, between Bronxville and New York.

Enter Stacey, taking seat beside J. H. Taylor, daily commuter.

Stacey: Not saving this seat for anyone, are you?

Taylor: No. Sit down.

Stacey: Certainly is a job getting a seat in these cars after they leave here, isn't it?

Taylor: Yea, hard as getting a seat on the stock exchange.

Stacey: Nobody wants a seat on the exchange anymore. I'd rather have a seat on the L.

Taylor: Why, I thought seats on the exchange were bringing a big price.

Stacey: They are. But the chances are too great for the smart stock men to buy a seat. You see, the initial cost of a seat is relatively small. A matter of some two hundred thousand or so, but the small fellows clean up a lot more. Even a moderately wealthy man can afford to make some investments with the small shops.

Taylor: This last crash must have put a crimp in the style of a lot of brokers all right. Wall street doesn't lok so promising as it did. I can't see putting a lot of hard earned coin into a gamble like that. I've got to have something safe.

Stacey: Oh, I don't know about that. I rather like the uncertainty of the thing. Sort of a sporting proposition, don't you think? There was really no cause for the Street crash. I didn't lose a thing in it myself. Of course the average man would. It takes years of experience in any game to be able to play it perfectly.

Taylor: I suppose so. These bucket shops, though, are hardly what you might call legitimate markets. It seems to me as though it is a poor gamble.

Stacey: Well, not if you really have the inside dope. Of course, I wouldn't think of going in big on it, but a little is safe enough, provided a man has a solid margin to live on. To the average man in the street the stock market is a mystery. To the experienced man, a chance to clean up.

Taylor: You don't say. Now that's interesting. I never knew much about the market myself. Never had time to study it, but as you say, if a fellow was up on it, he could make a little over the six per.

Stacey: Absolutely.

Taylor: I have thought from time to time that I might be induced to invest a little. Could you—I mean would you, by any chance be able to suggest something that would be a good sound investment and still bring in the returns. Something you yourself would buy? Of course, now, if it is against your profession, or anything like that—.

Stacey: Well, you see, to be exact, stocks are not in my line. At the present time I'm connected with the Eureka Clothing Company, tailored clothes for the fastidious man. Positively the best offer on the market today. Now our new spring models show the nobbiest outfits in New York. I have a sample book in my brief case and would be very glad to have you look them over. No obligation to buy, of course.

Taylor: Well, I-er-a- you see, I'm not—I mean I'd like to, but here's where I get off. Good day.

Miss Grace Weller and Miss Gertrude Meiselwitz have been seen recently in the afternoon practicing shooting arrows down by the Big Gym.

They have not stated whether it is in memory of the old Indian custom that they do this, or whether there is another reason.

The unfortunate part of the whole matter is that there is only one bow available—but then they have five arrows, not to speak of a target. The target will, of course, be necessary only for a short while. They may take turns using that one bow—it seems to be a lucky one, for it belonged to Mrs. Queener, and just look what she did with it!

Louise and Nelson say they have discovered what the initials of the L. & N. Railway stand for.

Prof. Griffitts: What are some of the ways a thing must act to be a good fire extinguisher?

Wise Freshman: Inflammable.

M. C. Highlanders Down U. T. Vol. Nine In Revenge Game, 14-12

West And Smith Star In Fast Fielding and Batting.

WOODARD HOME-RUN KING

Much Enthusiasm Is Shown By Large Crowd.

The Highlanders played an excellent revenge game with the University of Tennessee last Saturday. The Vols had beaten the Scotties with the score of 14-15 in a preceding game, but due to heavy hitting of the Highlanders the Tennessee team was forced to bow to a 12-14 decision.

The Maryvillians caught on to the style of pitching used by Curry in the early innings of the game and in the fourth inning had an eleven run lead. In the beginning of the fifth the Vols began hitting and a home run by Cox, the hit-robbing center fielder, brought the University team out of the slump. Stidham pitched the entire game, and although several hits were gleaned, still they were scattered, so that the Highlanders were, with the exception of once, never endangered due to hits.

Woodard and West, the Highland home-run hitters, played true to form by knocking a home run each. It was the third homer for Woodard in a week. These boys will bear watching in the future games.

"Rabbi" Smith, Maryville's speedy right fielder, proved to be the chief feature of the game by stealing from first to home on three pitched balls.

The Highlanders had a comparatively easy time disposing of the Lincoln Memorial baseball team in the two games played last week. The scores were 12-4 and 11-2. The pitching staff for Maryville was indeed very satisfactory—Parks, Stidham, Blazer, and Hurst pitched very effectively.

The main features of the games consisted of the heavy hitting and excellent field work of the Highlanders. Tom West, our swift stepping short stop, gave the stands their first thrill by hitting a three bagger scoring three runs. Woodard, another freshman who is showing promise of becoming big league material has the distinction of hitting a home run in all three of our games last week. "Rabbi" Smith, our elusive veteran, again demonstrated his ability at stealing bases, even the home plate is not safe when "Rabbi" is on base.

Fast fielding and heavy hitting featured both contests with the L. M. U. team. The box score was as follows:

L. M. U.	1st. game	Maryville

Here is a case for some kind of an ologist. An Evanston Ill., burglar robbed a home of $150, but before leaving amused himself by building a house out of crackers on the kitchen floor, surrounding it with a circle of potatoes and enclosing the whole with a wall made of a child's building blocks.

Tennis Team Beats Centre College, 4-2

April 24—Coach Bob Smith and four Maryville netmen returned today from a successful four-day road trip into Kentucky. The Highlanders tied Georgetown 3 to 3, at Georgetown, Ky., Tuesday, and defeated Centre 4 to 2 at Danville, Wednesday. Despite bad wind and cold weather both matches were fast and interesting.

Against Georgetown, Strain and Swaim won their singles matches and then teamed to win one doubles. The other two singles, and one doubles went to Georgetown.

King, Buchanan, and Swaim were victorious in the singles against Centre, while Strain and Swaim again won their doubles encounter. Centre won one singles and one doubles.

The team was also to have played the University of Kentucky but this match was cancelled. The trip was enjoyed greatly by the men. They left Maryville Monday morning arriving at Danville Monday night, going on Tuesday to Georgetown to play, and returning to Danville Wednesday morning to meet Centre. The greater part of Wednesday morning was spent sightseeing in Kentucky. Complete results:

Maryville—3	Georgetown—3
Strain beat Wood, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.
Jones beat Buchanan, 10-8, 6-4.
Garth beat King, 1-6, 6-1, 6-4.
Swaim beat McCracken, 6-4, 6-3.
Jones and Garth beat King and Buchanan, 6-1, 6-4.
Strain and Swaim beat Wood and McCracken, 9-7, 6-2.
Maryville—4	Centre—2
Chambers beat Strain, 6-2, 6-2.
King beat Rodman, 6-2, 6-1.
Buchanan beat Faurest 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.
Swaim beat Clark, 6-1, 6-3.
Strain and Swaim beat Helin and Chambers 6-2, 7-5.
Rodman and Forest beat King and Buchanan, 3-6, 8-6, 6-3.

Knoxville Y Team Downs M. C., 46-25

Maryville's swimming team was defeated by Knoxville Y's team in the college pool last Thursday evening by a score of 46 to 25. Chaffin starred for Knoxville by running up a score of 13 points. Maryville had no high scorer but Buchanan, Cudney and Shields earned their letters. The diving was especially interesting as one of Knoxville's divers was a nine year old boy named Elmore, who handled himself well and will develop into a good swimmer. The Y's team also had a 15 year old free style swimmer who pushed French closely in the fifty yard swim. Maryville has a return meet with Knoxville next Thursday, May 1, in their new pool, and a meet with Tusculum College at Greeneville on Saturday, May 3. The events on Thursday went as follows:

200 Yard Relay—won by Knoxville. Time 2 min. 6.2 sec.

200 Yard Free-style—Milligan (K), first; Holt (K) second; Edris (M) third. Time 2 min. 49.8 sec.

50 Yard Free-Style—Chaffin (K) first; Martin (M) second; French (M) third. Time 27.2 sec.

Dives—Buchanan (M) first; Massey (K) second; Edris (M) third.

100 Yard Free-Style—Chaffin (K) first; French (M) second; Toms (K) third. Time: 1 min. 4.7 sec.

100 Yard Breast Stroke—Cudney (M) first; Milligan (K) second; Holt (K) third. Time: 1 min. 39.6 sec.

100 Yard Back Stroke—Gammon (K) first; Chaffin (K) second; Fitzgerald (M) third. Time 1 min. 17.4 sec.

425 Yard Free-Style: Shields (M) first; Milligan (K) second; Holt, (K) third. Time 7 min. 3.2 sec.

In swimming the score is counted as follows: first, five; second, three; and third one point. This holds for all events except the relay which counts eight points for the winner. Fouls are called for getting out of the lane, for hitting another swimmer, or for false starts as in the relay where a man must wait until tapped by the starter before he can plunge in.

The team should be lauded for the showing that they made as the facilities for swimming here are not of the best.

TRACK

April 26—Maryville walked off to a 76-41 victory over the Chattanooga cinder path artists on the home track today.

Strong upheld the scoring for the visitors, chalking up one first and three seconds, while Carper tied his score of 14 points for The Highlanders. Taggart and Felknor followed close in the race for points.

Woodard broke a college record when he hurled the javelin for 161 feet 4 inches. The 440 yard dash was the prettiest of the afternoon, Captain Taggart of Maryville keeping his string of victories unbroken only by a few inches.

On Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock the Freshmen won the women's indoor baseball championship by defeating the Sophomores 19-13.

The first game in the championship was played between the freshmen and sophomores, with the freshmen winning. The sophomores then played the junior-senior team and beat them by two runs. Then the freshmen and the sophs met in the final game.

Both teams were off their games, making many errors. The sophomores, however, were handicapped since they had only seven players. Hamrick and Purviance formed the battery for the freshmen, with Foster and Gamble holding down the posts for the sophomores.

FLOWERS PLANTED BY TRIANGLE CLUB

"Campus Beautiful" Movement Aided By This Work.

The Triangle Club is placing a flower bed in front of Thaw Hall; as far as that club is concerned, the campaign for a better campus has not ended. They are not only raising the money for purchasing the plants, but are digging the plot and planting the flowers with their own hands at the expense of their own time and labor.

Al Foreman, president of the club, and his committee consisting of George Osborne, Marjorie Nelson, William Cudney have great hopes of making this plot one of the most beautiful spots on the campus. "We can't do all we'd like to this year," Al remarked wistfully. "We want to plant a shrub or evergreen at each corner of the triangular plot, and then too, we'd like to write the names of the three states in flowers or plants along the three edges of the plot." The flower bed, being in shape of a triangle, will fit nicely into the fork made by the paths from Thaw Hall to the book room and to Pearsons.

The club is evidently supporting this movement wholeheartedly. On Wednesday the first actual work was accomplished. That morning at six o'clock fifteen men were out digging —sleepily, it is true, but as earnestly as is to be expected at that time of day. About ten or fifteen minutes earlier, the halls of Carnegie had been filled with muffled calls and a strange, regular knocking. It was Al Foreman and his partners pleading with the dozing club members who had promised to work. And most of them kept their promise.

The burden of caring for the plot will not fall to the college. It will be borne as a standing duty by each year's Triangle Club.

KENTUCKY CLUB

The pirate crew of Kentuckians assembled in front of Pearsons last Monday afternoon was quite motley. From what we could see, bandana handkerchiefs and overalls are the prevailing mode for pirates this season.

The college woods served as the high seas. There the pirates were entertained by an impromptu program. Al Duff preached a pirate sermon. His resemblance to Captain Blood was striking. Miss Weller had charge of the games, in which the entire company joined.

The pirate motif was carried out even in the refreshments. They consisted of cannon, bullets, silver bars, jewels, and rum. When the time came to eat thereof, it was found that the most piratical one of them all had stolen the refreshments. He had, however, dropped his map. Diligent searching was rewarded by the finding of the treasure. It was duly distributed and consumed.

PRE-MED CLUB

Wednesday, April 16—The Pre-Med Club met this evening in the Y. W. C. A. lecture room.

Willard Cudney read a magazine article, "A Merchants Looks at Medicine", which dealt with a plan for standardizing the qualities and prices of medical services.

Bob West's ten-minute talk on "Mineral Metabolism" was followed by an interesting discussion.

SEEKING A VOCATION

ately, and then take time to prepare yourself for your work. Short cuts as a rule are dangerous.

College students who expect to pursue advanced courses in the university should attain a reading knowledge of German and French while they are in college. Such knowledge is absolutely necessary for the doctor's degree in the graduate schools and in the highest grade medical schools. Students should know this in advance and act accordingly. It is much cheaper and easier to learn French and German while in college than to learn these languages later in the university under the stress of graduate study.

During the World War about two million men were given the Alpha Army Test. In recent years much has been made of the data from the examination of the enlisted men "Men were classified according to professed occupation, and the average intelligence scores of these groups were computed." Fryer corrected the adaptation of the original records. His classification of Occupational Intelligence Standards is as follows:

"A" Intelligence—Engineer
Clergyman, Accountant.
"B" Intelligence—Physician, teacher, chemist, dentist.
"C plus" Intelligence—Stenographer, druggist, electrician, postal clerk, photographer, vaudeville actor, blacksmith, farmer, plumber, painter, miner, station agent, teamster.
"C minus" Intelligence—Barber, policeman, chauffeur, mason, shoe maker, sailor, cook, textile worker.
"D" Intelligence—Fisherman.

The data given above does not afford clues for very specific vocational guidances. However, it seems safe to advise an individual with a low intelligence against entering occupations where most of the members of his profession will rate above him.

"On the other hand," Hollingworth says, "it must be noted that almost any occupation provides place for a great range of ability in actual life. Law and medicine, for example, as well as plumbing and cooking, can make use of both dullards and people of genius. Rather dull ministers are probably better suited to dull congregations than brighter ones would be. The essential requirement is that, within any field, the dullard undertakes only the tasks that dullards can do acceptably.

HAROLD LLOYD AT PALACE MONDAY AND TUESDAY

Maryville theatre-goers will be given a real treat Monday and Tuesday of this week since the local manager of the Palace has secured "Welcome Danger", an all-talking production featuring the world famous laugh produced—Harold Lloyd.

Harold Lloyd, always a favorite at Maryville, is at his best in "Welcome Danger". Movie critics are unanimous in their praise of this latest comedy and recommend it highly in the "Movie List" of several magazines as containing many laughs and fun for everyone. If you want to forget your blues and get plenty of thrills and laughs, do not forget Harold Lloyd in "Welcome Danger" at the Palace Monday and Tuesday.

Delaware was the first state to ratify the Constitution of the United States, on Dec. 7, 1787.

MOCK TRIAL

April 26—The Alpha Sigma Hall will be the scene of the most dramatic court procedure when the regular annual court of the Law Club of Maryville College convenes next Wednesday night at 6:45 o'clock to begin the world famous "Weaver Case" in which William Weaver is charged with grand arson. Judge Sam Hatcher, president of the Law Club will preside.

William Weaver, a freshman, is charged with having attempted to burn Memorial Hall, one of the dormitories for young women at Maryville College, on the night of March 30th. He is a member of the Law Club and therefore comes under the jurisdiction of the Law Club court. Sheriff Sherrill Hatcher arrested the young man in question about sunset, April 1, on Pistol Creek Bridge, where he appeared to be contemplating suicide by plunging into the swift waters below. At the time he is said to have confessed to Sheriff Hatcher that this was his intentions. Since then he has denied the story and says that he was only trying to play an April fool on the sheriff.

Weaver is represented by two of the ablest attorneys in the Law Club, J. Stuart James and William R. Graham. Defense council firmly maintain that the charge is only an outrageous attempt to "frame" their client.

The Law Club is represented by Forrest I. Robertson popularly known as the "Cicero of the Chilhowees", and Roy Taylor, the "Modern Henry Clay". The prosecution claims to have evidence "as clear as day' pointing to the incendiary motives of the defendent Weaver.

The court room has just recently been remodeled to accommodate the large crowd of voters who will, no doubt, be present to hear the trial and to see judge Hatcher again just before the Spring election. Special arrangements are being made to accommodate reporters for college newspapers including The Highland Echo. This is expected by many to be the most thrilling court scene ever put on by the Law Club of Maryville College.

Y. M. C. A.

April 23—Some thirty enthusiastic Y. M. C. A. members were entertained by the University of Tennessee Y. M. C. A. at Knoxville last night. The Maryville delegation chartered a bus for the trip.

The two groups had supper together at the Second Presbyterian Church in Knoxville, after which a lively program was presented by Maryvillians. Glenn Woodlee, president of the Knoxville organization, and Stuart James, Maryville "Y" president, delivered short addresses Porter French managed to entice some sweet strains from his mandolin, Topalian sang "Whoopee' (minus accompaniment), the "Phrantic Four" became three and sang several peppy numbers with Miss Hudson as pianist. Waters and Somers put on a comedy act which was enjoyed immensely by everybody, and Hayden Laster concluded the program with an excellent reading.

This exchange of fellowship with the Knoxville group has come to be a regular, looked-for event by Maryville men, and occupies a real place in "Y" activities.

"I had a date with a real gold digger last night."

"And I suppose you got in at eleven o'clock sharp."

SUNDAY NIGHT ON THE CAMPUS

Various students of the College have at various times given very authentic descriptions of the campus as viewed on various occasions. But they have neglected to give the one description that appeals more to me than all others, that being Sunday night on our Maryville Campus.

As the last lingering lights of twilight fade into obscurity one can hear the sweet music of the Chapel bell calling the students to an hour of worship together. It has always been very fascinating to me to watch the individual students as they come from the various parts of the campus. One can see them coming from all sides and all angles but all bent on the same destination. Now two, now four, still others coming alone but all with the same happy look of youth. Now they have met at the chapel forming a great army of Christian soldiers of Jesus Christ. They are coming to appeal to God for strength in order to combat the forces of evil.

A pastime that appeals to me more than any moving picture and one that I always take advantage of whenever the opportunity avails itself, is that of watching the students as they come to the worship. The very expressions of their faces reveals to me the unmistakable reality of God. How can anyone look into such bright and happy faces and not see the glory of the Master shine forth like a thousand powerful beacons that swallow the shadows of night.

All this is without blemish but on entering the chapel each Sunday night one will see that the congregation has a habit of sitting away from the speaker. Of course this is not a serious blunder but great success is achieved by cooperation and to sit nearer the speaker is to cooperate with him. I cannot begin to express my appreciation for the work rendered to us by Dr. Stevenson but I can by little courtesies in chapel repay him in part for his services. His lessons are of great educational value therefore we should cooperate with him in all ways. I cannot get up before you in chapel to make this proposal therefore I take this means of appealing to you, "Won't you please come with me to sit in the front seats and if there are to be any seats vacant let them be in the very back." There are many other little courtesies that we can do therefore let us strive to do the proper thing at all occasions.

Aftre the hour of worship one can see the same groups leaving in the same manner of their coming. Then comes the time of parting and after some form of leave taking they go their various ways thus bringing to a close a perfect day.

Ministerial Association

April 23—The regular meeting of the Association was held in Athenian Hall tonight. "Tiny" Waters gave us a very interesting talk on "The Qualifications of a Pastor's Wife". Next Wednesday night the annual banquet takes place. Let us support the association in this banquet. It promises to be a splendid one.

Recently a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Glascock of Brookville, Indiana. Mrs. Glascock who was Miss Edna Baither before her marriage left Maryville in her Junior year to be married. She will be remembered by those who knew her as a cheerful, efficient worker who said little and did much.

ETIQUETTE

I. Table Etiquette—
Seating at table—seated and arise from left. Position of silverware—in order of use, Use fork whenever possible. Bread or biscuits are never cut. Disposal of parcels—chair, lap orfloor—not on table.

II. Party Etiquette—
Invitation—answered in kind—telephone, visiting card, written or printed form. Punctuality a sign of good breeding. Take part in entertainment as planned whether it appeals to you or not. Meal invitations—may stay from 1-2 hour to 45 minutes unless invited to spend the afternoon. At a meal no course is ever refused—at least a small portion is eaten.

III. Introductions—
"Let me present", "May I present" or "May I introduce" is proper. Man introduced to woman—most important person named last.

IV. Promenade Etiquette—
Man always walks at left of girl. Street car or autoobile—woman gets in first and out last. Man walking with two women—on side of one he knows least. Woman expected to recognize man first. Man expected to lift hat unless neuralgic, shell shocked, or afraid of catching cold. Man offers arm at crossings, dark streets, stairways, or obstructions. Girls usually able to walk without assistance. Man carries parcels but nothing essentially feminine.

V. Conventional Expressions—
"Excuse me"—used before a premeditated act—always graciously answered. "I am sorry"—after an unpremeditated act. "Thank you"—needs no response.

FROM MRS. McMURRAY'S LECTURES

Every girl should have a lot of boy friends; but girls, treat a boy like an intelligent being, not like a sweetheart.

It used to be that the man took the powder, put it in the gun, went out and got the deer. But now the dear takes the powder, puts it on her face and goes out and gets the man.

"Eppie" Kitts said the other day that although the University of Maine has its "Stein Song", we of Maryville who dine at Pearsons have our "Line Song".

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Virginia Ruth Sting to Mr. Harley Thomas. Virginia graduated last June. She is to be remembered for her willingness to tackle hard jobs and especially for her talent as a harpist. The marriage will take place late this summer.

Spring Mountain Hike to Calderwood Wednesday. Holiday Is Declared

TRAIN LEAVES AT 7 A.M. FOR ANNUAL FROLIC

Student Groups, Accompanied By Chaperones, Will See Dam Site.

ABOUT 300 GOING

Place Abounds In Natural Beauty; Florid Growth Of Interest.

On Wednesday, May 7, the college takes its annual Spring Mountain Hike, going to Calderwood, about thirty miles from here. The price of a ticket is one dollar and ten cents, round-trip. The men provide transportation, and the women furnish the lunch.

The special attraction at Calderwood is the dam, which has just recently been opened. Other features of interest are the luxuriant growth of all sorts of plants; the wonderful scenic beauty of the mountains, and the fresh, pure air that will tinge the appetite to ravenish hunger.

Those who do not go along will have the day off, of course, but they will miss one of the real treats of their college days.

MINISTERIALS 'SET TO' IN BIG BANQUET

With Song and Merry-Making, Preachers Celebrate.

Last Wednesday evening, at the annual banquet of the Ministerial Association, sixty-five people dined, and listened, and laughed. With Paul Eris as toastmaster, with Miss Frances Henry as the guest of honor, with the cheering presence of the "prospective preachers' wives", and with a well-varied program of toasts, music, and readings, the "preachers" banquet was a big success.

The banquet proceeded as any banquet would, until the last course was nearly finished. Then came the outstanding feature of the evening. The formality of the banquet was suddenly broken by an unexpected burst of song from the speakers' table. These words were set to the tune of "The Farmer in The Dell":

"The worst is yet to come,
The worst is yet to come,
Wait for the speeches, boys,
The worst is yet to come."

—and in a far corner of the room a deep "A-a-a-men" was pronounced in true Methodist style. Volley after volley of song issued from the speakers' table in rapid succession, and the verses were caught up by the rest of the tables. Several campus celebrities were welcomed in this way: Russell Gilmore, Hayden Lasater, and Tom Cooper. They even persuaded Tom to get up and bow, so that between glorified rice and making bows he was probably as "tired as a turtle' when his duties were done. Miss Henry and Ed DeHaven, a ministerial graduate, were lauded similarly.

Then the butlers, John Taggart an Carl Storey, became the unfortunate objects of the whim of the singers. John made no visible attempt to keep his face straight. "I was already laughing anyway, before they started to talk about us, so I couldn't help but keep on laughing", he confessed later. Carl, however, tried to hold out. For a few moments, he stood as resolute as a statue. With sixty-five people laughing at him, however, he had to give way at length and laugh with them.

As a final flurry, the "preachers" summoned and thanked Miss Meisselwitz, the chief cook, with another

PROF. QUEENER SEES SEASON AS SUCCESS

Debate Coach Satisfied With Showing of Forensics.

Squad Wins 69.2 of the decision debates.
Girls win 87.5 of their schedule
Boys win 61.1 of their schedule

The first debate was a women's triagular with Teachers College, and Carson-Newman, with both teams away from home. Miss Viola Pettit and Miss Elizabeth Cannon went to Teachers College and debated Carson-Newman. They won 3 to 0. At Carson-Newman Miss Alice Renegar and Miss Ruby Lee Johnson lost to Teachers College by a 3 to 2 vote.

The second debate was a triangular for men one team traveling. King, Tusculum, and Maryville composed the triangle. Richard Strain and Jesse James went to Tusculum and won a critic judge decision. At home Wright Frost and Roy Taylor won from King College, by a critic judge decision.

A single debate with Chattanooga was next. This year it was held at Maryville. Forrest Robertson and William Graham won a 2 to 1 decision.

The next was a triangular for women, again both teams traveling the schools being Tusculum and Milligan. Viola Pettit and Mary Lovette won from Milligan at Tuschant, and then settled down to the regular program. Miss Adkins startculum 5 to 0. Alice Renegar and Ruby Lee Johnson won from Tusculum at Milligan 4 to 1.

In a dual debate with Teachers College the audiences acted as judge. At Teachers College Wright Frost and Jesse James lost 21 to 14. At home Richard Strain and Robert West won 83 to 28.

To wind up the local season for the varsity a double header was scheduled with Berea. The men met in a dual debate in the afternoon, three men teams, with a critic judge at each school. Frost, James, and Taylor at home and Robertson, Graham and Strain at Berea. Both teams won. The women debated in the evening with three judges, at home, Alice Renegar and Ruby Lee Johnson and at Berea Viola Pettit and Mary Lovette, both teams won 3 to 0.

Thus the varsity home season ended with the Maryville debaters having won 11 out of 13 decision debates.

JUNIORS-SENIORS EMBARK ON POLAR EXPEDITION TONIGHT

Montvale Springs Is Scene of Frigid Affair. Juniors Play Host.

Tonight some two hundred juniors and seniors leave College Hill in busses for Montvale Springs Hotel where the annual junior-senior banquet will be held. The juniors have been putting their heads together in an effort to think up something that will interest by reason of its very uniqueness, instead of relying upon the usual idea of carrying out the color scheme in decorations and food. They have succeeded. Once the guests arrive at the hotel, they embark upon a polar expedition. Russell Gilmore is in command, and has been warned that the class will be keeping an eye upon him lest he try some black magic that might prove disastrous to an otherwise successful journey.

The company evidently expects to have a long exhausting trip since they are taking a large supply of food. The menu, by the way, contains such odd, strange and curious things as starter, good old bird, smash ups, side slips, barrel rolls, aeronautic salad, Ace's Ice, Cadet's cake, plane accessories and the Last Drop. It will be a jolly crew judging from this snappy program that has been prepared:

WRITER'S WORKSHOP ELECTS NEW MEMBERS

The Writer's Workshop met Wednesday and voted on thirteen new members to be taken in at our next meeting. The following people were chosen: Miss Kellar, Julia Terry, Katherine Hodges, Murl Beebe, Rachel Grubbs, Anne Smartt, Frances Stroup, Billy Crawford, Joe Hina, Tom Cash, Donald Benn, Yervant Topalian, Edwin Shelley.

MRS. STEVENSON ABLE TO WALK ABOUT HOUSE

The friends of Mrs. Stevenson will be glad to learn that she has been improving very rapidly. She can now go unaided up and down steps. She hopes soon to be able to get in the car and be freed from her long perid of confinement. Perhaps the most important factor in her recovery has been her habitual cheerfulness.

Mrs. West left last Friday to visit her daughter, Mrs. Withers, in Abingdon, Virginia.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF WILL BE ELECTED

Next Year's Staff of Highland Echo Announced.

May 5—Tomorrow evening the election of next year's Editor-in-Chief will be held in the Highland Echo office. The head of the paper will be chosen from the staff editors who were picked by a committee of faculty representatives and student council members last week. The four to be selected for this rank are, William Graham, senior, Edwin Buchanan, senior, Hessie Keeton, senior, and Julia Terry, junior. The remaining three will be staff editors. From the sophomore cubs of this year, the three to attain junior associate rank were Kathryn Hodges, Lucy Voorhees, and Robert West.

Of the ten freshmen on the staff this year, six were promoted to the rank of Sophomore Cub. They are: Nez Hamrick, Roberta Robison, Aubrey Bradshaw, Wynn Barr, Willard Cudney, Gordon Benn.

The committee on selection announces that the system by which the staff is picked is working far better than was even hoped for when the system was started last year. As difficulties arise or changes seem advisable the student body and faculty are told of them and are given a chance to make changes.

Y. W. HOLDS GARDEN PARTY FRIDAY NIGHT

Plenty to Eat and a Good Time For Thirty-five Cents.

Instead of the annual banquet, the Y. W. this year will hold a garden party Friday, May 9 at 5:00 on Baldwin lawn. The very unusual and entertaining program that has been planned, accompanied with food for which there is no worthy qualitative adjective will be the main features of the garden party, which costs only thirty-five cents to attend. Just think of eating by the light of the moon (if it rises in time) and listening to the whispering of the cedars which crown the Hilltop. An additional incentive is the fact that there will be waiters instead of waitresses.

As an appetizer, just listen to this: iced fruit soup with cheese wafers, a plate salad consisting of potatoes, eggs, radishes, sliced tomatoes, and five kinds of sandwiches, and a delicious dessert! There's more, too.

Miss Gamble will have charge of the ceremonies and that in itself is worth at least fifty cents. Speeches will be given by both retiring and incoming presidents of the Association, a talk on Blue Rigde, a reading by Lavinia Jones, songs by Jane Duke and Naomi Willingham, and music by the orchestra.

All out for the Y. W. Garden Party, the big social event of the year.

MISS ELIZABETH MYERS OCCUPIES ROYAL THRONE

Attendants Make Colorful Setting For the Coronation Ceremony.

DANCES ARE GRACEFUL

King Is Also In Evidence As Throngs Pay Homage To Their Queen.

Everyone was pleasantly surprised that the weatherman granted us a beautiful Easter Sunday. However, as May the first approached, many shook their heads wisely and declared that the festivities would probably be held in the Alumni gymnasium, for the floods would surely descend. Again the weatherman tricked us! A better day than May the first could not have been desired.

The College Woods, a mass of raw, yellow greens, was a fitting setting for the crowning of the May Queen. The first number on the program was a struggle of Spring and Winter, in which old King Winter, arrayed in his long white robes, was driven off the scene by the Spirits of Spring, represented by Virginia Crider and her associates.

When the Spirits of Spring had well awakened all nature, there came the Queen's procession. First appeared the maid of honor. Following her were the little flower girls, Lucia Moore and Barbara Elmore casting flowers in the path of the Queen. Then came the King, Mr. Frank Baker, and the Queen, Miss Elizabeth Myers wearing a handsome white satin gown and carrying a magnificent corsage of yellow rosebuds and fern.

Immediately following the Queen were her attendants. First came Pansy Chandler and Leland Gilmore, Juniors; Frances Mingea, the sophomore representative, escorted by Ralph Cherry. The freshman attendant, Mary Ellen Anderson, escorted by Robert Crothers, looked very stunning.

When the crown had been placed on the Queen by King Baker, seven nations paid tribute to her majesty.

The Scotch were the first to entertain. Graceful lassies gave the popular Highland Fling. English milkmaids and farmers, in gingham dresses and overalls, danced a prim little folk number. Persia followed England. Her representatives were clad in native costumes of many colors and gave a very effective oriental dance as they sang.

Then the gypsies of Hungary strolled on the scene. The next tribute was America's Virginia Reel; and last was the contribution of Fairyland, the May Pole Dance.

Town people who have been accustomed to attend May Day programs on the Hill, declare that "The Crowning of the Spirits", arranged by Helen Crowder, is one of the best programs which they have seen.

MOTHER'S DAY AT 'HOUSE IN WOODS'

Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson Invite Women There Sunday.

May 11 is Mother's Day. Each year the Y. W. C. A. has held a Mother's Day service on the lawn of the House in the Woods. These services, dedicated to the women's mothers, have been very beautiful and inspiring.

This year Dr. Stevenson has again invited the Y. W. C. A. to hold the Mothers' Day meeting at the House in the Woods. The program chairman Viola Pettit has been working hard and the service will be a beautiful one. Eleanor Kuhlman is in charge of the special music. There will be appropriate readings and songs and perhaps a short talk. To make everything complete, the Y. W. mother, Grandmother Bassett, will be there for the meeting.

A DATE—OR NOT A DATE

(Jane Hatmaker)

Of course there are permanent moonshiners who just take the Mountain Hike as one of those God-sent gifts to him who is in love. Such species merely roam about the campus looking moon-eyed and have a nervous air when approached even slightly upon the subject. Far be it from the Highland Echo to give examples of this type. We believe they are easly recognized.

But then—there's the fella over at Carnegie (and out in town, too) who speaks from the depths of his heart to his room-mate, thus, "Hey, campaigning after this class? I ast you Nothing! Forsooth, and I shall return with a promise of a fair maid. Fall to!" And a dash in the general direction of Science begins.

An hour later—Science Hall—

Thoughtful: "Louise, want the chance of a life-time? Why, listen here, Sister, I'm offering to take you on the Mountain Hike! Think Bozo, got a gal for the Mountain Promenade?"

"Not yet, Thoughtful. I figured as how I'd wait till today. Boy, how I hate to aproach it."

"What's wrong with doing a little of it——."

Louise: "No thank you." (smiles and retreats).

Bozo: "Ah! Me proud beauty, here you are at last. Mayhap you will accept the honor of being my fair damsel on the Mountain Hike? What say ye?"

Proud Beauty: "Dated up, long ago, Big Boy!"

And many more attempts are made——. Heart-broken, the men return to their dingy rooms. Silence reigns, but is soon broken by a war whoop. "Forsooth, Bozo, and Knoxville sounds better to me, anyway. There's such a difference in women today. Alas!"

Just An Annual Custom

One of the most delightful treats we have seen in the way of annuals has been circulated upon the campus in the past week. We wish to take this opportunity of congratulating the editor and business manager on such an outstanding contribution to the life of the college. The annual is a thing of beauty, and no doubt will be a joy forever.

In thumbing through the Senior Section, we notice that some have been a bit lazy in digging up honors. A few have put down none at all, many have only three or four, and only a scant dozen or so have really tried to make the editor's problem a sinecure. Many of the seniors have failed to enter into the spirit of the thing. Surely there can be no more amusing pastime than to sit for hours thinking up various occupations and diversions to which you can refer in future years, and live again the good old college days.

For the seniors this year it is too late to make amends, but to the classes to come we beg of you to see that the thing is done with credit. If need be, inaugurate a contest to see who can get the longest list. You would be surprised at the results. It might even be necessary to eliminate those photographs that are not accompanied by at least a page of attainments.

This of course should be checked with the various class and club officials to see that no one keeps anything from you. For the benefit of some of the very busy members of the senior class it might be necesary to inaugurate a system of cuts, whereby the student might be allowed five cuts, as long as it did not bring his total below about thirty.

At any rate let's try to be good sports about it. It is only when we enter into the fun of the thing that we get any fun out of it.

—O—

A Reminder

This is not an editorial on the subject, but we were told that the reason for eliminatng the Life Work Conference was that the money could better be used for something else. Among the uses cited was to bring chapel speakers for the general edification of the student body, from time to time.

Even counting last Friday's offering, we cannot but feel that the time is growing short for the fullfillment of the promise. It would mean two a week for the next three weeks, we imagine.

—O—

BUSINESS MANAGER TO BE ELECTED SOON

May 5—One business manager and three assistants for next year's Highland Echo staff are to be elected within the next two weeks, by the Joint Committee on Selection. All applicants for these positions who have not served on the staff before should have their applications in the hands of the committee this week. Those applicants who have served on the Echo staff previously need not and in anh application, however.

The Joint Committee on Selection consists of Dr. Hunter, Dr. McMurray, Lynn Rankin, Dorothy Kellar, and Mildred Crawford.

HIGHLAND FLINGS

Radio Announcer (question and answer period): "Who wrote "On this Side of Paradise"?

"Daddy" Knapp: "I think that is where we all do our writing."

Prof: Name six wild animals found in Africa.

Stude: Two lions and four tigers.

Love is when a girl wearing a long white dress will ride to a formal in a fellow's rattle-trap, moth-eaten, dust-laden, topless automobile.

"Who's that homely looking girl over there?"

"Well, she sure can dance!"

Prof. Davis: "What an awful odor in this room."

Gilmore: "Probably the dead language."

Abie broke his arm and had to drop Hebrew.

"Of course you've heard of the famous Tennessee monkey trial."

"No, what were they tried for?"

Prof: Griffitts (in Chemistry Class): "What's the matter, Davis? Are you going to sleep on us?"

Sam Davis: "No, sir, I've just got a habit of yawning."

Hazel Bowers: "Coach can you play a banjo, honest?"

Coach Honaker: "Sure—honest or dishonest either!"

TRIANGLE CLUB HOLDS SAILOR PARTY

Last Monday the Triangle Club held a sailor party in the college woods. Those who attended looked quite ducky in white ducks and middy blouses.

The entertainment consisted of an impromptu program, of which the main features were gymnastic stunts and music on wind instruments (harmonica, for instance), and games. Refreshments consisted of potato salad, sandwiches, punch, and Eskimo pies.

This club has among its honors the quality of the students composing it, the inscription of its name on one of the campus benches, and the ownership of the famous triangular flower bed in front of Thaw Hall.

The Campus Market

By Forrest J. Robertson

One night just recently Mr. Mac became suddently much interested in a somewhat boisterious disturbance the sound from which seemed to be eminating from a fourth floor window of Carnegie Hall. To his inquiry as to what was going on up there, someone informed him that Weaver and Neff were putting on a circus. Mr. Mac hurried up and rushed the show.

It must be admitted, however, that the fourth floor has been quieter this year than it has been at other times. There has been no dynamiting, and you don't have to dodge more than one trash can on the way to the bathroom.

—:—

Last year when "Red" Courtney came in from the junior-senior banquet he hardly knew what to expect since he had nailed his window shut and locked his door before he left. When he turned the key in the lock a spring attached somehow on the inside jerked the door across the room and knocked the window out on the other side.

But a student of Roman history, trying to relate something of the glory of Rome, told Miss Bassett that when Trojan went up into Dacia and burned up the cities, "the barbarian Dacian generals ran over themselves and killed each other getting out of the way."

I notice with interest marked progress on the campus. Look what an improvement May Day is over April's Fool day, and all in one month.

—:—

Glenn Murray says: "What a day! I wish every day was the beginning of May."

—:—

The monthly round of ambition's ladder: first, to be an April Fool; second, to be a May Queen, and third, to be a June Bride.

—:—

An ancient Roman poet to a contemporary: "O Palianus, you ask why I do not send you some of my verse. I am afraid you will want to send me some of yours."

CURRENT CAMPUS COMMENT

Virginia Osborne: "Faith, what causes these chill bumps?"

Faith Taylor: "I've been thinking of getting married."

Roberta Robison: "According to an article in last month's Forum, Midvictorianism is coming back."

Glenn Cross: "I'll believe it when I see the new bathing suits."

Miss Heron: "This description of an Oriental wedding was not of any particular wedding ceremony but a —(pause for students to complete sentence)

Donald Briggs: "A general one."

Vennor Lowery (in Religious Education class): "I just happened to think."

Y. M. C. A.

May 3—The new and old officers and cabinet of the Y. M. C. A. will hold their annual Spring Retreat soon, it was announced by Stuart James, today. Although not definitely decided, the place will probably be either Montvale or Sunshine. The cabinets will leave on a Saturday evening and return Sunday.

The new and old leaders, besides becoming better acquainted with each other in their respective sections of "Y" work, will have an opporutnity to discuss tentative plans for next year.

The new cabinet has not yet been announced.

THETA EPSILON

Theta Epsilon met Saturday night and took up the issue of another joint meeting with Alpha Sigma. This must be voted on by the other societies and presented at the next meeting.

The program was a clever interpretation of how love might be made on a park bench by two store clerks making believe they were members of the social whirl. Polly Howe as the young man from a nearby tailoring shop, attired in a "mis-fit", spoke easily on such weighty matters as Polo, dining at the Ritz and dancing at club houses on Long Island. Harriet Hartwell played up excellently and the scene was a scream.

The weather is getting warmer but Theta promises to "open up" and advises that you should bring your feather fans and turn out full force.

BUILDINGS in Which You Take Pride

ON THE CAMPUS, where class buildings and memorial structures are so often distinguished by their noble form, floodlighting equipment serves to prolong the enjoyment of their beauty and to enhance pride in the institution. » » Such an application is made for the new 165-foot campanile at South Dakota State—magnificent gift of an alumnus. Electrically operated chimes sound the hours and are heard in concerts. At night, shafts of light from General Electric floodlighting projectors effect a picture of superb beauty done in the school colors and white. From the air, the tower is identified by the beam from a G-E airway beacon surmounting the floodlighted dome. » » Thus, G-E equipment plays its part in promoting progress and fine appreciation. Back of every G-E product is an organization in which college-trained men are largely responsible for the planning, production, and distribution.

TWELVE MEN TO RECEIVE LETTERS IN TRACK

Taggart, Carper End With Flourish

Fine Prospects For Next Year Unearthed by Thrower.

PENTATHLON TUESDAY

Felknor, Taylor, Dependable Points Winners.

May 5—Eleven members of the 1930 Highlander track team are to be awarded letters for their work during the past season. The men winning letters are: Captain John Taggart, Carper, Abshear, Crothers, Martin, Felknor, Richardson, Moore, Bowman, Woodard, Taylor and Mgr. Sprouse. Elbert Lippard has been appointed manager next year.

The Highlanders under the tutelage of Coach Bob Thrower recently brought to a close a short but very successful track season. The Scotties fell before U. T. in the opening meet but made a credible showing against the State school. Lincoln Memorial University, and Chattanooga were buried under large scores by the Maryville cinder path artists. At the start of the season, Coach Thrower had only three lettermen to work with, but despite this handicap, a good team was developed.

Glancing over the list of lettermen we find that only two are Seniors, and will not be back next year. These two men, Captain Taggart, and Carper will be greatly missed, however.

Captain Taggart was one of the most brilliant and dependable trackmen ever to wear a Maryville uniform. Always a consistent point winner in the dashes, Taggart was at his best in the 440, and never lost a quarter-mile event in college competition. John brought his career to a close with a courageous victory in the 440 over Strong of Chattanooga last Saturday, one of the best sprinters in the south. This event was very spectacular, Taggart winning by a yard after a terrific duel down the straightaway.

"Judge" Carper has been a dependable point winner in the Discus, shot, and half-mile events. His place will be hard to fill next year.

Several fine prospects were unearthed by Coach Thrower, during the past season. Among these were: Felknor, in the hurdles and pole vault, Crothers, in the half-mile and broad jump, Taylor in the distance events, and Woodard in the javelin.

The annual Pentathlon will probably be held Tuesday. A close battle is expected, with four or five men being conceded a chance for victory.

WOMEN MAKING LETTERS AND SWEATERS

The women's athletic season came to a successful close Friday, when it was concluded with track and field events. The season this year has not only been successful in the number of women who lettered, but also in the good sportsmanship that has been exhibited. However, Coach Weller did more than any thing else to make it successful.

There were only three women who made letters and sweaters. Nez Hamrick, freshman, came first with 595 points; Ruth Buchanan, senior, second with 575; Cricket Foster, sophomore, third with 500. These women have worked hard, and they deserve the honor of wearing a Maryville sweater.

Seven girls made letters, and nine made Maryville monograms. Those lettering were: Martha Storey, 476; Mildred Purviance, 480; Carol Cushman, 470; Jane Mitchell, 433; Della Sneed, 419; Iva Babcock, 410; Edith Kitts 400.

M. C. SWAMPS TUSCULUM, 41-19

"Now boys, let's put everything we've got into it." As he said this Capt. French gritted his teeth and we knew that here was a man who would do or die for dear old Maryville.

"Come on, you fellows," said Coach Coughlin.

The swimming team was ready to enter the pool and to try the metal of Tusculum's team. Maryville's team had come from the seat of their Alma Mater that very day, Saturday by automobile and after a refreshing and invigorating supper of tea and toast were feeling fine. Every member of the team felt the need of great deeds, for only last Thursday they had been beaten by a score of 46 to 21 when they journeyed over to Knoxville Y. M. C. A.

The whistle blew, the team filed out to the pool, the meet had begun. The first event was a twenty-five yard free style swim. Dedi of Tusculum won by only a few inches. The crowd roared their delight. The next event, a one hundred yard back stroke race, was won by Buchanan, then Capt. French came through and took the one hundred yard free style, and Shields won the four hundred yard free style with his usual ease. Cudney captured the one hundred breast stroke and then "Psi" Martin in the most interesting race of the evening won the fifty yard free style event by the length of his fingers. Dedi took the diving for Tusculum. The meet closed with a relay which Maryville succeeded in winning. The final score was Maryville 41 to Tusculum 19.

Time Short For Honor Fraternity

May 5—As the school year is rapidly drawing to a close, those interested in qualifying for the honorary athletic fraternity are speeding up the tryouts. A number of track men have been taking the track tests and others are working on some of them.

Captain John Taggart, Carper, Calloway, and Abshear, have all made the 220 yard low hurdles under the required time of 31 seconds. Lippard and Calloway passed the high jump test, and Carper and Calloway also made the 100 yard dash in the required time of 11 3-5 seconds. In addition to some others, Taggart and Abshear passed the mile test also.

Those wishing to take any of the tests are urged to do so as quickly as possible, as the time is now very short.

Tennis Squad Beats Tusculum 5-1

Maryville College racketeers journeyed to Tusculum College last week and came back with the big end of the score in Maryville's string of tennis conquests.

Maryville was without the services of Captain Dick Strain and Buchanan who were unable to go, but their places were capably filled by Schleman and Barnard.

Tusculum has been beaten by Maryville twice this year and yet each time the scores have been close thereby giving the onlookers a chance to enjoy good tennis.

This week Catawba College from North Carolina comes to Maryville for a match with the home team. They will try to avenge the defeat they suffered during the winter at the hands of the basketball team. This is he only meet carded for this week and it is to take place on Friday.

About four more meets are scheduled and the Maryville boys can yet set a record for future teams to break.

The scores for the Maryville-Tusculum matches follow:

Swain defeatod Pylant 6-2, 6-2.

King defeated Schmerman 6-4, 6-1.

King and Schleman won from Schmerman and Perry 6-3, 6-3.

Taylor defeated Schleman 6-3, 6-3.

Barnard defeated Green 5-7, 6-3, 6-1.

Swain and Barnard won from Taylor and Pylant 6-3, 14-12.

Volunteer Nine Defeats Highlander Diamond Crew, 9-4

M.C. Outclasses U. T. In Every Thing But Batting.

SCOTS MAKE NO ERRORS

Blazer, Benn, Play Smooth Game In Field.

Bobby Dodd uncorked a three base hit with the bags loaded in the eighth inning and enabled the University of Tennessee to nose out the Highlanders in the deciding game of the series. A miscue by Parks with a sure double play in sight set the stage for the disaster. The final score was 9-4.

Maryville was kept in running up to that time by the steady hurling of Parks and the timely hitting of Tom West. Tom smashed a line drive to deep center for a home run in the first inning and drove out a three bagger in his second attempt. Fine fielding by Herndon robbed him of two other extra base bingles. West also played a great game on short stop.

A Highlander lead of three runs was wiped out in the fourth frame when Hackman knocked the ball over the left wall with a mate on base. Three more solid hits scored two runs. Maryville tied it up in the sixth when Hurst got on by an error, stole second, went to third on a passed ball, and scored on a sacrifice by Sleepy White. Neither team scored in the seventh, and it looked like an extra inning game up to the eighth inning when Dodd hit his medicine ball.

Smith, Maryville's fast right fielder, contributed three of the seven stolen bases. Captain Blazer played a smooth game in center while Benn fielded circles around the ball on second. Woodard was hitting in hard luck. One drive of his bounced against the fence so hard that he was held to a single. Bowman caught well throughout and held Tennessee's men on the bases. It takes a good man to steal on Bowman.

It was a tough one to lose. Maryville outplayed them in every department of the game except hitting, and even in that were not far outclassed. If we could play them another game over here the whole thing would be a different story.

The box score was as follows:

Teachers Downed In Two Game Series

The series of games with the East Tennessee Teachers College was easily won by the Highlanders. Stidham pitched the first game and gave the Teachers the small end of a 9-5 score. Blazer pitched the Highlanders to victory in the second game with a very close score of 3-2.

Our freshman, Joe Woodard, continued his hitting standard by hitting two home runs and a three bagger out of three trips to the plate. Tom West, the other heavy hitting freshman didn't go as good as usual. White, the newly developed first baseman, has been playing baseball that is justly getting grandstand attention, and his hitting has been exceptionally good.

Even Lloyds would hardly take a chance on insuring aviation records against breakage.

ed it off with a suitable piano solo, "The Swallow", depicting, as she said, the migrating life of the minister. The toasts of the evening were given by Hayden Laster, Theona Pruitt, Bob Jones, and Ray Dollenmayer. One of the most delightful numbers on the program was a reading by Roberta Hickman. Besides this, Phillip Vogel and Eleanor Kuhlman sang a duet, and the Ministerial Melody Men put on an amusing quartet performance. "Doc" Morrison, the president of the Association, ended the banquet with a few appropriate words showing that the life with Christ is practical in that He is with us always, in wholesome fun as much as in other things.

The success of the banquet was due largely to the assistance of the Practice House. They prepared the food supplied the guest of honor, and gave one of the numbers on the program.

SUMMARIZING BRIEFLY THE DEBATE SEASON

Wichita, Kansas, debating the following institutions: Center College (non-decision), McKendree College (lost audience decision), West-Minister College (lost audience decision), Kansas State Teachers College, Emporia, Kansas (non-decision). At the convention they debated Baylor University (lost), North Central Teachers College, Illinois, (lost), Ottawa (won), Nebraska, M. (lost). On the way home they debated at Oklahoma Baptist (non-decision), Hendrix-Henderson (won) Union University (won).

Concerning the varsity season as a whole I would call it a rather unusual success, the men and women acquitted themselves very well indeed. Three of the varsity squad are graduating, Miss Pettit, Mr. Frost and Mr. Robertson. These have done exceptionally good work, and will be missed next season. But there are a number of good debaters not yet to the senior class, and they are expected to make next season as good or better than this.

Freshmen Lose One

The Freshmen women in a dual debate with Tennessee Wesleyan won at both places. The squad consisted of Misses Ruth Boyd, Dorris Dodge, Elizabeth Duncan, Mary John Metcalfe, Violet Rowland, and Alfredda Scobey.

The Frsehmen men in a dual debate with the University of Tennessee did not fare quite so well, for they split the decision, winning at home and losing at Knoxville. Freshmen men debaters are Winn Barr, Homer Ellis, Benjamin Groves, William Marston, Andrew Newcomer, and Leslie Webb.

The Freshmen are watched with unusual interest by those of us looking forward to the coming years, there are some very able beginners in this group of twelve, and we may rightfully expect to hear more about them and their work in debate during the next three years.

During this season the Freshmen women were coached by Mildred Crawford and the men by Wright Frost. The results of the Freshmen contests tell of the efficiency of their work.

EXPRESSION GRADS

April 29—The pleasing performance of the first series of Expression Department recitals held a wek ago was succesfully duplicated last night when the second series was presented in chapel featuring Misses Lois Dillow, Faith Taylor, Muriel Hall, and Hazel Bowers.

The graduate recitals of all four of these readers were easily followed and enjoyed by a reasonably large audience. Even the moonshiners sat up and took notice during most of the entertainment.

Lois Dillow's reading of "Happiness', a play describing the search of rich folks for real happiness, was definite proof that Lois can speak slowly and distinctly when she cares to.

Faith Taylor displayed a real talent for reading comedy in "Foureen", a one-act comedy.

Muriel Hall's presentation of "When the Whirlwind Blows" was marked by the good character interpretation of her reading.

"Miss Civilization", read by Hazel Bowers, was unuusually well done. Miss Bowers carried us through one act of real action, and her interpretations of the girl and her three guests were done to perfection.

The next and last series of graduate recitals will come about commencement time.

ART CLUB VISITS MELROSE ART GALLERY

Smoky Mountain Paintings On Exhibit.

On Tuesday afternoon, April 29, twelve of the Art Club members, chaperoned by Mrs. Butcher, went over to the Melrose Art Center in Knoxville to see an exhibit of Smoky Mountain studies by Louis E. Jones from Woodstock, famous art colony in New York.

The Maryville students were fortunate in having the artist to show them his pictures personally, and hear his comments. Mr. Jones said that he has been painting mountain scenery near Gatlinburg all spring and that he will probably establish a permanent studio in that vicinity.

The visiting enthusiasts were especially impressed with the blue haze which prevade practically all of the paintings. Concerning his paintings, Mr. Jones commented: "To me the characteristic thing about these mountains is a unity between life and atmosphere that I have never seen anywhere else. I believe it is unique. It is hard to put into words. What I probably mean is a tone of melancholy growing out of the blue haze, and the way in which the quick, pondering life of the people seems to blend in with it. This is the thing I am trying to get into my pictures, but it is difficult to render and will require much work and practice before it is done."

Mr. Jones has been painting nearly thirty years and has studied art at Bucknell University, Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts under Pearson Garber, and at Woodstock. He has had exhibits in Williamsport, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Erie, and Atlanta.

SENIORS GIVEN HUGE OVATION AT CHAPEL SAT.

First Appearance of Seniors In Customary Graduate Garb Novel.

JUNIORS CELEBRATE

Seniors To Have Charge of Chapel Service Next Thursday.

Saturday morning the members of the senior class of Maryville College donned their caps and gowns in preparation for marching in all their glory down the central aisle in chapel. It was discovered at this time that a few seniors had misplaced their robes, and they were obliged to appear in choir robes. It was an impressive procession, and was rendered more striking and worthy of attention by the fact that several outstanding members of the junior class were invited (?) to join the class of '30 in their triumphal entry. The gay plaid bath robes, and jaunty caps which the juniors sported added a festive note to the otherwise sombre procession. Then, too, the sunny smiles which wreathed their faces did much to dispell the awe that the sight of a senior always inspires in the breast of freshmen and sophomores.

When they entered the chapel, they were greeted by the hearty, student welcoming tones of dozens of "Big Bens"; shrill whistles announced "hail, hail the gang's all here." Some where a lone cow bell tolled mournfully announcing the passing of the great. The dignified body hesitated, peered down contemptuously from their loftly intellectual height, and then—forgetting that they wore robes and that on their noble brows rested the caps—they allowed broad grins to replace the look of strained seriousness, and, amid peals of good natured laughter, they marched rather rapidly to their seats. There the fumes of hydrogen sulphide were wafted to their nostrils.

As the custom here is, the Senior Class will conduct the chapel exercises next Thursday morning. The town friends are cordially invited to attend.

CAMPUS CAMPAIGN OVER FOR YEAR

Committee Offers Suggestions For Future Work.

The Campus Campaign is over, with the completion of the new path around Thaw, opening a more beautiful passage to the Maid Shop, to the Varsity Tennis Courts, to the Woods. But one integral unit of the campaign remains uncompleted at this writing—the great desert from Thaw to the Postoffice. The college a month ago agreed to remake this into a nine foot highway through the green expanse so that we can all walk in a more dignified manner than at present. Until this is done, the bones of this Committee will move in the grave and its ghosts will roam over and haunt this old Hill.

Our deepest appreciation goes to the men giving free work, to the girls serving refreshments, and to Mr. Brown and the college for cooperating and furnishing the materials used. The very few men who did not fulfill their promises to help should do something greater next year in order that their spirits may become reconciled with the spirit pervading College Hill. Thanks we give also to those—students, teachers, officers, friends—who made possible the fifty campus benches.

For the future, we suggest that each of you expecting to die sometime make a will leaving at least eighty-nine thousand dollars to Maryville. The Committee itself is leaving with the college treasurer fourteen dollars for the express purpose of helping to purchase evergreen trees to be planted in front of Thaw next fall and elsewhere, and other shrubs. For once it would be

Glee Singers In Spring Concert

Informal pose of Maryville's melody makers, who appear tonight at Voorhees Chapel in a program of harmony and humor.

GLEE SINGERS IN CHAPEL TONIGHT

"Dance Macabre" is Feature of Final Program of Year.

Tonight the College Glee Singers will present their annual spring concert. The program will begin at eight o'clock and will consist of classical and popular numbers well blended and arranged to provide an evening of especial pleasure. The club this year in spite of the loss of many of the best singers of last year, is well organized and all the voices are well blended.

The program tonight will be made up from the cream of the other concerts given on trips during the spring and including Newport and Richard City. One of the high lights will be the negro spiritual group which will include "Goin' to Shout" and "My Lord, What a Mornin'" and will be followed by negro impersonations by Ernest Ross. Selections from the talking picture "The Desert Song" will be given in costume and will contain solos by Porter French, Yervant Topalian, and Wesley Culver. Forrest Robertson will give a reading and Donald Briggs, who claims that he never gave a reading before he came to Maryville but who has met with great success at reading both on the Campus and on the trips, will also read. Edwin Buchanan will play a number of pieces on his famous, musical saw.

A hrill is in store for everyone who hears the "Danse Macabre" which will be one of the best numbest on the program and will be very effectively rendered by silhouette effects with tomb stones, blue lights, and wailing violin music. The "Danse Macabre" opens at the stroke of twelve, bony knuckles knock on silent tombs. In the gloom Death is sawing on his fiddle playing music for the dance. The winter wind is wailing through the trees while sighs and groans are heard. The unquiet shades rush out on the meadow, the Dead arise from their coffins while Death madly saws his burning strings. The dancer, a lady of fashion, is dancing with her swain, a poor rustic. The dance continues waxing faster and wilder until—suddenly as the cock crows, dawn breaks and the shades flee.

Y. W. GARDEN PARTY HELD IN THAW HALL

Annual Event Demonstrates Abilities of 'Brides'.

The Y. W. garden party was held in Thaw Hall Friday evening and an enjoyable program was enjoyed by those present. Miss Gamble as toastmistress introduced the members of the Advisory Board. Lavinia Jones gave two humorous readings after which Jane Duke sang. Naomi Willingham sang her famous Eskimo song as an encore to her first number for the benefit of those who were not present at the Junior-Senior banquet. Billy Crawford gave a talk on Blue Ridge and its Opportunities, followed by speeches by the retiring and the new presidents. The new officers and cabinet members were "introduced" after which the Y. W. song "Follow the Gleam" closed the banquet.

The food was delicious and possibly was made more attractive or at least interesting due to the waiters, namely, Shorty Roberson, Stiles McMillan, Judge Carper, Stewart Button, Hayden Laster, and Sammie Broughton. The food was prepared by the women taking the Bride's course and served by the Men's cooking class so it was a really domesticated meal.

FINDS WATCH LOST '27

Carol Cushman Picks Up Time piece on Mountain Hike.

This isn't a big-fish story, but a true one which proves that once lost is not always lost. When Mabel Dickerson was a freshman, back in 1927-28, she went on a mountain hike to Calderwood. In the rush, or whatever it was, she lost her wrist watch.

Last Wednesday Carol Cushman, Mabel's roommate, went on a mountain hike to Calderwood. She saw a watch, picked it up, and saw "Mabel Dickerson" engraved on it. She shook it gently, wound it, and was rewarded by a steady tick-tick. The watch continued to run and has been running ever since.

Miss Jones was absent from the Hill May the third, fourth and fifth, on a trip to Charleston, Indiana.

MAID SHOP OUTFITS THREE GENERATIONS

Senior Girls To Be Presented With Fancy Ginghams.

Maryville's College Maid Shop has had the distinction of having uniformed the employees of the largest hosiery, silk and cotton mills in the country. College Maids have made the gowns that the Seniors wear each year, aprons, dresses, nurses' uniforms and Christmas novelties. It now has an added claim to distinction since all the matrons, and several faculty members are wearing College Maid Princess dresses. Mrs. Snodgrass, Mrs. Worley, Miss Mollie and Miss McCorkle wear with grace and elegance their dainty prints. It is worthy of note that the Shop has provided dresses for three generations in that Mrs. Snodgrass, her daughter, Mrs. Proffitt and Mrs. Proffitt's children are all wearing College Maid dresses.

The College Maid Shop is now making uniforms for nurses in training schools. This means that they will always have a ready market because the training schools take in novices twice a year. The girls will be kept busy making the white aprons and blue dresses for which there will be a constant demand.

The new patterns in Cloth of Gold prints are here and the manufacturers, Nelson and Jackson, are giving each senior girl enough material for a dress. Mrs. McMurray has a host of samples, and the senior girls are very enthusiastic over the prospect of getting such a lovely colorful dress free. The senior girls of the class of '29 received dresses, too, but they were not given the opportunity to choose from such a variety of patterns.

Each day some visitor comes to the Shop. He sees the women at work, inspects the various garments made, and Mrs. McMurray explains to him the origin, development and future of the Shop. He becomes very interested and tells all his friends. The Shop is now widely known, and it justifies its fame.

PI KAPPA DELTA ELECTS

Mildred Crawford President of Debaters' Fraternity.

May 9—The Pi Kappa Delta Forensic Fraternity met today and elected new officers to guide the debaters and orators through next year's season. The first honor went to Mildred Crawford as president. Miss Crawford was secretary and treasurer this year and, to the writer's knowledge, is the first lady to be president of the local chapter of Pi Kappa Delta.

William Graham was chosen for vice president and Alice Renegar for secretary and treasurer. Since only three debtaers are graduating this year, the forensic society is set for a successful year of work with the seasoned members left and the Philip Vogel Voices Need For Spirit of Cooperation on Hill.

Don't get your curiosity aroused—this has nothing to do with moonshining, at least not directly. Nor is it sentimental—to you who aspire to be "hard" in this materialistic age. The past four months would rather point to some very distinct possibilities in concerted and simultaneous attention to the matter. . . . . When Dr. Wilson was submitted tentative plans for the Campus Program last February, he liked the idea but expressed at the same time the thought that the promoter of that type of scheme might be ridiculed and the plan would thereupon collapse. We know instead that the college as a whole saw the need for the work and now it is performed. This hearty cooperation and the lack of general ridicule for the writer's article in February on The Character of a Campus alone give courage for the second and probably the last article to be in the Echo over his name. Perhaps even more so than the first is this later article written on the conviction that inherenly the natures and desires of the college faculty, officers, and students are alike, in their aspiring and beneficial regard for Maryville College. Of course there will again be a scattered few with bad tastes in their mouths who will inwardly scoff and exercise a pacific non-cooperation, but as in the Campus Campaign they need not concern us if we push forward together, all with a common understanding.

"All God's Chillun Got Wings", the title of an O'Neill play, might be changed to "All God's Chillun Got Hearts" for a title to this article—you gotta heart—Dr. Wilson's gotta heart—I gotta heart, we all got hearts. But sometimes we see not into each other's heart windows because the shades are down and things are "in the dark". As a result many wrong inferences are drawn. As witness a few: With a mortal terror instilled in me by reports about Farmer Watkins I daily awaited a butchered death at his hands when I moved next door to him last September. But behold "the lion and the lamb shall go forth together", and so what did May day morning see but Preacher, Farmer and I going peaceably forth at five a. m. to swing picks on the Thaw Hall path before breakfast. After dark one evening two weeks ago I was in front of Pearsons Hall holding something in my arms when a dark shape loomed up to accost me. Now I have held some degree of natural animosity towards this personage since his damaging of my camera one night while it registered a time picture of Carnegie Hall during my first week in Maryville. But stifling that I put up the shade and quietly explained that I was merely moving the paper can to what seemed to be a more convenient location. And we parted and went on our ways rejoicing. Now another fear caused by rumors that the College had lots of money, hoarded up by Mr. Proffitt, was that even what little we had would be taken from us. But finding from reliable persons the facts to be other-

CHILHOWEAN IS FULL RECORD OF 1930 ACTIVITIES

New Annual Is Dedicated To Mr. and Mrs. Verton M. Queener and Son.

"MOONSHINE" IS THEME

View Section Subject of Much Favorable Comment On Hill.

For the benefit of those who have not seen a 1930 Chilhowean the following details concerning the book are written.

"Moonshining", one of the most ancient and outstanding characteristics of Maryville College, is the theme. This theme, because of its novelty, appropriateness, and complete and unified development thru the entire book make it one of the best annuals ever ublished at Maryville.

The dedication is to Mr. and Mrs. Queener "whose marriage followed many happy hours of moonshining here on College Hill."

Annuals for a college the size of Maryville cannot be radically changed from year to year; yet it seems that the product for 1930 is quite different in many respects from any of its predecessors. The art work and arrangement of pictures is especially good. The buff moon peeking from black cedars with "Moonshiners" in the foreground are figures which are predominent throughout the book. The plates made by the commercial artists were very expressive, for they cannot be resold to other college annuals because of the fact that "Maryville College is a world within itself" in which oonshining is a well established custom.

In all, the staff deserves much praise for presenting such an original and attractive year book. The Juniors, as well as every owner of an annual, can be justly proud of this beautiful volume of the Chilhowean.

Four years at Yale, and you're equipped to sell bonds. Four years at West Point and you're equipped to become a movie usher.

ORCHESTRA PLAYS IN CONCERT MON. 19

Miss Butcher Directs Annual Musical Presentation.

Next Monday night the College Orchestra will give its annual concert. Eachy ear it is customary for the Orchestra to put on a program in the late spring. This year the date set is the nineteenth of May. Freshmen and students who are spending heir first year at Maryville have perhaps wondered when the orchestra would display its talent. Now the time is at hand.

On he night of the Theta Alpha Phi play, "Arms and The Man" we did get a sample of what the orchestra has been doing when the Chocolate Soldier was rendered.

The exact numbers have not been decided upon but one which is sure is a section from Victor Herbert's comic opera, "Mademoiselle Modiste". Several parts of this number are familiar to most people, for instance the one by the name of "Kiss Me Again."

Miss Butcher said that she also hoped to have a clarinet quartet composed of Pref. Davis. Georga Burke, Lynn Rankin and Howard Schleman, play during the concert.

The program will afford many delights to the music lover whatever the numbers are. There are twenty-two pieces in the orchestra. Some of the instruments which will be used are the piano, the violin, the trombone, the cello, the clarinet, and the saxaphone. There are five first violins and five second violins. All that remains to be said is: "Come and get your money's worth." That's an appeal to the Scotch in one but then, any Scotchman would enjoy a program such as this will be and count his money well spent.

Junior - Senior Night In Carnegie

"Whew!"

The exclamation came in an awed whisper from one of those cursed and persecuted males whose hapless fate it was to have attended the Junior-Senior banquet. He had just returned. Suddenly he was brought out of his trance by a commotion down the hall.

"Hey, what are you doing?"

"Trying to get through the transom. What do you think I'm doing, chinning the ceiling?"

"Who stacked my room?"

A door farther down opens, and a voice wails.

"What a mess this is. Look at my clean shirts right in the middle of the floor." (However, we will say here that very few gentlemen were mistaken for Sir Walter Raleigh.)

"Lights."

"Where's Mac?"

"Lets wake everybody up."

"Boop boop a doop." (This from the basement).

These and many other like comments rang through the sanctum (?) of old Carnegie at the zero hour last Monday night. At last reports the total of stacked rooms was unofficially placed at between twenty-five and thirty with this total steadily swelling as the week passed. But to get back to Monday night.

Part of that stacking was uncanny. One report has it that stackers went down from fourth floor via rope to stack rooms on lower floors where keys failed to function. Privacy, for the time being at least, was at a minimum.

James Franklin Robertson's room was stacked while his roommate Herr Ramsey (be of the alarm clock fame) slept on—or did he (being a freshman) just duck under the covers and hold his breath. Yervante Topalian stepped out of his room for a half minute to hold a peaceful conversation and returned to find it in a much more dilapidated condition than before he left.

"Speck" Moore (Sammy's old lady) stepped over to see the room of Messrs. White and Woodard (also stacked) and when he returned a moment later he found his room almost an exact replica of the scene he had just been reviewing.

Those Juniors and Seniors, who were lucky enough to have a lower classman as a roommate, escaped the plague as it were. So far it is believed that Allan Herdman is the only man who escaped the stacking unintentionally. On looking into his room one of the prowlers gave but one peek and decided that it had already been stacked.

Most of the stacking was of the "over the transom" type. This, translated, means that after the job is finished the transom is the only place that can be forced open far enought to get in. One hestitates to think how Jack Levine would get through his transom upon returning from a banquet.

Shall we close with the immortal words of Proctor McCurry as he viewed the remains of third floor.

"Gentlemen, let us all go to our rooms."

Sam Broughton (from rear of crowd): "Mr. Mac, where is my room?"

Keeton New Editor

The Highland Echo staff for next year met last week and elected Hessie Keeton as Editor-in-Chief of the 1930-31 volume of the college paper. In so doing they have chosen an able leader and one who has had two years training on the staff.

We will await with interest to see what the feminine touch can do to the Echo, since it has been in the hands of men for two years. Here at last is a chance for the women on the Hill to get a good break, and we are certain that Hessie will prove a champion of their rights.

We can say with assurance that this is the toughest proposition Hessie has yet struck, and yet it is the greatest opportunity she will have while in college. She will make mistakes as we have this year, but they will not seem so great if she has the cooperation of the student body.

We are with you, Hessie, and have every confidence in your ability to keep the Echo in its rightful place on College Hill.

Wasted Energy

We are conscious of the fact that we waste an awful lot of paper and ink in the editorials we thrust upon the unsuspecting student body, but not until the results of last week's offering on "Just an Annual Custom" came to our ears were we aware as to the extent of this condition.

For the benefit of those who did not raed the article more than twice, we wish to say that we think not only the long lists of honors, but also the ballyhooing about what a wonderful fellow so-andso is, which accompanies the pictures, is a lot of froth. For the benefit of those who read it more than twice and did not catch the dritft we have no advice, for they would not understand it either.

If the paper we used on editorials were all piled up on the editor's desk we would not worry so much about scrap paper.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT

One of the most interesting laboratories for psychology, chemistry, and biology, is the chapel on the night of a play, recital, or other momentous event for which there gather together interesting specimens of humanity who have paid thiry-five or fifty cents to exercise their auditory and optical nerves.

Of psychological interest are those people who represent the different levels of society. The first type with which we are concerned consist of those who have attained the high degree of civilization or superior intellectuality that requires solemnity on all occasions. Laughter is absolutely unthought of, although not unheard, and a smile is regarded as being downright vulgar. The second type consists of those who are termed human and number those people who laugh at the right time, cachinnate if necessary, and yet are able to retain the required dignity at the proper moments. The third type consits of those who deem it their purpose and duty to aid the performers on the stage with unnecessary exhortations or if the entertainment be music, to assume the talkie accompaniment. This type is by far the most obnoxious.

Chapel audiences are also valuable from a chemical standpoint due to the various aromas and odors of violent perfumes, although the wearers may consider it violet, that pervade the building. Cosmetics and hair groom also have their places in this chemical appearance which is usually only skin deep.

Biologically the chapel audience is of interest and of laboratory value due to the experiments that could be made of increased saliva flow obtained from over-chewed gum, Wrigley reactions, they might be called. Also the overworking of the muscles of the neck would be the foundation of an interesting experiment. This waste of energy is usually caused by curiosity on the part of those who sit up front to see who are present behind them. Rubber necking is the collegiate cognomen for this kind of curiosity.

Thus, a chapel audience is always an interesting and enlightening place to see as well as hear people, and to observe as well as enjoy. It is inded worth the thirty-five or fifty cents.

HIGHLAND FLINGS

At the chiropractors' dinner they probably sing a good, rousing spine song.

"I love him, and I'd follow him to the ends of the earth."

"H'm. So would I if I thought I'd have an opportunity to push him off."

Teacher: What's your name
New Boy: 'Erbert 'Arris.
Teacher: Always say 'sir', when you are speaking to a master. It's more polite.
New Boy: Sir. 'Erbert 'Arris.

Youth: I love your daughter more than words can tell.
Her Father: Well, maybe you can state it on figures.

"Do you talk in your sleep?"
"No, my wife says I'm perfectly exasperating,—I only smile!"

"In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of"—what the girls have been thinking about all winter.

Tey call her "Miss Atlantic City"—she has such a bored walk.

Many a young man is nudged by the company he keeps.

Silly Sally thinks that Horatius stood at the bridge because he was the dummy in that hand.

Jacobsen: "Dot Cohen fellow had a fire de day after he started in pizziness."
Goldstein: "Oi, oi, beginner's luck!"

THE LOSER WINS

This series of letters by Edith Woolsey takes us back a few years in the college's history, and will prove of unusual interest to students and alumni.

Letter from James Bradford to his friend, Wayne Kimball:

Memorial Hall,
Maryville College,
Maryville, Tenn.
September 16, 1890.

Dear Wayne:

You always said I would fall in love when I came to college. I think I have the symptoms of a serious case. I met her at supper in Baldwin Hall the first night I was here. She is the most beautiful young lady I have ever set my eyes upon. Her hair is like burnished gold; her eyes are blue like distances hid by summer mists, or fairy lakes in which water nymphs play; and her smile is exquisitely sweet.

Since Miss Booth is a sophomore she doesn't notice me, except to speak courteously. I know that I'm a green, country boy, but I'll not give up trying to win her. There is a social in the chapel next Friday night, and I'm going to ask the privilege of taking her. If she refuses me, the boys will devil the life out of me right there in the dining room. Perhaps I'll write her a note.

I have a nice room on the second floor of Memorial. My roommate is another freshman, and I feel that we'll get along fine together.

You wanted me to tell you all about the college. There are over 200 students. The young ladies occupy Baldwin Hall, and the fellows Memorial Hall. We have our recitations in Anderson, an immense, three-story brick building. I shall be able to make most of my expenses working on the college farm and campus. We get seven and one-half cents per hour. The young ladies wait tables, wash dishes, and help cook in the kitchen which is in the Baldwin basceni. I'll tell you more the next time I write.

Your friend,
James Bradford.

Note from James Bradford to Etta Booth:

Memorial Hall,
Maryville College,
September 17, ,1890.

Miss Etta Booth,
Baldwin Hall,
Maryville College.
Dear Miss Booth:

May I have the pleasure of escorting you to the Social in the college chapel, Friday, September 20, at 7:30 p. m.?

Yours respectfully,
James Bradford.

Note from Etta Booth to James Bradford:

Baldwin Hall,
Maryville College,
September 18, 1930.

Mr. James Bradford,
Memorial Hall,
Maryville College.
Dear Mr. Bradford:

Please allow me the privilege of declining your kind offer to escort me to the Social in the college chapel, Friday, September 20, at 7:30 p. m.

Sincerely,
Etta Booth.

Letter from James Bradford to Wayne Kimball:

Memorial Hall,
Maryville College,
Maryville, Tenn.
September 23, 1890.

Dear Wayne:

I am having the worst misfortune that could possibly befall a poor creature. Miss Booth answered my note with a curt refusal, and went to the Social with Ed Hamilton. Doggone his hide! We boys worked all afternoon taking up the benches and piling them in the corner so that there would be plenty of room for playing "Snap". Then after the Social we worked till midnight putting the benches back. I was snapped a few times, but not by any lady half as good looking as Miss Booth.

If I could only perform some striking feat that would win her admiration. I have been playing football, but she doesn't seem interested in that. By the way, you might be interested to know that football is progressing splendidly here. It has been introduced into Maryville within the past few years. Our biggest game of the season was with the U. of T. After two weeks practice we held them down to 30-0. We have no coacher and nobody on the team knows very much about traing the boys, nevertheless we are playing against some strong teams of the different colleges.

You used to tell me that I was missing the best part of life, because I wasn't keeping company with the young ladies. I realize now that are right, but what can I do about it? Ed has taken complete possession of Miss Booth.

Last Saturday, our holiday, some of us boys, under the direction of President Boardman, shouldered our axes, marched into the woods, cut down and hewed off some trees, then dragged them in to make a walk between Baldwin and town. By placing the poles crosswise we made a corduroy walk on which the ladies, and we if we wish, may perambulate to town and church without slipping and falling down the hill.

Professor Crawford said in chapel this morning that "there should be an actual delight in mental effort." But how can I keep my mind on my lessons when it is filled with disheartening thoughts of Miss Booth?

I must close now and reitre.

As ever,
James Bradford.

The Campus Market

By Forrest J. Robertson

The seniors have received the brunt of jokes from all classes this week. While the juniors kept us away at a very delightful banquet, the sophomores and freshmen stacked our rooms, and later in the week the juniors tried to force us to lend them our caps and gowns.

One good thing about the room stacking tho, was that the juniors got their rooms stacked too.

—:—

I don't know how it souned in the women's dormitories about the time the juniors and senniors came in from the banquet, but in the men's hall I could hear many of them repeating their toasts in many languages.

—:—

Ernest Ross: "I have stayed at home and stacked rooms three years and this year I never thought a breath of it until I came in and saw my room."

—:—

Sammie Broughton: "What's the matter, Bob? Your room stacked?"
Bob Jones: "Yes."
Sammie Broughton: "I guess that is what is the matter with mine too, I can't get the door open to see."

—:—

But really, I was sorry that I couldn't lend the boys my cap and gown. The only reason I didn't was that I didn't think they would look good in that either.

—:—

If all men were as conscientious in observing the state laws as Professor Queener, Tennessee would be a wonderful place to live. Recently when we reached a portion of American History called "The Evolution of a Colonial Policy", Mr. Queener decided we would have to leave that chapter out.

—:—

Tennessee's theory of Evolution is really quite popular. While I was at the Pi Kappa Delta Convention at Wichita, I heard reference to it about three times a day in the oratorical contests.

—:—

A gentleman from Arkansas tried to make us feel at home by refering to our common interest in Evolution in the states of Tennessee and Arkansas.

BASEBALL

May 12—The Maryville College diamond crew will depart Wednesday for northeastern Tennessee, where they fulfill a four day road engagement. Wednesday and Thursday, the Highlanders will play Emory and Henry College, and Friday and Saturday will meet East Tennessee Teachers College at Johnson City in a return series.

Last season the Highlanders met Emory and Henry four times on the diamond and were victorious in three of these battles. The Scotties hope to make a clean sweep of the series this year. The Teachers put up two god games here, and stiff opposition is expected from them.

Following this four day road trip, the schedule calls for games here with Emory and Henry, the 19th and 20th, and another road trip on which the Lincoln Memoriall University Airdales, and Union College will be played.

So far this season, the Highlanders have won 8 and lost 4, a good average for any ball club.

MARYVILLE'S SWIMMING TEAM BEATEN BY CHATTANOOGA

Saturday night Maryville met Chattanoga in the College pool and was defeated by a score of 46 1-2 to 241-2. The meet was fast and interesting with every event closely contested. Chattanooga started off well by winning the relay in 2 minutes, and then taking first and second in the 100 yard breast stroke with Cudney third for Maryville. Time: 1 minutes 2 seconds. Lauter (C) won first in the 220 free style with Shields (M) second and Tuak (C) third, time: 2 minutes 49 seconds. The 25 yard free style went to the visitors by a first and second, Jones taking first, Hubbard second, and Martin (M) third; time: 13.4 seconds. The diving was especially good and was won by Maryville. Crothers (M) first, Etter (C) second, Buchanan (M) and Rodman (C) tied for third. The 50 yard free style took 31 seconds, won by Martin (M), Jones (C) second, French (M) third. The 100 yard back stroke was won by Temple (C), King (M) got second, and Etter (C) took third; time 1 minute 31 seconds. The final event of the meet was the 100 yard free style with Lauter (C) first, Edris (M) second, and Gates (C) third; time: 1 minute 8.8 seconds.

The team has a meet scheduled with Tusculum here next Saturday. A week ago Maryville went to Tusculum and won. As a result the Tusculum team is coming to Maryville for a revenge bout. The meet gives every promise of interest.

back to Maryville after our vacation, although I had a lovely summer. There are a number of new students, especially boys. There are fifteen of us girls this year. Everything is about the same as last year, except Mrs. Henry has taken Mrs. Pierce's place as matron. I have my old job back of helping in the kitchen.

I had the nicest time at the social Friday night. Ed Hamilton, the most handsome young man in school, took me. Don't laugh, Helen; gentlemen really are very necessary articles to have around. Oh, I almost forgot to tell you about another of the stronger sex, James Bradford, who wanted to take me, but I refused him. He is a freshman, a tall, awkward greenhorn, so I didn't care especially about going with him. He seems to have developed an immense adoration for me, for he tries to engage me in conversation wherever he meets me. I feel that it would be "casting pearls before swine" to waste my precious time conversing with him for whom I care nothing.

I must tell you about the episode during English recitation yesterday. While we were reciting the cows, which graze over the campus came up close to the window, just as if learning were attracting them. When Professor Wilson turned his head to write something on the blackboard, Frank Cuthbert jumped out the window, and drove the cows all over the campus. Their bells tinkled and resounded amusing us so much that we could hardly continue our reciting, but Professor Wilson never revealed any sign that he knew what was happening.

Albert Harris is always making some brilliant or otherwise remark in class. In history class today the professor asked him, "Where is the best place to hold the World's Fair?" He answered, "Around the waist." I think his main object in saying so was to see us girls blush.

Write and tell me all about everything.

Your affectionate friend,
Etta Booth.

Letter from James Bradford to Wayne Kimball:

Memorial Hall,
November 2, 1890.

Dear Wayne:

I have been horribly humiliated before the very eyes of my beloved. It happened this way. About eight of us boys on Hallowe'en night, clad in ghostly robes of white sheets, marched over to Anderson to frighten the Bainonians while they were engaged in their regular Saturday night meeting. We rapped on their door until one of the ladies mustered enough courage to open it and let us in. We marched in silently and seated ourselves in a remote corner of the room. When they had recovered from the confusion our entrance had caused it was moved and carried that they would entertain us by reading from Cushing's Manual. This was a great surprise to us, for we didn't think the ladies were interested in any subject so heavy and complicated as parliamentary law. We sat listening to the young ldaies' melodious voices till away towards midnight.

All pleasures have an end, and this time a bad one. As we were listening attentively to the musical tones of the fair ones, suddenly a panic seized us—a professor was coming. All the boys, except me, were able to beat a hasty retreat, stumbling, falling and bumping against door posts. My sheet caught on the door knob and I was detained long enuogh for Professor Gill to grasp me roughly by the arm and demand what devilment we were up to. Just as I turned to leave, after he had released me, I saw Miss Booth's face which registered enjoyment at my discomfiture. I turned as red as a beet, even behind my ears, and beat a hasty departure.

My roommate has been a real standby through it all. I don't know what I would do without him.

James Bradford.

Highlanders Lead Catawba Team, 2-0

April Showers Dampen Spirits And Rackets

May 9—The Maryville Tennis Team was able to complete only two matches in the meet against Catawba here today. A third match was partly completed with Maryville leading with one set and a 3-1 start on the second set. Showers started just after the first match was begun but not until after the second doubles match, did it rain too hard to play. Buchanan and King defeated their visitors Levens and by a 6-3, 8-6 count and Strain and Swaim of Maryville downed Long and Winters 6-3, 6-2.

A match with Chattanooga is scheduled for May 16 on their courts and a revenge bout with Tennessee is in line for the following Monday.

Last Friday morning at four o'clock the peace and restfulness of The Beeches was suddenly disturbed by bursts of oratory. Byron King was practicing his systematics speech. He had gotten up early and locked himself in the bathroom. He woke everybody up with his eloquence.

"What does Alaska mean to you," he asked the imaginary audience with much vim. "To the fisherman it means fish; to the hunter it means game; to me it means a systematics speech."

AN AFTERNOON IN CARNEGIE

Three o'clock and all's well at the front (of Carnegie as the bell in old Anderson rings out the end of classes for another day and the male portion of the college gravitate toward Carnegie to "bide a wee' i.e. just long enough for books to be tossed onto desks, beds, or what have you.

The door, at the entrance to the lobby, begins to open and close with monotonous regularity; each time admitting some denizen of the environs of the aforementioned hall.

The door again bursts suddenly open and in comes "Speck" Moore with his diaphragmatic laugh and iron grip.

"Say, Fellows, have you heard—"

"Oh, hire a hall" shouts someone, whose patience cannot stand the strain, and "Speck" is immediately 'bounced" i.e. escorted to the cellar with no explanation, quarter or apologies.

As he tumbles down the steps an unearthly noise issues from the aforesaid apartments and the only plausible explanation of this phenomena is that Sammy Broughton has had a recurrance of the "parrot fever". He soon emerges in a gym suit, which reminds one of the "coat of any colors", and speeds his way toward the alumni gym.

All denizens of the hall who have been studing (for at least a few minutes during the afternoon periods) shake themselves out of their lethargy and prepare to make mild forms of whoopee. The usual string of "drugstore cowboys" trails away toward town. A battery of pitchers usurp the Carnegie lawn and turn it into a "bull pen" to exercise sore arms. Felix Lippard leans out of his third story window just long enough to receive an anonymous sack of water on his lap. He then turns around and begins beating him at checkers until Kim becomes red in the face.

Time flies. Mingled with the drone of lazy conversation is an occasional snore and the raucous tone of somebody's portable. The selection this time seems to be "I Wish I Had Died in My Cradle" or is it "Lover Come Back to Me"? Some of the "cowboys" return. Old Sol drops nearer to the horizon and there is a perceptable change in the amount of light which comes in through the windows.

From somewhere in the hall comes a faint call.

"Lights!" Absolute silence greets this sally and after a moment it is repeated. This call meets a like fate but on the third attempt the call is answered and soon the call of "Lights" is echoing and re-echoing throughout the hall in all ways, keys and places. The call is soon rewarded and the vox populi ceases.

Again time passes and nothing new develops until at about 4:45 some misguided victim decides to take a warm shower. However, upon reaching the shower he finds his plan thwarted for the warm water is hiding and, even though he essays several hearty demands for "Hot Water" which are carried along half heartedly by some other inmates, he finally ends up by taking a cold sprinkle.

This, for most, ends the afternoon for it is but a little while until the supper bell rings and, after a grand scramble and tangle to see who can get washed first, the whole gang troops over to Pearson's to end the afternoon with "hash."

When a friend failed to give her a promised ride, Mrs. Regina Jorka, 80, of Stevens Point, Wis., walked 16 miles to attend the funeral of a friend.

MOUNTAIN HIKE

"All aboard!"

Thus the Spring Mountain Hike started at seven-thirty from Maryville to Calderwood. The train was filled with about one hundred and fifty couples, all laughing and jostling and seeing who could talk the loudest. (The nearest comparison would be a negro excursion!)

Just as the train pulled out it began to rain, but it was too late then to turn back, and even if it hadn't been, we should have gone on! The train reached Calderwood about nine o'clock.

After the train was unloaded, the members of each group assembled and decided where they should eat lunch. Having decided, they all separated, some going to see the new dam and others to scale the lofty peaks.

The morning passed swiftly and by noon eighteen groups were tired and ready to eat. About an hour and a half was taken out for lunch, and then the hikers were off again. However, before any one left, he was warned that the train was to leave at four-thirty.

During the afternoon an ice-cream eating contest was engaged in, with Helen Bowman the winner. We won't say just what the amount eaten was!

Another feature of the day was the negro baseball game which was played in a field just opposite the railroad station. Many of the students had a grandstand seat on top of a box car nearby. Earl Blazer was seen watching the pitcher very closely—probably getting some points for his next game! The game was stopped on account of the rain.

At four-thirty most of the students were on the train ready to leave. But there are always those who forget their lunch baskets, kodaks, slickers, and especially those who forget the time, to keep the others waiting. However, no one seemed to mind, and the train pulled out at five o'clock.

On the way home those who had exercised all the muscles of the body except the vocal cords, sang popular songs. The others, who could not sing, ate the remains of the lunches.

The train arrived in Maryville at six-fifteen, bringing a load of tired but very happy Maryville students.

The hike was a success from the start, and those who did not go missed one of the happiest occasions of the school year.

JOINT MEETING OF ATHENIAN—BAINONIAN

Saturday night the Bainonian and Athenian Literary Societies held their joint meeting in Thaw Hall. Both societies were well represented, thus living up to W. T. Whitman's statement to the affect that the Athenians and Bainonians are always willing to cooperate with each other. The affair, although falling short of the first semester's joint meeting, was entertaining enough considering the time of the year, and the hurried preparations. The theme of te program was 'The British Isles', and through the medium of song and verse, the audience caught glimpses of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales. The program dragged in places, but the sprightly readings of Nellie Caldwell Morton offset the weaker numbers.

Perhaps it was the weather, but some how the spirits of the gathering seemed a bit damp. It was a good evening, yes. The Society presidents vied with each other in bestowing lavish compliments upon each Society; the food was varied and ample in quality and quantity (if you don't believe it ask "Red" Luckheart)—but some how, things lagged. Is the 'old fight' still present or have we come to doubt that the 'old fight' has any real value after all?

NEW COURSES IN 1930 BULLETIN

The Maryville College bulletins for 1930 arrived for distribution last Friday. A few new courses are offered for the next school year. Two of these are history courses, elective fr juniors and seniors. One, The Southern Frontier, deals with the settlement of the territory south of the Ohio up to about 1800, with special emphasis on the Tennessee region. No textbook is used, but reading assignments are made. The other, complimentary to the first, is Tennessee History.

The other courses, one Latin and one Greek, are elective for juniors and seniors. Greek Literature in Translation is an outline of Greek literature in translation, for which no knowledge of the Greek language is required. The Latin course is offered in observance of the Bimillenium Vergilianum. It consists of selections from Eclogues, Georgics, and Aeneid.

wise, a frank and sincere discussion was had with Treasurer Proffitt and the true status of the exhausted provision for campus improvement in the year's budget ascertained, whereupon since there was insufficient money for our desired paths and fifty benches, he did arrange for our path materials and tools to be paid for—and we got our paths and benches!

Now the secretaryship to Dr. Barnes has afforded the writer opportunity to learn of many situations where was sought a betterment of the conditions for the students, unsuspected by the students, and of necessity confidenial to the college office. Likewise has the writer heard many students seriously discuss the problems pressing upon the college faculty and officers, and express sympathy and a desire to aid in the solution thereof, mostly undreamed of by the college officials, and likewise confidential, this time to the students. Every person in the college would probably be greatly surprised at the tremendous interconcern of faculty, officers, and students, even at times when one or two unrepresentative of the student sentiment voiced expressions to the contrary. It seems that the students imagine themselves clamped down by iron despots with vacant holes in their left breasts, at the same time that the faculty and officers think they are sitting on top of a volcano emitting fire and brimsone as hundreds of red figures equipped with horns and forked tails swarm underneath, fuming, brewing, plotting. But there are no such conditions. Putting up the shades we find all to be just plain human beings with hearts, all desiring friends and happiness. Practically every difference the writer has seen arise in Maryville would have terminated quickly and pleasantly, or not even occurred, had each person involved used common sense, considered both sides, made apologies where they were in order, and in every way had sought to satisfy the other person with explanations, reasons, justice, and facts and figures. Officials or faculty who complain should come out openly and frankly and inform the students completely of the conditions and probable results, while students complaining should lay on the table all their facts, desires, and the like. And all should have a constructive suggestion which would properly cure the defect in question. Individuals in each group have at times been improperly and unjustly criticised, while others in each group have at times done unjust and improper things themselves Avenues of violence, or sullen acquiescence, or utter disregard are open. The first and second leave wounded hearts. The third fails to correct the matter. The only way is a fusion of all opinions and feelings, kindly made, into a tool satisfying to all which is capable of handling the job to be done.

Highlanders,— faculty, students, officers—it's up to us all! We seniors leave soon; to you of the other three classes must go the duty, and to you will go the glory, if you can in any manner promote the open window. Let us recognize our failings in the past, turn about face, and with this present common understanding go into the future with all openness of mind and sympathy of heart, and such a body and spirit of comradery and love will well up in the great heart of our Alma Mater as will ne'er be effaced while this earth rolls on.

Philip Vogel.

SIGMA DELTA PSI

May 12—The hope that at least two Maryville men would qualify for entrance in Sigma Delta Psi, national athletic fraternity, by the end of the year, appears to be nearly fulfilled. Three men now lack only one of the tests necessary to qualify. Abshear needs to be passed on his grades, while Taggart and Carper have yet to pass the swimming test. It is believed that these and perhaps some others will meet the requirements before the close of the school.

Many other athletes have been working, on the tests. Calloway Lippard, Richardson, and Crothers have passed four or five of the tests, including the high jump, pole vault, baseball throw, 160 yard dash and hurdles.

ART CLUB

The Art Club will meet on Thursday night, May 15, in the Bainonian Hall. The subject for discussion will be the work of several of the foremost American artists. Every member of the club is urged to be present and contribute to the discussion.

When this shrubbery is set out next fall your improvement spirit can easily find new avenues for continued expression, such as in a better athletic field, the Y. Plans are being made for the initiation of four new members into Pi Kappa Delta soon. These four are Roy Taylor, Robert West, Ruby Lee Johnson, and Mary Lovette who have done good work on the forensic platform for Maryville this year.

Plans are also being made, under the supervsion of Mr. Frost, for the society to hold a theatre party next Friday night. Refreshments will be served at Walker's afterwards. It is understood that the freshmen debaters will be invited for this party.

U.T. MEN GUESTS OF LOCAL 'Y' IN BIG BANQUET

Visitors Put on Program, Hosts Furnish Meal; All Enjoy Night.

IMPERSONATION HIT

James Announces Spring Retreat For Old and New Cabinets Soon.

May 14—A banquet ini honor of the Knoxville Y. M. C. A. was the center of interest for Maryville "Y" men last night. After being the guests of the Knoxville men at a banquet in Knoxville several weeks ago, the Maryville men play the part of hosts at this gathering. It was held in the First M. E. Church, with over a hundred hearty participants.

After the eats, Stuart James introduced Glenn Woodslee, President of the Knoxville organization, who then proceeded to introduce the program which the visitors had concacted for the occasion. The hit of the evening made its appearance when one of the Knoxville men impersonated a female grand opera singer. "She" struck high "c" with formidable gusto and was rewarded for her efforts by a huge flower spray presented by one of our own men who was unable to resist the charm of the songster.

Other numbers included an excellent exhibition of acrobatic dancing, a snappy chalk talk, and a cornet solo, all being thoroughly enjoyed.

The new and old Maryville officers and cabinets, will hold their annual Spring Retreat this weekend or the next, James announced today.

THETA ALPHA PHI BANQUETS OFF HILL

Dorothy McCulloch Entertains Thespians at Home.

May 15—Theta Alpha Phi held its annual spring initiation and banquet last evening at the home of Miss Dorothy McCulloch, former Maryvillian. About twenty members enjoyed a delicious program of eats, and except for two out of the twenty, a cruel initiation service which followed.

Jesse Peirce presided as toastmaster at the banquet. When he finally became fatigued from his efforts at speech-makng, an opportunity was given to Frank Baker, this year's president, to give a toast to the new president, William Graham, who replied to the generous words of his predecessor.

The ordeal of the initiation was finally completed after the two neophytes, Muriel Hall and Leland Gilmore, were sufficiently reminded of their humble position and were taken into the bonds of Theta Alpha Phi.

Several talented actors who have been gracing the Maryville stage will be graduated this June, and

TWO TEACHERS GO ABROAD IN JUNE

Miss Wilkinson To France; Prof. Davis To Rome, Greece.

Miss Wilkinson and Professor Davis plan to spend the coming summer abroad. Miss Wilkinson will sail from New York for France on June the seventeenth. After spending four weeks in studying at Sorbonne and in picking up little "souvenirs de France" for her French pupils, she will visit Switzerland, Italy, and Germany, where she plans to attend the Passion Play of Oberammergau. On her return trip she will visit Belgium, Holland, and England, from which she will sail in time to arrive in New York on September the third.

Professor Davis' itinerary is somewhat similar. He will go first to Paris and then southern France. The major part of his time will be spent in studying the ruins of Rome, Naples, Pompeii, and Greece. He also plans to attend the Passion Play and perhaps to return through England.

Professor Davis' companion on both voyages is to be Dr. Bassett, a Maryville alumnus and the brother of Miss Bassett. He is now a professor at Southwestern Presbyterian University.

SOPHS ELECT JUNIOR OFFICERS; MURRAY PRES.

May 15—Today the business of electing the officers of the Junior Class for the year 1930-31 was finished. A discussion which arose concerning the eligibility of members who had not paid their dues to vote was settled when a motion to the effect that those who had not paid their dues should not be allowed to vote was defeated. The following officers were elected: President, Glenn Murray; Vice President, Naomi Willingham; Secretary, Georga Burk; Treasurer, Cooley Combs; Editor, Lee Calloway; Athletic Director, Blunden Ferguson.

Miss Jewell To Get M.A.

On May 7 Miss Jewell went to the University of Virginia, where she took and passed her examinations for the degree of master of arts. The degree will be conferred in June.

1930 HANDBOOK ON WAY TO COMPLETION

McCann Edits, Bob West Is Business Manager.

The Maryville College Handbook 1930-31 edition is now being compiled for publication. The handbook is a neat, fabricoid bound book which serves as a compendinum of knowledge to all incoming freshmen. It is often termed the "Rat Bible" in most colleges.

The book is the annual or official publication of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. and a copy containing the necessary knowledge of customs, the necessary knowledge of customs habits, etc., which are characteristic on the Hill, is sent to every incoming freshman.

It is primarily to help the first year men and women to become acquainted with the spirit, and ideals of Maryville. It enables hi to catch a vision of the religious, social, athletic, and scholastic phases of life at Maryville.

The staff of the 1930-31 Handbook is:

Homer E. McCann—Editor
Julia Terry—Associate Editor
Robert A. West—Business Manager

SENIORS CONDUCT CHAPEL EXERCISES VERY CREDITABLY

Subjects Serious and Humorous Mark Day of Days For Seniors.

Thursday morning the seniors entered chapel very ceremoniously although minus their mascot, Ross Honaker who had contracted German measles the day before, and proceeded to take charge of the exercises for the morning.

Frank Baker, president of the class, read the Scripture after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated. Viola Pettit read a paper entitled "How to Live Life" in which she emphasized the value of relationship between teacher and student in college life under the guidance of the master teacher, Jesus.

After the president had carefully arranged the tassel of his cap he announced the next number to be a violin duet by ?, ?, accompanied by Marion Johnson. The violinists who proved to be Elizabeth Myers and Cyril Brown played in a most pleasing and appreciative manner. The program changed to a lighter strain when Alice Rhea read Brent Stearns' caricaturization (characterization) of the Mryville faculty.

A quartet composed of James Anderson, Eleanor Kuhlman, Mary Elizabeth Deaderick, and Philip Vogel sang the "Waters of the Minnetonka" which quite entranced the audience. The last number on the program was a summary of what Jesse Peirce can do in the literary line, both prose and poetry. The first of the selections was the "Lament of the College Professor" with apologies to John Greenleaf Whittier, and the second was an imaginary appreciation on the part of certain members of the Maryville faculty for what the college has done for them (or kept them from doing).

Even though the underclassmen did not wait for the senior recessional, it is not an indication that the program was not enjoyed for—it was.

SCENE SENIORS WILL SEE

Seniors will climb Mt. LeConte, famous pinnacle of Smokies, on Friday, May 30th.

NEW COURSES ARE OFFERED IN ENGLISH

Four More Classes Open For English Students Next Year.

The following revisions and additions in the English Department for next year should be noted by all those interested in English and particularly those majoring in this subject.

Development of English Poetry will be given both semsters and is elective for sophomores. It is a two-hour course, and is given alternate years. Development of the American Short Story is a three-hour course given the first semester, and is elective for juniors and seniors. Special attention should be given to a course in the Nineteenth Century English Novel, course number 32, not listed in the catalog, which will be given three hours the second semester. It is elective for juniors and seniors.

Miss McReynolds will give the Teaching of English in the Secondary School, two hours, the second semester.

ATHLETIC BOARD OF CONTROL ELECTS

The student body met in the chapel Tuesday evening, May 13, for the purpose of electing Athletic Board of Control members. The following officers were elected:

President - - Lowell McDonald
Vice President - - Dick Strain
Secretary - - Blunden Ferguson
Faculty Representatives - - Prof. Howell, Coach Thrower
Male Representatives - Tom Cash, Lee Calloway
Female Representatives - - - Iva Babcock, Nez Hamerick
Town Representatives - - - George Crawford, "Turkey" Smith

Dr. Vander Meulen Visits Hill

Dr. Vander Meulen, who is president of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Louisville, visited Maryville College last Thursday.

"SUN UP," SENIOR CLASS PLAY IS ON FOR JUNE 3

Lula Volmer's Mountain Story Is Powerful Drama Of War.

CASTE IS BEST ON HILL

Scenery and Costumes In Hands of Whitehead and Roberta Hickman.

Under the efficient direction of Mrs. West, the seniors are making careful preparation for presenting "Sun Up" by Lula Vollmer as the senior play. This drama is the story of western North Carolina people as they appeared during the World War. The roles are difficult to play because of the mountaineer dialect, but we may rest assured that, since the cast was carefully selected, and rehearsals are held twice each week, that the play will certainly not fall below the present standard of excellence of Maryville College presentation, and will in all probability, in some respects, surpass it.

Stage scenery and costumes are well looked after since Thomas Whitehead and Roberta Hickman respectively are managers. And property manager is Franklin Roberson. Judging from their former stage appearances, the actors and actresses who have been chosen to impersonate the mountaineers, are well qualified to do so. One has only to mention the name of Gladys Graham, Jesse Peirce, Frank Baker and Margaret Haynie to call to mind such plays as "The Family Upstairs", "Arms and the Man" and "Lilac Time". The senior play is usually the play of the year, and no one can afford to miss this unusual one.

PI KAPPI DELTA HOLDS FEAST FRI.

Robertson Retiring President Acts As Toastmaster.

May 17—Last night the forensic claimants made merry in their annual theatre party at the Palace Theatre and at the banquet held at Walker's afterwards. The freshmen debaters were invited to share this festivity with the members and initiates of Pi Kappa Delta. All entered into the spirit of the party with a great deal of enthusiasm. After the theatre had been left the following program was given at the banquet at Walker's:

Toast to Freshmen - Wright Frost
Response - - - Benjamin Groves
Toast to Coaches - - Viola Pettit
Response - - Professor Queener
Toast to Future of Pi Kappa Delta - - - Dr. Hunter
Response - Mildred Crawford president-elect of local chapter

Forrest I. Robertson, the retiring president acted as toastmaster.

Only four active members of the local chapter are graduating this year, Forrest I. Robertson, Wright Frost, Robert Jones, and Viola Pettit.

OCHESTRA CONCERT POSTPONED; SATURDAY

Saturday night, instead of Monday as announced Maryville College Orchestra will present its annual concert in Voorhees Chapel. A varied program is promised. There will be several numbers played by the twenty-two piece orchestra, including a selection from Victor Herbert's comic opera Mademoiselle Modiste. A trio composed of Miss Butcher, the orchestra director, Miss Margaret Melody, and Miss Elizabeth Myers will also render a few selctions. In addition to this a clarinet quartet the members of which are Georga Burk, Professor Davis, Lynn Rankin, and Howard Schleman will play. The program as a whole will afford an evening which music lovers and others too can hardly afford to miss.

FRENCH PRESIDENT NEXT YEAR'S CLUB

The Glee Club met last week and chose officers for the coming year. Porter French, who has been with the club since his Freshman days and who holds down a baritone position, was elected to the position of president, succeeding Ed Buchanan.

Ed Shelley, who has gone up from baritone to second tenor during the last two years, will be in charge of concert tours, advertising and the like.

The Glee Singers were presented to the A. B. C. Bible Class, at the Strand Theatre, Knoxville, last Sunday morning, and were very well received.

ALPHA SIGS CHOOSE KEMP DAVIS PRESIDENT

May 17—At the regular election of officers tonight Mr. Kemp Davis was chosen President of the Alpha Sigma Literary Society for the coming term. Mr. Davis has been a loyal member of the society and under his leadership we can but expect a bright future for Alpha Sigma.

Other officers elected were:
Vice President—J. Stuart James
Recording Secretary—Robert West
Assist. Rec. Secretary—Donald Briggs
Program Secretary—Porter French
Assist. Prog. Secretary—Lawrence Sommers
Treasurer—Raymond A. Young, Jr.
Censors—Floyd Waters, Charles West, and Galen Johnson
Editor—Wiliam Graham
anitor—Cecil Marley

ANOTHER ONE ON THE SCOTCH!

To the Editor of the Highland Echo:

Another reference to the Scottish people, as regards their thrift, caught my attention in our college paper.

I understand references to, or jokes about the Scotch are done in a spirit of good humor; but one gets tired of superfluous ideas, and therefore superfluous speech.

"Enough is as good as a feast"; and let us always remember there is a sacredness of nationality beyond which we dare not pass.

SUNTAN—BY JULIA TERRY

There are many methods of acquiring suntan, but perhaps the briefest method, I mean the most effective in the shortest time, is by sitting on the fire-escape on the third floor of Baldwin, south exposure, on a hot Sunday afternoon with automobiles filled with boys hanging out at all angles and stretching their necks in order to gain a better perspective of the unsuspecting (?), yet willing martyrs to the rays of the sun. It is much better to sit in these third floor windows than on the ground, forty feet below, because the sun's rays are much more intense at this stupendous height.

Another effective method is to play tennis all morning on Monday (in case it doesn't rain or if the sun is not in any other way deprived of smiling on the backs and arms of these Maryville martyrs.) It is best to wear overalls minus a shirt when desiring suntan in this fashion, for a lovely white cross is obtained across the back by the crossing of the overall bands. It is also in vogue to apply strips of adhesive tape and thus wear "his" initials. In this way a woman can be indentified whether going backward or forward.

Suntan may also be acquired by lying on the roof of the Practice House where heat radiation is powerful and practice makes for perfection unless the "lyers" are cordially asked to leave the precincts. Another valuable method is to lie on flat rocks in the midst of a beautiful mountain stream and pray earnestly that the sun come out. However, be sure to keep a protective covering nearby in case some unwanted stranger appear.

"ET TU BRUTE?"

Maryville College students will be interested in the International Exposition to be held in Oneonta, Alabama the last of the month. Most of the Great powers will issue commemorative stamps for the occasion. The entire exposition centers around the Presbyterian manse of the town. There in 1910 Edward Clyde Crow, the son of a local pastor was born and it is for this reason that the Exposition is being held. The Exposition begins May 23rd, the natal day of Mr. Crow, and will continue as long as the committee finds the financial returns warrant. It is believed that this will be at least eighteen months.

Mr. Crow will be remembered by his school fellows at Maryville College as the straight-haired, blond giant of the Freshman Class of 1926-27. Because of his immensity he was immediately named Brute. His jovial good nature has made the big giant a great favorite with school men and women—especially women. He has been an ardent Athenian holding the offices of Sergeant-at-Arms and Critic. He played a prominent part in the Bainonian cup-winning mid-winter this year. He has been an active P. K., High Trail man and athletic manager not to mention his Chilhowean signing activity.

It is expected that thousands will be on the campus Friday, May 23rd armed with paddles. To facilitate the birthday celebration it is unofficially rumored that the local schools, business houses, and the college will declare a holiday. It is probable extra busses, trains, buggies, push-cars and dirigibles will be made available.

Remember the date, May 23rd.

Our Swan Song

As we approach commencement day our hearts should be heavy with sorrow, and our eyes dimmed with tears. Somehow this is not so. We confess a desire to stay long enough to do and say some of the things we have left untouched or unfinished, but we realize that someone else is waiting to take up our work where we left off. This is as it should be.

Just as the seniors, moving on to new worlds make room for those students who are clamoring at the gates of this institution for the privilege of a college education, so we, laying down our pen, but make room for next year's staff, which is eager to try its powers. The privilege which we have enjoyed we trust will be as helpful as it has been to us.

Our paper this year has been very much like the Echo of other years; not so good as we should like to have seen it, nor as bad as it might have been. We have tried to follow certain principles of journalism with varied degrees of success. We tried to give the students what they want with the same result. We have enjoyed editing the paper more than anything we have ever done, and we dare say the enjoyment was mostly ours.

We print here a copy of the Highland Echo Ten Commandments which has been posted on the wall of the office for the past eight months. We recommend it as a criterion for the 1930-31 volume, and beg leniency if the volume we are bringing to a close must be judged by it.

Highland Echo Ten Commandments

1. Get all the news and print the best.
2. Print the truth without distortion. Anybody can make up a good story.
3. Keep personal opinion out of news stories.
4. Make the Highland Echo as much a student publication as is possible.
5. Let the student body know that a paper is not a history by making it a "news" paper.
6. Try to see things from all sides, but don't "hedge" on an issue. If you haive an H!ot?S w about something, hand it in; we may not be able to print it, but writing it will help you know your own mind.
7. Use language all can appreciate. If your vocabulary is extensive, congratulations, but don't use it all in one story.
8. Keep well posted on student opinion. A thousand students can't be wrong.
9. Avoid errors. They leave a bad impression of the writer and the paper.
10. Allow no personal malice to color anything that enters the paper.

—The Editor.

NO ECHO TILL JUNE 2

The Highland Echo is sorry to announce that there will be no issue next week. On June 2, however next year's staff will put out an issue. We await with interest their final publication.

Dear Editor:

I am forty years old, have a fambly and am out of work. I've been trying to get a job for nerely two months and I ain't got one yet. I went to Filadelfi last month where I thaut I could get something to do and I did not get work there, but insted I found a lot of people out of work just like me. I new I mite as well go sowewhere elts.

I ust to work in a faktury in Cleveland, Ohio and I thaut I mite get a job there so I went to Cleveland. They ust to have over a hunderd men in that place but now they got a lot of new-fangled mashenery in it and they use only leben men, in all, and I couldn't get a job there.

Everywhere I go I find a lot of work being done by boys, boys not over twenty or twenty-five years old, who awt to be in skool. They are not doing nothing except flying around lavishin the money on girls and other luxuries while my kids are having to do without a edukashan and sometimes don't get enuf to eat.

Mr. Editer, I wisht you would rite a artikle in your paper and ast the people to try to get a law passed so that everybody would have o go to skool till they are twenty-five years old. In this age of mashenery we don't need them to work and they need the edukashun. You awt to rite something about paying men a pension after they are sixty years old kause old men shouldn't have to work. It looks like the men between twenty-five and sixty years old could support the nashun with work if they were given a chance.

Help us poor people if you can.
Yours truly,

THE COLLEGE BOY

Following numerous requests for a copy of the poem I wrote under the influence of two cocoa-colas, an aspirin tablet and an onion sandwich, and which I read in chapel the other morning, I have been granted permission to use these columns to see my first attempt at verse in print.

THE COLLEGE BOY

Blessings on thee little man
With thy sheepskin in thy hand,
Graduating in thy class,
In a flood of applesass,
Listening to the prexy paint
Life just as the darned thing aint.
As you enter into life,
After four years painful strife.
From my heart I give thee joy—
I was once a colege boy.
With thy striped plus four knickers
And thy bag o'er stuck with stickers
Riding miles upon thy thumb,
Mind so keen and face so dumb,
Thou hast learned a thing we lack—
Leaving, thou turnest not a-back.
Inward, panic; outward, glad,
Blessings on thee college grad.

Oh collegiates' painless pranks
From stacking rooms to painting tanks.
As far as fun's concerned you're thru
Gone are the joys that once you knew—
Where Herr Hussey was like to walk,
When and how to throw the chalk;
What paragraph you must translate,
If Davis starts with six or eight.

How to feint and how to stall
Now you've learned, no use at all.
How to sit as steeped in thought
When a-napping you've been caught
Where the nightwatch vigil keeps—
When and how and where he sleeps.
What to say and how be looking
When Mrs. Butcher finds you cooking.
Who the kindest chaperones are,
Where to go and just how far.
When to shed tears crocodile
The dean to women to beguile;
To throw Prof. Ellis a knowing smile,
And talk to the boy friend all the while.
These are tricks I learned in college,
And I'll say it's fruitful knowledge.
Some of you will teach, no doubt—
Avoid it brother, like the gout;
For seniors, if you only knew—
They'll pull these same fool stunts on you.

Cheerily, then, my senior stude,
Prepare thee for awakening rude.
Little reck thee of the debts
The first year out of school begets.
Salesmen find these easy prey
They'll get thee ere commencement day,
If thou believest the bunk we hand
With tongue so smooth, and face so bland
Really work because of love
As if inspired by heaven above,
Thou'lt never make the pearly gate,
But get there half a century late.
We will say ere school is over,
Thou wilt soon see fields of clover.
What a glorious thing is this
On the eve of graduation bliss—
To be thinking thoughts so high
As thou art now so once was I.
Thou mayest scoff at our profession
I did once—now my confession.
I never really wanted to teach,
I had to do either that or preach.
Happy if thou sinkest not in
This treacherous pedagogical sin
Ah! that thou couldst know thy joy
Ere commencement, college boy!

—Jess Peirce.

CURRENT CAMPUS COMMENT

Jane Glascock: "You know I'm so scared I'll get cancer. One of my friends died of cancer and she was perfectly beautiful!

Prof. Griffitts: (in Chem. Lecture): "This is a good compound to use in putting people to sleep. Another thing good for the same purpose is a Chem. Lecture."

The Campus Market

By Forrest J. Robertson

The last few weeks of school at Maryville might well be called the season of banquets, so far as clubs and organizations are concerned. The debaters, the glee singers, the lawyers, the doctors, the fellowshipers, any group may end the year's festivities at the banquet table. I have had the pleasure of attending three within the last week, and I quite agree that the custom of eating, drinking, and being merry, is a pleasureable conclusion.

After one has eaten in Pearson's for almost the whole of nine months there is a temptation to over-eat when he is served at a banquet. There may be a danger alright, and my pre-medical room-mate warns against it.

—:—

My ministerial friend Bob Jones also carefully refrains from gluttonous intemperance and slowly minces his mints in the meantime.

Of course none of the banquets I have attended have been copies of the ancient Roman banquets, and none of the courses, so far as I know, have been made up exclusively of peacock's tongues. But then really, I probably wouldn't know it.

Anything almost is a banquet by comparison to our regular rolls and corn. Four of us often go down to Reagan's and order a chicken dinner (egg sandwich) and call it a banquet.

—:—

One of the merriest of feasts, however, in our list is the mid-night feast in a neighbor's room. Someone nearby often brings in a supply of fruits, cakes, sweets, and juices to stimulate us on to harder studies farther on into the night.

—:—

Banquets are an important part of the activities about this time of he year. If you miss the banquets you miss the refreshing consolance and the good wishes of a toast.

QUEER SUPERSTITIONS

Superstitions regarding the prevention and cure of disease have persisted from time immemorial, many of them being still prevalent in the more backward sections of the country. A few were called to mind by a recent writer, in noting the death of an aged Kentuckian who continued to wear earrings to the last, in the belief that they were good for his eyesight.

Another old-time notion was that wearing a mustache was beneficial to weak eys, just as it was thought that carrying a buckeye or a potato in the pocket would prevent or cure rheumatism.

One doesn't have to be so very old to remember when children were caused to wear a little bag of asafetida strung around the neck as a protection against "catching" diseases, and when in many homes bunches of various dried herbs were hung about for the same purpose. Some believed that keeping a goat around the house was a prime health measure.

The writer remembers being warned when a boy not to wade in water when afflicted with hives,, lest they "strike to his heart and kill him". He waded, nevertheless, and lives to tell the tale.

These superstitions, like the belief that a horsehair placed in the rain barrel would turn into a snake, are gradually dying out—but many presumably intelligent persons to this day will refuse to take the third light from a match or walk under a ladder for fear of dire consequences.

GLEE CLUB PERFORMS WELL

The Glee Club Concert held in the chapel on Monday evening, May 12, was a decided improvement over the Fall Concert. It was a well arranged program, indicative of much work and thought.

The lighter numbers were thoroughly enjoyed as well as the classical selections. Forrest Robertson's readings were an outstanding feature of the program. Ross and Briggs impersonations were very clever and added variety to the entertainment.

"Dance Macabre" and selection from "The Desert Song" seemed to be especially enjoyed. Perhaps the character of the music, the costumes, and stage setting added to the charm of the music.

Every member of the club should feel that the concert was a very successful perforance, due, perhaps, to the cooperation of the members and the hard training given by Miss Henry.

TAGGART FIRST MAN TO MAKE NATIONAL HONOR FRATERNITY

SENIOR WINS RACE FOR MEMBERSHIP

Carper, Abshear, Await Grades To Qualify.

May 19—To John Taggart, Maryville track captain, and prominent Senior, goes the honor of being the first Maryville man to qualify for the national honorary athletic fraternity, Sigma Delta Psi. With the passing of the swimming test on Friday, Taggart has successfully completed all the tests required and is now eligible for admission.

It is very fitting that such a man as Taggart should be the one to fulfill the hope that Maryville would qualify a man this year for the fraternity. John has made an enviable record in sports during his college career. For four years he has been an outstanding performer on the cinder track, being one of the best sprinters and all round men in this section. This year he served as track captain, cloisng his career in a blaze of glory.

John's speed also made him a handy man in fotball, and last season his clever running and headwork gained for him the quarterback post. Not only has Taggart been prominent in athletics, but he has also taken active part in all scholastic and other activities. He is to be grealy congratulated on this new achievement, which proves that he is a capable all round athlete.

Several other athletes lack only one or two of the tests necessary to qualify. Abshear has yet to pass the shot put, and to be passed on his grades. Carper must psas the swimming test and be given credit for his grades.

The events or tests which Taggart passed and the time or distance made are as follows:

100 yard adsh—10 seconds flat.
Mile run—5.48
High jump—5 feet
Pole Vault—substitution of varsity letter
Broad jump—20 feet 10 inches
Baseball Throw—255 feet
Punt Football—50 yards
Shot Put—Substitution of varsity letter.
Hand stand, fence vault, hand spring—substiution of Penthalon championship
Erect Carriage—passed by committee
Swimming 100 Yards—1:45.

MARYVILLE SPLITS SERIES WITH EAST TENNESSEE TEACHERS AND EMORY AND HENRY

TUSCULUM WINS SWIM MEET, 30-28

French Proves Main Stay of Home Acquatic Group.

Saturday night Tusculum in a revenge meet beat Maryville by a score of 30 to 28. The meet was exciting from the start. Tusculum copped first and second in the 25 yard free style due to "31" Martin's characteristic inability to keep in his lane. Then followed the 100 yard free style, one of the prettiest races of the evening, in which Maryville evened up the score by taking first and second. The 100 yard breast stroke was won by Cudney, who shwed great improvement in his stroke. Kaiser (T), was closely pushed by Butten, came in second. The 50 yard free style went to Tusculum with Maryville taking second and third. Fitzgerald (M) and Perrington (T) swam the 100 yard back stroke and Shields (M) swam the 450 yard free style as an exhibition. Taking no points for the back stroke race, the score stood 17-24 in Maryville's favor. Then came the dives, in which Crothers, Maryville's luminary, was unable to enter because of a cold. Dedi (T) took first, Edris (M) second and Martin (M) third. The dedciding event of the evening was the relay which counted 8 points for the winner. Tusculum gained a slight lead in the first lap of 25 yards, but this was made up in the next fifty. Martin and Dedi, the last men on each team, raced neck and neck for the first fifteen yards, and then, Martin swerved to the side of thep oool, straightened out again, and came in three inches behind Dedi losing the relay. This made the final score Tusculum 30, Maryville 28.

There are two more meets in prospect, one the interclass meet, the other an all 'Smokie' tournament with other colleges of the conference.

SPORTOGRAPHY

By Bob West

The old baseball season is in full swing now. Coach Honaker has certainly turned out a great bunch of pill smackers.

We have a real team. In backing up this assertion I have but to mention such names as Capt. Earl Blazer and his south paw colleague Parks. These two assisted by Stidham have formed an almost unbeatable horse hide tossing squad. The battery mates behind the bat are very capable and while Bowman is only a freshman still I prophesy that he will go a long way in this baseball racket. All he needs is just a little more experience. First base is very capably held by "Sleepy" White. When Earl is not pitching he is found making the territory around second base no man's land for hits. Short stop and third base are kept air-t-ight by Tom West and Joe Woodard. Aside from being excellent fielders they are also the boys who have been raising such a hulla-baloo in the swatting department. May I add also that it has been rumored that both boys keep hair tonic on their dressers, and were caught "at the bar" drinking coco-cola.

No you're all wet, this paragraph was not written just to take up space. It has its origin in that the editor of this page feels the leading men in sports on the campus are entitled to a little publicity once in a while in fact this column will become a regular attraction if you care to have it so—or perhaps I might as well say that it is to be so anyway.

Now in going back to my subject from which I was so rudely interrupted, I hear Alton Partee, our new baseball manager, ran around town three hours looking for a pint can of striped paint. And that Waddell, our basketball captain, was at one time only seven feet tall.

And now if Shorty Shaw, Farmer Watkins, Tom Cash, Smitty, McDonald, Brute Crow, and Tom Cooper will please pardon me I'll put this typewriter away and no one will be the wiser.

GOLF COURSE FELT TO BE COLLEGE NEED

Student Interest In Scotch Game Mounting Steadily.

In a recent editorial a senior, whose logical mind has long been regarded as a means of solving some of our distressing student problems, has placed the question of a golf course before the student body again.

Of course, we realize that it is getting late in the year to start a discussion of this kind again, but when the writer of this article knows that men are going to Knoxville, and are even resorting to the "Tom Thumb" course downtown, in order to satisfy their golf craze, then it is time something is said about it again.

We have a beautiful campus, and it would be even more beautiful if a few fairways were seen running around it. There is something beautiful as well as modern and progressive looking about a campus which supports a golf course. The author a few weeks ago made a trip to Washington and from the train window was able to see the campuses of Emory and Henry, Salem, and numerous other colleges where students enjoy the out-of-doors in the form of playing golf. Why can't we?

Let's talk it up and perhaps with a little student co-operation this next year we may be able to yell 'Fore' and have that inexpressible sensation which comes to everyone after they swat a long straight drive, which is the ambition of every golfer—just as much so as the desire for a lion by a big game hunter.

Highlanders Return From Four Day Trip; Blazer, West, Woodard Pound Pill

Next Trip, to Harrogate, Brings Season to Close. Capt. Blazer, Mgr. Partee Only Men Lost Through Graduation.

May 19—The Maryville Highlanders gained an even break on the four day road trip on which East Tennessee Teachers and Emory and Henry were played. Against the Teachers, Wednesday the Scotties dropped the first tilt 3-1, but came back Thursday to win in ten innings 13-11. The Highlanders gave the Emory and Henry Wasps a 10 to 8 drubbing on Friday. Saturday the Wasps barely snatched a 3 to 2 verdict. The trip was featured by the heavy hitting of the Highlander nine, with Captain Blazer, Woodard and West in the leading roles in this department.

At Johnson City against the Teachers, the field was muddy and both games were marred by rain. In the first game the Teachers grasped an early lead and were ahead 3-1 at the beginning of the sixth. The Highlanders then tied the score, and had two men on bases with one out, when a hail storm broke up the game. The score reverted to even innings, thus the Teachers won 3 to 1. In the second encounter the Highlanders flashed a powerful offense in the late innings to win out in the tneth 13 to 11.

On Friday at Emory the Highlanders got to move for 22 safe bingles and 10 runs. The Wasps threatened in the seventh and eighth but were stopped after scoring eight runs. Saturday's battle turned out to be a pitching dual between Parks and Mackay. Pete held his own until his mates let him down in the eighth with poor support, and the Wasps gained a close victory. The Highlanders close the season against L. M. U. at Harrogate Thursday and Friday.

A change has been made in the reuirement for a minor in Latin. Courses 1 and 2 are to count on a minor. Pupils entering college with four years of Latin may work off a minor by taking twelve hours of college Latin, instead of the eighteen formerly required. For a major in Latin, a student must take eighteen semester hours above courses 1 and 2.

To us comes the story of a member of last year's men's Home Economics, Robert Dance, that he went home last spring and told his mother he had passed the cooking course, but for his own safety he announced that he flunked the dish washing course.

Letter from James Bradford to Wayne Kimball:

Memorial Hall,
Maryville College,
Maryville, Tennessee,
December 2, 1890.

Dear Wayne:

I have a new wrinkle in my horn. My roommate is program secretary of the Athenian literary society, and has asked me to debate in the mid-winter entertainment. Miss Booth is very much interested in debate. If I can shine brilliantly that night, I'll be on the road to victory. The question is: Have warriors done more than Statesmen? I am determined to do my best with the subject.

While the wind is whistling outside, I am sitting in my cozy room listening to the hickory fire roaring up the stove pipe. My roommate and I have carried up enough wood to last us a week.

On Thanksgiving day recitations were suspended, and we attended religious services at the Friends Church. The service was of a pleasing nature, although somewhat long. After the close of the meeting at two o'clock we ate turkey dinner wherever we were invited. At night a social was held in the college chapel, but "Snap" for once did not hold absolute sway, for some of the ladies arranged a number of charades and tableaux which were creditably acted.

I must quit now and study Greek. Ever hopeful for a bright future,
James Bradford.

Letter from Etta Booth to Helen Cross:

Baldwin Hall,
Maryville College,
Maryville, Tennessee,
December 13, 1890.

Dear Helen:

Last evening Bainonian society was a great success. Miss Sarah Stewart, our president, called the meeting to order. Gracie Lord, as declaimer, was the first to appear before the house. Her piece was "My Ship". Next Lizzie Brown ascended the stage as declaimer, and recited "Dolly Sullivan", well meriting the applause she received. Then "Listen to the Mocking Bird" was exquisitely rendered on the piano by Anna Belle Kiser. The most enjoyable number was the debate. The question was: Should women be allowed to preach? Mollie Caldwell and Susan Porter affirmed it; Sallie Henry and Mary Bartlett denied it. The affirmative won. The final number was a solo by Anna Belle Kiser.

We liked the Athenian midwinter entertainment very much. They gave a lively debate. James Bradford (you remember my mentioning him before) was on the affirmative and did very well, but after the entertainment he came around with the expectation of holding me in conversation. He is always going too far with his attentions toward me. Some day I'll say something that will terminate his devotion.

Last Tuesday was a great day in the history of Maryville College. President and Mrs. Boardman moved into their new home. It is called the Willard Memorial, since Mrs. Jane T. Willard contributed $11,000 for its construction. It is a beautiful, commodious brick residence, and occupies an attractive site on the campus.

I am too sleepy to write any more tonight. I'll tell you about everything Christmas.

Lovingly,
Etta Booth.

Letter from James Bradford to Wayne Kimball:

Memorial Hall,
Maryville College,
Maryville, Tennessee,
January 28, 1891.

Dear Wayne:

We certainly got the best of the Greek professor yesterday. He always severely reprimands a student who comes to class late. This time we were all there waiting for him, but he stood in the hall talking to another professor. We voted unanimously to jump out the window and escape, if he didn't come in ten minutes. Five minutes passed, and Professor was still talking; eighmnuties; ten minutes; every student slid cautiously out the window. The best part about it was that he couldn't scold us the next day.

Almost all the boys look forward to a full moon, for then they may accompany the young ladies to Westminister League at the Presbyterian Church, if they use their most persuasive language with Mrs. Henry. Last Sunday Bill Pierce went forth on this mission to Baldwin. Mrs. Henry asked, "How is the moon tonight Does it shine?" After consulting her almanac and finding that there would be a full moon, she gave her permission for the young ladies to go. Bill went out shouting to the boys, "The moon shines tonight, boys, hooray!" As the moon had only lost a small margin by Wednesday, the boys were allowed to "moonshine" again with the ladies to prayer meeting in town.

I believe Ed and Miss Booth are about to quit. If Ed drops out I think I'll stand a chance. Wayne, give me a handshake on it.

We boys are going down town tonight, and change some signs of offices and stores. We'll take down the sign from the mechanic's shop, "All Kinds of Turning and Twisting Done Here", and put it over the lawyer's entrance.

Your courageous friend,
James Bradford.

Letter from James Bradford to Wayne Kimball:

Maryville, College,
February 21, 1891.

Dear Wayne:

Ed and Miss Booth are closer together now than ever before, for she sprained her ankle playing "Snap" in the chapel, and has needed Ed's most devoted services ever since. I count myself fortunate if I get to pick up a pencil she has dropped.

If you won't laugh at me, I'll tell you how I got the worst end of a prank we played. Saturday it rained hard all day, and by night it was raining pitchforks. John Hamlin, Reuben Daniels, and I decided to go up to the belfry in Anderson and ring the old bell for over two hours. We thought no professor would face the dark and down-pour to stop us. We were to ring forty-five minutfes each. I started on my task while the other two watched in the hall. I had scarcely been ringing twenty mnutes before Professor Elmore bolted in and put a stop to our caprice. He ordered me to appear before the faculty Monday. I discovered that the other two boys, had slipped away and left me alone even before Professor came. Everyone in school knew about my disgrace by the next day. I was given five demerits while the traitors went free, as they hadn't done any ringing. I'm tired of being everlastingly and eternally the object of devilment.

Your sorrow-stricken acquaintance
James Bradford.

Letter from James Bradford to Wayne Kimball:

Maryville, Tenn.,
April 3, 1891.

Dear Wayne:

I see my way clear at last. Miss Booth has given Ed the mitten. There is to be a party at Mrs. Magill's, April 8, so I'm going to write Miss Booth a note asking to be her escort. I await with happy anticipation the trial of this new kind of "moonshine".

President Boardman spoke this morning in chapel on the prosperity of Maryville College within the past few years. We have the new Lamar Memorial Library with the addition of new books every few months. The science department has more commodious quarters and generous equipment. Fourteen seniors are graduating, the largest class in the history of the college. The student body has increased to 250. The only thing to be regretted is the fact that there will be a lack of fruit in Maryville and vicinity, since Will Rankin has carried all the blossoms off and given them to the young ladies.

On the morning of April 1, the wheat field of Professor Fisher, near the college, was as white as snow. We wondered what could be the cause, but on closer examination we found it to be covered with white handkerchiefs. The fair occupants of Baldwin had, during the night, deposited every handkerchief in the building on that field.

All day we were occupied in practical jokes. At night the ladies of Baldwin went down to Mrs. Henry's kitchen to meet the Memorials who had come prepared for a "candy pulling". But when we started to prepare the taffy, we discovered that the ponderous package of sugar was ashes, and the jug purporting to be filled with molasses was in reality filled with water. But later a bag of genuine sugar was produced, and the evening was spent enjoyably. I even had the fortune of pulling with Miss Booth part of the time.

Your devoted pal,
James Bradford.

Miss Etta Booth,

Dear Miss Booth:

Pray, do not be discomfited on receiving this note by the apprehension of its containing a repetion of my desire. May I have the honor of taking you to the party at Mrs. Magill's Friday, April 8, at 7:30 p. m.?

Yours sincerely,
James Bradford.

Dear Mr. Bradford:

Owing to the multiplicity of previous engagements, I am precluded from accepting your gracious offer to accompany me from my domicile to Mrs. Magill's home, Friday, April 8, at 7:30 P. M.

Yours respectfully,
Etta Booth.

Miss Etta Booth,

Dear Miss Booth:

In promulgating your estatic cogitations, and in articulaitng your superficial sentimentalities, or amicable, philosophical, or psychological observations, beware of plalitudinous ponderosities.

Let your conversational communications possess a clarified concisseness, a compacted comprehensibleness, a coalescent consistency, and a concatenated cogency. Eschew all glomerations of platulent garrulity, and bombard expressions. Say what you mean, and mean what you say, and don't use big words.

Cordially yours,
James Bradford.

Letter from James Bradfrd to Wayne Kimball:

Memorial Hall,
April 9, 1891.

Dear Wayne:

Just a word to tell you th news. I have escaped from the tig clutches of Cupid. I never wa really in love with Miss Booth, if I had only known it. I'm enclosing a copy of the note I sent her. It gave me immense pleasure to see her blush when she told me, "You win this time." I took another girl to the party.

Your friend, back to earth again,
James Bradford.

"SUN UP" SENIOR PLAY, PRESENTED TUESDAY, JUNE 3

Vollmer's Drama Pictures N. C. Mountaineers During World War. BALLAD SINGING

Unusual Roles Necessitate Careful Choice of Senior Talent.

Monday, June 2—Tomorrow night in Voorhees Chapel at 8:00 o'clock the Senior Class will present "Sun Up" by Lula Vollmer, a powerful, gripping drama of typical western North Carolina people as they were during the time of the world war. The play is unique, and its theme is in keeping with the conception that most people have of the birth places of the students of Maryville College. Irene Bewley read the play last year, and those who heard it will enjoy the performance, while those who are not familiar with it may anticipate a great treat. "Sun Up" was first produced by the Players Company Inc. at the Provincetown Theatre, New York, in 1923. Since then it has been presented by several well known Chautauqua Companies. In choosing the play, the Senior Class has proved once more their ability to do something different.

Between Acts, the Ballad Singers will regale the audience with some familiar mountain ballads. Some of the numbers are "Barbara Allen", "Wreck of the Old '97" and "The New River Train". The Writer's Work Shop sponsors ballad collecting, and the singers, with one exception, are people who are familiar with the mountain folk and their customs.

The costumes and scenery are simple, but appropriate, and everything has been done to lend the effect of the mountain cabin in which the three acts of play take place. The cast is small, and since the Senior Class possesses a large number of talented actors and actresses, it was necessary to compete for some of the roles. The following cast was chosen:

Widow Cagle—Gladys Graham
Pap Todd—Jesse Peirce
Emmy—Margaret Haynie
Bud—Stanley McCool
Sheriff Weeks—Hayden Laster
Rufe Cagle—Frank Baker
Preacher—Ed Sprouse
The Stranger—Edwin Osborne
Bob—Ernest Ross

CLASSES OF 31 AND '33 ELECT OFFICERS

On May 23rd, the juniors met for the purpose of eletcing class officers for the following school year. Those chosen were:

President—Donald Benn
Vice-President—Mildred Crawford
Secretary—Elizabeth Caldwell
Treasurer—Edgar Shepard
Editor—Elizabeth Cannon
Athletic Manager—Carl Storey

At a meeting of the freshmen the next day, the following officers for the sophomore year were elected:

President—Donald Briggs
Vice-President—Margaret Melody
Secretary—Lura Nash
Treasurer—Benjamin Groves
Editor—Alma Hatmaker
Athletic Managers—Martha Story
Gordon Benn

DEAN'S SON GETS DEGREE

M. H. Barnes, son of Dean and Mrs. J. C. Barnes has been recommended for the degree of doctor of medicine by Dean Darrach of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, New York City. The degree will be conferred on Tuesday, June 3, 1930 by President Nicholas Murray Butler. Dr. Barnes will serve as an interne in the Fifth Avenue Hospital during the next year.

Doctor Wilson attended last week a meeting of the General Assembly at Cincinnati. He returned Saturday.

AWARDS PRESENTED TO '29, '30 WINNERS

Dr. McMurray Gives Unusual Number of Prizes.

Saturday, May 31.—The annual presentation of awards took place in chapel, with Dr. McMurray officiating. There were many such prizes, among the most important being:

The T. T. Alexander Prize—A prize of one hundred dollars in gold is contributed annually by a generous friend of the College, who desires to remain anonymous, and to have the prize named in honor of one of Maryville's foreign missionaries, and is awarded to the winner of an oratorical contest conducted under the supervision of the department of Bible and Religious Education. Winner: Forrest Robertson—$100 in gold.

The Rush Strong Medal—Under the provisions of the will of Mr. Benjamin Rush Strong, of Knoxville, Tennessee, a gold medal, valued at "not less than fifteen, nor more than twenty-five dollars", and known as the Rush Strong Medal, is annually granted to the member of the Freshman class "who shall compose the best essay upon the subject, "The Value of Truth." Winner: Alfreda Scobey.

From the Art Department a Certificate of Proficiency is awarded to Willamara Minton.

The Elizabeth Hillman Chemistry Prize Fund provides "a prize or prizes to be awarded to women students for excellence attained in the department of Chemistry." Winners: For the best essays presented by girls in the advanced Chemistry courses. First prize: Wilma Acton, $25.00 in gold. Essay subject, "The Effect of War upon Chemistry." Second Prize: Florence Wallace, $10 in gold. Essay subject, "Aniline Dyes—An Aid to Happiness." For the best essay presented by girls in the Freshman course, Dolly Putnam

HICKMAN, SEEDORF IN GRADUATE RECITAL

May 31—This evening, the Expression Department presented Miss Evelyn Seedorf in graduate recital and Miss Roberta Hickman in postgraduate recital.

Miss Seedorf read the one-act play "A Minuet" very creditably. Her portrayal of the jailer was especially well done. Miss Hickman read "His First Dress Suit". As usual her presentation captivated the audience. She entered wholeheartedly into her work and no one could fail to laugh as she showed up the life of an ordinary family before the marriage of the only girl.

At the end of the program Mrs. West presented diplomas to the other graduates who are: Edith Woolsey, Faith Taylor, Lois Dillow, Margaret Haynie, Hazel Bowers, Muriel Hall, Margaret Mevis and Hayden Laster.

FAREWELL!

An Editorial

Farewells are such interesting things! Usually tearful though they are, I believe mankind derives a genuine 'kick' from them—or else—Well witness the goodbye showers, farewell sermons, poems and toasts, and the lingering farewells of lovers. One's enemy does not seem such a horrid fellow when one knows that he is seeing him for the last time. Just before bidding our friends 'goodbye' we begin to pass over their faults and dwell at length on their virtues and wonder if we shall ever have any more like them.

So it is with the Class of '30. They are leaving us and we want to give them a farewell party, and "God-speed". We praise them in part because they deserve it and in part because it is mankind's tendency to make farewells go off as nicely as possible. We are going to miss them, even though we can occupy their chapel seats as well as they. Why not? They were here four years.

According to Baccalaureate Addresses, each Senior class is the biggest and the best, and it is to the members of that class. You, members of the Class of '30, believe that your class is the best! Keep thinking that you had the most outstanding athletes, orators and debaters. We would not shatter your illusions. We want you to have that half pleasant 'blue' feeling that you got when you say "this is the last time to do this" We are in sympathy with the poems that you write about the dear old Hill and the instructors whom you love so dearly now that you are about to leave them. Life is made like that. Next year, we will be doing the same thing. It will be sentimental and even silly, but so is everything if one takes that attitude. Some of you will come back to say "the old Hill isn't what it was when I was here", and we will say "Why do old grads come back?"—and someday we will all grow sane and sensible, and die.

WRITERS WORKSHOP TAKES PICNIC

Greenhorns Display Talent at Little River Gruonds.

The Writer's Worshop held its Spring picnic on and in Little River between Walland and Sunshine, Wednesday, May 21, and a good time was had by all—at the expense of the neophytes. After a delicious camp meal the old members were entertained by the unwilling but humble and submissive neophytes each of whom attempted to talk for two minutes on a non-sensical subject. They were constantly interrupted by shouts of "Stay on the subject", "Assume the position", and an occasional and much desired "O-Kay" on the part of the master of ceremonies, Bob Jones.

After the neophytes had entertained and suffered to the satisfaction of the other members Bill Graham read a paper entitled, "The Passing of the Four", in which the four college classmen, freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior were represented as giving speeches typical of their ages of advancement. The outstanding event of the evening was "The Charge of the Light Brigade" in four impersonations given by Bob Jones. After the last charge we all cashed in on the "End of a Perfect Day", gave a few merry rah-has, and rode home a la Essex, Chevrolet, Chevrolet, and Dodge.

Eleanor Kuhlman: "If we had a substitute for snap, so many of us wouldn't sit back and act like fools."

MRS. HORTON VISITS COLLEGE MAID SHOP

Proves Enthusiastic Buyer; Promises Publicity.

As a result of Gov. and Mrs. Horton's visit to College Hill on Thursday, May 22, the College Maid Shop is to obtain considerable favorable publicity. Mrs. Horton visited the Shop and was observing the work when, she saw a box of cloth of gold prints.

"If I had that dress", said she, indicating a black check ensemble, "I should wear it to church."

Although the dress was included in an order, Mrs. McMurray presented it to Mrs. Horton, who immediately took off her expensive crepe and donned the simple print. She went from there to Calderwood still wearing the dress. About 4:00 o'clock she returned to the Shop, and announced that she had come to order some more of 'those adorable dresses'. She spent one half hour selecting them, and then gave an order for four dresses and one white coat. She told Mrs. McMurray that in the past when she attended national club meetings, she had told them much of the scenic beauties of East Tennessee, but that now she should tell them of the College Maid Shop. They were entertained at the home of A. D. Huddleston, who is a member of the Governor's staff. While there, Mrs. Horton told Mr. Huddleston that when Governor Horton began his campaign that she intended to wear College Maid garments all over the State and tell every one the story of College Maids.

111 TO RECEIVE DIPLOMAS ON COMMENCEMENT, THURS., JUNE 5

Representatives of 20 States, 4 Foreign Countries to Graduate.

OHIO TIES N. C.

English, Favorite Subject For Major, History Ranks Second.

The Class of 1930 has made itself prominent on the Hill since its advent in 1926. Whether this attainment of senior distinction has been a result of the survival of the fittest or whether it has been a natural evolution of intelligence, there can be no definite theory advanced; but statistics prove that there are one hundred eleven members of this class, the largest to graduate from Maryville.

These one hundred eleven students represent nineteen states outside of Tennessee, and four foreign countries. Ohio and North Carolina tie for first place in sending the most students from outside Tennessee; each state is represented by eight seniors. Alabama with seven comes second highest. Then, in descending order are: Pennsylvania 6; Virginia New Jersey and Georgia, 5 each; Illinois 4; Kentucky 3; Delaware 2; South Carolina, New York, Connecticutt, Florida, Indiana, Missouri, Maine Texas, and Arkansas, 1 each. Tennessee is represented by forty-nine of its Volunteers. The four foreign countries represented are: Japan, Ireland, Cuba, and Korea.

The members of the class have shown a great variety of talent and abilities in their choice of major subjects. English ranks first with twenty-three English majors, who are as follows: H. Plant, V. Petitt, A. Rhea, J. Peirce, G. Graham, A, Richards, C. Hardison, R. Batt, H. Welsh, M. Bennett, E. Woolsey, E. Blazer, E. Burns, S. Butten, I. Cannon, E. James, R. Jones, A. McGuire, M. Mevis, E. Myers, E. Nash, M. Nelson and B. Stearns.

History comes second with sixteen majors who are as follows: L. Coulter, I. Crowley, J. A. Davis, P. Dickinson, C. Fowler, E. G. Howard, A. Alexander, J. Bennett, O. Biggs, V. Boyd, C. Brown, C. Kim, C. Hunnicutt A. Partee, F. Roberson, M. E. Sullivan. Political and Social Science ranks a close third with fifteen majors, namely, C. Felknor, P.

"SOCIAL SURVEY OF BLOUNT CO." READY

Dr. McMurray's Classes Finish Valuable Project.

After many weeks of extensive and intensive research, the students from the classes in General Sociology and Rural Sociology under the direction of Dr. . H. McMurray have completed and are publishing the SOCIAL SURVEY OF BLOUNT COUNTY, which is a survey of all the conditions affecting the lives of the citizens of the county. There were seventeen committes at work and data were collected from the capitol at Wasihngton, from the state capitol at Nashville, Blount County Court House, and from letters sent to towns and villages throughout the country requesting various kinds of information.

It is a source of general information, "not only to professors, bankers, ,and lawyers, but to housewives to teachers, to workers, to college, high school, and even grade school students, and to every person living in or interested in Blount County." The material has been gathered with a view to a brief history of the matter, a more complete survey of present conditions, followed by recognition of evidences of progress and a statement of whatever needs are evident. The work has been kept clear of all tendecies towards any possible prejudices."

The following details are contained in the volume: Introduction, History, Towns, Population, Wealth and Taxation, Industries, Agriculture, Natural Resources, Summer Resorts, Roads and Highways, Schools, Churches, Fraternal Orders, Clubs, Politics and Parties, Public Protection, Health Work, Evidences of Progress, Yesterday and Tomorrow.

It was announced that the volume would sell for seventy-five cents but due to quantity production it will be possible for all students to purchase it for fifty cents. Five hundrfd copies are being printed and it will be on sale for all who wish a copy of the authentic "Social Survey of Blount County."

TO MARYVILLE BUSINESSMEN

I take this opportunity to express my appreciation and thanks to the Business Men of Maryville who have suported us in the publication of the Highland Echo during the past year. Without your support we could not have succeeded.

We hope you have been benefitted by your advertising.

GOV. HORTON SPEAKS IN M. C. CHAPEL

Governor Horton and Mrs. Horton accompanied by Colonel and Mrs. A. D. Huddleston, visited Maryville College May 22. In his speech of welcome Dr. Wilson requested Mr. Horton to call out the militia to down those enemy legislators who desire to tax colleges for state revenues.

Governor Horton in a brief but forceful talk said that it takes us a long time to find out why we are here. Colleges exist to show us the right path to follow. He assured Dr. Wilson that colleges will not be taxed for the privilege of doing the state's work.

SILVER PAINT AIDS CAMPUS BEAUTIFUL

Within the past week the fire plugs, posts, and all other monumental structures on the campus have been painted a silver color which reveals unusual lines of beauty of these heretofore ordinary objects of scorn and kicks. Red must be considered a dangerous color when the college authorities decree that even the fire plugs should be painted a silver hue.

Evidently this choice of color is to commemorate some faculty member's twenty-five years of wedlock or else there was an excess of aluminum color at the Alcoa plant.

THE PARABLE OF GRADES

The fashion of college courses is in general like unto this. A certain professor said to his students, We are going, all of us, on a journey into the subject matter of this course. Behold, I give to each of you one textbook, a list of readings, and an unsullied notebook. Make good use of them until the end of the semester and at the end of that time I shall give three a grade according to the use thou hast made of them.

And at the end of the course, one came to the professor and said, Lo, professor, here is my textbook. Behold, I have filled it with marginal notes and comments. I have underlined all the important passages, and I shall always treasure it as my own. The reading list I have taken seriously, and have read every page called for in it; behold, full notes of my reading are in my notebook. My notebook contains besides notes of every one of your lectures. I wouldn't lose it for anything, and I think this has simply been the most helpful course I've had in college. And the professor was greatly pleased and said, Well done, good and faithful student, thou hast worked most diligently according to my own most approved ideas. "A" shall be thy grade, and I shall enter thy name forthwith on the Honr Roll.

And, after a time, another came and said, Lo, Professor, here is my textbook, which I have read through three times, but I didn't mark it any, for I want to sell it for as much as I can get for it. And here's my reading list of which I have read about half, for I discovered that some of the books almost duplicate others and I couldn't see any use in reading it all. You can look at my notebook too if you wish. It has some notes on the reading and on some of the lectures. I lost it once in the middle of the semester for about two weeks but found it again, and, of course, the notes for that time are not in it. And to him the professor said, Thou seemest to have only a fair idea of the course. Thy grade is "C" unless there are too many other "C's" in which case I shall have to give thee a "D". I shall enter thy name in the list of those who have passed."

At the last came another also, saying, "Professor here's my text. I never even took the cover off it, because I've got to sell it, and this hard-bunch at the book store don't give you nothin' for a book if it's even scratched. And I didn't try to read none of the books on the list, for they've been missing books from the library lately, and I couldn't afford to stick around the library and get the librarians after me too, with nearly everybody else riding me. And as for the notebook, I did not try to take no notes, for I've noticed these fellers that do get em wrong as often as they do right, and I knew anyway how hard boiled you are about exams, never askin' any questions we've had in class nohow, so here's my lay out."

And the professor was very angry and sore vexed by the impudent student and he said, "I'll show thee how hard boiled I am. Thou oughtest to have studied thy text book; thou oughtest to have read two hours a day in the library; thou oughtest to have made notes in thy notebook against the day of examination. Behold, I shall report thee to the Dean, and he shall deliver thee to the railway conductor, and he shall deliver thee to thine irate parents, and I shall enter thy name on the list of those who have flunked." And the professor strode from the room and went home to his patient wife and innocent children.

A Tribute

Coming at this time when the members of the Class of '30, individually and collectively are being praised for their many accomplishments, this tribute may seem superfluous, but we of the new Highland Echo Staff have something to get off our chests, and what better way is there to put it across than through the medium of an editorial in our first issue.

Jesse Peirce is a very versatile fellow. He has taken part in a number of plays, and has not been hissed off the stage; he has been there for years as Cheer Leader, urging the reluctant moonshiners and other bleacher warmers to give the struggling foot ball heroes a peppy "Howie, Howie". The Chilhowean told us that and more. It dubbed him as the power behind the Highland Echo throne. And in spite of Jesse's aversion to that term, it is because he has exerted so much power in our newspaper world that space is being devoted to this article. We have had a new office almost all year. Why? Because Jesse out talked the 'powers that be'. We have had a paper with recognizable cuts because the Editor realized the value of a good picture not only as a space filler, but because the public likes its news illustrated. We've had a newspaper, not a magazine, because at weekly staff meetings Jesse pointed out the difference. It was the biggest and best paper for these reasons and more. We will have to work hard to beat it, and if we do the credit will go to him because he was our teacher.

Maybe this isn't our last stab at you, Jesse. Good luck. If you pick up any news, send it in.

Cramming Contests

The 'cramming contests' are almost over. Headaches from unaccustomer study will soon have abated. It won't be long now until we have an opportunity to recover from this nerve strain that we have been undergoing. We need it.

Only the Seniors, with some few exceptions, escape the ordeal. How delightful it would be if we underclassmen could approach the last two weeks of school with some feeling other than dread, apprehension or even fear! We realize, of course, that too much has already been said upon this subject, that little good can be accomplished by the protest, but still there's the hope that the sentiments which we voice will be fervently "amened" by some who have the ability and determination to make the change. This is not a reflection simply upon Maryville College, but upon the educational system as a whole.

We come to college in order that we may learn to make choices. We expect to get our sense of values adjusted. We make helpful social contacts. Because of their intelligence, experience and training, the instructors are to be our guides and to direct our thinking. And yet we go with reluctance to classes; we rejoice when holidays come and we are required to take courses that we shall never use. A person usually gets what he wants. If he desn't see the need why learn it? And yet one does it. We are able to recite glibly parrot fashion in classes that we have no interest in, and when exam time comes we cram and stuff facts into our heads as if we were buckets and knowledge a fluid to be poured therein. Our parents get our report cards. An "A" means that one has cut class only two or three times, hasn't incurred the instructor's displeasure, and has set down enough facts in a blue book to earn him the score of 95. Education? "Cramming Contest" I term it.

THERE'S A BEAN IN EVERY STEW

Old Satan was sitting at ease on his throne,
His hoofs resting firmly on melting hot stone,
His tail with its arrow was curled in the rear
And curved were his horns like the horns of a steer.

He was thinking was Satan of problems new,
The problems of Earthfolk—he wanted his due.
To start with was Hoover, a great president,
Who made prosperity wherever he went.

Tis sin, thought old Satan, that men such as he Should thwart the desires of a great guy like me.
Then too there was Stimson, the navy's great chief,
That all war should end was his only belief.

And Coolidge, once mighty in our nation's sun
Had calmly declared that he'd not again run.
Satan sat thinking with his hand on red chin
Till he noticed an imp who just had come in.

"A cable from Earth", said the imp with a smile.
Said Satan, "A tip, and it's well worth your while."
He gave him a soul, which he well could afford,
He read, "Henry gave birth to the ten millionth Ford."

"Curses," quoth Satan, and he spi out a flame,
"If more go to churches I'll know who to blame."
But these things were nothing com pared as you may,
The one Satan wanted old Thomas A

"Now this Edison soon must give up the ghost
And come down to this place forever to roast."
The devil spoke truly and Thomas left life,
And slid straight to Hell on the edge of a knife.

He arrived with a slice and Satan appeared,
He saw that Old Thomas was tough as he feared,
Ah, hah, now I have you," he shouted in glee,
"On the earth you gave competition to me."

"You invented the noise making phonograph,"
Said, Satan quite loudly with devil ish laugh.
"I did," said sweet Thomas and trembled in fear,
"I have made the worst noise you ever could hear."

'You invented the thing that gives off a light,
A light bulb you call it, turns day into night."
Satan spoke slowly, from the truth he did stray,
For really the light bulb turns night into day.

"I did", said our Tommy, "And guilty I plead,
I hope you'll forgive me and give me full heed."
'I'll not!" roared old Satan with four wreaths of smoke,
And then it was Tommy who once again spoke.

'But Satan, dear fellow, my tale's not begun,
I never was known to hole out in one!"
Then a smile crossed old Satan's feverish face,
"I'll gladly forgive you if that is the case."

"You're the first one I've found since Hell was begun Who's not had the honor to hole out in one."
So then both of them shook and all was made well
And with arm linked in arm they rambled through Hell.

—Brenton Stearns.

RABBIT CHASED BY M. C. BOYS

The other evening after supper Maryville campus was the scene of strange sights and sounds. A score or more of men under, or rather behind, the noble leadership of Professor Thrower were in hot pursuit of a rabbit. They discovered bunny at the corner of Pearsons, and he, alarmed by their hostile glances, took to his heels. They chased him past the post-office, Science Hall, and then, on and on, in general circuits over the campus.

Brer rabbit essayed to escape to the woods—but in vain. A couple of dashing young track champions circumvented him and made him turn his course toward the practice house. Closer and closer came his pursuers, Professor Thrower by his speed putting to shame his followers. Out of the practice house popped heads, as if to see John Gilpin pass. Miss Meiselwitz and Miss Adkins lent their merry laughter to the chase.

Professor Kiger, representing the S. P. C. A., stood on the side lines and cheered, not the pursuers, but bunny. It was, no doubt, this encouragement which spurred Peter rabbit to make his escape into town.

SENIOR NIGHT IN BAINONIAN

Saturday night was senior night in Bainonian. The seniors gave the program, were awarded diplomas, and presented a gift to the society.

The program consisted of a vocal solo, "My Garden", by Eleanor Kuhlman; a piano solo, "Black Key Etude", by Marion Johnson; and ast will and testament by Hilda Farnham.

Miss Bonnie Hudson, a former Bainonian president made a speech n which she expressed the sentiment, "Once a Bainonian, always a Bainonian, although a faculty member." She presented to the seniors diploms conveying the degree Bachelor of Bainonian.

The seniors' gift to the society is a suit of wicker furniture, new curtains, and covers for the table and piano. Another donation of the seniors is a thorough cleaning of the hall. Olive Clopton says that Bainonian hall now is as nearly clean as it has been in its whole history.

SPORTS

JOE WOODARD TOPS MARYVILLE SLUGGERS

The 1930 schedule of the Maryville Highlanders was brought to a close with two overwhelming victories over Lincoln Memorial University at Harrogate, May 22 and 23. Thirteen games were won and seven lost, which is a good percentage of victories for a team which had lost five regulars, and whose places were filled with new men. The outlook for next year is very bright as Captain Earl Blazer is the only regular lost by graduation. His loss will be keenly felt, however. Blazer has been a versatile performer during his college career and has worked wherever he was most needed, playing second base in the outfield or pitching. His hitting has been all that one could ask.

Batting averages of the Highlanders for the season just closed show that Joe Woodard, freshman third sacker leads the hitters with an average of .517. He has seven home runs to his credit also. The stick work of Woodard reminds local fans of John Stone, former Highlander, now with the Detroit Tigers. Captain Earl Blazer with an average of .436 comes second. Always a steady hitter, Earl's work in the last part of the season was nothing less than sensational. Smith comes third with .407, and Watkins fourth, with .354. The team average is .339.

Tom Cooper to Professor Walker: "How much do you owe me from my physics refund?"

Prof. Walker: "I don't owe you anything, but you owe me for four night's lodging. You went to sleep in my class four times."

SPORTOGRAPY

By Bob West

Maryville Highlanders have played their last baseball game of the season. They have closed one of the best seasons in years and especially considering the fact that only one varsity player is to be lost through graduation. The team is composed of Sophs and Freshs.

And here's to this varsity man, Capt. Blazer, whose services as pitcher has led the Maryville team to victory many times since he came to his (at present almost) Alma Mater. He will be missed when the next curtain raises announcing the beginning of the baseball season. Our best wishes go with you Earl.

By the way I hear that after the L. M. U. game our own home run hitting freshman—Woodard, showed a most pronounced and remarkable interest in the humanitarian movement. He was found sitting in the moonlight with one of the fair coeds and when questioned as to why he was acting thus replied: "I think a woman needs a chaperone until she can call some chap her own."

When I asked Tom what kind of girl he was with (you understand what I mean) he very kindly informed me of several of her characteristics, one of which was she was a suicide blonde—Dyed by her own hand.

When a member of the team gets sick it is a custom to call a doctor. So when one called to see Sleepy White, who had over eaten, Sleepy very absent-mindedly informed the announcer that: "I can't see him. Tell him I'm sick."

Well I could carry on this chatter indefinitely but to tell the truth I am up to my ankles in work—and I mean Head First.

'30 TENNIS SEASON IS REAL SUCCESS

The Highlander Tennis team enjoyed a great deal of success during the past season which is attested to by the fact that hey won five, los one, and tied two of the eight maches played. Nine matches were scheduled but the last one with Chattanooga U. was rained out.

The season opened with a match against Tennessee Wesleyan on March 24. This resulted in a tie, each team capturing two of the four matches played. On April 7 there was a return match with Tennessee Wesleyan and the Highlanders came out victorious winning four out of five singles and both doubles matches. On April 10 Maryville suffered her only defeat of the year at the hands of the University of Tennessee racqueteers. Tennessee won four out of five singles and one of the two doubles matches played. On April 17 there was another match with Tusculum at Maryville. The Highlanders were in a wicked mood for they walked over the Tusculum boys to the tune of five to one. Maryville won every match on the card except one of the singles.

On April 22-24 the Highlanders took a trip through Kentucky and played Centre and Georgetown Colleges enroute. The match with Georgetown resulted in a three to three tie, Maryville winning two out of four singles and one out of two doubles matches played. At Centre the Highlanders ran amuck to win by the score of four to two over the strong Centre team. The boys captured three singles and one doubles match.

Tusculum was met at Greeneville on April 28 and again the Highlanders turned in a five to one win over these opponents, capturing three singles and both doubles matches. A match with Catawba at Maryville on May 9 was rained out after Maryville had gained a two to nothing lead by winning two doubles matches. The last match of the season and as very few of the team are lost by graduation we shall look forward to another year of fine tennis "on the Hill" next season under the capable tutelage of Coach Robert Smith who has done such fine things with the team this year. son with Chattanooga there on May 19 was rained out entirely.

Every member of the squad this year was a consistent winner and every man broke even or better in the final averages. At the end of the season Strain and Swaim were tied for high honors with four wins and two losses each. Buchanan occupied second place with three victories, two defeats and a tie.

King was next on the bracket with four wins, and three defeats. Schleman broke even with two wins and two losses. Barnard won his only match.

The doubles team of Strain-Swaim won six and lost one during the year and King-Buchanan won four and lost three. The season was a big

CLASS SPORTS NEEDS ELIGIBILITY RULES

By Arthur Shaw

During the past few years considerable discussion has arisen over the eligibility of certain students to participate in inter-class sports. This discussion has given rise to a great deal of animosity between classes which if allowed to go on might lead to action more forceful than words.

The purpose of the sponsoring of this branch of athletics is to give the men of Maryville, who cannot for divers reasons participate in Varsity athletics, an opportunity to enter into athletic competition. However, there arises the question from time to time, "Who shall be allowed to play?" It is over this point that there has been so much contention.

There is, at present, no definitely stated laws or rules regarding interclass eligibility, and as there is a need for such it is fitting and proper at this time to offer some suggestions for a few rules that will solve this problem for all times, and do away with the present existing feeling of unfairness.

The four following rules have been drawn up merely as a suggestion to aid in solving all future arguments about class eligibility:

1. Only members of the class as listed in the office of the registrar shall be allowed to play with that class.

2. No man who has previously lettered in varsity competition in the sport being played shall be permitted to compete with his class in that particular sport, either in the same year or any year following.

3. No man who has intentionally dropped from the varsity squad of the sport in question, in the same year, shall be permitted to play with his class in that particular sport.

4. No man who is a member of the varsity squad shall, at the same time, be eligible for inter-class competition.

ABSHEAR ELECTED '31 TRACK CAPTAIN

June 2—Leighton Abshear, dashman, was elected to the captaincy of the 1931 Maryville track team by a recent vote of the twelve lettermen. Abshear is a sophomore, and has two more years at Maryville.

The captain-elect has been a dependable point winner for two years. He proved his mettle by becoming a varsity sprinter in his freshman year. This was a mighty hard thing to do, as at that time Maryville had two of the best sprinters in this section, Williams and Taggart. Abshear has been improving steadily. He possesses natural speed, and under the tutelage of Coach Thrower has developed a beautiful stride.

With such a worthy leader, we are looking for the Highlander tracksters to come through with flying colors next year. Two men are lost by graduation, Taggart and Carper. These places will be hard to fill, however.

WATKINS HONORED BY BASEBALL MEN

May 28—Farmer Watkins, outfielder, was elected Captain, and Pete Parks, diminutive southpaw pitcher, alternate Captain of the 1931 Highlander baseball team, at a banquet tendered to the baseball squad by Coach and Mrs. L. S. Honaker at their home this evening. Watkins has been a dependable player for three years, and is a capable all-round athlete. Parks, though small in size has proved himself a pitcher of unusual ability.

After the athletes had partaken of a delicious meal, speeches were made by Captain Earl Blazer, only graduating member of the team, Coach Honaker and Assistant Coach Davis. Coach Honaker stated that prospects were bright for good teams in the next two or three years. The election of next year's captain was then held, and speeches were made by the captain-elect, and alternate captain-elect.

The squad then heartily thanked Coach and Mrs. Honaker for the fine meal, and departed for the show. Twelve men and the manager have been designated to receive letters. These men are: Captain Blazer, Captain-elect Watkins, Alternate Captain-elect Park, Smith, Teffeteller, White, Woodard, Hurst, Bowman, Benn, Stidham, and Manager Partee.

SENIOR CLASS

Vogel, J. Hoyt, W. Whitman, F. Baker, W. Barnard, R. Waddel, M. Biggs, S. McMillan, W. Mayer, F. I. Robertson, H. Schleman, A. Shaw, J. Taggart, and N. White.

Psychology has thirteen majors, namely: K. Copeland, L. Dillow, W. Frost, H. Gleason, E. Hampton, R. Hickman, M. Johnson, J. McClellan, H. Scroggins, J. Spainhour, F. Taylor, F. Turner and A. Woods.

The Science Department classes sixteen among its majors, ten biology majors, and six chemistry majors. Those majoring in biology are: C. Dalton, M. E. Deaderick, W. Hope, L. Carson, E. Hunter, V. Pearson, E. Ross, L. Stanberry, W. Stinnett and M. E. Whetsell. Those majoring in chemistry are: W. Acton, J. Anderson, S. McCool, I. Morrison, D. Smith, and T. Whitehead. The following nine seniors are majoring in mathematics: B. Crow, H. Farnum, M. Haynie, M. Carper, R. Cherry, O. Clopton, F. McDevitt, J. B. Pectol, and E. Sprouse.

The Language Department classes seven seniors among its majors: Latin: F. Crabill and E. Osborne; Spanish: E. Davidson and R. L. Green; French: W. Elzey, A. Ghigo, and A. Herdman.

The following six girls are home economics majors: G. Green, P. Bowman, D. L. Lewis, J. Moore, M. Nelms, and R. Pearson.

Six members of the class are majoring in religious education and Bible. They are: Religious educaton: W. N. Harold and H. Laster; Bible: R. Buchanan, E. Kuhlman, R. Reese and E. Seedorf.

Surely Maryville should be justly proud of her one hundred eleven English teachers, historians, politicians, psychologists, linguists, scientists, preachers, mathematician, and cooks; and the world should be exceedingly grateful.

PROF. GRIFFITTS TO RECEIVE M. S. DEGREE

Professor F. A. Griffitts expects to complete his requirements for the degree of M. S. this summer at Iowa State College. By way of research work, he is exploring an unknown field of chemistry; he is testing the solvency of vanadium oxytrichloride, a beautiful yellow liquid.

He has been working with this interesting compound for about a year. Last summer he was at Iowa State and, unfortunately, he had an explosion in the course of his experiments. In a further effort to discover its properties of solvency, he has used some of his spare time during the college year for investigations. One night he was up till after two o'clock in the morning observing the outcome of a solubility experiment. If Professor Griffitts has a successful summed at Iowa State College, he will have enough data to write a thesis on his observations for his M. S. degree.

When asked whether he was likely to make any important discoveries, he replied that he probably would not, "but", he added, "any kind of investigation into an unknown field has value." It is rumored, however, that he did make some valuable findings last summer.

Chemists have always been interested in the solvent action of different substances. A long time ago, men were seeking a universal solvent. The freshman instructor remarked that it seems to be a "universal fad" for chemists to experiment with solvency. It was, therefore, perfectly natural for Professar Griffitts to choose this type of research.

TOURNAMENT ENDED HAMRICK CHAMPION

May 23—The srping tennis tournament came to a close today when Inez Hamrick defeated Pauline Howe, 6-4, 7-5. The match was exceedingly close and interesting as these two young women battled for championship in the fall tournament. Both played a splendid and flashy game throughout.

Miss Hamrick not only takes the honor of being tennis champion for the year, but she scored the highest in the Women's Athletic Point System this year, her points numbering 595.

TRIANGLE CLUB

May 20—At the last meeting of the Triangle Club for the year, the graduating members disclosed their plans for the next few years. The meeting was held in honor of these seniors.

"Al" Foreman, the president of the club, presented each senior member with a diploma which expressed the appreciation of the other members for their services to the club. Each senior after receiving his diploma spoke briefly of his plans for the future. Three of them are entering theological seminaries next fall. Jesse Peirce is going to Union Seminary at New York, and Bob Jones and Billy Mayer will attend Princeton Seminary. Two of the graduating members aspire to Harvard University. Bill Barnard is going to Harvard Law School, and Paul Dickinson will attend Harvard University after he has spent a year in teaching. There is one doctor in the group. Stanley McCool will enter Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia. John Taggart plans to teach and coach football at Witherspoon College in Kentucky. Marjorie Nelson will teach at Clayton, New Jersey, Edwin Osborne said that he would continue his study of Latin and Greek at Vanderbilt University

RETREAT OF 'Y' OFFICERS

Sunday, May 25—At five o'clock this afternoon the retiring and incoming officers and cabinets of the Y. M. C. A. started out on their Spring retreat which was held this year in the College Woods in a small clearing just across the creek from Dr. Stevenson's home.

The first thing on the program was supper and all hands "laid to" with a vigor on weiner sandwiches coffee and pie, the weiners being roasted or burned as the case might be.

After the supper and remains had been devoured, the men had a discussion group with the various activities of the coming year as a subject. There was a plea for representatives to go to Blue Ridge and also a financial report. After the business meeting was over all new men were forced to run the gauntlet of belts, and the meeting adjourned.

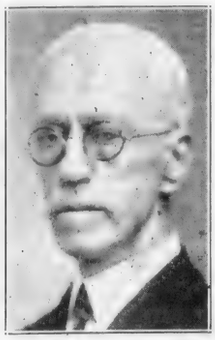
Dr. Wilson Sails For Syria After 29 Years of Service

Dr. Lloyd, Alumnus, Favored By Board of Directors.

STUDENTS WIRE

Dr. Hunter Serves As Acting President of College

Dr. Wilson has sailed for Syria. He has done his work thoroughly during his connection with the college.



Dr. Hunter, as acting President, is proving himself a capable executive, and under his efficient management things go on the same. But we miss Dr. Wilson.

Dr. Wilson had been connected with the college faculty since 1884. Born in Homs, Syria 1858, he entered Maryville at the age of 15 as a member of the Senior Preparatory Class. He graduated in 1878, and spent his time from 1879 until 1882 in the Lane Theological Seminary. From there he went to Mexico as a missionary, but repeated attacks of coast fever made it imperative that he leave the mission field. He came to Maryville as Professor of English and Spanish in 1884. He was preident of the college for 29 years and during that time the college has made almost phenominal growth. His influence has not been confined to the college alone for he is one of the outstanding men of the Presbyterian church today.

Not every student of Maryville knew all of those things about Dr. Wilson, but we all know him and there are mornings in chapel that we will feel our loss deeply. We are not able to picture the February Meetings without Dr. Wilson. We cannot forget how truly happy his religion made him. It gave him something else, too, a sort of divine carelessness that only the noble spirits ever achieve.

One of the faculty members says that he cannot forget how cheerful, how apparently carefree and happy Dr. Wilson

MARYVILLE ALUMNUS GAINS DISTINCTION

Mr. John E. Tracy, who graduated from Maryville College in 1901, has recently accepted a professorship in the Law School of Michigan University. Mr. Tracy is one of the many who made Maryville famous, and he is given favorable publicity in an article in the Michigan Alumnus, August 16, 1930, on "Instruction in Corporation Law Expanded."

"Having received his A. B. degree from Maryville College, Tennessee, he continued his legal practice at the University of Wisconsin, after which he practiced law for many years as a member of the firm of Miller, Tracy and Eldridge, Marquette, Mich. While serving as Assistant Director of the Bureau of Exports in Washington during the war, Mr. Tracy was sent on a special mission to Mexico. Since the close of the war, he has been in New York and Chicago specializing in corporation law, particularly corporate financing and reorganizations. He has also wrtten a text book, "Corporate Foreclosures, Receivorships, and Reorganizations."

The degree of LLD. was conferred on him in 1921 by Maryville College."

FALSE RUMORS

Rumors from some unknown source are being circulated that the Badgett-Costner Drug Co. are not in sympathy with the activities of the students on the Hill. Mr. Badgett wishes to brand these rumors as false. The Badgett-Costner Drug Co. will stand behind the students in te future as they have in the past and students are requested not to listen to these idle rumors.

SUMMER WEDDINGS DUE TO MOONSHINE

Cupid Claims Many Victims From Maryville Alumni.

Many alumni and former students of Maryville have reaped the benefits derived from concentrated moonshining and are now living in the state of bliss, town of Maryville. It's another case of the story that's been told and told by the wedding bells that have been ringing all summer. The marriage of Lois Crotwell and Arthur Shaw took place the afternoon of commencement. Lois was a member of the class of '32 and Shorty a member of the class of '30. John Weinand '29 and Christine Hunnicutt '30 were married the Sunday after commencement in Maryville. Frances Turner '30 and Gordon Vanderslice '31 were married this summer and are living in Maryville. Peggy Bird '29 and Maynard Layman '28 also decided that two could live as cheaply as one. Eleanor Kuhlman and Philip Vogel, both of the class of '30, were married the fourth of September. Sarah Moore of the class of '29 was married to George Traylor on July second. Virginia Sting '29, a niece of Miss Hale, was married to Harley Thomas last week. A member of our faculty, Miss Ethel Adkins, was married to J. Earl McCall '29 late this summer. Anna Lou Miller '29 and Z. Earl McAmus, and W. T. Whitman and Naomi Norsworthy were also married this summer.

Of especial interest to the alumni are the marriages of some of their college classmates. Helen Chapman '26 and Robert Bishop '26 were married in Cincinnati in June. Nelle Watkins '28 and William Arthur Young '28 were married in Loudon in August. Christine Painter '24 and Miser R. Richmond '26; David King 24 and Josephine Neale '25; Anne Warwick '28 and Lawrence Brown; Robert Clopton and Barbara Higgin '25; Annette Booth '28 and Edward Carter; Virginia Witherington '25 and Lawrence Wiley, and Alice Gillingham and John McDowell are former Maryvillians who were married during the summer months.

GLEE SINGERS

Sept. 17—About forty men were in line for the preliminary try-out for the Glee Club tonight. Fifteen old men are back and are eager to get started. Twelve new men have passed through the first trial and are going to make the old men work hard for their place.

The second try-out will be a great deal more exacting than the first and the aspirants will get a chance to prove their worth both with the club and in quartets. Sight reading will also be a part of the test.

On account of the large number of old men who have returned and the promising new material, the Glee Singers' Concert will be one of the best in years. Plans are already being made and a big treat is in store for the Maryville audiences.

QUEENER PLANS DEBATE SEASON

Kentucky To Be Scene of Meet Big Year For Frosh.

Professor Queener, as Debate Coach, announces that plans are already under way for a spectacular and successful debate season. Old debaters who are out this year are Mary John Metcalf, Elizabeth Duncan, Alice Renegar, Jesse James, Roy Taylor, William Graham and Richard Strain.

The provincial convention is to be held this year in Kentucky. About ten schools from various parts of Indiana, Kentucky, and Tennessee are to be represented at this convention in contests of oratory, debate, and extemporaneous speaking. Two years ago Maryville won this meet by a large majority.

This year will be a particularly important one for the freshmen also, because three years from now some of this year's freshman debaters will, in all probability, represent Maryville in the National Convention at Washington, D. C. Mr. Queener is planning to select his freshman teams this year, with the idea in mind of making good teams to send to this convention.

The Pi Kappa Delta question has not as yet been decided upon. Maryville has cast her vote, and it will be a matter of only a few days until we learn, whether or not, our choice has been the choice of other colleges.

Maryville is a charter member of Pi Kappa Delta, the national fraternity of oratory and debate. The officers of the chapter this year are: President—Mildred Crawford
Vice President—William Graham
Secretary and Treasurer—
Alice Renegar

Dean and Mrs. Howell are to be congratulated on the birth of a son last summer. The birthday of Peggy's little brother is July 20th.

FALL POW-WOW HELD IN WOODS

Y. M. C. A. Aids in Orientation Program For New Men

Sept. 13—The Y. M. C. A. held its annual Pow Wow tonight in the College Woods. This is one of the biggest events of the orientation program and one which all who attend are sure to remember.

By 7:30 a considerable group had gathered on the steps of the Y. M. C. A. building. Some went inside where they were briefly entertained by an exhibition of tumbling. The call to start sounded and soon everyone was making as much noise as possible while on their way to the big camp fire.

The last requirement to get to the spot was to walk a narrow plank over a stream. "Tiny" Waters decided that it was safer to wade.

Paul Edris led the group in songs and cheers until everyone was hoarse but happy. Jesse James, the president of the Y.M.C.A. gave an unusually appropriate and interesting welcome to new men. Dean Howell was next given the floor, or the ground as the case may be, and after cracking a few witty sayings, urged the Y. M. C. A. to lead in a movement of better cooperation between the students and the faculty. Coach Honaker, our grey-eyed, grey haired man of destiny, kept the crowd laughing at everything in general in an all too short talk. His usual, "that reminds me", could not be forgotten and found its customary place.

The Alpha Sigma Society presented a group of talented men in a varied program. Reno Smith and Donald Briggs very successfully enacted a one-act comedy in which the German immigrant, Briggs, finds that America is not such a free country after all. Briggs reappeared in an encore and kept the crowd

"The Frosh Are Here"

By Julia Terry

Again the campus of Maryville College has gained its customary autumn green-ness. The downpour of freshmen who landed on the Hill last week has freshened the spirits of many upperclassmen and has furnished a never-ending supply of zest for sophomoric witicism, which quality and accomplishment the juniors have duly relinquished to their successors. Perhaps the spirits of '34 will be dampened by the flood of remarks in which they will be drowned during the first few weeks, but these remarks are merely another part of their orientation program which is not limited to after-chapel explanations.

After a careful investigation and observation of what has been said and done by these freshmen the following items of interest and amusement should be mentioned. One girl wonders if the moon shines down here in the winter as well as in the summer. Yes, there's plenty of moonshining done all year around. Another girl remarked that one of her science instructors was the most sarcastical person she had ever heard.

A freshman boy was seen the other evening sitting in the dining room after it had been cleared of its six hundred survivors. Upon being asked why he did not leave he replied, "I am waiting for the table inspection. It says on the blackboard that there will be a table inspection tonight." The notice was meant for the waitresses, but evidently he was a waiter in the true sense of the word. The prize remark occurred at the faculty reception. A freshman boy after passing through the firing line started to shake hands with Georga Burk, who was handing out refreshment tickets. Georga told him that she was not a faculty member but was giving out tickets for the eats, to which he replied, "Oh. I'm very glad to meet you, Miss Eats."

A freshman girl asked Bill Graham if Morris Underwood is a ministerial student, to Bill's huge enjoyment. A freshman boy when being asked if he cared for coffee, misunderstood the question and replied, "Oh, I'm from North Carolina." At the first snap on Wednesday a freshman boringly replied to Naomia Willingham's earnest endeavor to explain the complicated game, "Personally, I'd rather have a baked apple." One freshman insisted on taking junior psychology but his insistence reaped no success. Another boy remarked to Kitty Hodges after she had stamped his registration card, "And I suppose you're Miss Jones.' Kitty didn't suppose.

Many interesting facts obtained from the English placement test might be recorded in the annals of "Believe It or Not". In the space opposite "age last birthday" on the front page of the test, one girl wrote, "September 2, 1930." What a prodigy! Another wrote "nineteen hundred twenty-nine" opposite "High school graduated from"—that's a fair number of high schools! to attend in four years. One part of the test consisted in completing sentences which were incomplete by adding words, subtracting words, multiplying or dividing. In completing a sentence concerning the Mississippi River, a freshman greatly consoled and cheered the weary test graders by stating, "The Mississippi River, which was discovered by DeSoto in 1541, is still there." These fortunate individuals also learned that this river is muddy as well as moody. According to these test papers Webster is wrong in his spelling of certain words. Conspicuous is spelled "conspiquese"; all right, "awight"; strenuous, "straingeant"; weird, "wired"; professor, with his customary two f's.

As a last remark let me console these freshmen by stating that a group of sophomores and juniors lost themselves in Anderson trying to find Professor Queener's history class, and endeavored to enter Miss Clemen's freshman English class. She wouldn't have them. It's all right, freshmen, you'll come out of the deluge high and dry after a few more weeks of delusion and despair.

Highlanders in Fine Fettle For Gridiron Battle With University of Tennessee

Honaker Points Squad For Big Game of Season.

TO CHARTER TRAIN

Vols Have One of Nation's Strongest Grid Teams.

The high light of Maryville's football season occurs next Saturday, September 27, when the Highlanders meet their age-old rivals, the University of Tennessee.

The game will be played in the afternoon at Shield-Watkins field. It is likely that the Maryville supporters will charter a special train to take them to and from Knoxville.

Coach Honaker is pointing his squad particularly for this battle, as the Tennessee Vols are undoubtedly one of the most powerful grid combinations of the country. With all but two or three Highlanders in first class condition, and with a line that promises to be the best in years, it is a matter of question as to what may happen. Predictions can hardly be made, but it is a certainty that Maryville's chances of surprising Tennessee are the best since the time we tied the Vols at 7-7 way back in 1923.

The possible line-up may find "Farmer" Watkins in his fourth year at center; ex-captain MacDonald and Captain Storey at guards; Wilson and Proffitt at the tackles; Rule and White at the ends; Benn, the two half-back positions, and the two hafl-back positions uncertain. Coach has a number of fast men to fill these last two, and will probably not decide on them until the last minute.

Announcement will be made later regarding tickets and transportation.

The Mars-Hill game gave many members of the squad an opportunity to display their talent, and it is possible that some of the newcomers may get in the Tennessee fray.

Coach Neyland at Tennessee has many of his regulars back, including the powerful Hack and Mack combination which has been responsible for many a point for the Vols.

"BEAT U. T.!"

This Saturday the Orange and Garnet goes up against its greatest foe, the University of Tennessee. Tennessee is better than last year, but Maryville is also bigger and stronger than in previous years. Captain Storey and his mates will be fighting to the last ounce of strength— for Maryville—and you. Will you be there to back them up?

BAINONIAN STAGES UNIQUE RUSH WEEK

Four Entertaining Programs Were Week's Features.

The Bainonian Literary Society completed its rush week for the new girls on Saturday night after many weeks of planning and preparation. The first of the programs took place on Monday, September fifteenth, in the form of a Persian Tea in Bainonian Hall. The guests were seated on cushions, and Persian hangings on the walls lent an oriental air to the occasion. Girls dressed in Persian costumes welcomed the new girls and helped serve the refreshments which consisted of spiced tea and grape juice, and macaroons. Music by the Bainonian orchestra, songs by Mary Chris Benn, a former president of Bainonian, and a Persian dance by Murl Underwood and Johnnie Metcalfe constituted the program.

The college woods was the scene of the second opening program where a model plantation had been produced. Cotton plants and girls dressed in colonial costumes transformed the woods into a plantation. Violin solos by Mildred Purviance, and Pat Henry, songs by Jane Duke, and two plays, "The Filming of Uncle Tom's Cabin", and "The Sunday School Lesson" were among the numbers on the program. Watermelon for refreshments further carried out the idea of a plantation.

The third party was the Peanut Party which took place on Friday afternoon on Baldwin lawn and in the Y. W. Reading Room.

The biggest program occurred on Saturday night in the Chapel and was in the form of an excursion, the Bainonian Excursion, in which everybody boarded the Maryville Limited and crossed the United States visiting Atlantic City, Niagara Falls, Chicago, the wild West (where there was a breakdown), and San Francisco. Besides the programs at these stops entertainment was provided by the Red-Cap chorus and the porters' suartet. The refreshments consisting of sandwiches, cakes, bananas, and ice cream were served in lunch boxes tied with green ribbon. The programs were in the form of a regular train ticket, and circulars advertising the excursion were passed out on Friday.

FRESHMEN TO BE GIVEN COURSE IN NEWSPAPER WORK

The Echo is sponsoring a short course in journalism for freshmen, or others, who are interested in that sort of work. Since the college has no journalistic department, it is quite likely that many people have very little knowledge of journalism, and this course is an endeavor to teach the fundamentals of newswriting. Since the freshmen English classes will be assigned work of this kind within a short time, they will find the instruction helpful. The Editor will hold the first meeting and arrangements are being made to secure a speaker for the second meeting, a man of more experience in newspaper work. This is not a regularlf scheduled class. Announcements of the meeting will be made in chapel.

LYCEUM PROGRAM OPENS HERE OCT. 1.

Sept. 22— This year's lyceum, sponsored by the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. promises to be of great interest and educational value. The artists who will appear are internationally known and will bring programs which will insure enjoyable evenings and open the door to a world of art and music.

John Edward Bockewitz, cartoonist-entertainer will present a program combing all the elements of humor, pathos, and drama, as the first program of the year on October 5. Mr. Bockewitz uses two easels and obtains wonderful color effects with dimmers and other electrical appliances. The entertainment will sparkle with humor, wit, and originality for Mr. Bockewitz slogan is that "Nothing is dry but the chalk."

The second Lyceum will be held on October 15 when the Russian Cossack Chorus will come to the college with a program of Russian and Italian songs. This chorus should be fully as good as the Heidelburg Chorus of last year. It has international fame, having sung in many countries of Europe and of Central America.

The Cherniavsky Trio will present a program of selections from master composers some time in January. The other Lyceum numbers have not been definitely decided upon as yet.

In order that everyone may have a fair chance to obtain a reserved seat for the Lyceum, each person in line will be allowed to reserve only four seats.

Prof.'s Wife: "Goodness, John! Where did you get that lighted red lantern?"

Prof.: "I picked it up. Some careless person left it out there by that hole in the road."

We're Glad You're Here

"It's mighty good to be back again", is the common expression that I hear as I go about from day to day on the campus. "I like Maryville", says one frosh, "they make a fellow feel at home here."

The old students eager to get back, and the frosh liking school the very first week! And why? I believe it is because of the welcome that we receive. The students have for each other sincere smiles of greeting, a warm handclasp and interested inquiries concerning summer vacations. The instructors pause in their work to express their pleasure that we are here. Literary societies, the "Y" organizations, and the various clubs are active from the beginning striving to make it easy for the new student 'to fall in line, and to help the old student slip back into his accustomed place with as little friction as possible. Throughout the pages of our paper are advertisements that contain expressions of welcome from the Maryville business men. There are those people who maintain that we are all selfish, that every action is prompted by a selfish motive, and that we are interested in other people only so long as they affect our lives in some important way. Perhaps. But we prefer to believe that the students, teachers, business men of Maryville, and the respecitve organizations on the Hill are sincere when they say:

"We're glad you're here.

We of the Highland Echo Staff are glad that you are here. The Highland Echo is a student publication, a medium through which student activities and opinions are expressed. To be guided by student opinion we must have a clear idea of what that opinion is, and we want each of you to feel that the paper is yours. Our Editor of last year had the same desire when he started the Open Forum. It will remain a part of the paper and we urge all that are interested to contribute letters on problems of campus, national or International interest.

———o———

Loyalty

"So you are going to Maryville College are you? That's a plucky little school. They all turn out for the U. T. game. There are only about 750 of them, but to hear them yell, you would think there were thousands."

A U. T. graduate made that statement four years ago. We wonder if at the end of the game that will be played September 27, the same statement can be made concerning the backing that we give our team. Will the memory of the stinging defeat that we suffered at the hands of U. T. two years ago serve to dampen our spirits? Will we allow the heavy score that Vandy ran up last year cause us to say:

"Oh what's the use? We'll get beat any how?"

It's so easy to yell when we get the touchdowns. Man fears and detests failure in anything. We all play to win, and when defeat comes, all the things that people usually say about losing nobly being preferable to ignoble victory, seem trite. And yet we keep saying them, because there is more than a grain of truth in them. We realize our limitations. We know U. T. has a strong team. But we also know that our men fight hard, that they give all they have even when they realize that the odds are against them. If our men can go on the field eager to battle with such a team as we know the Vols to be, we should be eager in turn to give them all that we have. It is up to us to make the pep meetings the peppiest, the yells the loudest, and attendance at games the largest in the history of our college.

ADDITIONS TO THE LIBRARY

The college library adds a number of books to its shelves every year. This year the list is long and varied.

In the English department there are a number of books on Shakespeare, novels by Kathleen Norris, Warwick Deeping, Sheriff, and others.

The home economics students have some new ettiquette books and two or three on dress.

The psychology and education departments have added several new books on curriculum and teaching.

The Latin and Greek departments have a number of books on Virgil.

The reference books include two new unabridged dictionaries, the Authology of World Poetry, and others.

There are new books on science, mathematics, philosophy, religion, and athletics.

These books are added for the benefit of the students, and the librarians are always glad to help them.

New Providence Presbyterian Church
Maryville, Tennessee
September 12, 1930

To the Editor of the Highland Echo,
College Station,
Maryville, Tenn.

Dear Sir:

It is the custom of our church to make annoucements and give notices to the congregation through a printed folder exclusively. We will be glad to include in this folder appropriate announcements of student entertainments or events, provided such notices are in the hands of the church secretary, Miss Winifred Painter, by 11:00 a. m., or by mail to Presbyterian Manse or phone 340 on the Friday preceding the Sunday upon which announcement is desired. It is useless to send written announcements to the pulpit on Sunday morning.

We would be glad through the medium of your paper to get this information to the secretaries of the various student organizations.

Yours truly,
W. H. Crothers.

HOW ABOUT THE TEACHER?

Rev. Jones had stopped a chat a moment with Jerry.

"Our teacher's sick in bed today," Jerry volunteered.

"Oh, is that so? Whats the complaint?" Mr. Jones asked sympathetically.

"No complaint," replied Jerry blithely. "Everybody's satisfied."

LAW CLUB EXPECTING SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Under the leadership of President James the members of the law club are looking forward to the biggest year in the history of the club. The program for the year will consist chiefly of mock trails, debates, and discussions of a legal nature.

All new men who plan to make law their profession are invited to attend the early meetings of the club. The officers for the year are.

President—Jesse James
Vice President—Roy Taylor
Secretary and Treasurer—
Edwin Shelley
Program Secretary—Ben Groves
Editor—Sam Hatcher
Sergeant-at-Arms—
Homer McCann

PRE-MEDICAL CLUB

The pre-emdical club will hold its first meeting of the year this week. All pre-medical and all other students interested are cordially invited. The aim of this club is to bring together those interested in medicine and to aid in the many problems that they face. The programs are planned to be both interesting and instructive.

It is essential that everyone be out to the first meeting as plans for the year will be made. The program will be as follows:

Opening Address of Welcome to New and Old Members—
President Alvin McCann
The Possibilities of a Pre-Medical Club—Miss Hudson
What We Should Get Out of a Pre-medical Club—
Miss Lucy Lee Silcox
A general discussion of plans for the year led by the President.

LOST AND FOUND

Many students at Maryville do not know that there is an official lost and found department in the registrar's office in Anderson Hall. This ignorance on the part of the loser causes the purchase of another pair of spectacles, a galosh, another umbrella, or what did you lose? On the part of the finder it causes uncertainty as to how to dispose of this compact or that half-used lipstick. The result is obvious: a piling up of countless articles—gloves (that aren't mates), pencils, pens, combs, and finger-nail files that neither the registrar nor the president of the college can utilize.

Fan: "Astounding, the money Babe Ruth makes."

Tan: "Not so strange. I've often heard mother say that a good batter makes good dough."

ALL-L TOGETHER-R

Collegiate: "What did the farmer say in the field?"

Cheerleader: "Yea team! Let's go!"

Dr. Wilson

seemed just before he went away. "And it wasn't because he was through with his work", said the instructor, "I think it was because he has confidence in the college—in its students and teachers.

The Registrar received a card from Dr. Wilson which read:

"I am sailing on a fine litte boat in the sunshine."

Those reading that who know Dr. Wilson will realize that no further comment is necessary.

Dr. Wilson's resignation caused many doubts concerning the future of Maryville to arise. But the knowledge that a call had been sent to Dr. Ralph Waldo Lloyd had been selected to take Dr. Wilson's place dispelled a large number of these doubts.

Dr. Lloyd is a man who has had much experience. Since his graduation from Maryville in 1915 he has had several important positions. For several years now, he has been pastor of the Edgewood Presbyterian Church of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

Dr. Lloyd has not definitely accepted the appointment. However, he is confidently expected to do so. He will not arrive here at Maryville until November.

HIGHLAND FLINGS

The fatal word has just been spoken. The rejected suitor was standing before her, listening to her elaborate explanations of her decision.

"I trust that I have made myself sufficiently plain", she said.

"It's only fair to give nature the credit for that" he murmured, as he retired in good order.

"When will you get your new fur coat, Mama?"

Mother: "Daddy says it can't be done."

Child: "Say, have you ever tried throwing yourself on the floor and kicking your feet the way I do?"

Heard at the Bainonian Plantation Party—"Tommy Atkins McCall (after having eaten watermelon) "This is a damp good party."

Julia Terry—"What shall we do wth these watermelon rinds? Feed them to the college cows?"

Rachel Frost—"No, there's enough water in the milk already."

Anne Smartt—"These Freshmen aren't like they were when I was a Freshman."

Dorothy Kellar—"There's nothing like a freshman sister to keep me humble."

Kinsey—"Hey Coach, do we have a class this period?"

Coach Honaker—"I reckon so. Where does it meet?"

As Several Have Said—By BOB WEST

It has been said that the Prince of Wales will never forget his visit to the United States, because while here he visited Detroit. Now the true reason for this condition on the part of the Prince is because while there he was presented with a Ford. Along the same line of brainless ponderings comes the thought that freshmen never forget their first 'Visit' to college, because they meet upper classmen who present them with———it's really not fair to say. The situation reminds one of the woman who accompanied her husband to the dentist to have his tooth pulled, and then wouldn't let him open his mouth.

Of course, perhaps I shouldn't have started this article with comments concerning the Prince of Wales and freshmen, because there may be among the embryonic emeralds some who have actually been tree sitters or rather managed to sit in a tree.

You know some people imagine that they are being sympathetic when as a matter of fact they are only being inquisitive, but I believe there is something significant in the story that Joseph had a coat of many colors. You remember he later became the greatest politician in Egypt.

—:—

If we could see ourselves as others see us we would never speak to them. The swell head germ is not a foolish one. It always picks out an empty object in which to live.

—:—

The news of the world is becoming more humorous and interesting every day. In a recent newspaper an article stated that a New York jeweler had invented a non-transferable engagement ring. Young men will no longer be able to kill two girls with one stone. Also an Official in one of the South American countries has just died a natural death. It must be a source of satisfaction to his relatives that he outwitted his political opponents to the end.

—:—

If you can always tell a man's calibre by the way he shoots his mouth off then I think I'll stop this. But in personal defense I believe that the bird who books circular tours through revolving doors is quiet a big shot himself.

BAINONIAN

Bainonian Hall,
September 20, 1930

Dear New Girls:

Bainonian's rush-week is almost over. Only one thing remains—our annual excursion—the beginning of the many journeys that Bainonian girls will make throughout the year. But even though the big rush is over, our interest in you has not waned. We are deeply concerned (that reads like a notice from authorities, doesn't it?) about you. We do so want you to be happy.

Bainonian is the oldest girl's society on the Hill, but being old is not the only distinction which it claims. Its members are steady, dependable and original. And how they love life! The Society affords opportunities for the formation of valuable and last friendships. And here is a hint, girls. If you are feeling lonely without that nice man back home, try getting interested in some of our Athenian brothers. They realy aren't so bad. You will like them.

THETA

New Girls, we bid you Welcome!

Theta sincerely wishes for you a most delightful year. We want to do everything possible for your happiness. Don't forget to call on us during these days when you are becoming adjusted. Theta gives you the opportunity to form many beautiful friendships. In Theta we are not alone preparing for life, but we are really living it. All Theta girls are just happy sisters together, and we would like for you new girls to come and spend your college days in our happy family.

Theta Hall is always open to you. Come up and read, rest, play the piano, or talk to your friends. We want Theta to be your home on College Hill. Theta's rush week is September twenty-second to twenty-ninth inclusive. Watch for further notices from Theta. Watch for Theta badges and you will learn the oldl Thetas. Theta is your friend. New Girls, we need you and we hope there is some place in your hearts that we can fill.

SUNSHINE CONFERENCE

The cabinets of the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. held their annual fall conference at Kinzel Springs Hotel from September the sixth to September the eighth.

On the evening of September the sixth Miss Gamble gave an address on the subject "Growing up Spiritually". This was the first instance of a woman's giving the opening address at the Y Conference.

Some of the matters discussed at this conference were the furthering of campus culture, new means of entertainment, and the possibility of procuring music for the dining hall. Professor Howell at the joint cabinet meeting urged the need and the desirability of greater cooperation between student body and faculty. He says that benefits are lost by both sides when the feeling between them is antagonistic. He favors a system af conferences between students and teachers whereby they may become more intimately acquainted.

"ALL QUIET ON WESTERN FRONT" AT PALACE

More than 2,000 war veterans were employed in the making of "All Quiet on the Western Front", coming to the Palace Theatre Monday and Tuesday. Most of them were American ex-service men. The others were soldiers who had served with the German,s French, English, Russians and Italians. Sometimes they wore the uniform of France and other times the gray of Germany. For a month and more they lived together at the huge camp established by Universal on the Irvine ranch, near Los Angeles, sharing the same quarters and food while the battle scenes were being made. There was a perfect spirit of comradeship, the hate of the war forgotten.

Practically every person engaged in filming "All Quiet" had previous military or actual war experience. This was true of women as well as the men. Several of the women appearing in the picture acted as nurses in Europe during the World War.

Nationals from every country, men who had fought each other from digerent war fronts, marched in the troops, engaged in making the picture. Many of them were experts.

This accounts for the startling realism of the hundreds of scenes that comprise the film masterpiece. Veterans from England, the United States, France, Belgium, Germany, Italy, Rumania and other countries were enlisted in the ranks and gave expert advice in setting up and directing the scenes.

Hundreds of members of the American Legion, men from more than a score of states who had seen war in Europe, were employed by the company in making the picture.

SOME RECENT NEWS OF MARYVILLE COLLEGE FACULTY AND ALUMNI

NEW INSTRUCTORS ADDED TO STAFF

Three additions have been made to the college faculty, Professor Logerstedt, Mrs. Smith, and Miss Kennedy, the librarian.

Professor Logerstedt received his A. B. and M. A. from Duke University, Durham, N. Car. He has also studied one year at the University of Tuhingen in Southwestern Germany. Mrs. Smith, who will be connected with the Home Economics department, is a graduate of Harrisburg College at Harrisonburg, Virginia. Miss Kennedy studied at Women's Colege, Montgomery, Alabama and has also studied one year at the University of Columbia.

BEAT U. T. SATURDAY!

VARIOUS ALUMNI IN GRADUATE STUDY

Many alumni and former students of Maryville this summer did graduate work leading to advance degrees.

At the University of Tennessee the following received the Master of Arts degree:

Marvin Troy Berring, Class of '25
Hugh Alexander Coulter, '24
Bonnie Lucille Hudson, '27
Verton Madison Queener, '24
Kenneth Joseph Soukup, '29
Reginald Voorhees, '29
Edgar Roy Walker,, '?
Charles Frederick Webb, '28

D. H. Briggs, of the Class of '19, received his Ph. D. at the University of North Carolina and is going to the Florida State College for Women as director of teacher training.

NUMEROUS GRADS VISIT HILL AGAIN

During the beginning of the college semester, several alumni have revisited College Hill and their old friends here. Dr. McTeer, of '25, led the chapel exercises one morning and spoke to the student body. The class of '28 had three of its graduates here: Wilbur Franklin, who is entering his third year at Princeton Seminary this year; Mary Clopton and Walter Buchanan. The class of '29 made a very good showing. Mary Davenport came over from Alcoa. Mary Chris Benn was here with her mother and her two brothers, who are at present in the college. Virginia (Sting) Thomas, Fancher Smarrt, Earl Keller, Harold Miller, Sarah (Moore) Traylor, and the ever-present Joe Sharp complete the list of twenty-niners.

Some of the most prominent members of the class of '30 were recently back on the campus: Forrest I. Robertson, the orator and debater; Jesse Pierce, the journalist; Frank Baker, the dramatist; Brute Crow, the team manager; Ed Osborne, the linguist; Tom Whitehead, the chemist; John Pectol, the business man; Earl Blazer, the athlete; Charles Felknor, the artist, and the well-known Biggs brothers— all these were back for romance or business reasons.

"Bob" Jenson, 27, 'introduced his wife to the Maryville audience. "Bob" was one of the big shots of the campus before he turned professor. He earned a record in the Westminster Choir School, then he made another record in his choice of a wife.

Raymond Anderson with his mellow tenor voice was also on the list of returned signers. "Ham" Hammontree came back in August and held a Maryville audience in awe at his rendition of "Repent Ye".

Faculty Members Take The Open Road

KIGER——ELLIS

By Dick Strain

If any of the Maryville College students remained on our campus the day after final graduation exercises, I am sure they were quite surprised at the various camping equipment and touring accessories which suddenly seemed to appear upon all our honorable faculty members' cars. The so-called dignity which may as Dean Howell says "be our only weapon", was cast aside leaving our faculty at the mercy of those who would take advantage of the fact.

Among the numerous cars scurrying about campus, one occassionally caught a glimpse of Prof. Kiger's Essex sedan, equipped with a new trunk and a running board holder as if in preparation for a long trip. At 2:00 o'clock, on Friday of June the sixth, Professor Kiger, Professor Ellis and his wife and two students of Maryville followed the advice "Go west, young man" and began an exciting, curious, and happy tour. Our first stop of any importance was made at five oclock Friday afternoon in the mountain fastness of Kentucky. For some unknown reason, our Essex seemed to have a grudge against Fords and insisted upon tangling with one much to the detriment of a fender on each car. After the quarrel was patched up to the entire satisfaction of both Ford and Essex, we proceeded on our way stopping for our first night's rest at Mt. Vernon, Kentucky.

Arriving in Louisville, Saturday our Essex complained of a ruptured fender, and therefore a stop was necessary for an operation which proved very successful. Saturday night was spent in restful slumber (?) in Noble, Illinois.

Sunday morning we drove along until Sunday School time. A stop was made at an interesting little country church near Pattonville, Ill. which proved to be the oldest Protestant Church west of the Mississippi, being organized in 1807 at the time when Spain owned that territory.

Sunday night, our stop was made outside the fast growing metropolis of Kansas City, Mo.

Monday, a little time was taken out to drive about the beautiful grounds of the University of Kansas located in Lawrence. The U. S. Government Indian School, Haskell Institute, was also visited while in Lawrence. Coming through Topeka, the capitol of Kansas, a stop was made to secure information and see the "sights".

PROFESSOR DAVIS' TRIP ABROAD

The summer of 1930 during the months of June, July and August Professor Davis spent abroad. His first stop of any length was in Paris, France. From Paris he travelled through Switzerland and down through Italy stopping at various points of interest. He stayed three days at Rome and then went to Brundisi. At Brundisi he took passage on a little steamer for Greece. His longest stay in Greece was, of course, at Athens. During the eleven days he spent there, however, he took some trips out from the city one of which was

MISS WILKINSON'S TRIP

Miss Wilkinson spent the summer traveling in France and other European countries. Sailing from New York on June 17, she went first to Paris. At the Sorbonne she spent four weeks in study of French conversation, grammar, and literature. Her stay in Paris was livened by week-end trips to Versailles, Fontaineblean, Champigny, and other historical spots. Italy she visited next, and then Switzerland. Her party attended the Passion Play at Oberammergau and then went to England through Belgium and Holland. Miss Wilkinson returned to America on September the third.

FIRST PEP MEETING HELD IN CHAPEL

Temporary Try-Outs For Cheer Leaders Show Talent.

Sept. 19—The first pep meeting of the year was held tonight in the Voorhees Chapel. It was characterized by a capacity crowd who manifested much enthusiasm. The purpose of the meeting was to convince the student body that, even for the Mars Hill game, the team needed backing.

Preliminary try-outs for cheer leaders were conducted. Those trying out were "Tiny" Waters, Joe Hacher, "Preacher" Young and "Nick" Carter. "Tiny" Water's Maryville Chant was particularly effective. Gilmore and Edris still have the 'old fight'. All of the aspirants seemed willing in spirit, but somehow or other, the program was a bit haphazard.

The old students came out strongly with the old Pep Song and Howee Howee and the freshmen gave evidence of willingness to cooperate.

There will be another pep meeting this week. Freshmen, make yourself familiar with the yells and songs. U.T. is an ancient and feared rival. It is up to the student body to show the Highlanders that we are behind them.

TUMBLING

Maryville's tumbling team is peing organized again this year. Seven of last year's squad are back aain, and any new prospects are requested to see Morris Underwood, Clarence Bratschie, or Ed Buchanan for informaton regarding practices and try-outs.

GRIDIRON OUTLOOK BRIGHT THIS YEAR

Honaker Has Largest Squad In Several Years.

On the afternoon of September 3 thirty-one men reported to Coach Honaker for the first football practice of this year. This was a big surprise even to the coaches who had not expected such enthusiasm to be demonstrated on the part of the squad members. At this writing that squad with numerous additions is ready for the first game of the season. It is indeed a squad worth watching for the prospects for a football team at old Maryville have not looked brighter for several years.

In the first place there is an exceptionally large squad out this year. The number at present is somewhere between forty-five and fifty. Several of the newcomers, especially in the line, bring quite a bit of weight with them and will help to a great extent.

Another thing that is causing the coaches to breathe somewhat easier is the fact that two old timers are back with us in the persons of Don Wilson and Josh Proffitt. They are among the best tackles that Maryville ever put out and have already proved that they will be bulwarks in the line both on offense and defense. Shady Payne, another old timer, is back too, and will doubtless see service in the backfield.

The squad this year has rounded into condition much quicker than usual, due in part to the stiffness of the early workouts. Coach began putting the men through hard conditioning workouts from the start with the result that they were ready for rough work in a short

Honakerites Display Power In First Victory of Season

Visitors' Forward Passing Troubles Maryville in Early Stage of Game; Line Shows Up Well.

Sept. 19—Coach Honaker's Maryville College Highlanders opened their 1930 season on the lighted field tonight, by defeating a light but scrappy Mars Hill team 46 to 0.

The Scotties showed plenty of power, especially on defense, but the offensive failed to function smoothly until the second half. Lea Calloway continued his good work of last season, scoring two touchdowns. Mars Hill presented a nice passer in Comnitz and this lad kept the Scotties on the jump in the first quarter with some fine long passes. The visitors could make no headway against the Highlander line.

Maryville scored early as a result of a bocked kick and some off-tackle thrusts by Calloway. Mars Hill opened up immediately, completing accurate passes, which caught the Scotty secondary defense out of position. The Highander offensive ame to life again late in the second quarter again to register two more touchdowns, making the score 20 to 0 at the half.

Mars Hill presented a stubborn defense in the third quarter keeping Maryville subs from penetrating their goal line. At the start of final quarter the Highlander first stringers came back in the fray, and aunched a forward passing attack. Four touchdowns were made in quick succession. Two long passes, Woodard to White, and Calloway to Rule were completed for scores. Calloway time. Only two men are on the injured list, Overly at tackle and Ferguson at center. It is hoped that both will be ready for the U. T. game, but we are not sure.

Pupils in her class listen attentively for any interesting side-lights or close-up glimpses or inside dope or what have you on French modes and manners. One bit of information already imparted deals with dowries. Whereas formerly in France the dowry bestowed on the bride by her father has been a matter of gravest concern to the bridegroom, now the concern about dowries is rapidly dwindling and matrimony is being founded on a sound basis of love. From Rome he travelled up through Germany, then back to France and across the English Channel to England where he spent a few days in London and visited several of the colleges of Oxford. He sailed from Southhampton for New York on the same boat which Dr. Lloyd took, arriving in the New York Harbor on September 7. Professor Davis said that there were so many things that happened that he could not begin to tell them all.

Among the newcomers in the backfield, those who look best at the present time are Blazer, Kiser and Bereski. These men have picked up a great deal in practice and are going to show us things this season. Of the old backs Calloway and Woodard look best with the others not far behind.

In the line we have several newcomers who are showing a great deal of fight. Among these are McArthur, Muzzoti, Rule and Chandler. These men are going to make real Maryville footballers in a short time.

They say that reserves make a football team and as most of the men just mentioned will be reserves, due to the fact that a majority of the positions are already filled by lettermen, you can judge for yourself just how good the prospects are. But Maryville is going to need reserves and plenty of them to cope with the schedule which Coach Honaker has arranged for this season. Maryville will play two of the leading teams of the Southern Conference in Tennessee and Kentucky. Both are favored to win that Conference title by pre-season prediction. In addition to, we have such teams on the schedule as Emory and Henry, one of the best of the smaller college teams in the country, and Howard College of Birmingham which has another great team to test the metal of the Highlanders. There is also Milligan whom we tied last year. They won the Conference title because of that tie. Cumberland University is an unknown team on the schedule but can be depended upon to give the Highlanders a mighty hard fight. All in all, the team has about the hardest schedule that a Maryville team ever tackled. They're going to need every one in school backing them al of the time so let's get out there and give them all we've got.

half day were spent in Beloit, Kansas. Unfortunately our Essex complained of a broken lung and upon having a physical examination, a new piston was found to be needed.

Tuesday night a much needed rest was obtained in Colby, Kansas after touring over Kansas' famous "dirt roads" through a driving rain.

All day Wednesday muddy roads were encountered and our Essex groaned as it slid from one ditch to the other. Wednesday night we reached Loveland, Colorado, which is located on the outskirt of Estes Park—one of the most beautiful parks of natural scenery in our country.

Thursday in Denver we left our westward trail and turned due north into the cowpunchers territory of Wyoming, a stop was made Thursday night at Buffalo, Wyoming where one of our party left us.

Friday we made a stop at the famous Custer Battlefield where General Custer was massacred. A national cemetery of those killed now marks the spot. We had our first contact with the Vanishing American when we passed through a Crow Indian reservation. Friday night was spent in Gardner, Montana near the north entrance of Yellowstone National Park.

Saturday was a busy holiday, the entire day being spent in seeing the sights of Yellowstone National Park. Geyser formations, Old Faithful which erupts to a height of over 200 feet every 62 minutes; and the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone approximately 1-2 mile deep formed the high lights of our Yellowstone tour.

With a right about face and a desire for warmer climes we turned directly south and passed Sunday night in Ogden, Utah. Monday morning we drove the short distance to Salt Lake City and spent the morning looking about that famous Mormon city. Each noon in the Mormon tabernacle a recital is given on the largest pipe organ in the world. This treat was one of the high lights of our entire trip.

Monday night the desert fastness found us encamped in Elko, Nevada. Sagebrush and waste with a vastness that is appalling to the tenderfoot met us on all sides, while the intense heat added to our discomfort.

With a short tour about Reno our party pushed on the state of California stopping Tuesday night in Truckee near the territory of Folsom penitentiary.

Wednesday our party reached their point of parting, Prof. Kiger going to visit his wife and Prof. Ellis bound for Los Angeles.

The high light of all was the good spirit of fun and sportsmanship which was exhibited by our "dignified professors" as they became real fellows out for a good time.

Substitutes were made frequently by the Highlander coach, revealing a wealth of reserve material. The Scotties showed plenty of power but lacked the smoothness of midseason play.

The lighting system which you have seen on the Highlander football field, although only installed ast year, was among the first to be installed on any college field. MR. JAS. W. KING OF THE CLASS OF '25 NEW OFFICE MANAGER FOR PROFFITT'S "THE STUDENT'S STORE"

Mr. James W. King who graduated from Maryville College with the Class of 1925 has succeeded Mr. L. G. Walker as office and credit manager at Proffitt's.

Mr. King, who was known on the Hill as "Jimmie" was a leader in all forms of campus activity from moonshining to athletics, and was one of the best known and liked men on the Hill.

James W. King

Since graduating from Maryville College, Mr. King has taken post graduate work in the University of Chicago, has been connected with one of the large banking institutions in Nashville, and leaves the Geo. M. Spears Co. Accountants and Auditors of that city to come with Proffitt's.

Proffitt's is known as "The Student's Store", being owned and operated by Maryville graduates and former students, so naturally when a vacancy occurred they looked for a Maryville College graduate to fill it and were very fortunate in securing Mr. King.

ROOMS PAINTED

During the summer, a great change came over much of the interior of Carnegie Hall. Thirty-six roms received a brand new coat of oil paint and about fifty double weight new mattresses took the place of some old ones which had served their life time sentence.

A little difficulty was found in keeping the new mattresses where they were first placed, because of the natural desire of some to be generous and trade one that was well broken in for a new one.

DR. LLOYD ACCEPTS PRESIDENCY

M. C. ALUMNUS HEADS COLLEGE

News of Acceptance Received Here With Enthusiasm.

EFFECTIVE NOV. 24

New President Resigns As Church Pastor.

Sept. 28—Today Dr. Ralph Waldo Lloyd wired his acceptance of the presidency of Maryville College. With the arival of this message the anxieties of the various officers of the college were set at rest. He will resign his pastorship November 24 and will arrive here about Thanksgiving.

Dr. Lloyd comes to Maryville well equipped to serve in the capacity of President. He is a man of broad experience.

Graduating from Maryville in 1915 as a cum laude student he was for two years a professor in Westminster College, Salt Lake City, Utah. In 1917 he went to war returning after two years with the rank of First Lieutenant of Field Artillery. After this he spent two years in business with the Fulton Co. of Knoxville, Tenn. While in this business the call came to him to give his life to full time Christian service. He entered McCormack Theological Seminary in 1921. At his graduation he was presented with the chief honor at the disposal of the Seminary i.e. the Bernardine Orme Smith fellowship awarded for highest excellence in studies during the three years of the seminary course. Soon after his graduation he became pastor of the Murphysboro,

Seniors Stage First Party At Theatre

Sept. 25—The lobby of Pearsons was the meeting place of many senior couples at seven o'clock this evening. These embodiments of wisdom gaily trouped down town forgetting all about the theism test which would terrorize them into inactivity tomorrow morning.

Two by two, they went marching into the theatre and up the stairs into the familiar "peanut gallery". After passing an inspection by Edgar Shepard to make sure that they were all dignified. Clara Bow in "Love Among the Millionaires" was the feature of the evening, and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the show. The acting of "little sister", however, seemed to make the biggest hit while the wit of the other characters offered some inspiration to the seniors.

After the show, the party went to Walker's Drug Store where they were all given a place at a table and were told to "fall to." They "fell" rather hard for not an exceedingly long time had elapsed before all the pie-a-la-mode and punch had disappeared.

During the refreshments Edwin Shelley, accompanied by Virginia Carter, entertained by singing "It Happened in Monterey" and "The Moon is Low". Shelley is one of the most talented men in the senior class and everyone enjoyed his mellow voice. Robert Anderson, accompanied by William Cooper, next sang "Old New England Moon" and "Singing a Vagabond Song". He crooned them in a way that would make anyone sentimental. Bill Cooper added a great deal of enjoyment to the party by his snappy playing on the piano and his tenor voice.

The seniors all strolled back in the general direction of the Hill and finally arrived there in time for Miss Molly's eleven o'clock warning. Goodnights were said and the first senior party of the year proved to be a big success.

ADD SENTENCES

Teacher: "Use tariff in a sentence."

Pupil: "My pants are so thin they'll tariff I bend."

NEW SOLUTION FOR STUDENT PROBLEMS

Faculty - Student Committee Organized September 25

Sept. 25—The first meeting of the newly-formed contact committee was held this morning in the president's office at which time problems pertaining to campus and administration were brought before the members present.

Among the problems discussed were: an explanation of the cut system, a definition of senior privileges, the possibility and advisability of having Christian Endeavor on the Hill, and other pertinent matters.

This committee has been formed for the purpose of discussing and settling amicably, problems that occur either among the students themselves or between the students and the faculty. Any problems that come up will be discussed by this representative committee and settled in the best way possible.

The committee is composed of the following faculty members: Dr. Hunter, Miss Caldwell, Dean Barnes and Dean Howell. The following student representatives are members of the committee: Richard Strain, president pro tem of Student Council; seniors, Edward Shelley, Mildred Crawford; juniors: Clarence Bratschie, Julia Terry; sophomore, Norma Spilatore; freshmen, David MacArthur. The committee will hold regular meetings on every second Thursday at three o'clock. Any matters that need explanation on the part of the students should be taken to one of the student representatives.

PAYMENT OF BOARD

Because of the discussion prevalent among the students concerning the payment of board, the following explanation should be made to clear up the situation.

Board is being collected on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week because the treasurer will be occupied with an executive committee meeting of the Board of Directors, the following week. The payments are being collected a few days ahead of the eighth of October, when board is due, but this advance in date does not mean that the students will be paying an extra amount of money.

Board is collected nine times a year, and this second payment is merely being pushed forward a few days to accommodate those collecting the money.

CHANDLER-SINGLETON STYLE SHOW

Chandler-Singleton Company sponsored an unusually attractive style show Tuesday afternoon in Theta Hall. The models shown were extremely different, being mostly black and brown creations. These were of the more extreme and expensive types, but Chandler-Singleton's have a complete line of sports as well as street and formal clothes which they will be glad to show you anytime you can come in.

This space is dedicated to the good joke we forgot.

LYCEUM SEASON OPENS THIS WED.

Bockewitz, Artist, Actor Presents Varied Program

On Wednesday, October the first, at eight o'clock, John Edward Bockewitz, "artist, poet, and actor", will open Maryville's lyceum season. He will present a unique entertainment of animated cartoons, chalk stunts, and humorous specialties.

Mr. Bockewitz can perform many amazing feats. At one time, for instance, as the Hamilton Daily News of Ohio reports it, "he did three things at once, namely, recited a poem, drew a picture, and wrote upside down Lincoln's 'With malice toward none and charity to all'." Only a genius can do tricks of this kind. He must be able to use both hands equally well, and he must be "double-minded", or, as the psychologists term it, he must have a "compartmental mind."

As an artist, Mr. Bockewitz is noted for inventing animated cartoons. By a clever arrangement of colored lights he gives a startling appearance of life to his already beautiful drawings. He uses two large easels, more than a score of colors, and an elaborate system of electrical apparatus.

Because Mr. Bockewitz has been drawing since the age of four, and as he has been entertaining since he was sixteen, he comes with full experience in pleasing the eyes and ears and emotions of his audience.

A special offer has been made to the townspeople of Maryville by the management of the College Lyceum Course. Although the usual admission price for an outsider is $1.00, this first number is being offered at the special price of 75c a person, in the hopes that as many as possible will attend the program.

The date of the second number of the season has been changed from October 15 to October 14. The Russian Cossack Chorus, will, therefore appear thirteen days after the first entertainment.

MEN WORK FOR COLLEGE MAID

15 Earn Expenses Selling College Maid Products.

College Maid Shop, Sept. 27—The College Maid Shop, which has for a long time furnished work for girls who needed extra money, is now putting into operation a plan whereby boys may earn part of their expenses. About fifteen fellows began selling College Maid products in Knoxville last Monday. The plan is for each salesman to have a definite district which he will "work", making a complete circuit once in two weeks.

This new work makes about half of the cost of producing "College Maid" goods come back to the students. Girls in the sewing room are paid by the piece, and salesmen are paid on a generous commission basis.

Last year some 240 women earned at least part of their expenses in the shop. Whatever vacancies occur in the sales staff will be filled rapidly, but the summer months will offer opportunities for work to an additional number of college men.

The College Maid Shop, which occupies the large basement of Thaw Hall has grown in a few years from what was thought to be a poor investment to a profitable enterprise of large proportions. Here are manufactured house dresses, smocks, nurse's uniforms, pajamas, (women's pajamas and men's tropical suits), aprons of all kinds.

The little college factory sells its products in cities all over the United States, as well as in Maryville and Knoxville. J. L. Hudson, of Detroit, one of the largest stores in the Merchants' Retail and Research Corporation, has bought College Maid aprons for the past four years.

The shop makes a special price to college students on "seconds", which are themselves merchandise of very good quality.

"Summer Occupations"

By Julia Terry

While members of our faculty were occupied this summer earning M. A.'s and other degrees of authority (to say nothing of Dean Howell's P. A.) the student body was engaged in occupations of a various nature, some lucrative and some not.

Hessie Keeton taught school for two months in middle Tennessee. No, she wasn't fired; she heeded the Highland Echo and came back to continue her teaching in the form of editorials and other Hessie Highlights. Kitty Hodges spent the summer at Montvale serving delicious vituals to grateful guests. Bill Graham helped Jesse Peirce edit a resort paper in Pennsylvania. Buck taught the Kentuckians how to swim, after which he relaxed by touring the northeastern states. Perhaps one of his swimming contests developed into a good old Kentucky feud and caused Buck to believe in the old adage "Distance lends enchantment". Bob West again demonstrated his powers of salesmanship, his ability in this kind of work having been demonstrated in in his work on the Handbook.

Chicago gansters momentarily halted their racket at the advent of Naomi Willingham into their midst. Naomi worked at Marshall Fields', went swimming, and sang at a mission. Pat Henry was a counsellor at a settlement camp, and was kept busy washing faces and brushing teeth (not her own but of her ten "children"). Yervant Topalion worked in his uncle's New York studio and not only washed faces but painted them as well. Yervant is an authority on the use of cosmetics. Merle Beebe kept the old Maryville spirit by remaining at the college all summer continuing her work in the registrar's office. John Hendry had a position in the office of the Presbyterian Board.

Lucy Ann Voorhees taught in a Bible school in her home state, Connecticut. Zelma Alexander said that her only ocupation was milking cows in Illinois. However, the size of this occupation is dependent on the number of cows she milked. Perhaps it should not be termed her only occupation. Almira might have helped her, too. Betty Wilbar looked after the males in her home town postoffice and also worked in her father's store. Carol Cushman worked at Blue Ridge this summer—in fact she worked so hard that she had dates with seventeen different young men in fourteen days. This happened before a certain young eligible began to "bob" around. Then Carol worked in a garage. It is also rumored that one of the Echo staff members baked cherry pies in northern Michigan. In case this sounds too improbable just come around and I'll tell you how to make the "dough."

CLASS MEETINGS

Sept. 23—Today the Senior Class held a meeting for the purpose of electing student council representatives. Those elected are Mabel Dickerson, Mildred Crawford, Esther Horton, Alice Renegar, Donald Benn, Dick Strain, Dean Rogers and Harold Baer.

In the Junior class meeting those elected members of the Student Council are: Mildred McKenzie, Julia Terry, Merle Beebe, Bob West, George Osborne and Clarence Bratschie. Hadley Webb was elected Business Manager of the Chilhowean.

The Sophomores elected their Council representatives on Sept. 24. They are Homer Ellis, Norma Spilatore, Elizabeth Duncan and Aubrey Bradshaw.

Tennessee Volunteers Upset Maryville Team In Loose Game

University Squad Displays Wealth of Power.

DISNEY IS VOL STAR

Highlanders Put Up Scrappy Fight Against Odds.

Scrapping from the start to the finish the Highlanders lost the second game of the season, to the highly lauded, yet invinceable University of Tennessee eleven, to the score of 54-0. With ideal football weather, some 8000 football fans, Mac Ever out of the game, and the Highlanders weak defense for passes, the Vols continued to fumble throughout the game and showed a decided lack of coordination in team work. Ty Disney was the star player for Tennessee, while MacDonald, Payne, Calloway, Rule, Capt. Storey and Don Wilson served the Highlanders in like manner. While the Highlanders got deep into Tennessee territory several times, it was through alertness in recovering fumbles, and not by any offensive power that they advanced. The secondary defense of the Highlander's was very much alert but seemed unable to clip enough men out in order for the man carrying the ball to stretch his legs.

Coach Honaker's boys never once gave up their willingness to mix it, even to the finish of the game, made it very interesting. Had it not have been for the reserve supply of the Vols that wore down the Highlanders the score would not have been so large.

THETA COMPLETES SUCCESSFUL WEEK

New Girls Thrilled By Varied Entertainments.

Theta's rush week opened with a hilarious "Innocence Abroad Tour". The tour was made in hay wagons. Some of the Maryville stores, including Proffitt's, Badgett and Costner's, White's and Byrne's presented Theta's guests with numerous favors. Spain and Africa were visited and a program, as well as refreshments, was enjoyed in each country. On their return to America the wagons were held up by a band of Indians, but were allowed to continue their tour after peace had been made. America, in Theta Hall, was the last point of interest visited by the tourists and each girl seemed happy to be in her native land after such an extended tour.

Tuesday afternoon Theta entertained at Tea. The hall was attractively decorated in cut flowers, and tea was served from eight tables. The Chandler-Singleton Co. presented a most interesting fashion show. Many attractive fall out-fits were modeled by Theta girls. We all felt prompted to write home and ask for money to buy some of the costumes.

Friday afternoon the gym was the scene of a Cootie Party. The idea was ceverly carried out on the invitations and tallies. All the guests enjoyed the games, and many new friendships were begun among the girls.

In China Town at 7:30 o'clock Monday night Theta was hostess at The Silver Dragon Night Club. The guests included the faculty members, the new girls, and Bainonians. The guests felt that Baldwin Lawn had indeed been converted into China Town for the burning of incense, the ushers dressed in Chinese costumes, the Chinese lanterns, the silver dragons, and other decorations created a decided Chinese atmosphere. The program is as follows:

Queen of the Club—Esther Horton
The Pig Tail of Li Fang Feu—
Louise Marley
Ming Toy's Lullaby—A Quartet
A Play—Sugar for Tea
Finale—Go It Theta

MISS GREEN MADE LITT. H. D. BY COLLEGE

Most of us who were not present at the Commencement Exercises last June do not know that a member of our faculty was awarded a doctor's degree at that time. Miss Susan Allen Green was made a doctor of Humane Letters. For the first time in the history of Maryville College a doctor's degree was conferred upon a woman.

Miss Green is a graduate of Smith College. She earned her Master's degree at the University of Chicago. During the time that Miss Green has been here at Maryville College she has done much to make the biological laboratories as up-to-date as possible. She is a member of the American Association for Advancement of Science, the Tennessee Academy of Science, and Pi Gamma Mu which is the National Honorary Social Science Fraternity.

WORK ON ANNUAL BEGUN

Sept. 23—It will interest everyone to know that work on the 1930-31 Annual has begun. The staff has met and made plans for the book. The drive for subscriptions will begun in a week or ten days. It is recommended that everyone get a copy of the Chilhowean as it is the most complete record of the college year.

The staff is as follows:
Homer McCann—Editor-in-Chief
Julia Terry—Associate Editor
Hadley Webb—Business Manager
Kathryn Hodges, Literary Editor
Willamara Minton—Art Editor

Senior English Test Source Of Amusement

No less valuable than the information furnished by the freshman English test is that gleaned from a survey of the senior English test papers. The word exhilarate may be spelled in the following ways: exhilirate, exhilerate, exhillerate, exzilerate, exillerate, exilerate, exilarate, exhillarate. Acommodate may be spelled with only one m; all right may be hyphenated, may be written as one word, may have only on l.

Of ninety-seven seniors, seventy-seven mispelled exhilarate, forty-eight accommodate, and thirty-seven all right. Four seniors (two boys and two girls) spelled all the words correctly; five misspelled only one, and six only two. In the pronunciation test, seventy-three seniors mispronounced inquiry.

One of the questions was a list of sentences containing underscored words. These words were to be replaced by more suitable ones. In the sentence, "Everyone has become interested in preventative medicine", the following substitution was offered: "Everyone has become interested in toxin-antitoxin medicine." "That is the nicest sunset I have seen this year" was replaced by "That is the most ostentatious sunset I have seen this year" and "This is the most unique house I ever saw" by "This is the cutest house I ever saw." "That mortician has fitted up a perfectly lovely funeral home" was repaired in several ways: "That mortician has fitted up a very efficient, a very professional-looking, a very desirable, a much-needed funeral home." "I didn't raise my boy to be a soldier was changed into "I didn't prepare, I didn't educate, I didn't want my boy to be a soldier." Do you think that I'm a liar?" was considered preferable to "Do you infer that I'm a liar?"

Dr. Lloyd

Four years ago when Dr. Lloyd held the Fberuary Meetings here he showed us the 'Open Doors' to success, happiness and a fuller life. He also held up for us the high ideal of keeping the fine edge of one's character. Soon we will have him with us again. The Seniors who heard his messages look forward towards daily contact with him. The others who have not been so fortunate, will learn "that to know him is to love him."

Dr. Lloyd is Maryville in its truest sense. We welcome him heartily, sincerely, because we know that his presence among us will contribute something that will enrich our lives.

A Little More Pep, Please

Where are the pep meetings of yesterday? The writer remembers the first pep meeting he attended as a frosh. The band was there; literary societies vied with each other in putting on the most original and laugh provoking stunts. The coaches and all the football men were out. But this year—not so?

At the first meeting the chapel was crowded. Students were eager to 'get going'. But the stage was occupied only by the aspirants for cheerleader. We have no kick coming against them. They did their best, but they alone could not make a pep meeting. A clever well-planned program would have helped the thing along. Wherein lies the blame? There seems to be no one to place it on. Evidently there is no pep committee this year. After all the human being is curiously like a sheep. So few of us are leaders; it's much easier to follow and let some one else assume the responsibility of leading. But there have to be those people who will take the responsibility—some one who will get things going. There are leaders aplenty on the hill—and we need them at pep meetings.

An Attempt at Understanding

This is the day of compromise, of peace parleys and negotiations; of attempts at friendly understanding. It isn't the thing to go to war any more. Nations and individuals are trying to look at things from the other's point of view. Maryville College is keeping step with progress in organizing the 'contact group". "There's really no reason why the student body and faculty should not be on good terms", says one of the instructors.

We of the student body are glad to know that the idea was the faculty's own. It proves, without a doubt, that the 'powers that be' are willing to give us a chance to understand them. Just why this attitude on the part of the students that their teachers are ogres, anyway? And why the belief on the part of the faculty that students are a lawless bunch that need discipline and then some more discipline? Perhaps it's a hangover from those so called 'good old days' when the school teachers were all severe Mr. Toils, and the pupils were irresponsible Daffydowndillys.

At any rate, we as students should cooperate heartily with this endeavor. It sounds almost too Utopian to talk of a school where no friction between faculty and student body occurs. But what's an education for if not to teach us to adjust ourselves to environment?

HANS FROST BY HUGH SEYMOUR WALPOLE

One of the most interesting of the new books in our library is this story and study of an imaginary English author named Hans Frost. In spite of the fact that the story begins with a celebration of Hans Frost's seventieth birthday, he is not feeble or childish, but intensely alive and interested in all which goes on around him. Most of all is he interested in his wife's orphan niece, Nathalie Swan. She is nineteen years old, lovely and in love with a fascinating young Russian.

To make a book complete there must be some characters who are disagreeable, if for no other use than to contrast with the likable ones. In this book there are two, Ruth, who is the wife of Hans Frost, and her despisable old mother who hangs on to life tenaciously when all who know her would be glad to see her die.

Mr. Walpole has made his book a little unreal to us, at least—but he takes us into a beautiful world. The setting is Hans Frost's perfect home with its quiet servants, its priceless books and its luxurious comfort. While we read it we see the London of wealthy people. And we envy them—until we see Hans Frost running away from it all—anxious to be free—spending his last days in a humble little cottage by the sea. He dreaded what otherwise would have happened. In his own words:

"I'd have died in my bed, and there'd have been three doctors, oxygen in a bag, and rows of medicine bottles. My wife would have closed my eyes, my mother-in-law would have danced the saraband, there would have been articles in the newspapers, and the Author's Society would have sent a wreath to the funeral. And my poor ghost tearing its windy hair, because all these years I was in prison and didn't know it "

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

Next Wednesday evening Dr. Crothers will speak at the weekly meeting of the Ministerial Association. All men who are expecting to enter Christian work are invited to join the association for the sake of the opportunity for service and fellowship.

CURRENT CAMPUS COMMENT

Miss Keller:—"What's the advantage of using the introspective method of observation?"

Eunice Grant—"To see what's in the inside."

Prof. Davis:—"Lambkin is the diminutive of lamb, but sheepskin is not the diminutive of sheep."

Lucy Ann Voorhees—"Miss Wilkinson talks French in our class and we talk back to her."

Clarence Bratschie:—"I wish the Y.M. would have another pow-wow so that I could get cooled off."

Naomi Willingham—"Mr. Queener, you're rather fond of dates, aren't you?"

Mr. Queener—"Well, you see, Miss Willingham, I am a married man, now.

Miss Heron: "Now, is this a gerund or a participle?"

Freshman Boy: "Well, I call it a gerund. What do you call it?"

Miss Jewell:—"It is interesting to note that one of the early kinds of Egyptian writing was called Hyro Griffiths."

Miss Jewell in history class:—"If you have a few dates it's wonderful—if you have the right kind of dates."

As Several Have Said—By BOB WEST

Not so very long ago there was an article in the Literary Digest which was written by some scientist, in which the theory was advanced that the human face was growing longer and longer as the ages roll by. Now I do not know anything about this man, nor any of his history, but I cannot help but be impressed by the faces which you see in one of these Pep meetings. They certainly don't remind one of the faces often associated with campaign managers. And, if it is true that the human face is growing longer, there is this consolation that a college boy hasn't time to get worried over the fact.

Nor would any girl who has just walked home from an auto ride be worried as to whether she had a long face or not. She would more likely be worrying about her feet. In fact if all the girls who walk back from automobile rides were placed side by side, the chiropodists would do a good business, believe it or not.

Of course I know absolutely nothing about this walking home business, although I should think that it would be a rather uninteresting thing to do. But then how should I know when I am not even as well versed in that field as a man is in flying, who has been in an explosion.

I did notice the other day where some manufacturing concern had turned to this modern craze, and was making scare crows with sex appeal. Whether this is going to take throughout the country, is going to depend upon the salesman. Now there are some farmers who will hire a piano tuner to tighten his barb wire fence, if the proposition is placed befre him right. And you remember that old adage which states "Woman is the drink and man is the chaser."

We have some of those high pressure salesmen in school here at Maryville. In fact one approached me the other day with an idea which ought to be worth millions one of these days, the idea is simply this, it's an article or machine to be used to light cigarette lighters. This is a field with which we are all more or less familiar. For we all know that if fire fighters depended upon cigarette lighters they would starve to death.

NEWBERRY—GRIFFES

Miss Elizabeth Griffes, a member of the Maryville College faculty, and Mr. Wagner Newberry, one of the Department Supervisors of the Aluminum Company, were married by Dr. Crothers, at his home Saturday afternoon.

Place for All Men

The whole course of things goes to teach us faith. We need only obey. There is guidance for each of us, and by lowly listening we shall hear the right word. Why need you choose so painfully your place and occupation and associates and modes of action and entertainment? Certainly there is a possible place for you that precludes the need of balance and willful election.—Emerson.

TENNESSEE WESLEYAN HERE FRIDAY

Point System To Be Continued In Co-Ed Athletics At Maryville This Year

As in years past, the point system will again predominate in women's athletics. Since there are no intercollegiate athletics carried on for women, a very effective system has been worked out, by which women athletes can make their letters and sweaters. However, these athletics are not encouraged for the mere earning of a letter or sweatr, but for the physical betterment of the women participating. The rewards seem only as an incentive for competition; and let it be understood that Maryville's athletics stand for a higher purpose.

The most important purpose is to help the girl physically. Since the facilities for physical training are limited and there are only two hours a week given, this is not adequate for keeping a woman in her best physical trim; therefore this system of interclass games has been devised. Furthermore a spirit of comradeship is aroused between a woman and her teammates.

There are three awards given each year: a Maryville monogram, "MC", for a woman earning between three hundred and four hundred points; a Maryville letter, "M" between four hundred and five hundred points; and a Maryville letter and sweater for the girl earning five hundred points or over.

Due to the great variety of sports offered, it is not difficult for a woman to make a great number of points. The sports in the order in which they come are: soccer, basket-ball, volley-ball, aerial dart, base ball, and tennis. The member of any team receives fifty points, a substitute receiving only twenty. Captain of any team receives ten points, while a manager receives fifteen. Ten points are given for perfect attendance to each practice or game. Individual points are also given for field events, stunts—novelty walks and the like, and swimming.

Hiking also plays an important part in the years actiities. Twenty-five points are given each semester to the women who complete six seven-mile hikes. These hikes have to be made in a certain length of time. They are made around the well known "Loop", which is worn to rock bottom each year! ,

Health rules also help many women to increase their points. If these are kept perfectly, twenty-five points are given each semester. They include rules for sleeping, bathing, care of teeth, exercise, and eating.

Then, in order that the athletic side is not emphasized too strongly, points are given for scholastic average. For an "A" average, twenty percent of the points won that semester is given. Similarly for a "B" average, ten percent of the points is given.

Coach Queener has charge of women's athletics this year, and she promises the best year yet. So when she issues the call for the first work-out, let's crowd that old Alumni Gymnasium. Come out and fight for your class!

CHEER LEADERS ARE DEFINITELY CHOSEN

Sept. 28—M-a-r-y-v-i-l-l-e, Rah, R-a-h, R—A—H.

On Tuesday and Friday of this past week the campus was the scene of pep meetings which gave the distant hills and mountains something to echo about.

In the two and a little more years that ye scribe has been here never has he seen so much pep and enthusiasm expressed.

It can truly be said that we have an excellent set of cheerleaders—Leland Gilmore as head cheerleader and Paul Edris and Glen Murray as his assistants have certainly kept the Hill ringing with cheers, yells, and songs. Let's keep it up and mop up with the Tennessee Wesleyan's here, October 3rd.

Fight 'em Maryvill!

U. T. GAME

REFUSED SHORT QUARTERS

Tennessee refused twelve minute quarters. Maryville kicked off to Tenessee who returned the ball 10 yards, and Don Wilson made the first tackle of the game. Failing to make the necessary yardage the Highlanders forfeited the ball to Tennessee. A fumble recovered by Maryville slowed the Tennessee offensive down and it was late in the first quarter before they scored. The Maryville players grounded a good many of the Tennessee passes. The following is game as to high lights in the quarters.

FIRST QUARTER

Maryville kicked to Tennessee who returned ball 10 yards, Don Wilson made tackle—5 yard penalty for Maryville, offsides, on next play Bowman thrown for loss. Maryville fumbles and Don Wilson recovered for no ain on next play. Woodard kicked to Tennessee, who made 3 yards next play. Don Wilson making the tackle—Hug carried ball over the line for 181 touchdown—a pass, Dodd to Clemer, for 20 yards, put U. T. in scoring position—Kohlhase 13 yard off left tackle for the second touchdown. Maryville kicked to Tennessee and Calloway made tackle—after another play Tennessee called time out. Farmer Watkins slammed Hackman for 1 yard loss. Bretski came into the game in the latter part of the first quarter and distinguished himself by intercepting a forward pass, although on the next play he fumbled, recovered by a Maryville man. Dodd kicked both placements.

SECOND QUARTER

In this quarter Tennessee drew a 15 yard penalty for unnecessary roughness. Although there was some good blocking by Tennessee, the Vols continued to fumble. Robinson of Tennessee passed to Faust who ran 20 yards for a touchdown. Kohlhase kicked the placement. Score 21-0 in favor of Tennessee.

During the half the bands and rooters from each school began to display their wares, in which the Scoties made a very creditable showing and produced better organized cheering than did the U. T. rooters. The University Freshman ran a race "en masse", the purpose of which has not been found as yet.

THIRD QUARTER

Maryville, after a change of goals kicked to Tennessee who returned the ball 20 yards before being stopped. On next play Gillespie of Maryville intercepted Tennessee but was stopped in his tracks. Disney made a 17 yard run for a touchdown. Captain Thayer kicked the placement. Tom Cash put up an excellent fight and made some spectacular tackles but of no avail, because Disney reversing his field twice started a 43 yard run for another touchdown in which he savagely stiff-armed a number of the Highlanders. Dodd missed the kick for extra point. As the period ended the Vols were given the ball on Maryville's one yard line, because of penalty for interfering with Brandt the U. T. receiver for a long pass.

FOURTH QUARTER

On first play of quarter, Disney made a line buck for another touchdown. Robinson of U. T. intercepted a Maryville pass and ran 25 yards for a touchdown. Kohlhase kicked the placement. The Vols then elected to kick to the Scots who returned the ball several yards. Several end runs were tried by both teams with little or no success for either side. The oVls then punched a hole through Maryville's line and Dave Blumberg shoved through 30 yards for a touchdown but failed in the attempt for the extra point. Final score 54-0.

Student Body Show Pep And Enthusiasm

Sept. 23—The snake dance last night started the week off right and about 300 boys showed the town that the Maryville spirit was still very much alive. "Beat U. T." was the favorite slogan. The pep was carried over tonight through one of the liveliest pep meetings the college has seen.

After a lot of miscellaneous stamping of feet, clapping, singing, and yelling, a group of aspiring cheer leaders led several familiar yells. Glen Murroy, a new but competent recruit, led a couple of new yells which have all the ear-marks of becoming among the most popular.

Coach Honaker told us that we were up against one of the best teams, not of the State, not of the South, but of the whole United States, but that if we kept up our pep and showed it on Saturday, the boys on the field would put all that they possibly could into the fight. A few more yells, more worked off energy, all three stanzas of our Alma Mater, and the best pep meeting of several years was adjourned.

HIGHLANDERS OUT FOR SECOND WIN

Sept. 29—Now that the big event—the game with Tennessee—has passed the Highanders are pointing toward the game with Tennessee Wesleyan Friday night. Although the opposition this itme will not be quite so big or formidable you can depend upon it that they will bring a fighting team to Maryville. Wesleyan has been a sort of jinx to the Highlanders until last year and this time we will be out to take another from them to further wipe out the sting of a couple of unexpected defeats in the past.

Now that the team has two games behind them they have gotten a good deal of the experience which is to make a real threat out of them this season. The first two games have ironed out those little faults that hold a team back and now that the Highlanders have been through them we can look for better football all the time.

Points after touchdown—Dodd 2; placement; Kohlhase 3, dropkick; Thayer, dropkick.

Substitutions: Maryville— Richardson for White; Baretsky for Benn; Cash for Proffitt; Tolliver for Storey; Smith for Woodard; Chandler for Wilson; Kiser for Calloway; Payne for Blazer; Cutshaw for Wilson; Smith for Payne; Tope for Kiser; West for Blazer.

Officials— Clark (Sewanee) referee; Streit (Auburn) umpire; Wilson (Miami) headlinesman; Parrish (V. P. I.) field judge.

Just as You Yelled Your Best at the U. T. Game so Must You Look Your Best at All Times by Wearing Clean and Neatly Pressed Clothes. THE OLD CREEK

Below my home
There is an old creek.
It's channel is narrow
Because it flows between mountains,
And the rock cliffs have shaped its course
To their will.
It's source is high-up, hidden mountain springs,
And it loses itself in a nearby river.

Through uncounted years
It has poured its waters
Over the twisting, tortuous bed
That confines it;
But it still flows on.

In my early childhood
The creek fascinated me.
To play on its banks
And to wade in its shallows
Was the greatest joy I could know,
In my girlhood it was romance;
The mysterious forces
That call to girls in their early 'teens
Spoke to me through the old, homely creek.
I never saw its beauty then
Nor could I recognize the romance.
It was like a middle-aged friend
Who counsels youth to be patient.

The old creek has taught me much of Patience, endurance and strength.
It has made me understand God.
When human counsel fails
I can find the answers to my questions
In the old creek.
I went to it on the bitterest night of my life;
A golden night of autumn;
A night bitter with the pain of a great loss;
A night torn and cut to pieces with renunciation and resignation;
That night was my Gethsemane,
And because of it
I know that love flows on
As endlessly, inevitably, remorselessly
As the old creek.

J. O'dell.

$500 PRIZE CONTEST

What Are The Greatest Dates In History? Forum Magazine Announces Historical Puzzler Open to College Students.

Do you know who begat whom—as well as what begat what—and when and why? If you do, you are qualified to enter a historical contest, offering substantial cash prizes anounced by the Forum Magazine. The idea is to pick the twelve most important events in the history of the world, give their correct dates, and tell why they ought to be regarded as the greatest dates in the calendar.

As a starter in this contest, the Forum is publishing three articles in its September, October, and November issues by Hendriz Willem van Loon, Will Durant, and H. G. Wells in which each of these famous outliners has listed the twelve dates which he thinks are the greatest, and has stated his reasons for thinking so. For the three best papers listing the most imporant events that van Loon, Durant, and Wells forgot or overlooked, the Forum will award a first prize of $250, a second prize of $150, and a third prize of $100.

Full details about the contest are printed in each of the Forum issues mentioned above. The magazine's announcement says that college students with a flair for history are particularly invited to compete for the prizes.

JUNIOR CLASS ELECTS COUNCIL MEMBERS

Sept. 25—The Junior class met today and elected the following members to the Student Council: the girls were Julia Terry, Merle Beebe, and Mildred MacKenzie; the boys were George Osborne, Clarence Bratschie, and Robert West.

May 4th was set as the date for the Junior-Senior Banquet since there will be a nice full moon on that night.

Hadley Webb was elected business manager of the Chilhowean.

Didd you hear about the Scotchman who tried to cheat the undertaker?

How?

Just before he died he buried his face in his hands.

DR. LLOYD ACCEPTS PRESIDENCY OF COLLEGE

Illinois Presbyterian Church. In 1926 he was called to the pastorate of the Edgewood Pittsburgh Presbyterian Church where he has since carried on successful work.

In 1928 Dr. Lloyd came to Maryville to conduct the February meetings. Those who had the privilege of hearing him received new inspiration

At Commencement Exercises in 1929 the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by the college.

As students of Maryville College we are glad to hear of Dr. Lloyd's acceptance of the presidency and anticipate his coming in no small way.

Y. M. & Y. W. CULTURE PROGRAM

Certain rumors have spread over the campus concerning a culture program which is being sponsored by the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations. An attempt has been made to have the meat served at noon by a host and hostess.

The chief aim of these organizations is to make the students more mindful of the niceties of social conduct in the dining room. This aim includes three things. First, the serving of the meat each noon by a host and hostess. This will probably be more effectively carried out when the dining rom is organized for the year. The second part is that a young man should stand when a young woman comes to speak to him while he is eating. The third and last part of the aim is to have music in the dining room on certain specified occasions. In connection with this last item the Christian Associations have in mind the possibility of securing a radio. It is hoped that if this idea materializes the students will cooperate by paying more atention to their personal appearance.

This is a large task, but, since plans are being made to have Culture Week come earlier this year the Y. M. and Y. W. will doubtless be aided in their efforts.

AS TERRY SAW THE GAME

By Julia Terry

The Maryville-U. T. game was not quite as complete a failure as the 54-0 score might seem to indicate for it provided the annual opportunity to moonshine uninterruptedly for five hours, to get out of any unpleasant afternoon classes, and to ride on the famous or perhaps notorious Maryville limited—limited to a 20 mile per hour speed and quantities of soot and smoke.

Moonshiners of course were prevalent but so were the unattached.

Sammy's cowbell was an aid in giving tone quality to the game, and it also helped the band to start off on the right note. The band performed nobly at its first performance and the new material looks and sounds pretty good.

The cheer leaders really put some pep into the crowd and they worked just as hard as any man that played football out on the field.

The fight in the grandstand added more excitement to the game and it was all on the account of some outsider's loyalty to the Orange and Garnet.

Ice cream suckers and cold drinks were about as welcome to the consumers as that pass intercepted by Shady Payne was welcome to the rest of the onlookers.

In fact the trip as a whole was enjoyed by all who went and it showed that our boys can really play football.

Does Snookem's baby get off any original sayings?

Oh he did, but they were so dumb that Snookem had to hire a ghost writer for him.

FISHER BODY GUILD OFFERS SCHALORSHIP

Sept. 25—The Fisher Body Craftman's Guild, a new organization founded in the interests of American youth by the Fisher Body Corporation, is offering a scholarship amounting to $5,000 to boys of high school age.

The guild plans to perpetuate the ideals and principles of craftmanship as founded and developed by the guilds of the Middle Ages. For its problem in craftsmanship, the guild has chosen the building of a miniature model Napoleonic coach.

The awards will go to boys between 12 and 19 years of age who show the finest craftsmanship in building these models. There are no dues or fees to the Guild. Boys can enroll by calling at the salesroom of any General Motors dealer and they will be forwarded the complete plans and specifications of the model cocah. Winners of scholarships will have $5000 held in trust and given them to defray their college expenses at any university they may choose to attend. The builder of the best models in each state will be given a trip to Detroit as the guest of the guild and a cash prize as well. There are numerous other awards for proficiency in building various parts of the model.

SOPHOMORE CLASS MEETING

The Sophomore Class held a short but important meeting Wednesday afternoon in the chapel. It was most orderly and well-organized. The issue before the class was that of electing Student Council Members. The results are:

A. Bradshaw, H. Ellis, E. Duncan, and N. Spilatore.

The president asked that we be considering someone for Editor-in-Chief of next year's Chilhowean.

VOL. 16 MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE MON., OCTOBER 6, 1930 NUMBER THREE

Dr. Hunter Interviews Maryville's New President

SCOTTIES BEAT WESLEYAN, 19-7

Calloway's Passes and Passes Lead Maryville to Second Victory of Season.

TEAM PLAY IMPROVED

Tennessee Wesleyan's Attack Led By McDonald, Small But Shifty Half-back.

Oct. 3—The most interesting game of the year thus far was played tonight. Having recuperated somewhat from the defeat taken at the hands of Tennessee last week, the Highlanders showed a power that any team would boast of. The offense and defense both were greatly improved over their previous showings, and the Scotties are now on a drive for a string of victories not to be marred by defeat.

The two teams tonight were more closely matched than the score would indicate. Although things seemed to be in favor of the Highlander crew from the first few minutes of play, there was never a time that the Bulldogs were not a dangerous threat. They had a driving line and an elusive quartet of backs that never stopped fighting.

They well deserved their score which came early in the third period.

Maryville scored in the first quarter on a beautifully well timed pass from Calloway to Woodard after the ball had been driven down the field on a series of off-tackle plays and end runs. Calloway made a nice kick for the extra point.

Maryville's reserve strength was very evident throughout the game. Capt. Storey was injured early in

Y.W. Sponsors Benefit Bazaar Nov. 17

The Y. W. C. A. is sponsoring a benefit bazaar to be given on November seventeenth. A committee has ben appointd, consisting of Marion McMurray, Mildred Crawford, Inez Hamrick, Esther Horton, Eunice Grant, and Zelma Alexander.

Every girl who is a member of Y. W. is expected to contribute some gift to be sold at the bazaar. These gifts will be supplemented by orders from several shops which have agreed to take back the articles not sold. Some of these shops are the Japanese Art and Novelty Company of New York, Maisels Indian Trading Post of Albuquerque, New Mexico; Mrs. Yosiu's shop of New York, and the Japan Art and Novelty Company of Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Glee Club Holds Final Tryout

20 Chosen, Outlook Promising Tenor Strengthened; Veteran Basses

Oct. 6—The final tryout for the Glee Singers was held this morning at the regular practice of the men's club. Of the twenty-eight who passed the first trials, twenty were chosen to be the "Merry Music Makers".

The material in this year's club is considered one of the best in years, only two men not returning from last year. Three men who sang in the club two years ago have also returned to lend quality to the work.

Reports show that seven are trying for the five first tenor positions. This section, which was one of the weakest last year will be very much strengthened this season. The baritone and second tenors are composed almost entirely of veterans and the bass division shows two new men.

The tryout this morning involved sight reading and individual melody, to a great extent. The club has had two practices during which the ability of the members was closely tried. The new men tried and very nearly succeeded in ousting some of the old men from their positions.

The trips for this year have not been definitely arranged but there is a possibility of a short trip before Christmas and a three or four day trip next spring. Plans for the fall concert are under way but the date is not yet set.

Y.M.C.A. MT. HIKE SAT. OCT. 11

Look Rock, Montvale Chosen, Will Return Monday.

Oct. 6—The date for the annual Y. M. C. A. mountain hike has been set for Saturday, October 11. The plan this year is to hike up toward Look Rock and Montvale. The group will leave on Saturday afternoon as soon after dinner as possible, hike until nightfall or later, and make camp for the evening. Sunday will probably be spent in taking short walks to sights of interest and the return trip delayed until Monday morning.

The Y. hike is one in which the fellows have a chance to satisfy their longing to go up into the Great Smokies, cook their own meals, and live the life of men for a few days. It is hoped that a large number of fellows will go on this hike, for a good time will be in store.

College Maid Gets Large Orders

Procter & Gamble and Fort Sanders Hospital Are New Buyers.

Oct. 2—The College Maid Shop received this week several large orders. The Proctor and Gamble Company ordered two hundred dozen aprons. A member of the Greenwich Church in Scranton telegraphed an order for fifty dozen smocks.

The Fort Sanders Hospital is introducing an inovation in uniforms. This new costume combines the dress, bib, apron, and collar-and-cuff set of the conventional nurse's uniform in one dress, and this dress is manufactured by College-Maid.

Nobley and Caren is opening a palatial new store in Cincinnati, which will have a College-Maid Department. Mrs. J. H. McMurray, head of the College Maid Shop is to go to the opening of "Caren Tower" as the guest of the store. Mr. Armstrong, who is president of the company, has been a staunch friend of the College Maid, contributing from time to time substantial gifts. He has recently sent money to purchase another sewing machine.

The busy little factory is employing about sixty new girls and last month met a pay roll of $645.70, beside the earnings of the new sales force.

FELLOWSHIP CLUB FORMED SEPT. 30

Men of '34 Get Acquainted, 65 At First Meeting.

Sept. 30—This evening in Bartlett Hall the men of the Class of '34 made their first official move toward binding themselves together into a definite group of friends and classmates. Under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. this year's Fellowship Club was inaugurated for the purpose of getting the new men acquainted with each other. Approximately sixty-five men attended this initial gathering.

Next week ,probably on Tuesday evening, the club will elect its executive officers and its program committee. Some of its members, Boretsky, Cooper, and the Moore brothers, will present musical numbers to help pep up the program. Carl Storey and Ralph Teffeteller, under whose leadership the club is organizing, have expressed the desire that as many freshmen as possible turn out to this important meeting.

Oct. 1—Today Ralph Teffeteller disclosed some interesting information regarding the purpose of the Fellowship Club. "This club is what you might call the entrance into extra-curricular activities for the new men", he explained. You see, it helps the freshmen get acquainted with each other and it brings out the abilities that they have. The officers of the freshman class will pprobably be chosen from this Fellowship Group.

"The club also aims to interest the new men in Y. work. Most of these fellows belonged to Hi-Y at high school—well, the Y. M. in college takes the place of the Hi-Y at high school. It's just a little more advanced—that's all."

DR. ECKLES VERY ILL

Dr. J. C. Eckles, father of Mrs. West, head of the expression department, is very ill at his home in Maryville. Dr. Eckles, a retired minister, has been a friend of the college for many years. His face is familiar to all of the students because he has been a constant attendant at all activities in the chapel. He has always been interested in the religious, literary, and dramatic life of the college.

The latest report is that Dr. Eckles is gradually weakening.

MR. HOWARD TALKS TO JOURNALISTS

Interested Group Hear News Editor of Sentinel.

Last Thursday evening Mr. Zollie Howard, news-editor of the Knoxville News-Sentinel, gave an interesting discussion to a group of students interested in journalism.

First he gave three requisites of effective news-writing. They are simplicity, brevity, and accuracy. "Fine writing" in a news article is out of place; excessive length destroys interest; prevalence of mistakes kills the public's faith in a paper. The motto of the News-Sentinel is "One mistake is worth a make-ocer."

The form of a news article differs essentially from the form of an essay. The purpose is to give "leads", to tell the main points as soon as possible and as briefly as possible and then, tapered off toward the end, the less important facts.

News is obtained not by a passive waiting for it, but by an active canvass to find it. It is the task of the reporter to hand in faithfully all that comes to his notice, for it is the duty of a paper to be absolutely impartial.

Mr. Howard gave to the Highland Echo staff several valuable books on journalism, some dealing with feature writing, others with general style, and so on. Among them are "Getting the News", "Editing the Day's News", and "News Writing".

One regrettable feature of the meeting was the rude conduct of some of those attending.

'Y' Store Frigidaire Increases Trade

Sept. 29—At last, the "Y" store in Pearsons Hall has received the much talked of frigidaire, and ice-cream is sold daily. Since Southern Dairies ice cream is sold, the frigidaire is furnished by that company free of charge.

The frigidaire was brought up this afternoon, taking a derrick and an elevator to get it to third floor. It is a new model, and is run by electricity. The ice cream is frozen all day, then at night the electricity is cut off. However, the cream freezes sufficiently during the day to remain hard over night.

This new asset to the store should increase the trade one hundred percent. Since the women's point system is to start soon, and sweets are barred in the health rules, why not buy a cone of cream instead? It is made by one of the best companies in the South, and is rich in food value. The "Y" store is located on the third floor of Pearsons, and is a very popular place just after meals. Come up and try a cone of cream! You may have your choice of chocolate or vanilla!

DR. J. H. McMURRAY WRITES HANDBOOK

Valuable Citizenship Manual Wide Sale Predicted.

The manuscript of "A Handbook for Tennessee Citizens" by Dr. J. H. McMurray, is now ready for the publishers. The "Handbook", which Dr. McMurray wrote this summer, is a valuable manual of citizenship. There is in it a short history of Tennessee, a discussion of the Constitutions of the state and of the United States, and much other useful information.

Of special interest to citizens of Tennessee are Tennessee designations—the state motto, state song, and state flower,—information concerning qualifications for suffrage, and concerning Tennessee laws, courts, juries, city and county governments, as well as the brief sketch of state history.

The discussion of the Constitution of the United States makes it valuable to people who are not citizens of Tennessee, and several have expressed desires for first edition copies.

At the end of the "Handbook" is a reference table on parliamentary law. On one page is information answering more than four hundred questions dealing with parliamentary procedure. This, in itself, would make the book worth purchasing.

Critics predict a wide sale of the "Handbook". It should be in the possession of every citizen of Tennessee.

ACTING PRES. IN LLOYD HOME

Reports Dr. Lloyd Eager To Assume Presidency of College.

HOSPITABLE FAMILY

New Executive and Family to Arrive Here About Thanksgiving.

Dr. Hunter spent Friday of last week in Pittsbburgh in conference with Dr. Lloyd. There were a number of matters of general and detailed policy which both men wished to discuss, both feeling it of advantage to have an exchange of ideas for the consideration of the new president and for the guidance of the acting president in the eight weeks yet to intervene before Dr. Lloyd arrives in Maryville to assume active administration of the College.

In addition to a most helpful conference, Dr. Hunter reports a very pleasant visit in the Lloyd home. He speaks most enthusiastically of the new president's family. He says: "Mrs. Lloyd, an alumnus of Wilson College at Chambersburg, Pensylvania, will by her charm and genuine kindliness make for herself a large place in the social life and friendship of the Hill.

"The Lloyd children are indeed an interesting quartet. Vernon is a sixth grader and a budding football player. He thinks it will be great to live in constant sight of a football field. Eight-year-old Hal is a genuine live-wire. He has hopes that perhaps some day the footballers may kick the ball into the woods and lose it, and that later he'll find it. Perhaps Hal would have more luck if some fine spring day he's stations himself out in the woods beyond left field while Woodard is

Question Chosen For Pi Kappa Delta

The debate question has been selected for this year's Pi Kappa Delta discussions. It is "Resolved, that all nations should adopt a policy of free trade."Coach Queener is pleased with the choice that has been made. He considered it the best of the topics submitted for the society's vote. Mr. Queener pointed out that the question is highly debatable because it reads that "all nations" should adopt a policy of free trade, rather than that the United States alone should adopt this policy. It would, he said, be comparatively difficult to show that one nation should have free trade while the others did not.

Why Go To Lyceums By Julia Terry

A lyceum number has a value far greater than the mere presentation itself. It's educational worth is certainly not limited to the performer on the stage.

In the first place, it is worth the price of a lyceum ticket itself to see how the chapel platform can be transformed into a stage with the theatrical necessities, lighting effects and scenery. It indeed shows that we have magicians on the Hill as well as on the stage. The lyceum also is valuable because it provides the opportunity to see the latest in evening dresses from Paris, the most collegiate fashions in sweaters, and what the well-dressed faculty member will wear.

It is also enlightening to see who comes with whom, the old faithfuls and the new possibilities. A seat in front is really preferable to one in the back because the balcony and its occupants are easily discernible until the lights go out, or until a sense of propriety and modesty cause the rubbernecks to do their own necking. Another value of a lyceum and especially the first number is to notice the absence of overzealous freshmen who have a chemistry quiz the next day and let their studies interfere with their college education. One scarcely ever hears of an upperclassman remaining in his room while a chapel entertainment is going on. An especial value of a seat in the front row is that the seat as well as its occupant does not have to reserved.

A lyceum is also valuable because a student has a peculiar, satisfying feeling that he is getting something for nothing, in that he does not have to put out actual cash on the night of the performance unless he is an escort. It is also interesting to see how much time can be consumed in walking from the chapel to Baldwin. Instead of the commonplace flagpole sitting contests and contests for tree-sitting it might be profitable to conduct an endurance contest for slow walking. The results would prove astounding.

Another value of the lyceum is that it provides an opportunity to wear one of your roommate's new dresses that she brought back with her, or a tie that your old lady brought from home. No doubt, a lyceum has a great many more advantages than have been mentioned, but perhaps they are so evident that they could not be limited to a few adjectives and exclamation points.

S. O. S. By Sumpter Logan

Shrill, piercing, hair-raising, staccato notes of an S.O.S. rythmically sent through the air as fast as light rays are brief reminders of a graveyard ditty. As to the meaning of the diddle-de-da-dits they have no verbal significance. The letters are used as a code signal requesting aid at sea. Of course the blended, frenzied, highly accelerated diddy-dit, da-da-da, diddy-dit is confined to sea episodes. But nevertheless an S.O.S. was sent out this summer, by a few Maryville College students— landlubbers— in search of summer employment, using full power as well as a maximum wave length. Applicable definitions for the three blood-curdling letters, in the spirit in which they were sent, are numerous. A few for example are: Send Our Supper, Stave Our Starvation; Send Old Shoes, or Salvage Odd Steaks. They were the spirits, the low spirits and melancholy forebodings, of empty stomachs. Who will acknowledge receipt of our signals to Save Our Stomachs?

Station M.C.S. (Maryville College Spirit) has picked up our signals! We scarcely breathe! A hand almost freezes on the transmitting key, but in a moment so critical, finger muscles immediately relax ready to give our position in degrees "hiketitude" and "emptitude.' Shortly after the customary signing off we learn that the operators at station M.C.S. in Detroit, Michigan, are Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Hintze, former students at Maryville College who are better known as "Mutt" Hintze, and, Naomi Agans. At once they deftly threw a heaving line over to our water-logged craft. Very soon we were ashore elbowing and jostling along the public ways.

In about ten minutes of this time the operators secured all watches, opened wide the doors of the ol' highland spirit, and faintly perfumed breezes garnished with soft boiled eggs and bacon had a strangely soothing effect, a lullaby of fairy land.

The Maryville College spirit that ebbs and flows unceasingly not only on the campus but also hundreds of miles away is an important by-product of education. Not by any means is an S. O. S. necessary in seeking acknowledgement of the fact.

Miss Clemens—"My dear, this book is awful. It has a cuss word in it that I want to show you."

A Suggestion

That children should be seen and not heard went out with the adage "Spare the rod and spoil the child." Such things are old fashioned. We wonder if courtesy is just another one of the old fashioned virtues belonging only to the mid-Victorian minds. Evidently some of those people who attended the journalism meeting held by Mr. Howard, Thursday night, seem to hold that opinion.

We realize that the opportunity to moonshine was too good to miss. There were some things that one just had to say. There were wise cracks that simply had to be made. Of course Mr. Howard asked for a round table discussion. It was! Perhaps we are getting too old and staid, too prone to criticize the adventurous youth of our college, but it does seem that one could be courteous without being branded as a 'back number'. People should at least be willing to listen when some one has something worthwhile to tell us.

—o—

"Crabbing"

We regret adverse criticism if it has not come as the result of intelligent thinking. We admire frankness and honesty. We would not for the moment have people always telling us that everything is just right in the world. No one is more tiresome than he who approves of everything. We would become rather soft if we did not have a few kick now and then. But we know that there is no pest more deadly and more detestable than the fellow who is always kicking.

The slogan "Don't be a knocker,, be a booster", is trite. The term 'conscientious objector' is also owerworked. Some one should find a new word for this poisonous individual who is forever crabbing about things. Grouch, crab, wet blanket, flattire, kill joy and sour face are attempts at expressing just what we feel about him. We find him in the dormitory, on the campus, in the class room, and he is always present in the dining room bewailing the fact that he must eat such insufferable food.

In Spain when one is in unfortunate circumstances he blames the government. On college hill we don't place the blame anywhere. We just kick.

—o—

TO THE VICTOR BELONGS THE SPOILS

Saturday night, the new girls were given an opportunity to join their favored society. Bainonian and Theta Halls were crowded with old members eager to give the new girls the glad hand. When the fray was over and the smoke of battle had cleared away, it was found that 90 had joined Theta and 70 lined up with Bainonian. Both societies expressed satisfaction.

THE OPEN FORUM

September 30, 1930

To The Open Forum:

The need of a new roof on the swimming pool is increasing daily. At present the only reason that the roof is staying up is that a post has been propped under the part sagging most and is holding the whole thing from crashing in. There is little doubt but that it is dangerous for anyone to enter the pool. At any time the whole roof might come down. If this happened during a swimming meet any students would be injured and some might be killed. Plaster is fallingcontinually, contaminating the water and endangering the students. While tarring the roof may help in keeping more of the plaster from falling, it can do no good in keeping the roof up.

There are other things that the pool needs. Last year during the meets the small space around the water was packed; many left because they could not see; others left because they could not get seats. The eastern wall of the pool building could very easily be moved outward when the roof is made. In the space bleachers could be built to seat two hundred or more. This would make the pool building one of the finest.

Another thing needed is an efficient heating system. At present the water is heated by a single steam pipe running into the water. Even in moderately cold weather this takes two or three weeks to heat the water to a comfortable temperature. Some hold that the water is heated more by the bodies of the swimmers than by the heating system.

I am not a contractor and do not know how much all this would cost. I think, however, that a new roof with steel girders could be built for $5,000, and a good heating system bought for $2,000.

These things will have to be done in the near future so why not do them now before anyone is injured and while the interest in swimming, which was so well started last year, is growing?

Dick Strain Annexes Tennis Tournament

Wins Three Out of Four Sets From Fischback.

Oct. 2—The annual Fall Tennis Tournament was completed today when "Dick" Strain defeated Fischback by the score of 3-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-1. "Dick" came out in the lead last spring also and is by far the most promising player on the hill. The sets this afternoon were all fast and only a few of the games stayed at the deuce point for any length of time.

Yesterday "Dick" defeated Don Buchanan in a hard match of three sets, taking them to the tune of 6-2, 3-6, 6-1. All of Strain's matches have been fairly hard but he has pulled through to claim the championship.

Tuesday, Fischback defeated Ed Buchanan in a real battle of the rackets. The first set went rather suddenly but the second one was drawn out to an 8-6 count. Most of the games reached the deuce point and in one game there were seventeen deuces before it was finally won. This was "Buck's" second match in the same afternoon, having defeated Shirley a few minutes before. Both men were ready to drop by the time the last game was won.

Some excellent tennis has been displayed during this tournament and the prospects for a winning team are bright. Twenty-nine men were entered in the first round but thirteen of these were eliminated in the first round. By Monday, the number still in the tournament had dwindled to eight. This tournament, although it has no direct bearing on the team, shows sthe possibilities in store for Coach Bob Smith to train next spring.

Women's Tennis Meet Has Many Entrants

Hamrick, Howe, Hodges, Foster Seeded in Tourney

Oct. 6—The women's tennis tournament started today with a few of the first round matches played off. There are twenty-five entrants in the tournament, four of which are slated as follows: which number one, Inez Hamrick; number two, Pauline Howe; number three, Kitty Hodges; and number four, Christine Foster. These girls are expected to reach the semi-final round, unless there are some up-sets.

The tournament is to be played on Baldwin and Memorial courts, and it has been requested that tournament matches have the preference over other matches. There is such a thing as "tennis etiquette", and it should be practiced at all times. A little later a set of rules will be published relating to this fact.

Although this fall tournament does not count towards the point system, it is good practice and the experience is worth a great deal. Interest is running high and there is much speculation as to who the champion will be.

All first round matches must be played by Wednesday, October 8.

BRADSHAW INJURED

For several days Aubrey Bradshaw, a prominent member of the sophomore class, has been confined to his room in Carnegie with injuries to his knee which resulted from ootball practice. The doctor reports that he will not be able to use his leg or several weeks to come.

MORRIS UNDERWOOD TUMBLING CAPTAIN

Plans Made For New Stunts On Year's Program.

Sept. 30—The "Agile Eight", now reduced to seven in number, met this afternoon for the purpose of electing a captain and manager for the coming season. Morris Underwood was elected captain with Ed Buchanan managing the business. Both of these men have been falling all over themselves for the team for the last three years and are expected to lead the gaily uniformed tumblers into brighter antics this year.

All those interested in tumbling are urged to come out and try it since there is at least one and possibly three vacancies to fill. Wire walking will probably be included in the performance at the circus next spring in addition to the regular rounds of stunts and pyramids.

WOMEN'S TUMBLING CLASS HOLDS MEETING

Sept. 30—The first meeting of the women's tumbling class was held this afternoon at four o'clock in Anderson Hall, for the purpose of electing a captain and manager for the year. Also to decide how often the class should meet. Inez Hamrick was elected captain and Lois Cupler manager. It was decided that the class should meet three times a week; however, the exact time has not been decided upon. The next meeting will be held Friday afternoon at four thirty.

Edwin Buchanan, better known as "Buck", who has charge of the class again this year, states that only a limited number of women will be permitted to make the team. Tryouts will be held soon and every woman who is interested is requested to report. These tryouts will be held on third floor of Anderson Hall, just above Professor Kiger's class room.

At first the work will be mainly in pyramid building and calisthenics, in order to get in shape for the fundamentals of tumbling. Nothing will be attempted that might prove injurous in any way. The equipment is limited, but if the class proves successful, there may be some way of making it known that good equipment is necessary.

Come out if you are willing to work, and let's make the women's tumbling team a reality instead of a myth!

Keeton—"I've taken a course in moonshining under a different instructor each year and I've flunked every one. I guess I'll have to take a summer school course."

"Lexington Bound" Lures Maryvillians

Last year when the Maryville squad gathered in the locker room of the Kentucky football stadium, to hear a few last bits of advice from Coach Lomby Honaker, there were about twenty-five weary but wise Maryvillians who had managed to get up to Lexington for the game.

It is this spirit among us on College Hill that helps to keep Maryville at the top. There will again be a small but peppy delgation up at Lexington this Saturday. The question is—how many?

CROSS COUNTRY RUN

Oct. 6—The annual cross country run will be held on November 7, during the game with Milligan. The course is not definitely laid out as yet but will probably be about five miles in length. A cup is given to the winner and medals are the rewards for second and third places. Any one who plans to go out for the run should start training immediately if he is not already doing so. No list of entrees will be taken until nearer the date of the race.

SCOTTIES BEAT WESLEYAN 19 TO 7

fray and was ably replaced by Tolliver. All Smoky Mountain Overly, who has been laid up with a bad ankle for the past two weeks received his initial summons when he replaced Cash at tackle. His ankle didn't seem to bother him as he was going with the old time drive.

The Highlander's passing game was well above par. With Woodard White and Calloway bearing the brunt of this attack, the Scots looked like an aerial squadron on dress parade.

Wesleyan's air attack was also very effective with McDonald and Smith doing the slinging and snagging.

Farmer Watkins seemed to have his old time aggressiveness, fighting in his old style all the way. Ex-captain McDonald was also there as of old throwing a wrench into the machinery of every Bulldog line play.

Hope, a brother to our ex-missionary Bill, was the outstanding defense player for the visitors. Time after time he broke through the line to smear a Maryville play before it got started.

Wesleyan has lost her first three games, but this by no means indicates her strnegth. She lost to the strong Tennessee freshmen two weeks ago and last week lost to our own Gene McMurray's Milligan outfit by the same score by which they lost to us.

That Maryville-Milligan fray promises to be one of the best of the year, if one can base an opinion on dope. Here it is: Last year was Gene's first year as Milligan's coach they came down here and held us to a 0 to0 tie; this year they have improved so have the Scots. They beat Wesleyan 19 to 7 so did the Scots. So there it is, take it or leave it.

Pep Meeting Held For Wesleyan Game

Ed Shepard and Battling Bronx Sisters on the Bill.

Oct. 2—The pep meeting held in Voorhees Chapel tonight after supper lacked a great deal of the enthusiasm that could be put into it. A great many did not attend the meeting who could have been there to help keep things going fast. Most of the yells and songs were given only half-heartedly especially at the beginning of the program.

Ed Shepard, accompanied by Miss Hudson, added a great deal of life to the program by his antics on the violin. The famous Battling Bronx sisters from New York also showed what pep was by their cleverly arranged boxing bout tap-dance. Both entertainments called for encores, which were graciously given and equally well rendered. Those who did not go, missed a treat which was both unusual and interesting.

If we want to back our team, we should come to pep meetings more and yell more while we're there.

KENTUCKEY DISPLAYS SQUAD OF GIANTS

Shipwreck Kelly To Show His Wares Against Maryville.

Oct. 6—The Maryville College Highlanders will depart Friday morning for Lexington where they encounter the giant University of Kentucky team, the next day. The Wildcats finished among the leaders of the Southern Conference last year and are required by many as the best in the south at the present time.

To say that the Wildcats have a big team is putting it mildly. The Kentucky line averages around 200 pounds, having only two or three men under 200, and one of these is Drucy, all southern tackle. It was this big and fast line that gave the Wildcats such a high ranking last year.

Kentucky also boasts a backfield loaded with dynamite. Carey Spicer, triple threat back, Shipwreck Kelly, last year's sophomore sensation, Johnson and Phipps form a very strong combination.

The Highlanders are improving rapidly. The slowness and lack of precision is leaving their play, and the Scotties are now working as a unit. Great improvement is being made in the development of the open style of play, especially the passing department, and a team with a good passing attack is always dangerous. The Scotties are all tuned up and are ready to give the Wildcats a stiff battle.

ACTING PRESIDENT IN LLOYD HOME

at bat. Ruth is five and a most charming little kindergarten miss whose principal interest is that everyone see and properly appreciate her baby sister, Louise. Louise has eighteen months to her credit and a world of energy. She will unquestionably make the Girls' Tumbling Team before she's been on the Hill a week.

"Dr. Lloyd's parishioneers were friendly in their greetings to his visitor, but they probably all felt as one of them put it, 'You Maryville people ought to be ashamed of yourselves.' And, Dr. Hunter continues "as I stood with Dr. Lloyd in his church in the twilight of Friday evening, in an auditorium beautifully and harmoniously appointed for worship, as I caught the note of deep feeling in his voice as he spoke of his work there, and as I had seen all day the evidences of the warm regard in which his congregation of 1100 members hold him and of their poignant regret at his leaving, I caught some sense of the real wrench of the heart and the real strength of the sense of a call to duty which were involved in his decision to leave his great work there in order to come to Maryville. Personally, my visit and conference with Dr. Lloyd have very greatly deepened my already sufficient pleasure and confidence in his selection as president of the College.

"Dr. Lloyd said, 'Tell everybody that now that I have given my word to come, I'm more and more eager to get on the job, and more and more enthusiastic with the prospect of work at Maryville. The new president and his family are now planning to arrive in Maryville about Thanksgiving Day. Surely that will make a happy combination of anniversaries for the future."

FACULTY ASSUMING COSMOPOLITAN AIR

With some member of our faculty touring all parts of the known world, others seeking the garden spots of America and still others visiting beauty parlors and having their locks personally attended to by experts, Maryville students are eagerly looking forward to the next move the faculty will make. Miss Molly, Mrs. Worley and Miss Jewell are the latest to listen to the beautifying advice that Karl Walton, former M. C. student, is giving out gratis to faculty members.

CAMPUS BEING KEPT IN CONDITION

Oct. 5—Under the supervision of Mr. Brown, the campus is rapidly being brought to good condition. Every afternoon gangs of workers dressed in old clothes may be seen struggling with crooked, weed grown paths and unsightly flower beds.

The brick walls around Anderson have been scraped clean and edged. Now the gravel walks are coming in for some attention. Those finished look even better than they did when they were put down last year.

Two flower beds have been cleaned out and look very well as the flowers are putting forth a new effort to bloom before the frost. The trees are also being cared for. Two students spent a large part of their time in trimming them, and repairing the damage done by the drouth and hail storms of the summer.

We have a beautiful campus and it is good to see that we are keeping it in as good condition as possible.

AFFILIATE CHURCH MEMBERSHIP CARDS

During the past week an effort has been made on the part of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. to reach all new sutdents with regard to the affiliate church membership while attending Maryville. Cards provided by the churches have been taken to all new students to allow them to affiliate with the church of their choice.

The churches of Maryville are eager to have students of their denominations who are away from home to attend their services throughout the year and take part in as many of the church activities as possible.

SENIOR ENGLISH

The highest grade on the senior English test was made by Virginia Carter, who made a score of 196 out of a possible 207. The two next highest were Bill Graham, with a score of 193, and Rachel Grubbs, with a score of 192.

The average grade of those coming from northern states was 161.5, that of those coming from southern states was 157.1. This might indicate some superiority of northern high schools over southern. This average is, however, based on the work of only fifteen pupils from the north and seventy-seven from the south.

LYCEUM

Oct. 1—The first Lyceum program of the season 1930-31 was presented tonight in Voorhees Chapel. John Edward Bockewitz "artist, poet and actor" presented a varied program. He held the interest of his large audience from start to finish by the unexpectedness of his actions. From drawing cartoons he proceeded to writing various words upside down, drawing pictures of various names and other stunts. His wind-up was a crayon depiction of The Rock of Ages and a companion picture of Home, Sweet Home.

ADDIE MAE DODSON

Oct. 2—Addie Mae Dodson, a member of the junior class is recovering from a nervous collapse which she suffered last Friday evening, September 26 during the pep meeting. She has been in the hospital since that time but is regaining her health gradually. We wish to extend our sympathy to her and hope that she will soon be back among us able to resume her duties.

VOL. 16 MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE MON., OCTOBER 13, 1930 NUMBER FOUR

KENTUCKY SWAMPS HIGHLANDERS, 57-0

Y. HIKERS SEE LOOK ROCK, SAT.

Culinary Skill of Camp Cooks Demonstrated By Delicious Edibles.

FOUR GROUPS

Songs And Wisecracks Liven Tired Group Around Camp Fire.

Oct. 12—The energetic youth of the college who went on the Y. M. Hike yesterday, straggled in today from twelve o'clock until about four o'clock this afternoon. The return was made as quickly as possible, all agreeing that Maryville was a most welcome sight.

The groups, under the leadership of Jesse James, Homer McCann, Ed Shelley, Dean Rogers and Ed Buchanan, left from the Y. M. C. A. building 3:30 Saturday afternoon and hiked the nine miles to Montvale at a fairly swift pace. It then began to grow dark and the real climb began. The first short cut was comparatively easy, but most of the fellows avoided the next cut and took the road. Homer McCann's group hiked to the top of Look Rock last night, but the others remained at the half way mark.

Soon fires were blazing, and enticing odors spread around the camp. The boys did justice to the meal which consisted of savory coffee, fried hamburgers, bacon and toast. After supper, some of the groups sat around telling stories and toasting marshmallows. Others felt like "turning in" immediately, and after some good natured grumbling, finally found a place that seemed most conducive to sleep. Several hours later, they got to sleep in spite of loud "shut-ups", several petty quarrels, and the usual exchange of sarcasm.

ABSENCE REPORT BOXES MISUSED

Some Maryville students seem to have a wrong idea as to the purpose of certain little wooden boxes located in the halls of Thaw, Science, and Anderson respectively. The one in Thaw is at the left of Dean Barnes' office; the one in Science directly opposite the entrance, and the one in Anderson opposite the treasurer's office.

A slit is provided in the top for the insertion of one thing only: teachers' absence reports. But oh! what an assortment of articles is salvaged from these boxes! The one in Science yielded the other day a chemistry experiment sheet. The information contained thereon was, no doubt, very valuable, but it was of no immediate value to the office force.

The box in Anderson provided the office with an English literature report. Regularly all three boxes function for Uncle Sam. Letters stamped and letters not stamped but with pennies furnished upon deep searching, are often intrusted to these containers. Let the mind's eye of the students see posted above each box a placard which says, "Refrain from inserting."

MRS. McMURRAY IS GUEST OF NOBLEY & CAREN

Oct. 6—Mrs. J. H. McMurray, head of the College-Maid Shop, left today for Cincinnati, to be the guest of Nobley and Caren at the private opening of their new store, "Caren Tower". While she is there she will be in consultation with Mr. Armstrong, president of the company with regard to opening a College-Maid Department in the new building.

Mrs. McMurray will interview other promient people who are interested in the project she has so successfully carried on, and will speak before Cincinnati Presbyterial about the Shop.

SECOND LYCEUM NUMBER TUES.

Noted Russian Cossack Chorus Presents Most Expensive Program of Year.

The Russian Cossack Chorus will be presented in the Chapel Tuesday evening at eight o'clock as the second lyceum number of this year's lyceum course.

The Chorus is composed of Cossacks from the southern part of Russia, all veterans of the World War. The Cossacks are soldiers who lived on the outskirts of Russia during the Czarine to protect the country from invasion. The men wear the traditional military garb of Russian soldiery.

Under the competent leadership of their famous director, Serger Socoloff, the Cossack Chorus has made tours of Yugoslavia, France, Spain, and other European countries. In 1925 a trip was made into Central America and Mexico. In Panama the chorus sang to its first American audience, which led to a recent tour of the United States with cordial receptions everywhere.

The repertoire of the chorus comprises the compositions of Borodine, Rubenstein, Rachmaninoff, Mendelssohn, Olcott, and others.

Since this is the most expensive program of the season, the price of tickets for outsiders will be a dollar and twenty-five cents. The price of student reserved seats will, however, remain at the customary fifteen cents.

MRS. MINTON DIES AT NOON, MON., OCT. 6

Beloved Faculty Member Dies After Six Months' Illness.

The death of Mrs. Mary McDermid Minton at noon, Monday came as a shock to many of those who are connected with Maryville College and who have known and loved Mrs. Minton. Since the beginning of her illness which came last spring we have missed seeing her here on college hill. Her knowing remarks which added so much spice to life have also been missed.

A graduate of Ripon College in 1895, Mrs. Minton has had a life filled with varied experiences. For twelve years she was an instructor at "Escuela Normal Presbyteriana" in Mexico City, Mexico. She also taught at Union College, Barberville, Kentucky. It was while she was teaching in Mexico that she met Mr. Minton who was a Presbyterian minister.

In 1922 Mrs. Minton came to teach at Maryville College. She was granted her master's degree by the University of Tennessee in 1927.

Mrs. Minton did not confine her teaching to instruction in the principles of the Spansh language; she had a knowledge of life with its joys and sorrows which enabled her to give others more than mere technical wisdom.

SYNODICAL EXAMINER HERE WED., OCT. 8

The Rev. Mr. A. H. Mutschler, synodical examiner and pastor of the Presbyterian churches of New Prospect and New Market, visited Maryville College on Wednesday, October the eighth.

Mr. Mutschler led the chapel exercises, giving an interesting talk on the call of Isaiah and the present day need for answering the calls that God sends to us. He says that the supreme need of people today is to have a clean heart and thus walk with God.

The college classrooms, laboratories, library, bookroom, and office were visited by the examiner. He was interested in obtaining statistics as to the number of pupils of the different religious, the representation from various states and countries, and so on.

WRITERS' WORK-SHOP ELECTS

MacKenzie, Auld, O'Dell, West Are New Members. Picnic Wednesday.

Oct. 6—The Writer's Workshop met today at three o'clock at which time plans for the next three meetings were made, and four members elected to membership.

Mildred MacKenzie, Margaret Auld, Jaculyn O'Dell, and Bob West, all juniors, were made members of the workshop. These four students were elected from a proposed list of thirteen names. Following this election the following members were selected for the governing board: Miss Helen Gamble, chairman; Julia Terry, secretary; Mabel Dickerson, and Donald Benn. The governing board is making plans for the annual fall picnic which will be held next Wednesday, October 15. A spot in the mountains above Townsend has been selected for the picnic at which time and place the neophytes will be entertained and help entertain. Automobiles will leave the book room at three-fifteen and will return early in the evening.

On the following Wednesday, October 22, Leland Gilmore and Hessie Keeton will read their papers, the first to be submitted this year.

The Writers' Workshop is an organization composed of selected faculty members, seniors and juniors elected to membership for their ability to write. Each member must submit one paper a semster which may be in the form of an essay, short story, poem, or any form of literature for which he is most adapted. The papers are read at the regular meetings every Wednesday and are followed by criticisms and suggestions from the members present.

DADDY KNAPP'S INK SPOT TRICKS REGISTRAR

Oct. 10—This morning an interesting bit of information was disclosed which reveals some of the antics the faculty go through after class hours. Daddy Knapp walked into the office of Miss Jones when she was out for a few minutes. He had with him a fake ink spot made of tin. Such things come with magic sets. He placed Miss Jones' ink stand over this deceptive piece of metal in such a way that it seemed as if a great deal of ink had just been spilled. When Miss Jones came in she saw the seeming catastrophe, uttered a cry, and grabbed the blotter only to find that the ink spot would not blot.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB ORGANIZES

18 Members Selected From 50 Who Try Out. Miss Henry Director

The women's glee club has been organized again this year with eighteen members and has now started work under the able supervision of Miss Henry.

It is interesting to note that exactly one-half of the women are from the freshman class, showing that the added strength will make the glee club better. Miss Henry expresses favorable opinion of the work this year and much progress is expected to be made.

About fifty women tried out for the club, eighteen of which were selected. Since there can be only a limited number, the selection was made of those who possessed the most volume. Those selected were: Jane Duke, Anne Smartt, Eloise Garrett, Norma Spilsotre, Amanda Clark, Elizabeth Gillis, Virginia Lee Johnson, Mary Metcalfe, Virginia Rexrode, Mary E. Himmelright, Ellen Macrae, Naomi Willingham, Mildred Purviance, Marie Boitnott, Carrie Pearson, Virginia Ross, Murl Underwood, Elizabeth Hunt, and Geraldine Smith.

The club started the year off right by getting acquainted at an informal party in the Y. W. reading room Friday night.

The main feature of the evening was the initiation of the new members. This consisted of trying out voices for the "Barnyard Club". It was surprising to note how nearly they could imitate fowls! However, since they had already been selected by Miss Henry, they were allowed to remain in the club. The rest of the program consisted of songs, after which lemonade and cakes were served.

ECHO CORRECTS ERRORS MADE IN FORMER ISSUES

Two errors that the staff wishes to correct have appeared in previous issues of the Echo. One of these is in reference to the degree conferred upon Miss Green last commencement. The degree that she received is L. H. D., Doctor of Humane Letters.

The other mistake was in last week's Echo. Mrs. Lloyd was referred to as an alumnus of Wilson College, where, of course, alumna was meant. This error is in no way attributable to the author of the article.

Every gold digger should realize that if she wants a thing well done she must do him herself.

Transformations—By Julia Terry

Little dabs of cold cream,
Combs all o'er her head,
Transformed the fair young damsel,
Before she hops in bed.

Great are the revelations, transformations, and illusions that take place in the women's dormitories after seven o'clock and nine-thirty in the evening, and six o'clock in the morning.

Preparations for the night (and sometimes the knight) are begun immediately after supper when the procession to the showers is started, revealing all kinds of bathrobes, pajamas, towels, and washcloths. Sometimes the colors of these articles are harmonious; at other times they are not. It is astounding to hear songs in many keys arise from the showers after the procession has found its goal. This singing may be merely a defense mechanism or it may be the lament of one who was not chosen for the glee club.

Cold cream next makes its appearance either dabbed with little descrimination as to pattern and place, or spread evenly over the entire face as a sort of base or fortification against attacks of many kinds. Another transformation, or at least a much hoped for one, is the reducing transformation accompanied by music between nine-thirty and ten o'clock. Gym classes are held at this zero hour every night and new devotees join the classes when the results are favorable; otherwise, they join the throng in the Y-store yielding to temptation and adding advoirdupois.

Another form of evening wear that is probably not a transformation but a form that usually puts the matrons into a trance, is the mule heel parade clicking down the hall, either at a gallop, a trot, or at a slow walk.

Lights are usually extinguished long before they should be, in the minds of most individuals, so that a state of unpreparedness exists with cold cream jars, lotion bottles, and toothpaste tubes left untopped and uncapped to be overturned in the dark. Gradually, the halls become quiet after various forms of admonitions, until at six o'clock the fore-named processes are reversed and the ugly duckling becomes the fair young damsel.

Shipwreck Kelly Tallies Four Times For Wildcats

Highlanders Make Seven First Downs, Gains Ninety-seven Yards.

HONAKERITES SHOW FIGHT

Calloway Honored as Offensive Leader; Tope Shines On The Defensive.

Oct. 11—Kentucky's big line and elusive set of backs proved too strong for the Maryville Highlanders, who suffered a 57-0 set-back at the hands of the Wildcats in Lexington Saturday. Kelly, scored four times on long runs for the Wildcats. Other markers were made by Spicer, Phipps, Urbaniak and Toth.

The Scots started strongly, for the first quarter holding Kentucky in their own territory and blocking Kelly's first punt. This gave the Highlanders the ball on the Wildcats' 25-yard line but they could not advance. It was late in the first quarter that Kelly after apparently being downed for a loss broke loose for 69 yards and a touchdown.

From this point, Kentucky's fine blocking, overpowering strength, and the Highlanders inability to hold on to the elusive backs gave the Wildcats a decided advantage. The Kentucky backs plunged through the line and around the ends for long gains using fake spinners and double passes behind the line.

Maryville threatened late in the half and in the final minutes by opening up a passing attack which gained a few first downs. However, the big Wildcat line rushed the passes so much that many tosses went wild.

Kentucky's first string was kept in the game for three quarters. The second string was held on even terms by the Scots, scoring only

Y. W. HOLDS BAZAAR NOV. 19, IN THAW

Oriental Atmosphere Planned To Draw Customers.

Plans for the Y. W. Bazaar which is to be given in Thaw Hall, November 19, are almost completed. The purpose is to make money for a new building, which has been needed for some time, in order to have a place to carry on Y. W. activities.

The bazaar is to be held on second floor Thaw Hall, using the class rooms on the east side as Oriental booths in which various and numerous gifts will be sold. There will be four booths: one with the faculty in charge, one with new students, and two with old students. The Y. W. reading room will be converted into an Oriental tea-room, where sandwiches, cakes, and drinks will be sold.

Those in charge are putting out their best efforts to make it a success, and they can do this only with the cooperation of the student-body. If you are asked to help, do your bit; then when we have a new building, you will be able to say you contributed to it!

FRESHMAN EDITOR REPORTS ELECTION

Wilson, Kellar, Bertram and Fortune Are Honored.

By Bob Rule

Oct. 9—The freshmen met this morning and elected their class officers for the year. A committee was selected for the purpose of nominating candidates for the different offices and the nominations were voted upon by the class.

Floyd Wilson was nominated as a dark horse as the meeting opened, and the campaign to elect him as president evidently had been well planned as he was the man of the majority. Congratulations Floyd.

Margaret Kellar was the only girl that was elected to one of the offices. She was chosen vice-president by a large vote, and this selection was not an unwise one.

Marhall Bertram received the majority of the votes for the position of secretary. He has a responsible position and should make us a good secretary.

It was quite fitting that Donald Fortune should be elected treasurer, since he is to be the one to take care of the class's "fortune". The class has great confidence in him and you can bet that he will not betray this confidence.

Bob Rule was elected as the class editor. Reason unknown.

HOSPITAL HAS FIVE OCCUPANTS THIS WEEK

During the past week the hospital has had five occupants in the various stages of sickness and danger.

Tom Cash, tackle on the football team, has been seriously ill with blood poisoning but is now past the danger line and is recovering rapidly. He says that he just has to go to the senior open party. George Osborne, library assistant, and latest devotee of the masculine mustache, is getting the better of the disease called influenza. Mary Cate Clifton and Mary Katherine Mize are recovering from slight attacks of appendicitis. Aubrey Bradshaw has been in the hospital treating an infected knee but expects to be discharged in the near future.

The modern college of Pharmacy is a Sundae school.

NEW SYSTEM WORKS WELL IN LIBRARY

"The use of call slips and the new charging system in the Maryville College library is getting the desired results", said Prof. H. L. Ellis, the librarian, when interviewed, Saturday.

Three slips are used. If a student wishes to read a reserve book in the library, he writes on a white slip the title and author of the book, his name, and the time of signing. If he wants to take the book out over night, he fills out a blue slip. A yellow one is used in securing a magazine.

"The new system has many advantages," said the librarian. It relieves the congestion around the charging desk, reduces noise to a minimum by eliminating oral calls, facilitates the service, and enables me to tell at once who has a book or periodical, and to know when it should be returned."

TWENTY MEN CHOSEN FOR GLEE CLUB

Oct. 6—The final choice for the Glee Singers was made this afternoon as a result of the try-outs this morning. Those who made the club are:

First tenors—Alexander, Groves, Hanah, Leach, Mathias.

Second tenors—Buchanan, Cudney, Culver, Grooms, Shelley.

Baritones—French, Garman, Overly, Shirley, Wallace.

Basses—Briggs, Duncan, Johnston, Marston, McReynolds.

William Norville, chemistry assistant, is the good Samaritan up to date. He has been visiting the hospitals and shaving the patients.

Having studied about the degeneration of words in Etymology class, Mildred MacKenzie thoughtlessly admits that woman has degenerated.

Does It Pay?

Rita S. Halle has written an article for McCall's magazine on "It Can Be Done" which is a well handled treatment of the much discussed question of working one's way through college. Miss Halle has been very cautious in all of her statements, always backing them up with quotations from deans of well-known eastern and western universities and colleges. She admits, with reservations, that it can be done, but her article contains such depressing statements as these:

"There are students who do enough work to pay most of their expenses and can get a great deal out of college besides. But they are exceptions and their stories throw a roseate hue over the situation that is not justified by facts and figures.

"I cannot but think that it is a mistake to borrow money to go to college."

It is only natural to assume that Miss Halle has never heard of Maryville College. Her article contains no stories of people who come to college without money. She barely mentioned the fact that there are colleges that really encourage self-help. The writer knows from self experience that working one's way is not the heroic and self satisfying thing that the Alger books pictured it. But an article entitled "It Can Be Done at Maryville" could be written that would leave one feeling more confident of getting an education than did Miss Halle's article. It has occurred to us that some interesting statistics could be collected concerning the records of the students who work their way through Maryville College.

Just Suppose

The book "Why We Behave Like Human Beings" does not explain all about us. Somebody should write one on "Why We Like to Get Out of Classes." How glad we are when our instructors leave, or for some other reason we do not have to attend classes! It isn't that we dislike the instructor. Sometimes we like to have those whom we consider "all there" go away and leave us. It isn't always true that we dislike the subject. Sometimes it is a fascinating one. But, just the same, we get the most delightful feeling when we learn that a class will not be held. Queer how we humans balk at acquiring knowledge! Unpleasantness of school is the theme for many a song and story.

As college students, we should be burning with eagerness to know. We are a select body—one that must lead the rabble. We should haunt the libraries instead of the Drug Stores; take down every word that the learned teachers say to us; hasten to our classes and leave them reluctantly. We should read all the poems about wasted opportunities and linger long over the moral lesson contained in each.

What a queer college that would be if students acted in such a scandalous fashion! What stupid company we should be for each other! We wonder if even the faculty members would not find us a little dull (dull is not a synonym for dumb) if we acted according to the copy book.

But we won't.

RESOLUTIONS

Since our heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to call unto Himself our beloved friend and teacher, the mother of our classmate, Willamara Minton,

Be it resolved that we, the members of the junior class, extend our love and sympathy to the family, trusting that the Holy Comforter will be very near to strengthen them in their hour of sorrow.

Be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be read in chapel, a copy printed in the Highland Echo, and a copy sent to the bereaved family.

BAINONIAN GETS TWELVE NEW MEMBERS

Twelve more new girls joined Bainonian Literary Society, Saturday night. Since seventy joined last week, the Society now has eighty-two new members. That they have talent was proved by the clever impromptu program that they gave for the entertainment of the old members. They will further demonstrate their ability in a program which will be rendered in about three weeks.

Taking Electrical Convenience From Ol' Man River

THE total capacity of waterwheel generators built by General Electric in the last ten years is more than enough to supply light and power for twenty cities of one million population.

Installed in power houses along the waterways, these machines transform the strength of mighty rivers into useful electric energy for homes, for industry, and for transportation.

The vision and skill of college-trained men are largely responsible for the continuing leadership of General Electric in its service of furnishing machines and devices that provide the swift, sure convenience and the economy of electricity — on land and sea and in the air.

Maryville's Path To Smoky Mountain Conference Championship Looks Insecure

SPORTS

EMORY AND HENRY GRIDMEN HERE THIS FRIDAY

CARSON-NEWMAN, MILLIGAN THREATENED

Carban, Milligan, Shows Plenty of Speed and Drive.

Oct. 13—A look forward at Maryville's 1930 football schedule reveals more dangerous opposition ahead of the Highlanders than was supposed at the beginning of the season.

Aside from the Emory-Henry game this Friday evening, which is simply a toss-up as to which team will take the honors, Maryville's path to the Smoky Mountain Conference title looks even more risky than it did two weeks ago. The Milligan Buffaloes, coached by Jean McMurray, were counted on as a strong threat, due to their noted improvement over last year, when they held Maryville to a scoreless tie.

Now that the Carson-Newman gridders have taken Milligan down, 6-0, its looks as though the Highlanders will have their hands full with each of these teams. Chet wrown, Milligan star, will probably be recovered from injuries in time to face the Orange and Garnet, and Johnny Carban, midget Carson-Newman half-back, is no slouch, as the Milligan squad found out Saturday.

Coach Honaker hopes to have his cupples in shape by this week-end. Don Wilson and Captain Storey have been nursing knee injuries along, and Joe Woodward hurt his bad leg again in the Kentucky game. Lee Calloway's shoulder injury, suffered in the Kentucky fracas, will not improve Maryville's chances, for the flashy All-Conference half-back has been coming through in great style all season and we shall need him badly in games to come.

In spite of the score of the Kentucky contest, the Highlanders clicked together as a grid machine in creditable fashion, and there is no doubt but that the team morale will be a big factor in our future games.

From a freshman's news article about the Lyceum number—

"The last of his pictures was a little old shack, brightened by memories of the past and electric lights called home."

AMBITIOUS WOMEN FORM HIKING CLUB

Membership Limited To Eight, Two Sponsors.

Mon., Oct. 13—A new club has been organized on the hill this year with eight charter members and two sponsors. This club is none other than a hiking club for women. Since this is the first time anything like this has been attempted, it has yet to be proven whether it will be a success.

The club is limited to a membership of eight; but each year, the place of those graduating or not returning, is filled by a new member. No freshman will be allowed to become a member. Those filling in the vacancies will have to pass scout tests and hike a certain number of miles before they will be admitted.

The club is sponsored by Miss Gamble and Miss Hudson. The charter members are: Merle Beebe, Pat Henry, Carol Cushman, Mildred Purviance, Eloise Garrett, Georga Burk, Nez Hamrick, and Julia Terry.

Lobby of Carnegie Hall Scene of Interest as Philadelphia Cops Series

Baseball Fans Take Advantage Of Diamond News Over Radio. Many Students Attracted.

A group of fellows in the lobby of Carnegie Hall lean forward tensely. In spite of the static, they try to catch every word the announcer says.

"Is it a homer?" some one asks.

The static clears away. 'That is Al Simmon's first home run of the World Series of 1930, making the score 2 to 2."

All the fellows who are boosting for or betting on the Athletics give a whoop of joy, but the St. Louis fans slouch down a little in their chairs and shuffle their feet.

And then, when the game is over, some disappointed fan, in an effort to relax after the excitement, tunes in on a bit of dreamy jazz or snappy dance music. This, in turn, arouses the tap-dancing instinct and the lobby is transformed into a dancing school until the radio is removed for the day.

Through the thoughtfulness of Dean Howell and the kindness of the City Drug Company the men of the hall were privileged to hear the world series right at home. The dean, ralizing how great the interest in baseball suggested that a radio be placed in the lobby during the world series, and the City Drug Company complied with his wish.

By the time the last game of the series was played, however, the Drug Company's radio had been sold, and of course, was not available to the men of Carnegie. But Dean Howell was not to be thwarted in his purpose of bringing the game to the very campus. He placed his own set in one of the windows of his home, so that the fellows lounged around on the lawn and heard the big game of the series anyway.

Pep Meeting Held For Kentucky Game

Band Plays Fast Tunes To Help "Raise The Roof".

Thursday night's pep meeting afforded the students two opportunities—one of making all the noise they could—the other of listening to the noise made by music and love making on the program.

Pep meetings certainly go over better when there is a band on hand to spice or pep things up—somehow the Pep song and the Alma Mater sound better to the tune of a cornet, and the punctuations furnished by the drum give added force to the words.

There have been some very interesting stunts put on during the pep meetings of recent weeks—but the one last night appealed to some more than any other this far. The lowered lights and the sillhouetted formss gave a delightful atmosphere for—As I was saying the pep meetings are getting of a higher class as the year progresses.

Let's put everything we have into the fight to win over Emory and Henry—Onward!

Say I hear—been making a lot of money here lately—is that on the level?

No; but he's been making a lot of money.

EMORY AND HENRY OUT FOR VICTORY

Highlanders Out To Avenge Last Year's Defeat.

Perhaps the most important game of the year confronts Coach Honaker's footballers this week. On Friday night, on Maryville's illuminated field, the Highlanders engage the gridiron warriors from Emory and Henry College.

It will be remembered that last year it was the Wasps who ruined Maryville's chances for the conference title by plowing through rain and snow to a 24-0 victory over the Honakerites, The conference championship eventually went to Milligan.

Again this year, Emory and Henry stands in Maryville's path to the top of the conference ladder. Coach Lomby Honaker has been favoring some of his injured men, getting them in shape for this game, for he realizes its importance to Maryville. With a couple of good linemen and better end play on the year's team, Maryville's chances of defeating the visitors may be conceded to be better than last year. At the same time, the Wasps lost

DEBATE TRY-OUTS

Oct. 6—Throughout the day Prof. Queener held the try-outs for the freshman debate class. There will be two divisions of the class this year, each meeting one hour a week. It is hoped that there are some good debaters in this group, because students in the class of '34 will represent the college at a large Pi Kappa Delta Convention in Washington four years from now.

SENIOR CLASS MEETING

Oct. 10—The Senior Class met again today to reconsider their previous action with regard to the Senior section of the Chilhowean. It was decided to have the pictures taken in formal evening wear rather than the informal as was previously preferred. Caps and gowns gained very little popularity and were out of the question. Writeups lauding the Seniors' merits appeared to be unpopular and will be omitted from this year's annual.

Maryville College is well represented on the executive staff of the Woman's Business and Professional Club of Maryville. Miss Gretrude Meiselwitz is president of this club, and Miss Ruth Weese, assistant registrar, is secretary. In past years this organization has been very active. The students wish for it continued success under the presidency of Miss Meiselwitz.

THREE "I" CLUB PARTY

The Three "I" Club met last Wednesday night in Theta Hall to discuss plans for the future. It was decided to have the first party in the college woods, Monday afternoon, October 13th.

The group will meet in front of Pearsons Hall immediately after dinner. All students from Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa are extended a cordial invitation to the festivities.

LAW CLUB HOLDS FIRST MEETING

The Law Club met Wednesday evening, President James gave an address which revealed the purpose and principles of the club to the new men, and urged the cooperation of the old men in carrying out the programs for the year.

"Henry Clay" Taylor favored the club with some "rambling bits of humor", which drew a hearty laugh from every one present.

President James then asked for suggestions from the members concerning the programs for the year.

The club extends a hearty welcome to all new men who are interested in making law their profession.

ALABAMA CLUB ELECTS

The Alabama Club held a meeting Friday evening, October the tenth, for the purpose of electing officers. The following were chosen:

As Several Have Said—By BOB WEST

There is no recognized manner of handling one of these column affairs. The techniques of the recognized artists are as multifarious as the flowers of May, as diverse as the best systems of philosophy, and as dull as a new styled Gillette razor blade. Arthur Brisbane espouses economics, Russia, martial preparedness and California. O. O. McIntyre revels in sentimental panegyrics on the sidewalks of New York and once the hicks who have now made good. Will Rogers says something funny about nothing and lets it go with that.

Now I am wholely incapable of similar sentimental lubrications. I write just as hurriedly as possible because writing to me is a bore and very unpleasant, and I write as meaninglessly as possible because writing is boring and unpleasant, and because nothing written makes much eventual difference or sense as—like six fish, as 'Horse' Cooper says.

—:—

But I won't gripe any longer about the idiosyneratic condition which surrounds one who tries to keep one of these columns on a public basis. After all we all have our troubles for there are times when the most linnet-throated optimist creaks sardonically. One of these times is when one of these ferocious Maryville colds gets a strangle hold. There is nothing more conducive to cynicism; UNLESS it is the system of matriculation. Even the brave quail in contemplation; of course there is the hospital for those who finally are told that they must return tomorrow.

—:—

But once you gain that longed for O. K. from Mr. Proffitt then this same O. K. gives you the opportunity of seeing the highlanders in action, free of charge—believe it or not. Speaking of football. It's rapidly coming to the point where we attend football and go to a few classes on the side. The great question of the future seems to me to be: "What stadium do you attend?" etc.

Y. HIKERS SEE LOOK ROCK, SATURDAY

Dawn found most of the men up, walking stiffly about, half clothed, and sleepily trying to find the rest of their raiment. Some of the more ambitious hiked to the top of Look Rock to see the sun rise, but most of the fellows felt it "nicer to lie in bed."

A good breakfast refreshed dampened spirits and bruised bodies. One group successfully carried eggs up the steep trail for their morning repast. Afted breakfast, the conversation turned to the hike back to the hill. The Sunday dinner came up to all expectations, and after that the group returned to the college.

The fellows who had the time, cash and energy to go on the hike, thoroughly enjoyed it, and are eager for another one of the same kind next year. A great deal of credit is due to the cooks, the group leaders, and to Jesse James as President of Y. for the general success of the hike.

You know I would write about what appeals to me most ——if it wasn't for the censors.

THETA EPSILON

Saturday, Oct. 11—Tonight Theta Epsilon Literary Society held its regular meeting at 6:45 in Theta Hall. However, the meeting was a little out of the ordinary, since an initiation program was featured for the first time in the history of the society. The new girls were required to wear their dresses backwards, gym shoes and hose, no cosmetics, and if their hair was long, plaited, if short, brushed from the face. Other parts of the initiation program were not given out to reporters! The main part of the program consisted of a speech of welcome by the president, Esther Horton, and special music. The meeting closed with singing the Theta song and repeating the motto.

but one man, Littlejohn, who was the biggest threat of the team.

Milligan comes here on November sevnth, and Lenoir-Rhyne on November fourteenth. One of these games will probably be designated by the Athletic Board of Control, as the annual homecoming day. Alumni and friends of Maryville College are asked to take notice of this.

WRITERS' WORK SHOP INITIATES

Pen-pushers Throw Annual Fall Picnic on Little River Wed., Oct. 15

TWENTY-TWO MEMBERS

Four Neophytes Produce Morality Play; Take Warming Up Exercises.

Oct. 15—The annual fall picnic of the Writers' Workshop was held this afternoon above Townsend on Little River with twenty-two members in attendance. Automobiles left from the Book Room about three-thirty and drove the twenty-eight miles in a comparatively short time. Immediately after arriving the initiates, or neophytes, were put to work and assumed this position during the entire evening.

The governing board was in charge of the food and the program, the food being delicious, and the program being highly entertaining. Other than being the efficient acting president of the college, Dr. Hunter proved himself a woodsman of superlative ability, as well as a high-powered producer of neophytic humiliation. After the food was discovered, cooked, and devoured, the rest of the evening was spent in assailing the neophytes in more ways than one. They produced a morality play with no discernible point entitled, "Practice Makes Perfect". The point must be discovered by the next meeting or they will be required to assume many positions. After several speeches entitled, "Black is White", "Fireman, Save My Child," "Worms", a musical reading entitled, "Moonlight and Roses", and several warming up exercises the neophytes extinguished the fire, climbed up the hill to the road in darkness, and rode home in painful silence.

HELEN CROWDER AT LINE SPRINGS HOTEL

Oct. 13—This afternoon and evening a picnic supper at Line Springs was enioyed by Miss Heron, Nez Hamrick, Billy Gruchy, Helen Burdette, Rachel Frost, Naomi Willingham, Irish Terry, and Helen Crowder who is spending several weeks at the mountain resort.

The juniors and seniors will remember Helen Crowder as a loyal member of the Class of '30 who was unable to graduate on account of heart trouble, the first attack of which she received in the summer of 1929. For several months she was in bed and at times was allowed to sit up, and then later to walk. However, she would continually overdo and be forced to relax completely, seeing very few people, and contenting herself with working up enough strength to resume her walking. This summer she was taken to Line Springs Mountain Resort, a few miles above Townsend and has been there ever since regaining her strength and health.

Helen is a member of the Theta Epsilon Literary Society, and had been elected the first term president for the school year 1929-30 when sh was taken ill and was consequently unable to assume the office. Despite her inability to attend classes Helen has made plans for her society, helped with many ideas, prepared May Day festivals, and has done more than her share in all ways. Helen was an excellent tennis player and an athlete of no small ability. Her interest always lies in the activities of the college, and she is always glad to hear from any of the college students, and especially now that she is several miles away and cannot have the company she would have if she were at home. Mail addressed to her at Townsend, Tennessee, in care of Line Springs Hotel will reach her and will be appreciated.

I can't eat this, send for the manager.

It's no use, he can't eat it either.

Sure, don't you think John's a card.

MOUNTAIN HIKE NEXT MONDAY AT SUNSHINE

Oct. 18—The place for the fall mountain hike of this year was voted upon by the student body this morning. The three possibilities were Calderwood, Sunshine, and Tremont; and Sunshine received the majority of votes.

One of the main features in deciding the vote was that the round trip tickets to Sunshine cost $2.20 for two, and to Tremont, $3.70 for two. The date October 27, had already been set by the Student Council.

RUSSIANS POPULAR WITH LARGE CROWD

Pipe-organ Effects Produced By Socoloff.

The Russian Cossack Chorus, personally directed by Serger Socoloff, gave a concert in Voorhees Chapel Tuesday night as the second number on the lyceum program for the year.

Those attending the concert declared it to be an outstanding musical entertainment and praised both the singers and the numbers on the program. The chorus is under the management of the Piedmont Bureau, Asheville, and is appearing in a number of towns in this section of the state.

The repertoire of the chorus was comprised of compositions in three languages, Russian, English and Italian. Serger Socoloff conducted the chorus, using the voices as he would play upon musical instruments to produce marvelous effects.

Triumphant in many countries, the chorus appeared in leading European cities and in 1924 made a tour of France and Spain, with more than 150 engagements. In Madrid her Majesty, the Queen of Spain, attended all concerts and extended to Serger Socoloff, her evidence of appreciation. An exceedingly successful tour of Central America and Mexico followed.

In the music of the Russian Cossacks, the great heart of awakening Russian speaks. Living on the outskirts of Russia to protect her against invasion, the Cossacks developed the heroic epic in which they expressed music in their exploits, their hardships and their happiness; the music which has now come to be characteristic of the country as a whole.

PLANS UNDER WAY FOR FALL FESTIVAL OF MUSIC

The annual Fall Music Festival, under the direction of Miss Hale, who is head of the Music department, is now in progress, and it is with great anxiety that we await the final announcement of its event.

Judging from the past, this concert will be genuinely received for its fineness and musical interest, both by the students of the college and the people of Maryville and vicinity, as the talent will not only include the finest on the Hill, but also assisting artists from out-of-town.

The personel of the program has not yet been announced, but will be in our next issue, together with the exact date of the concert.

SENIOR RIOTOUS AUTUMN FROLIC TONIGHT

Oct. 20—The semi-annual Senior open party is to take place this evening in Thaw Hall. It will take the form of an Autumn Frolic, and every detail has been planned to harmonize with the theme.

The hall will be decorated by billows of autumn shades, varying from a dark red, through a russet brown and amber orange to a fading yellow. Branches covered with multicolored leaves will take their place in the scene, the lights will be shaded accordingly and even a moon has been improvised for the benefit of ardent moonshiners.

An interesting program of music is planned and the numbers will be given between the "proms". Chilly Bowles and Naomi Willingham have consented to sing solos of an unusual and interesting type. A quartet composed of Anderson, French, Overly and Bowles will harmonize on some popular numbers. A harmonica trio, with Osborne, Smith and Carson performing will also furnish some lively tunes. The feature of the evening however, will be a quartet of tap-dancers. Jane Duke, Lois Cupler, Honey Ellis and "Chic" West is the personel of the act which is accompanied by Bill Cooper and under the direction of Dan Hicks. Bill Cooper will add an unusual variety by singing "a la movies". An orchestra has been obtained to fill in on entertainment and, according to all the rumors, will add plenty of pep to the program.

Girls dressed as Brownies will be on hand to serve delicious refreshments. These tasty delicacies will also carry out the idea of autumn. Red candied apples, orange ice, brown and white cookies and sandwiches will be served. For favors, candied corn enclosed by realistic corn husks.

Much of the credit for this well worked out program and interesting theme is due to Mildred Crawford, vice-president of the senior class and to the four committees on invitations, program, decoartions, refreshments and the fifth committee, clean up, on whom the final success of the party rests.

VIRGIL IS TOPIC OF DAVIS LECTURE

Poet Honored By World Wide Celebration.

Oct. 15—This morning in chapel, Professor Davis gave a lecture on Virgil, as a part of the great bimillenial celebration that is being observed around the world. Since Professor Davis is certainly qualified to speak on such a subject, the Echo lost no time in getting the following summary of his talk.

All around the world the year 1930 is being observed in a great himillenial celebration of the birth of Virgil. Italy, his birthplace, is taking the lead in the celebration. One enduring form of memorial is a park wherein are to be found only trees and plants that Virgil mentions in his works. The American Academy in Rome centered the work of its summer school this year upon Virgil. Many hundreds of American teachers took part in the two Virgil cruises that traced the course of Virgil's hero, Aeneas, from Troy, through the Aegean, to Delos, Crete, and on to Sicily, Carthage, and Naples.

Virgil was a poet; he has been called the world's greatest poet and acceded a place among the five or six chief poets of the world. Virgil was Dante's acknowledged and adored master. Petrarch and Boccaccio, Ariosto and Tasso, and all later Italian poets have drawn upon Virgil for inspiration.

It is easy to understand why Italy should be glad to honor Virgil. However, the debt of the English speaking people is hardly less. "Rome is our mother", says Mackail. "Latin our second mother tongue. The civilization of Europe and America is based on Roman foundations."

Joe's given up the idea of being a surgeon.

Why is that?

The dear boy discovered that it involved much inside work.

DEAN BARNES GETS NEW DISTINCTION

Now Oldest Faculty Member In Years of Service.

Since Dr. Wilson has resigned, Dr. Jasper C. Barnes has the distinction of being the oldest member of the college faculty in number of years of service. He has been connected with the Institution thirty-eight years.

Dr. Barnes came to Maryville College in 1892 through the solicitation of Dr. Wilson, as Principal of the Preparatory Department and Professor of the Science and Art of Teaching. At that time there were only thirty-nine enrolled in the college department. In 1901, Dr. Barnes became acting professor of Psychology, and in 1903, he became Professor of Psychology and Political Science. He was elected to the deanship of the college in 1914, succeeding Dean E. B. Waller. He is now serving his seventeenth year as Dean of the College.

Dean Barnes received his B. A. degree from Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio, in 1890, and his Ph. D. from the University of Chicago, having done his work entirely during the summer vacations. He has sent out some very capable students who have received distinction as psychologists. Dean Barnes is recognized as one of the leading psychologists of the nation being prominent in the American Association, and having contributed many articles to scientific publications. During his years in Maryville College, he has received many attractive offers from institutions of higher learning, but his devotion to the college has caused him to remain here.

Emory and Henry Wasps Defeat Highlanders, 7-6

Blocked Punt in Last Period Paves Way For Victory For Wasps; Maryville Outplays Visitors Throughout Game; Calloway's Injury Is Big Handicap.

A blocked punt was the break which enabled Emory and Henry to turn defeat into victory against Maryville Friday night on Maryville's illuminated field. Late in the fourth quarter, with fourth down and one yard to go, at midfield, an attempted punt by Woodard was blocked by an Emory lineman and recovered by an Emory lineman and recovered by an Emory man on the 37 yard line in the scramble that followed.

On the next play, Cather, Emory and Henry quarterback, who had already threatened several times to get loose, finally found an opening, a smash off right tackle, and twisted and ran his way 37 yards past Maryville tacklers for Emory's lone touchdown. The goal after touchdown which followed was destined to be the margin of victory, one point.

It certainly was a tough break for the Highlanders, for they had outplayed the visitors in almost every department of the game, up to this point. While Diggs, Emory fullback, was getting off some nice kicks, his opponent, Joe Woodard gained on the exchange of punts every time. Woodard was kicking 'em high and long, generally a good 50 yards.

The victors displayed a snappy trio of backs in Cather, Peters, and Diggs, one of the best combinations seen on the Maryville gridiron this year. Cather and Peters both exhibited some flashy ball-carrying at times. Diggs made some good thrusts at the line, besides taking care of his team's punting.

Maryville's superiority in the passing game was evident. A number of passes with Smith on the projecting end and White or Woodard on the receiving end, were good for gains It was a 29 yard pass, Smith to White, which resulted in Maryville's lone score.

Lea Colloway's shoulder injury proved to be a handicap. He was only able to play part of the game, and even then his injury kept him from being much good as a blocker on line plays. When this big halfback recovers, Maryville will be considerably better off. Floyd Wilson, playing his first game of the season, tore holes in the Emory line quite regularly and ought to do more of the same tricks later on.

A Maryville fumble on the first kick-off started things off on the 25 yard line. Maryville gained about 25 yards on a couple exchanges of punts, then a number of passes, Smith to Woodard, and line bucks by Wilson, brought the ball to Emory's 5-yard line. Here a pass over goal line failed, and Emory punted out of danger. They exchanged punts again and it was Maryville's ball at midfield as the quarter ended.

Wilson and Woodard were carrying the ball, using a nice criss-cross once or twice, and a couple exchanges of punts kept honors even. Suddenly "Mildred" Smith heaved a pass to White from midfield to

SWAIM ENGAGEMENTS ARE ANNOUNCED

SWAIM—NICKEL

Announcement was made on October 11 of the engagement of Miss Leveta Mae Nickel, of Utica, Ohio, to Mr. William T. Swaim, Jr., of Knoxville.

Miss Nickel has attended Miami College and the Bush Conservatory of Art, and is now attending the Drama School of Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mr. Swaim attended Washington and Jefferson College, Maryville College, and graduated from the University of Tennessee in the class of 1928. He is now a Senior and Post-graduate student in the Western Theological Seminary, Pittsburgh.

SWAIM—McBURNEY

At a party given by Mrs. Paul R. Cowan at her home in Wilson, Pennsylvania, on Thursday evening, October 16, the engagement of Miss Grace McBurney, Wilson, Pennsylvania, to Mr. Robert L. Swaim, Knoxville, was announced.

Mr. Swaim is a student in the Western Theological Seminary, Pittsburg, Pensylvania. He was formerly a student in Maryville

ECHO INVESTIGATES SELF-HELP WORK

What difference does the self-help work done by a college student make in his scholastic rating? The members of the Highland Echo Staff are now conducting an investigation to discover whether there is any appreciable difference. The work is being carried on in Miss Clemmie Henry's office. Two students go at one time. The amount of money earned by each student who has attended Maryville College during the past five years is totaled from the record of Miss Henry's files. The task will be a long as well as a painstaking one. When the tabulation of the earnings is complete the list will be taken to the registrar's office and the amount of money earned by each student will be compared with his scholastic rating. It is hoped that from the results thus obtained some deduction will be made possible as to whether self-help is a harmful or helpful influence to the college studnt. Just when this compilation will be completed is not known but a report of the investigation will be printed in the Echo when the work has been completed.

IMPROVEMENTS BEING MADE ON CAMPUS

This fall many of the old studenta have been heard to remark upon the various improvements being made to better the appearance of our campus. The Ideal begun last spring by Philip Vogel is being carried on all over the Hill. Grass-grown walks are being raised and cleared; hedges are being clipped, grass mowed. Each job done seems to enhance the natural beauty of the college grounds.

One of the eye-sores on the Hill has been the board-fence and rubbish heap back of Pearsons Hall. Now this is being changed. One can't help but notice the difference a little bit of paint makes. Student workers are painting the fence an atractive green and the rubbish heap is being burned. Probably those who room on the back side of Pearsons will appreciate this work more than any other students.

Terry Slings a Line About Lines—By Julia Terry

A small word of four letters, meaning much, and having a great many more connotations than denotations for the average college student is the simple word "line". Perhaps the first time one hears about lines is the famous registration line extending indefinitely and seemingly to infinity on the opening days of school. After enduring this line it is a case of jumping from the frying pan into the fire, for another line heaves into sight, full of human beings but with not much life in it, for the college soon profits by its poor devotees and just about enough money is left to join the rank and file of the book line. If only the books would line up instead of the already weary, and almost penniless seekers of knowledge.

However, the faculty is not exempt from lines for they indulge in this pastime at the annual faculty reception which is given for the pleasure of those having new dresses reclaimed from end-of-the-summer sales, and for those students serving refrshements to the conquerors and survivors of this stupendous line. Lines also have their pleasant moments and especially are they the lines which constitute a letter from the old folks at home or from the girl you left behind. Lines not quite so welcome as those just mentioned but which are necessary for the sheepskin are the lines for translation in various foreign languages, and which often give rise to other foreign language previously unheard of but now vehemently uttered by despairing and unsuccessful linguists.

Another form of linguistic line which is usually percolated into somebody's innocent and eager ears is the line of any particular go get(her) who is determined to get his woman. Oh, the lines that are fed to these suckers. Another line enters into consideration, for she who is absorbing this line is usually the possessor of an attractive figure and is thus said to have good lines, body by Fisher, or some other appropriate descriptive phrase.

Lines which are sometimes given up and stored away during the schoo term but which are eagerly dusted and un-moth-balled in the summer are the fishing lines which mean joyful seclusion to the bachelor and freedom for the better (?) half. During the school term these fishers of men and also the women use all their ability and ingenuity in composing outlines for any teacher upon request, but not without untold suffering and delusion.

Lines of more domestic qualities but which are of never-ending usefulness are the clotheslines reaching from here to there in everybody's room. The lines are not always made of rope but are sometimes composed of music racks and bedsteads to say nothing of chair backs and iron rails such as those on third floor Baldwin. Coat hangers also serve the purpose.

There are lines and lines and lines; and the moonshiners take the slow lines and the bachelors grope the fast; and to and fro the rest of us go, trying not to be last.

A Teacher's Club

There have been no complaints about the scarcity of organizations on the hill. With clubs for everything except for prevention of cruelty to dumb animals (and perhaps the authorities might have had that in mind when they forbade hazing), and each one charging dues— everyone seems satisfied that we need no more organizations. The writer does not agree, and she humbly tenders a suggestion.

About four out of five of the Maryville graduates enter the teaching profession for a short time at least. Maryville has increased the number of Education courses in order that students may qualify for teacher's certificates. But it cannot all be learned from books. A Teachers' Association might prove very helpful to those who intend to take the teaching profession seriously. Many of the students have had teaching experiences, and have no doubt had to settle problems that the authors of our text books had not heard about or forgot to mention. An exchange of view points would be worth while. Our instructors might be persuaded to give occasional lectures, and the library abounds with material that is not only a valuable aid to the prospective teacher, but which proves interesting and entertaining reading.

The ministers, doctors, lawyers, chemists, and red heads get together and discuss their problems. Why don't the teachers organize? At any rate—they might take those annual parties in the college woods.

Banana Oil

The banana is a most nutritious fruit. Its value is just now being fully appreciated. Some like 'em plain, some like 'em fried, and almost every one likes 'em at Pearsons. The banana is also a very curious fruit. One of its distinguishing characteristics is its peel which has a protective quality. Its rightful place is on the banana. Since man has not yet learned to relish the said covering, it is customary to remove it from the fruit before eating. The rightful place, then, of the peel is in the garbage can.

One of the members of the Highland Echo Staff asserts in no uncertain language that he slipped on a banana skin and almost broke his neck. What an ignominious death that would have been! Another declares that the things are offensive looking. The writer can understand, in some measure, why students would deposit the peels on the grass. The golden yellow of the banana's overcoat affords a pleasing contrast with the rich dark green of the grass —although it is true that within a few hours, some mysterious process goes on within the discarded covering that leaves it blackened and ugly. But why should any one throw banana peels on side walks?

I just ask you, Why?

HOME EC. CLUB MEETS

New girls who are taking Home Economic courses are invited to the meeting and tea, Friday, October 24, at 6:30 p. m.

An excellent program has been planned and Miss Gertrude Meiselwitz, Head of the Home Economics Department, will speak to the club. We hope the new girls will come, get acquainted with the other students in the departmen, and enjoy he social contacts.

THREE "I" PARTY

Thirty-four members and guests of the Three "I" Club gathered in the College Woods last Monday for the first party of the year.

Dick Orr was on hand with a bag full of games and stunts that kept the crowd in a continual roar.

While eating the mince pies and drinking the coffee prepared by Dot Kellar, the party was entertained by singers who sang songs in three different languages. Elizabeth Gillis sang an Hawaiian lullaby, Reno Smith and Bill Hannah sang "When It's Springtime in the Rockies" in French, and Smith and Hubert Duncan sang a song in the language we all understand. And last, but not the least part of the entertainment, were the two readings given by Louise Marley.

When fifteen rah's had been given for Dr. Rodgers, the principal guest, the group disbanded looking forward to the next gathering of the organization.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

Oct. 15—The Ministerial Association changed the time for its weekly meeting from Wednesday evening to Tuesday evening. This week's program consisted of talks by Phil Sorce, Bob Stevenson, and George Thomson. Next Tuesday evening Dr. Crothers will complete the talk he started several weeks ago.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER UNION

Over the week-end of October 12, Alvin McCann, president of the Student Volunteer Union of Tennessee, and John Hendry, secretary of the union, were in Nashville on business for the organization. The officers' retreat will be held on October 24, 25 and 26 at Middle Tennessee Teachers College in Murfreesboro. Sarah Bagely, as well as the president and secretary, will represent Maryville at this conference.

TO MY ROOMMATE

You smiled your strange sweet smile, and raised
The tinkling coco-cola to your lips.
Before us lay our feast. Two tempting plates—
Crisp toast and letuce, and a golden mound of mayonnaise.
Ham with its scented steam reaching the pink rosebud
In the vase upon our table.
Oh, we shall remember years from now
The soft and restful music, and the rain
That fell against the wide, tall window pane.
Your hair under the light was gleaming smooth—
Ah, that drug store were a paradise forsooth!

ODE TO YE OLDE CAMPUS CARRYALL

I have a cut-down Ford
That goes up and down with me,
And what can be the comfort
Is more than I can see.

When I am ready to go,
Sometimes the Ford is not;
And then we have a contest
As to which can get more hot.

If it proves the contrary,
I give a mighty push,
And then get knocked right off my feet
As it starts off in a rush.

Over hill and down dale
That Ford conveyeth me;
But what can be the comfort
Is more than I can see.

—Kitty Hodges.

WEBB'S DONATE CHAIRS

Oct. 18—Pearson's Parlor will now accommodate more moonshiners as a result of Mr. and Mrs. John Webb's gift of three chairs to the college, today. The donors, who live in Maryville, were in Pearsons Sunday, and upon hearing Miss Caldwell remark that there was a scarcity of chairs, Mr. Webb said:

"I believe that we have three chairs that we would gladly give to the college," and today three golden oak, leather upholstered chairs were sent up.

HIGHLANDERS LEAVE FOR BIRMINGHAM, FRIDAY

HIGHLANDERS FACE HOWARD BULL-DOGS

Game Promises To Be Hardest Of The Season.

Oct. 20—Undaunted by their defeat at the hands of Emory and Henry, the Maryville Highlanders today began a hard three days campaign of practice in preparation for their encounter with the Howard College Baptists at Birmingham Friday night.

Howard, a leader in the S.I.A.A. is one of the best college teams in the South. Despite defeats at the hands of Alabama and Duquesne, the Baptists have a formidable eleven. A good showing was made by them against the big Crimson tide, so it appears that the Scots will have plenty of opposition.

The Baptists have a strong line with Raymond Davis, husky all S. I. A. A center, Captain Hargrove, end, and Garrett, a tackle as the outstanding men in the forward wall. Levy, a triple threat back does most of the punting and passing. He is aided by Sweeney and Bullard, a pair of fast stepping backs.

The Highlanders hope to have most of the cripples back in harness for this game. The return of Cash, and Calloway to form after recovering from injuries will give the Scots much more power. Except for a slip or two the Highlanders played fine ball against the Emory and Henry Wasps, and deserved to win.

Following the Howard engagement a tough road lies ahead of the Scots, against conference foes, Carson-Newman and Lenoir Rhyne both defeated Gene McMurray's strong Buffaloes at Milligan, the team which held Maryville to a scoreless tie last year.

WEATHER DOMINATES GIRLS TOURNAMENT

Third Round of Tennis Has Been Completed.

The women's tennis tournament has progressed to the third round, but due to the inclemency of the weather the fourth round matches have not been played off.

The seeded players are running true to form by winning all their matches. All players are asked to play their matches as soon as possible so the tournament can be finished before cold weather. Do not wait to be told to play your matches, but arrange with your opponent as quickly as possible!

Desk Sergeant—So you say you are a college student?

Prisoner—I am sir.

Arresting Officer—But he can't be. I've searched him and there ain't a single magazine subscription blank on him.

Band Showed Evidence Of Intense Training During Game Friday Night

Hail! hail! the gang's all here, and the Maryville College Band marches on the field playing their hearts out for old Alma Mater. The only thing which kept the freshmen from thinking they were gazing at the Army-Navy game was the fact that the goal posts remained after the dazzling attack of our band.

Tiny Waters represented the old spirit of '76 and we still maintain that even if our own General Lee had had this Yankee drummer boy the rebels from old Dixieland might still be on the battle field.

The fellows looked as if they were a blue ribbon R. O. T. C. band playing before General Summerall himself. There are but few of this type of General that Uncle Sam has had in his army. But what has this to do with our band? Not much. But we should be proul of the fellows who have enough pep to learn a few military formations thus reflecting praise and honor to Maryville College.

Some of the fellows, new and otherwise didn't seem to know when to stand up or didn't care about it, but the fellows in blue and white soon had everyone doing what they were supposed to do.

Miss Butcher is to be complimented for the extra hours spent with the band before the game, for many have been the nights that the librarians have been terrified by the thoughts of a panic, but it was only a few loyal sons and daughters of old Maryville standing, while the strains of Alma Mater floated from under the floodlights of the football field through the doors of our quiet library.

Even though we lost the game by a point our band helped bring back that good old Maryville spirit which has been to some degree lacking since the days, when Ex-Capt. Lowell MacDonald was a freshman.

It has been rumored that Major Somers threw away his baton when the game ended, or maybe I am wrong, but a little girl said so, for she saw him hiding a white-washed stick.

The Class of '34 added some men to our band and we should grow even bigger and better than we were at our first appearance. Always plenty of fight in there Gang.

MORE ABOUT EMORY-HENRY GAME

Emory's 20 yard line, and White scampered over the visitors' goal line. Calloway failed to kick goal.

During the rest of this period, Cather and Peters did some good ball-carrying for Emory, advancing the ball to Maryville's 25 yard line, where Maryville took the ball as the half ended.

In the third quarter, after Maryville kicked off, they exchanged punts twice, displayed some nice runs by Wilson, and by Cather and Peters. Emory lost ground when Woodard recovered one of their fumbles, and the quarter found Emory's ball on their own 12 yard line.

In the fatal fourth quarter Emory kicked to their 45 yard line. Smith

Pep Meeting for Emory and Henry Game Held

Enthusiastic Crowd Gather In Chapel Thursday Night.

Oct. 9—Those who failed to attend the pep meeting tonight missed a great treat. Not only was there an enthusiastic crowd but also a snappy band and some clever impersonations.

The cheer leaders appeared, the band played, the crowd shouted, and the pep meeting had begun. The cheers called for were given with more than usual force and the Alma Mater, played by the band and led by the cheer leaders, was sung with real feeling.

The feature of the program was a series of impersonations of those prominent on College Hill given by Theta. Louise Marley interpreted the characters as they appeared and added a dash of pepper to each one. Lowell McDonald characterized by Lucile Swafford swaggered across the stage. Martha Story had Carl's walk down perfectly, even to a slight limp. Virginia Rexroad must have studied Floyd Wilson for a long time to acquire his walk. his look, and his smile. The audience did not need to be told that the blond person in the checkered coat playing a uke was Porter French. Finally an impersonation of our head cheerleader was announced and 'Nez' Hamrick dashed out to lead in a cheer.

WOMENS' TUMBLING TEAM OPENS SEASON

All Classes Represented In The Lineup.

The final cut has been made in the squad of women tumblers, and they are now ready to begin work with fifteen members. There are seven women back who were on the team last year, the remainder of this year's team being composed of new material. There are two seniors, one junior, two sophomores and three freshmen in the new material, making an equal representation from each class.

The work has started off with an enthusiasm and interest that is hard to be surpassed, and if this continues, by the end of the year we should have a good women's tumbling team. The work so far has been merely preliminary, but now since the squad has been cut to a workable number, it will be more advanced. Those making the team are: Rachel Frost, Lucy Lee Silcox, Betty Hunt, Martha Story, Ellen McRae, Grace Carswell, Blanche Wilson, and Ella Shields.

Oct. 17—Tonight between halves of the football game these eight women were initiated for the team. They were given a chance to show their graceful ability as tumblers and also a chance to pay respect to their superiors. However, the initiation was cut short due to lack of time.

THETA, ALPHA SIGMA MID-WINTER NAMED

After very extensive searching in the realms of dramatization, the Drama Committees of the Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma literary societies have made their reports. They have had arduous tasks, but the committees have worked faithfully and their societies are well pleased with what has been selected.

Theta Epsilon will present the first midwinter play of the season on December eighth, when "The Big Pond" will be given. Alma Hatmaker and Donald Briggs are trying out for the leading roles.

Athenian will give the second midwinter, on December fifteenth, but the play is not yet chosen.

The Alpha Sigma committee has selected Winston Churchill's play "The Crisis" and will probably present Lenore West and Chilton Bowles as the leading characters. "The Crisis" is a great and dramatic production and should receive a warm reception from the Maryville audience.

passed to Wilson to Emory's 21 yard line. Maryville's threat was dispelled when Cather intercepted Calloway's pass on the 15 yard line. Emory kicked to midfield, and on Maryville's next attempt to punt, Emory's lone chance for victory asserted itself and, as related, Cather succeeded in getting loose for a touchdown.

A determined Maryville passing attack followed, but failed to register any further score.

Glee Singers Plan Fall Concert Dec. 1

Oct. 20,—The Glee Singers are swinging into full stride in preparation for their fall concert which will be given on December 1. Miss Henry has been secured to direct the club this year. Under her expert leadership the 'Singers' anticipate performances that will meet with the approbation of all their audiences.

The club has already started work on music for the fall concert on December 1. It is planned to open the program with 'The Builder' a number that enjoyed great popularity here three years ago. Negro spirituals, love songs, and sacred songs will find their places in the concert. The feature of the program will be 'Romeo and Juliet', a comic operetta having about the same relation to Shakespeare as had 'Julius Caesar' which was given last year. Laughs, drollery, entertainment, and above all, good music are insured.

The trips of the Glee Singers are looked forward to by every member of the club. The itinerary this year will include Newport, Richard City and many other cities.

Student Council Has First Meeting

Oct. 14—The first meeting of the student council was held this evening, and plans were formulated for the annual fall mountain hike. The date was set for Monday, October 27, and a committee appointed to investigate bus rates and train fares to Cherokee Forest, Calderwood, Sunshine, and Treemont. The committee will make a report soon, and a vote will be taken by the student body as to which place will be chosen for the hike.

Officers of the student council are as follows: president, Richard Strain; vice-president, Mabel Dickerson; secretary-treasurer, Mildred MacKenzie. Other members of the student council are: seniors, Harold Baer, Dean Rogers, Don Benn, Alice Renegar, Esther Horton, Mildred Crawford; juniors: Clarence Bratschie, George Osborne, Bob West, Merle Beebe, Julia Terry; sophomores: Conrad Quenelle, Margaret Melody, Norma Spilatore, Aubrey Bradshaw; freshmen, Howard Kipp, John Springer, Elizabeth Ayers, and Janie Lee Oglesby.

The student council meets about twice a month or whenever any questions pertaining to the student body are brought to their attention.

Mrs. McMurray Has Successful Trip

Mrs. Katheryn Romig McMurray, head of the College Maid Shop, returned Saturday, October eleventh from Cincinnati, where she interviewed many prominent people and spoke to three women's organizations on behalf of College Maid.

Mrs. McMurray was the guest of Mabley and Carew at the official opening of their immense and palatial new store, Carew Tower. The president of the company has been interested in College Maid for several years, and has aided from time to time with substantial gifts.

The authorities are delighted with the present line of wares from the Maryville factory and carry a complete assortment of the goods in the ready-to-wear-cottons department. At the opening there was a large exhibit of College Maid products near the door of the department.

"I didn't know our things could look so attractive as they did in that big display," Mrs. McMurray said in an interview after her return to Maryville.

On Tuesday afternoon she made a speech to the Cincinnati Women's Presbyterial, telling her audience of the history and purpose, as well as the products, of College Maid.

Wednesday afternoon she spoke to the Women's Auxiliary of the Glendale Presbyterian Church, and on Thursday at the meeting of the Walnut Hills Church Auxiliary, again on College Maid. At all three meetings the dresses, smocks, etc., were on display and were modeled by girls in the churches, which added to the interest Mrs. McMurray had already created in the goods.

Besides speaking in public meetings, she met many other people and made a host of new friends for the Shop.

"It was a very successful trip," the director concluded, "and I am well pleased with the results."

Mrs. Howell in Pittsburgh

Last Sunday Mrs. G. D. Howell, left Maryille for a visit to her relatives in Pittsburgh. She will probably spend about a month at her mother's home there. Consequently, Dean Howell- has temporarily become a member of the College Boarding Club. There is a possibility that Mrs. Howell may visit Mrs. R. W. Lloyd during her stay in Pittsburgh.

NEW YORK SCENE OF GAIETY AS M.C. ALUMNI MIX

Peirce Reports Lively Revel In Whittier Hall, Columbia

21 MARYVILLIANS

Social Season of Metropolis Ushered In By The Highlanders.

Oct. 20—One of the most outstanding social events of New York's four million was held at Whittier Hall, Columbia University, tonight in the form of a Maryville Alumni party, given by the Misses Lucy Horton, Sue Spencer, Peggy Mevis, and Mary Clopton.

Twenty-one Maryvillians with several friends from the southland made up a lively and highly entertaining company. One of the first to arrive was Robert C. O. D. Dance of managerial fame, who is with the Chatham Phinix Corp., 60 East 42nd Street. A group from Princeton Seminary composed of Wilbur Franklin, Ingram Fell, Bob Jones, Walter Courtenay, and Gordon Harold, arrived in a horseless carriage, and was escorted to the Hall by a police detachment. Harold announces that his feminine admirers at Maryville can get an autographed photo by writing to him at Princeton. His phone number is Princeton 18 M.

Lambert Kim, affectionately known at Maryville as "Chung", is staying in New York at the present time and honored the party with his presence.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Welsh, of 4306 46th Street, Long Island City, lent dignity and prestige to the hilarious proceedings.

Dr. Barbour Speaks In M.C. Chapel Wed.

Youngest Director of College Knows Dr. Lloyd as 'Ralph'

Oct. 22—The students of Maryville College were impressed anew of the necessity of a well rounded personality by a forceful and well outlined talk made by Rev. Clifford Edward Barbour in chapel this morning. Dr. Barbour is a member of the Board of Directors, and has the distinction of being the youngest member of that body.

The substance of Dr. Barbour's speech was that in order to have a well rounded personality which is so essential if we are to adjust ourselves properly, we must not neglect the spiritual. "Development of the spiritual nature is just as important as the development of our physical and mental natures, and the solution of our social problems", he declared. He used the story of Jesus and the infirm man at the pool of Bethsaida to illustrate the fact that many of us are waiting for the stirring of the waters of the pool of life. He admonishes us not to be like those who enjoy the treatment but do not desire the cure.

In addition to the fact that Dr. Barbour is a Director of the college, we have another reason for interest in him because he assures us that he knows our new President, not as Dr. Lloyd, but as Ralph, and he congratulates us on our good fortune in securing so worthy a man as President.

SOPHS. ELECT STAFF FOR 1931-32 CHILHOWEAN

Oct. 22—The sopohomore class met in the chapel today for the purpose of electing the editor and business-manager of the 1931-32 Chilhowean. Margaret Melody, vice-president of the sophomore class, was elected editor, and Andrew Newcomer was elected business manager.

TODAY

Up the maze of paths near Sunshine,
Through the autumn verdure climbing,
Go the throngs of Maryvillians
Seeking to know more of Nature.
If they pause, it is for reasons
Strictly educational, we gather
Only to observe a snail shell,
Or to watch a bird above them.
If they disappear, it is to Find in solitude the best communion
With the brooks and bears and insects
All around, and all about them.

MARYVILLE WELL REPRESENTED AT PHILOL. ASSO. TUES

5 Professors, 15 Students Go To Convention at U. T.

Oct. 21—This evening a group of fifteen students and five professors went to Knoxville to attend a meeting of the Tennessee Philological Association. The session, which was held at the University of Tennessee in Ayres Hall, began promptly at seven-thirty. The Lecture room was well-filled by various members of the Association and visitors.

The meeting was called to order by the President of the organization. After stating that the purpose of the meeting was to honor Virgil, whose two-thousandth birthday was celebrated on October 15, he turned the meeting over to Dr. McWhorter, head of the Latin Department of U. T. Dr. McWhorter opened the program by reading a short sketch of the life and works of Virgil. This was followed with a talk by Miss Helen Gilbraith of Knoxville High School, who told of her experiences while abroad, this summer. The next number on the program was a paper entitled "The Influence of Virgil in English Literature" which was read by Professor Emperor of the University English Department. Maryville College was well represented by Profssor Davis who read a thoroughly delightful and instructive paper on the various scenes he saw in Europe which he connected with phases of Virgil's life or writings. The program was concluded wtih a series of stereoptician slides of places of interest in Greece and Italy.

The Tennessee Philological Association has done much for the advancement of work in languages in the various schools of Tennessee. Last year the annual two-day convention was held here at Maryville.

Echo Staff Loses Junior Asso., Hodges

It is with regret that the Highland Echo Staff announces the resignation of one of the Junior Associates, Kathryn Hodges, who has been a member of the staff for almost two and one half years, this being her third year of newspaper work on the college paper.

Kitty is the kind of writer who can express herself on anything that is assigned her whether it be a news article, a feature article, or a Highland Fling. Her work will indeed be missed because of the excellence of her work, the versatility of her writings, and her willingness and promptness in carrying out instuctions.

Her resignation was tendered last Tuesday night at the staff meeting after several weeks of consideration and forethought, but because of her heavy academic schedule, extra-curricular activities, and her position as assistant in the registrar's office she deemed it best to give up her position as Junior Associate Editor. No one will be selected to fill the vacancy.

New Stage Drive Now On; $2000. Must Be Raised

Organizations Respond With Donations; Seniors May Give $1000.

Oct. 24—Plans for a new stage have been drawn up and are all completed except the raising of the necessary funds. Various ideas have been suggsted as to the raising of this money, and already some organizations have responded with liberal donations.

The cost of the stage is $2,000, and it will be a stage complete in every detail. The newest and most effective lighting such as flood lights, spotlights, footlights, and colored lighting effects, and every other stage essential is provided at this cost. The frame will be a steel one, and will be a permanent though a portable affair. It will be placed on the stage as it is now with of course any necessary changes.

An adequate stage is one of the most necessary improvements on the campus, and it is certainly an improvement, which if obtained, will be appreciated and used by every organization on the Hill. It is valuable not only for Expression Department, but also for the various literary societies in the presentation of their midwinters, for Theta Alpha Phi, the Lyceum, pep meetings, chapel programs, the two glee clubs, the Y.W.C.A. and numbers of other organizations. The college authorities have already expressed their approval of the plan by contributing $300 for the initial payment. The Bainonian Literary Society has pledged the sum of $50 each year for a period of three years, thus totaling $150. The senior class is considering as their gift to the school a sum of $1000 to be given for the stage. This proposition has not been definitely decided upon as yet but action will be taken as soon as possible. Dr. Rodgers expressed his viewpoint this morning by saying, "Something needs to be done instead of putting up that wagon load of lumber."

It is hoped that these plans will be realized in time for the presentation for the first midwinter, but it's up to the college, every department, every organization, to see that it is carried out.

Hallowe'en To Be Celebrated By Gala Parties

Classes Put On Grave Affairs Witches and Spooks Will Walk Abroad.

It is almost time for the witches and spooks of Hallowe'en to leave the quiet comfort of their graves and wander abroad, and what better place could they find for a celebration of their annual night of freedom than at the parties given by the various classes of the Hill? Even haunted houses and graveyards will lose their allure for these unearthly creatures once they learn that all the college thrill seekers are planning spooky jubilees for this night of all nights.

Since the juniors had such a good at time at the theatre party last year, they decided to have another one. After the show, they will go to the basement of the Southern Methodist Church, which will be converted into a graveyard. Ghosts of amous Maryvillians will appear to converse with the revelers. The committee chirmen are:

Program—Jane Duke
Refreshments—Lois Cupler
Decoration—Anne Smartt
Clean-up—Louise Avery

The sophomores have also planned a theatre party, and afterwards they will put on a drawing room affair in the basement of the New Providence Church. The committee chairmen are:

General—Margaret Melody
Entertainment and Decoration—Mildred Purviance
Refreshments—Marjorie Jones
Clean-up—Boyce Mahan

Since so many goblins will be abroad, it was deemed unwise that the frosh be allowed to leave the hill. Consequently, they will have their fun in the gymnasium. Margaret Kellar is the general chairman.

The seniors will have no party, but may, along with the witches and ghosts, attend any party that they choose regardless of invitations. In keeping with the true Hallowe'en spirit, most of the party plans have been kept shrouded in mystery. One thing is certain. There will be food, and it will not be of that unreal, unsatisfactory goblin stuff, but will be of the substantial filling variety.

A Little Light on the Subject of Mountain Hikes—By Julia Terry

Oct. 27—The famous and much-heralded fall mountain hike is over! The train pulled in about six o'clock this evening from Sunshine and deposited its burden at the Southern Railway Station. At least one hundred and fifty nature lovers, mountain climbers, biology students, bachelors, spinsters, and chaperones were in attendance, also some fauna including hot dogs and boiled ham.

The train left the metropolis at about 7:30 o'clock, this morning and arrived at Sunshine and its suburbs about an hour later. The groups then separated the members of each group agreeing to meet at a certain time and place to eat dinner. The food was left under the supervision and protection of the chaperone, who amused himself by quieting the barking hot dogs for the benefit of those who had retired. The remainder of the morning until dinner time the hikers or natural scientists as they prefer to be called, climbed all over the mountains to see what they could see.

At dinner the natural as well as the unnatural scientists tested the capacities of their respective stomachs by ambitiously devouring the ham and dogs, sandwiches, eggs, glorified cucumbers, over-stuffed olives, and un-Pearson-like cake. In the afternoon more hiking, surveying, and research was carried on and the students of biology saw what they had overlooked in the morning. About four-thirty in the afternoon after Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John were all run down, the train left what was left and pointed West. This crowd as all former crowds have been were tired but happy, and were glad to see the lights of home, and to smell the odors emitting from the kitchen and the delightful aroma of the smoke from the homely power house.

Preparations for the hike have been going on for a week or two although those deviled eggs were fired only last night. The pickles and the olives have been in a briny state, the pig has been in the process of fattening, the hot dogs have been emerging from the puppy stage for weeks in preparation for this great event.

The real purpose of the mountain hike is to aid the natural science department to carry out an intensive field trip, to perform minute observations, and to encourage biological research. A prize is sometimes offered to the student who sees the most. This year the prize was a crochted telescope. The committee is considering a similar worthwhile prize for the spring mountain hike, so biologists, increase your powers of observation!

BROWN TRAINS DOG TO ACT AS EYES; SHE IS APT PUPIL

Intelligent German Police Dog To Guide George

George Brown, a special student in the history department of the college, and a familiar figure on the campus, is making up for the loss of his eye-sight by training a German shepherd dog to act as his eyes. He plans to go almost anywhere with the dog: to town, on hikes, on the campus, and in the College Woods. He will not use her between classes, however.

Wherever the pair will go, Belle, as the dog is called, will trot ahead of George Brown and all her movemeans of a leather leash attached to means ofa leather leash attached to a harness around the dog's shoulders. By holding the leash taut he will be able to tell when she turns to the right or to the left in avoiding an obstacle in their path, when she steps up or down, and when she stops or starts in traffic. Of course, Belle will act as the eyes only, not as the mind. George will direct her by the words "right", "left", and forward". It is said that these dogs have a remarkable capacity for remembering words.

Belle is eight months old and has only begun to learn her profession. She was purchased about three weeks before college opened, and was brought to the campus last Monday. Until she came to Maryville, she had spent most of her life in the country. The first trip down town she acted just like a country boy in a big city for the first time. She nosed around quite a bit but she will soon get over that, George said.

At present, Belle is living in a spacious dog-house behind Carnegie Hall. She is quite contented with her diet of scraps left over from meals at Pearsons.

Sr. Privileges Before Contact Committee

Oct. 23—The third meeting of the student-faculty contact committee was held this afternoon in the office of the president.

The main discussion centered on the problem of senior privileges, a list having been composed from a student list and a faculty list. The final list as submitted was approved by the committee and it will be put up before the faculty at the meeting next Thursday for final approval.

It was decided that the men would call for the women in the dormitories for all formal functions, but that during the basketball season the couples would meet at the gym or at the bookroom. Because of the continuous confusion in the dormitories on nights when two basketball games are played this arrangement was deemed the wisest.

Several other matters were brought up but nothing definite was settled concerning them. The next meeting will be held on Thursday, October 30 at three o'clock.

White Runs 65 Yards For Scots' Tally

Howard Fails To Score Till Drive in Final Period.

WILSON INJURED

Woodard Averages 41 Yards On Punts. Howard Only 34.

Oct. 27—Howard's strong fourth quarter attack which netted two touchdowns, overcame Maryville's six point lead, and proved to be the Baptist's margin of triumph over the Highlanders, at Birmingham, Friday night. The final score was 14 to 6. White scored late in the third quarter for the Scotties, intercepting a lateral pass, and racing 65 yards to score. Estes and Goodwen scored for the Baptists.

The game was hard fought, the teams appearing to be evenly matched. The Highlanders wasted no time in getting started, after receiving the kickoff, the Scots marched to Howard's four yard stripe, but lost the ball on a fumble. Howard did not threaten until the second period, then they opened a nice running attack, with Sweney and Estes running the ends, and Bullard crashing the line, the Baptists three times got inside Maryville's 20 yard line, but were held for downs each time. Woodard kept the Highlanders out of danger with some nice punts.

Neither team made much away in the third quarter until White intercepted Bullard's attempted lateral to Sweeney. He raced 65 yards to score. As the fourth quarter began, Howard took to the air with immediate success. Sweeney tossed one forty yards to Goodwen for a score. Bondurant kicked goal to give the Baptists the lead.

Date Set For Fall Festival Of Music

Miss Hale, Director; Knoxville Musicians Will Assist.

The date for the Annual Fall Festival of Music has been set for Monday night, November 10, and rehearsals indicate that this concert will surpass any of the previous performances.

Miss Hale is directing the Fall Festival, and under her capable management, members of our music department are preparing themselves to do creditable work. Assisting them on the program will be an Organization of Knoxville's best musicians who for several years have sung in Knoxville at the Second Presbyterian Church of which Dr. Clifford Barbour is pastor. He enthusiastically endorses them, and expressed himself on his recent visit here, as highly pleased that we are to have the opportunity of hearing them.

These muscians have all gained distinction in concert work. They are to furnish several groups of secular numbers and they will also sing some of the negro spirituals which first brought this organization into prominence in this part of Tennessee.

MRS. McMURRAY BEGINS LECTURES ON HYGIENE

Oct. 23—Tonight in the Y. W. auditorium Mrs. Katheryn Romig McMurray began her talks on hygiene to girls. Mrs. McMurray gave a similar series of lectures last year, and her audiences were so appreciative that the Y. W. C. A. asked her to repeat them this year.

The lectures begin promptly at six-thirty and continue until only a few minutes past seven so that an inconvenient amount of time will not be taken from study hours.

Studying In Chapel

We students of Maryville College are a very earnest and zealous body of young people. Magazines say that we are a select group. Chapel speakers emphasize that fact, and they ought to know! They, and, they alone—with the possible exception of a usually unobservant choir,—ever see us studying. Only a few of our teachers know how we pore over our lessons, and they are chapel monitors.

Whipple, in his Study Rules advises us to form the place study habit.' Although most of us are not familiar with Mr. Whipple's work, we have formed this helpful habit, and we all realize that the place to study is in the chapel. Chapel study has such advantages! It's so quiet there. Of course there's always some one on the platform reading from the Bible or talking about something or other, but, comparatively speaking, the chapel is most conducive to concentration.

They tell us that some of the speakers have said some things that are really worth while. That does not bother us. Of course, we could have studied last night, but one forgets so easily, and since the college is so considerate in giving us chapel periods, why not utilize them for practical purposes?

So we reason—we with our distorted sense of values. Instead of taking an interest in the chapel proceedings, we place our feet upon the seat in front of us, slide down upon our back bones so that the monitor can see only the tops of our heads and proceed to learn in ten minutes the assignment that should require an hour's preparation.

Preachers

When Dr. Stevenson quoted Dean Swift as saying that the world is divided into three classes, men, women and preachers, he probably had a motive. It is not our place to question the motive, but Dean Swift's quotation does raise a question. How many of us have the same viewpoint?

There seems to be universal tendency, (and from my slender store of knowledge, it has always been so) to consciously or unconsciously make this classification. The writer once heard a young business man say: "I've a lot of things to be ashamed of in my life, but thank Heaven, I've never been a preacher". The word preach has degenerated until often some of us use it contemptuously. 'A preacher? Well, too bad, he doesn't look the type." But is there a type? Just what is back of all this any way?

The cause must lie in the weakness of human nature. Some of us learn before we die that we are not brilliant; we have our eyes open to our short comings. We don't mind admitting to ourselves that our ideas are second hand, and that our morals are perhaps questionable, but we shrink from letting any one else know these shameful truths. But the minister gets into the pulpit and exposes us. He stands for all that is ideal. We resent this and therefore we demand that he not only preach but practice. We set up standards for him, and they are high ones. We set him apart as one not like other mortals. If he errs—well, just too bad, because a minister is to be an example. If he meets our standards we jeer because we unconsciously resent his perfection. He is a living reminder of our short comings, and ridicule is our only weapon of defense.

You can tell an English teacher when you hear him
You can tell a Chemistry teacher when you smell him?

Why is a hair dresser's death more pleasant than that of sculptor?
A hair dresser curls up and dies; a sculptor makes faces and busts.

Did you see me at the party? I saw you twice.
I never notice people in that condition.

Poet—Woodman, spare that tree.
Woodman—All right, friend, but no more wood pulp, no more paper and no more peotry you know!

CAN YOU IMAGINE?

FRENCH CLUB

Last Friday night LeCerele Francais met for the purpose of organizing. The following officers were elected:
President—Lucy Anne Voorhees
Vice-president—Ralph Teffeteller
Scretary—Ernestine Hedden
Treasurer—Helen Burdette
Sergeant-at-Arms—Vennor Lowry
Program Secretaries—Bess Mitchell
Lavinia Jones

This club welcomes into its ranks all students taking French courses above freshman grade. Its purpose is to improve the French conversation of its members, to promote further interest in French language and literature, and to bring together socially all who have a kindred interest in the subject. LeCercle Francais meets on the first and third Wednesday of each month.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

Oct. 23—The first Chemistry Club meeting of the year was held tonight in the Chemistry lecture room at 6:30. The meeting was called to determine whether the club should continue this year. It was decided unanimously that it should. New members were taken in and officers for the term were elected. They are as follows:
President—Bob West
Vice-President—J. W. Hina
Secretary—Leroy Weese
Treasurer—Alice Renegar
Program Scretary—Yevant Topalan
Editor—Rachael Frost

HOME EC

Oct. 24—The Home Economics Club held the second meeting of the year tonight in the Home Economics club-room. The meeting was held especially for new students, and a large number attended. An interesting program was given, the feature of which was a talk by Miss Meiselwitz. She welcomed the new girls and explained to them what they would have to do to become members of the club. After the program delicious refreshments were served.

Maryville Meets Carson-Newman at Jefferson City, November 1

Scotties To Make Eagles Scream

Victories Over Tusculum And Milligan Bolster Eagles Considerably

TROUBLE FROM WARD

M. C. Slightly Favored But Weakened By Wilson's Injuries.

The Highlanders' seventh football contest of the season will see them battling the Carson-Newman Eagles next Saturday at Jefferson City. After this follow two games at home, with Milligan and Lenoir-Rhyne, respectively.

Maryville has usually been able to take the measure of Carson-Newman in previous games. This year, however, the Eagles, or Parsons, as they used to be labelled, have been chalking up some victories which put them practically on a par with advance dope on the Orange and Garnet. When the Scotties and Parsons have met in the past a real scrap was always in order, and this year the Parsons will be bolstered materially by their victories over Tusculum and Milligan.

In each of these games, the entire Carson-Newman eleven played bang-up football, and they probably have similar plays in store for Maryville, Ward, a flashy halfback, may give Maryville some special trouble. It is doubtful just what the Highlanders will do after losing two close games to Emory-Henry and Howard. The Scot line stood up wonderfully in both games, and if Honaker's backs take a notion to keep up with the forward wall, the score may be reversed this time.

The Highlanders will miss Don Wilson if his ankle injury does not come around soon. He injured it in the last minute of the Howard game, and at the present writing the big tackle's left ankle looks quite exaggerated in size and disposition. Lea Calloway's shoulder is still holding him back, too, which does not help the disposition of the Maryville mentor. Martin Gillespie showed some real stuff in the last game and may get an opportunity to get going against Carson-Newman.

It promises to be a genuine scrap, with Maryville favored to take the honors, though not by a large margin.

Every morning you are my first thought.

Yes, your room mate tells me the same thing.

Oh, but I get up on hour before he does.

College.

Duff's Square Dancers Feature Pep Meeting

Oct. 23—The pep meeting tonight was to give the boys a good send off for their journey to Alabama. "The boys", however, were all over in Bartlett Hall listening to Coach Honaker while he told them what they shouldn't do. Nevertheless, cheers were given with mighty volume in hopes that the echoes might reach Birmingham in time to help the Highlanders in their fight against the Howard Bulldogs.

The feature of the evening was offered by Al Duff's octet of square dancers. Al led the four pairs of partners in a series of gyrations which all went to prove the possibility of physical, moral, and mental development in the mountaineers' social pastime. Some boys, with the aid of lipstick, rouge, and eyebrow pencil, made charming girls too. Shepard was the worthy fiddler and Cooper accompanied on the piano.

Plenty of "vim, vigor, and vitality" were shown in the yells which followed. With a few more such pep meetings, we might be able to shake some plaster down even if we don't raise the roof.

One Last Look at the Illuminated Football Field

The last night game of the year is over. Never again, this year, will the lights shine with splendor rivaling that of the moon. Never again this year, will the team trot out on the brilliant field. Never again this year, will moonshiners sit in the glow of the electric lights, huddled close together for warmth (?). Never again, this year, will the band play, the crowd cheer, and the 'Scotties' march to victory under the radiance of the flood lights. Oh, loyal Maryvillians, shed a tear. The last night game of the year is over.

MORE ABOUT THE HOWARD GAME

Maryville opened up a passing offsense, but most of the tosses were wild or were interrupted. Late in the quarter Woodard got off a short kick and Howard scored again on a series of tackle dashes by Estes. The Highlanders however, put up a game battle against the strong S.I.A.A. team. Howard had not expected much opposition.

Howard completed three out of six attempted aerials, while the Highlanders made good only two out of twelve tries. Woodward averaged 41 yards on his kicks, while Levy and Sweeney averaged 34 yards. The Highlander line play was oustanding.

Linup—Howard: (14); Douglas and Long, end; Capt. Hargrove and Dew, tackles; Laney and Glenn, guards; Davis, center; Levy, quarter; Clark and Estes, halves; Brown fullback.

Maryille (6)—White and Rule, ends; Wilson and Overly, tackles; Captain Story and MacDonald, guards; Watkins, center; Smith, quarter; Woodard and Wilson, halves; Gillespie, full.

Please don't tell the small kids, but a business man swore to me the other day that he had never used a bit of the Algebra which he learned in school.

Women Hikers' First Trip Successful

Members and Sponsors Enjoy 12 Mile Jaunt.

Oct. 20—The B. G.'s took their first hike of the year this morning, going out the Montvale Pike and cutting back into the loop, making a distance of ten or twelve miles.

The hikers left Pearson's steps at 6 o'clock with seven members in the party. They carried their food for breakfast in packs. After hiking about three miles, a stop was made to cook breakfast, and it was not long until savory odors of eggs, bacon, and coffee filled the air.

Each woman had her chance of laying a fire or cooking so that the hikes will be of benefit in other ways than physical. Miss Hudson, one of the sponsors, also gave some interesting facts about trees and flowers. After this biological research, Georga Burke was heard to say: "When I was a kid, I got hurt climbing up a tree with cold arms." Perhaps this well be of interest to some who are interested in rare biological specimens.

Those making the first hike were: Pat Henry, Merle Beebe, Georga Burk, Mildred Purviance, "Irish" Terry, Nez Hamrick and Miss Hudson.

Pearsons' Tea Drinkers Sip From Fragile Cups

Oct. 23—The appearance of hot tea on the menu for supper in the College Boarding Club may have been merely a whim of Fate, or perhaps because of the turn of the calender, or in any number of other ways purely incidental to the general scheme of things, but it seems to have been delibrately planned by the chef—or cheves.

For on the same evening that tea was served for the first time in almost a week, new teacups appeared on a few very fortunate tables. To the uninitiated, a cup may be a cup, whether new or old, so long as it is clean and whole but to the predestined and foreordained first-drinkers out of these new cups it is nothing far short of a miracle.

The new cups are not only sparklingly, dazzlingly white, and of the same egg-shell thinness which is so characteristic of the Wedgewood and Haviland China, but also they have handles!

"New cups are a great institution", remarked Edna Hampton as she nonchalantly sipped tea from a feather-weight specimen, "and I think that they should be adopted as fast as we can break up the old ones—but the folks at my table thought they were boullion cups that had lost one handle."

THE NATION PUBLISHES EIGHT SENSATIONAL ARTICLES

The Nation is publishing a series of very important articles on colleges, college students and their respective problems. These sensational articles are arousing considerable comment, and every student will find it worthwhile to read these eight articles as they appear. The Nation is sending bulletins and posters to all colleges, and urges their cooperation in calling the attention of the faculty and students to these interesting and instructive articles. Three have already been published, but the back numbers of the Nation may be had by calling for them at the desk in the library. The list of articles follows:

1.—Who Ought To Go To College?—by D. T. Howard, Director of Personnel, Northwestern University.
2.—The Rollins Idea—by Hamilton Holt, President Rollins College.
3.—Columbia, College of The Individual Student—by Dean Herbert E. Hawkes, Columbia College.
4.—The University in a Democracy Wisconsin's Experience— Anonymous.
5.—The Antioch Faculty Trust—by Professor J. E. Kirkpatrick, Olivet College.
6.—Civilizing Teacher Training—(the work of Professor Bode at Ohio State University) by Professor T. Livingston Scholtz, University of Southern California.
7.—The Remaking of Legal Education—by Professor Herman Oliphant, Johns Hopkins University.
8.—The Sarah Lawrence Plan—by Constance Warren, President, Sarah Lawrence College.

In the middle ages it took a right able bodied man to live to be middle aged.

NEW YORK SCENE OF MERRIMENT AS MARYVILLIANS MIX

seem to be enjoying married life. They were present together at the premiere social function of the year and kept the Princeton boys on their guard. Ed is a Middler at Union Seminary.

Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Richards were the only members of the older set present, but they were in no sense considered chaperones. They joined together in making the best speech of the evening when they announced open house to the Maryville representatives on November 17 at their home, 2 W. 122 Street, New York.

Miss Eleanor Franklin, who recentiy finished her hospital training, is nursing in New York. She lives at 149 W. 12th Street. Eleanor is also singing in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church. It was a real treat to have her at the party.

Barbara Welbon, who attended Maryville for a couple of years, and who graduated from the Preparatory Department, helped liven things up, too.

George D. Crothers, handsome graduate of Wooster College in Ohio, and now working on his Master's degree at Columbia, gave the irls a real thrill by talking to each one for a few minutes. His home is in Maryville, and he is counted one of the gang. Another for whom we had a warm regard was Mr. J. B. Laster, well-known radio singer of the National Broadcasting Station, and brother of Hayden Laster, class of '30. Mr. Laster lives at 307 W. 79th Street.

The hostesses are leading varied lives in the thriving metropolis. Mary Clopton is taking her Master's degree at Columbia, and lives at 852 Whittier Hall, Teachers' College. Lucy Horton probably holds the world's record, as far as can be ascertained, for diversity of experiences in New York. She must be interviewed for details, but they furnished much amusement for the crowd tonight. Sue Spencer is working at the Y. W., living at 617 W. 113th Street. Peggy Mevis is doing a lot of things besides throwing parties, too. She's attending Union Seminary for a couple of classes, and working at the Vanderbilt clinic. She lives at 417 W. 118th Street.

Bland Morrow, whose literary genius is still echoing down the corridors of Thaw Hall, is attending Social Service School here and living at 2 E. 12th Street. Her quiet, unassuming wit and humor led us to reminiscence of college days.

Jess Peirce also attended. He is eating and sleeping at Union Seminary—also writing this.

Although the game of snap was missed very much, it was impossible to play it in the narrow confines of Whittier Hall. However, several allusions were made to it.

"Dear Old Maryville", and the "Alma Mater" were rendered by the entire group, and games were played in rapid succsion. The Princeton men sang their Princeton song of woe, and Bob Welsh sat in silence. Everyone was agreed that the most interesting thing of all was the rounds of conversation indulged in by the entire party. Even in New York the students have to go to bed sometime, so refreshments were served and after partaking of them in true Maryville style, the crowd got up for the nightly game of Dodge the Taxi, and drifted homeward.

College-Maid Salesmen Deliver The Goods

Customers Pleased With Novel Costumes.

The College-Maid Shop's new plan for student salesmen is working out successfully. One new man went out for the first time last Monday and returned with fifteen orders, all of which were from one of the sales-zones which Knoxville has been divided into.

By having woman students make the gaments and men from the college sell them, over half of the returns from College-Maid products came back to Maryville.

The Davenport Hosiery Mills, which began this summer to use uniforms from our college factory, wrote for the new fall samples, and the company is well pleased with the design. The Shop now makes, also, a short jacket with sleeves in it which is to be worn with the house-dresses.

Several weeks ago the Echo published news of the Fort Sanders Hospital order for College-Maid's unique nurses' uniforms. Reports from the hospital say that the authorities are delighted with the new pink costumes and that the nurses find them extremely becoming.

Among recent orders received in the factory is one from a church in Scranton, Penn., for vestments for two large choirs.

GEORGE BROWN'S DOG

man shepherd dogs, or police dogs, as they are popularly termed, has given many blind people freedom and independence and happiness that otherwise they could not enjoy. A blind young insurance agent of Nashville, Tennessee, Morris S. Frank, learned the value of these dogs in a special school in Europe, where he found his canine companion, Buddy. Afterwards, he returned with Buddy to Nashville and established a school called The Seeing Eye, where many people and dogs are taught to travel together.

Neither George nor Belle have ben trained at this school, but it is certain that Belle will learn to be a great help to George as they strike out together on this long companionship.

FALL FESTIVAL TO BE GIVEN HERE NOV. 10

Program Now Complete; Manges and Melody to Contribute Numbers

VARIED PROGRAM

Knoxville Musicians To Assist Department by Singing Chorus Numbers

The program for the Fall Festival of Music which will be given, Monday night, November 10, is now completed, and the results are certainly satisfactory to all music lovers.

The program, which we are not at liberty to publish at this time, has sufficient variety to appeal to every one. Among the numbers to be contributed are the Arabesque by Debussy, Sonelta by Liszt, played by Margaret Melody, who will also play the solo part for the G minor concerto by Mendellsohn. Garnet Manges, a musical favorite, will play the Magic Five Scene by Brassin, and the Rigoletta by Liszt.

An organization of Knoxville's best musicians will assist our music department in the concert, and will contribute liberally to the evening's entertainment by singing four chorus numbers. A quartette of women's voices chosen from their number will sing the Italian Street Song. Mrs. Leslie and Miss Parette in this number are said to have voices of unusual beauty. The men's part of the organization will be represented in solo by Mr. Ed Chavannes in whom Grace Moore of Metropolitan Opera Company became interested because of his excellent vocal possibilities. Both Miss Parette and Mr. Chavannes were in the district radio audition last year.

It goes without saying that the Maryville students will give the visitors a real welcome. Credit must be given Miss Hale for the effort which she has put forth to bring to the college a beautiful musical program.

DEBATE OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT, SAYS COACH

Convention Honors Is Goal of Squad This Year.

The 1930-31 debate season is beginning to take form. Coach Verton Queener, the young, yet seasoned coach, who has placed Maryville debating standards on a par with any in the country, says, "The season looks especially good". And he knows what he is talking about.

Some of the plans for the year include a radio debate with Carson and Newman, to be broadcasted over the Knoxville network.

The Freshmen squad with a gross total of 42 men appear especially strong. And although their debates for the year are limited, still it makes the next year's outlook much more auspicuous.

The Pi Kappa Delta Convention is to be held at Center College in Kentucky, so Coach Queener is preparing to take a large number of debaters, orators and extemporary speakers to the convention. The subject to be debated is "Resolved, that the nations of the world should adopt a policy of free trade." This is of especial importance at this time as it is an issue being discussed by the whole world. The question for Extemporary Speaking has not as yet been chosen, but will be within the next few weeks.

One of the reasons why the debate seasons of the past few years have been so successful is because the Maryville audience is debate minded and therefore the judges get a combined effect of stage and audience appeal. So in looking forward to the debates of this year let us keep our respect for debate in good order and back the squad to bring more honors to Ole Maryville.

Lynn Rankin, a member of last years junior class, was on the hill over Hallowe'en. He plans to be in the college again next semester.

ALUMNI ISSUE NEXT WEEK

The next issue of the Highland Echo, November 10, is the Alumni issue. All graduates are urged to contribute. Let us know where you are and what you are doing. If you have changed your name please indicate. We realize that a prize should be offered for the best letter, but rest assured that all those who write will receive honorable mention. Address all contributions to the Editor of Highland Echo. Alumni, this is your paper. You can make it what you will. An immediate response will be necessary if you want your contributions to be published.

Hamrick Makes Earnest Plea For Sports Interest

'Nez, Sophomore, Talks Straight To Upper Classmen.

By 'Nez Hamrick

The point system for women's athletics started in earnest this week, with all classes meeting to organize soccer teams. Coach Queener has charge, and she gave a very interesting talk on girls' athletics, differentiating between "pep" and "class-spirit."

Why is it that after one ceases to be a freshman, she loses her interest in sports? Is it because she is too busy, or because she thinks she cannot make the teams? This year there were only five seniors, eight juniors and twenty sophomores out for soccer, while, on the other hand, there were fifty-five freshmen.

In the rules of the point system it is stated that there must be twice the number of players that it requires to make a team before a team can be chosen from that class. There are eleven players on a soccer team, therefore, twnty-two people have to come out or there can be no team from that class. Can the seniors have a team with only five people out? Or the juniors with eight? It is not fair to the freshmen athletes to have to be good enough to be chosen from a squad of fifty-five, when an upperclassmen can come out and make every team because there are only enough people for that team. She gets the same number of points, but is she a good enough athlete to wear a Maryville letter and sweater. No, in most cases she is not. There are two few girls who are wearing their letters and sweaters in a college of have been emerging from the puppy three or four hundred points in a system of this kind; if it were impossible, the system would be changed. The secret of it is to keep steadily at it. If one fails to make a team in one thing, do not give up, but come out for the next sport.

Osborne's Absence Much Felt On Hill

George Osborne, a prominent member of the junior class, has been greatly missed on the Hill since his return home, week before last, after three weeks of illness which started with the flu. He was in many college activities. He was treasurer of the Athenian Literary Society, a member of the Student Council, vice-president of the Triangle Club, and a library assistant. His office in the Athenian Literary Society has been filled by George Whitehead, and his place in the Triangle Club by Larry Somers.

YEAGER INJURED

Oct. 27—This afternoon, Julius Yeager, a member of the freshman class, broke his right arm and sprained his left wrist, when the ladder upon which he was standing slipped and fell. At the time of the accident he was painting in the swimming pool room. The fracture is reported to be healing normally.

Hilarity, Formality and Sobriety Characterize Hallowe'en Festivities

It is over!

The college classes have resumed their work. Not for a year will there be another such Hallowe'en jubilee!

The freshmen committees got together and threw a wow of an affair in the Alumni gymnasium, Friday night. It was rumored that they planned a costume ball, but reconsidered and made it a masquerade. The yearlings romped and cavorted about on the polished floor, playing wholesome games. Cooper performed nobly on the piano. Buchanan read. There was a Grand Review, and other antics before any one could have his doughnut and cider. The bacchanalian orgy broke up at 9:30.

Sophomores, juniors and seniors left the Hill reluctantly at 7 o'clock, having as their destination the Palace. After the show, the staid sophomores staged a drawing room affair in the basement of the Presbyterian church. The co-eds wore filmy, trailing gowns in keeping with the formality of the occasion. There was music and dancing (by a select few). They imbibed tea with guests. The juniors went to the gymnasium of the M. E. Church, South, and soberly presented a very grave affair. Realizing that laughter borders closely upon tears, they put on a ghoulish program and feasted upon such delicacies as goblin goo, owl's teeth, grave yard brew and ghost bones.

By 11:30, the thrill chasers were home in bed.

Work Begun On 1931 Year Book

Senior Section Now Being Made; Time For Club Pictures

Work on the Chilhowean for the year 1931 has begun and is progressing at a very satisfactory rate. The theme was decided upon by the staff before the end of the term last June and the drawings for the various books were submitted, corrected, and approved. The theme promises to be one that will interest every student and faculty member, and is different from any that have been followed in previous years.

The seniors are having their pictures taken for their section now, and it is hoped that all the pictures will have been taken soon so that the other classes can begin their photographing.

Now is the time for the club pictures to be taken and arrangements can be made with the business manager, Hadley Webb, at any time. The cost of a page is $14.00 plus $2.50 for the taking of the picture.

The cost of the annual this year is $4.00, the same price as formerly, the money will indeed be well spent. The plans for the year book will not be divulged, but the staff promises to put out an annual that will be radically different from the ones that have preceded it. It is advisable to subscribe for the annual as soon as possible, for the supply is limited. Orders will be taken by Hadley Webb, and any of the staff members.

Freshman Roll Call

—TERRY

Being A Reaction To Chapel Announcements

All during last week the freshman class was announcing its debut which finally took place in the gym. Friday night. Not a spectacular place to debut in, but everybody realized the limitations.

One of the most obvious of the preparations for this great coming out and going in party was the numerous, over-abundant, superfluous, lengthy, minutely detailed daily announcements that flooded the chapel platform all last week. Surely, every freshman had his name read at least once during the week. It really looks like a lot of publicity propoganda on the part of the apparently over-zealous members of '34.

And now for the committee meetings which were the cause of these announcements! The moonshiners found it exceedingly difficult to have their private committee meetings because of the complete monopoly that the freshmen had on all the available space, and as much that was unavailable too. However, the flood has receded and the moonshiners are happy again, while the freshmen are concocting other meetings and formulating new roll calls.

College Pastor's Sermons Valuable

Dr. Stevensaon Bringing Real Messages on Thursday

Dr. Stevenson has been doing some worthwhile preaching. Summaries of two sermons that were especially good follow:

Subject: "The Pearls that adorn the rich of youth."

Scripture: Ecclesiastes, chapter 11, verse 9.

It is the want of anything that awakens within us the appreciation of its worth. The period of youth should be valued because it comes but once. Some of the pearls that adorn the neck of Youth are health, happiness, hope and energy. The world is what young men make it. It is their energy and hope that pass knowledge and hope around this world.

Subject: "All Things Are Youre."

Scripture: Paul's 1st Letter to Corinthians, 3rd. chapter.

The words own and possess are often thought of as interchangeable, but they are not. A man may own material things, but thought, beauty and love, man may possess but never own. Paul would teach us that we who are alive today may possess the characters of great men of yesterday. We may possess the spirit of St. Paul. Abraham Lincoln had some thing that was immortal. We may have it, not by reading biographies, but by choosing some great cause and giving ourselves wholly to it. And it is only as we have faith in Christ that the future in any great sense may belong to us.

Home Coming

Many of the graduates and former students of the college will be back upon the hill, Friday. We will be glad to see them. To prove it, we'll give them a place at our table, and allow them lodging in our dormitory rooms. Then we'll all go to the football game. That over, the guests will depart and we will go about our work.

In the words of a former debater, "Such things ought not so to be." Why couldn't we make Home Coming Week a sort of institution?

There should be merry making by day, and sounds of revelry by night. The band might play, and we could all sport flowers and don our festive raiment. —said

Annual E.T.E.A Meet Held Last Week in Knoxville

M. C. Has Large Representation At Well Attended Meet

The annual convention of the East Tennessee Educational Association was held Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of last week at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. Professors, instructors, and teachers from all over the eastern part of the state attended the convention. Many notable speakers from the North and the East as well as from East Tennessee were present and gave inspiring addresses.

An interesting defense of modern youth was given by Mr. Cameron Beck, personnel director of the New York Stock Exchange in which he stated that the actions of the youth of today are dependent for the most part on home training. "Adult inefficiency is more a problem than is delinquent youth." He also pointed out four fundamental educational principles which every teacher should strive to accomplish—plan, purpose, perseverence, and a passion for righteousness." He also showed the value of a sympathetic teacher by stating, "Nothing in life is more iniquitous than a keen mind and a cold heart in a position that has to do with human feelings."

The convention was the best attended one of any previously held, and it was considered to be extremely successful from the viewpoint of education. Several members of the Maryville College faculty attended the convention for at least a part of time. Among these were, Dr. Hunter, Dean Barnes, Professor Queener, Professor Davis, Miss Heron, Miss Gamble, Miss Jewell, Miss Wilkinson, and Miss McReynolds.

Echo Staff Loses Soph. Cub, Cudney

Oct. 29—Today, Willard T. Cudney, sophomore reporter for the Highland Echo, tendered his resignation. "I am resigning", he said "because I can not spare time enough to do justice to the work."

Cudney has served on the Staff for practically one and one-half years, and we regret to lose him. The Highland Echo is laboring under considerable handicap now because of the recent resignation of a junior associate editor, Hodges, and Cudney's withdrawal at this time is especially. Some one will be chosen immediately to take his place, however, and once the freshmen apprentices are selected, things will work smoothly.

The freshmen apprentices will be chosen next week by the committee on selection.

DADDY KNAPP'S WEEK-END

M.C. STUDENT WINS TRIP TO KANSAS CITY

Owenby, Freshman, to Represent Tennessee in National Live Stock Show.

TO MAKE TRIP NOV. 14

Team Victorious In County Meet; First Place at Nashville and Knoxville Meets.

Ben Owenby, freshman, by much hard work and careful preparation has gained considerable honor not only for himself, but also for his Alma Mater, by winning a trip to the National Live Stock Show to be held in Kansas City, November 14.

Owenby's work started more than a year ago in high school when in a class of boys studying Agriculture, he was battling for a place on the live stock judging team. Having won the coveted place, he took part in the county contest in which the teams of Sevier County High School won first place. This victory gave them the right to compete in the East Tennessee Division fair which took place at Knoxville where they again carried off first honors, and won a trip to the state fair at Nashville. Some genuine competition was offered them in Nashville, there being 95 other teams, but again they won first place. The climax of the Nashville trip came when they were congratulated by P. L. Harned, State Commissioner of Education, who presented them the loving cup.

This team which consists of three fellows, will make the trip to Kansas City, November 14, to represent Tennessee in the national livestock judging contest. Together with the trip to Kansas City, there will be prizes ranging from $1,000, for first place; scholarships, watches and trophies.

Since Owenby was high point man for the State of Tennessee, we feel sure that he knows his cattle.

DR. ECKLES DIES THURSDAY, OCT. 30

Father of Mrs. West Dies At Age of Eighty-Five.

Dr. J. C. Eckles, father of the head of our expression department, Mrs. Nita Eckles West, died Tuesday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. F. Crowder, in Maryvile. The funeral service was held at the Methodist Episcopal Church Wednesday afternoon, with the Rev. W. H. Ragan officiating.

Dr. Eckles was born in Farmersville, Ohio, February 10, 1845. At an early age, he moved with his parents to Iowa, and was educated in the public schools and university of that state.

He gave three years of his life to his country, serving in the United States army during the Civil War.

Dr. Eckles was received into the Ohio conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1872. This year was marked, also, by his marriage to Mrs. Eckles, who was before her marriage Miss Georgia Alice Prosser. Mrs. Eckles died seven years ago.

During his active ministry, Dr. Eckles filled some of the best pulpits in the Methodist Church in the Ohio and West Ohio conferences. He served, also, as presiding elder in Mississippi for a number of years and was for four years president of Murphy College, Sevier County, Tennessee.

Ten years ago Dr. Eckles, no longer able to carry on his work, came to Maryville to make his home with his daughter, Mrs. C. F. Crowder and Dr. Crowder. He made many friends here, in the town and among the students. He was a constant attendant on all the activities in the chapel, and was interested in every phase of the religious, dramatic, and literary life of Maryville College. His presence at Vespers and at plays will be greatly missed by those who knew and loved him, who are many.

A Course In Journalism at Maryville

In the last issue of the New Republic, there appeared an editorial "Why Schools of Journalism." In a very convincing and clever way, the writer presented in black and white the facts which would tend to prove that the time spent in studying journalism in colleges is wasted. He has on his side many newspaper editors, and there are a number of journalism teachers who are beginning to question the worth of their courses. Prof. H. B. Rathbone, who teaches journalism at the University of New York, is beginning to wonder if it helps the would-be journalist to spend his college years in special preparation for that work. Dr. John Cunliffe, the head of Pulitzer School of Journalism in Columbia, stated:

"There is the widespread and well founded opinion that all is not well with the thousands of students receiving journalistic instruction in over 200 American colleges and universities."

Since there have been suggestions that Maryville College have a course in journalism, it seems fitting that we consider the advantages and disadvantages that such a course carries with it.

All that the beginner in journalism needs to know is the proper order in which to tell the facts. He may learn this in any college English class. The technical things that a course in journalism is concerned with, may be picked up by hanging around the office, or by asking some one else on the staff. There are a number of books on journalism that anyone interested may read, but even these, must be taken with a grain of salt. It is a difficult subject to teach. The teacher must know so much, and yet there's so little that he can say. The class would have to be conducted quite differently from any other college class.

From an economic standpoint, journalism, as a life work, is a poor choice. Everyone knows that reporters are usually poorly paid, and not until one has had several years experience, does he get what may be termed a 'living wage'. The writer believes he may safely say that in proportion to the time, worry, and interest that the work requires, he is never paid. It would seem unwise, then, for a student to spend four or even two years in preparation for a work that pays so little.

In the words of Zolly Howard, city editor of the Knoxville News-Sentinel, "There's no substitute for brains." If a person can write stuff that people like to read, then he has the makings of a reporter. If he desires to be an editor, his success will depend upon his personality, health and nerve energy. A journalism school can not furnish a knack for writing; neither can it contribute the qualities that an executive must have. All in all, it would seem to the writer, that in newspaper work, nothing is better than the old apprentice system for the training of newspaper men.

TO JUNIORS

It's lots more fun to study psych.
Than play football, or ride a bike,
The fact is, I am quite delighted
To find myself so complicated;
I never knew I had sensations,
First level reactions—such observations
Had passed me by. With what delight
I learned about organs of sight,
About synapses, inhibition,
And many another strange condition.
Please don't be scared and don't be frightened
Or think you'll never be enlightened!
I really think you'll get a B.
Now study hard and wait and see.

The new girls gave a program at Bainonian meeting Saturday night. Especially striking was the Bathing Suit chorus representing the 1930 styles of beach wear.

MARYVILLIANS RETURN

Maryville was well represented at the Teachers' Convention which was held in Knoxville last week, and the convention was well represented on the Hill because many were the former students (who are now school teachers) that visited friends here over the week-end. The writer observed among those returning, Edith Nash, Ruth Lockmiller, Lois Dillow, Mary Ella Sullivan, Ruth Smith, Gladys Graham, Ada William, Mattie Sue Housely, Edith Woolsey, Anna L. Beachboard, Ruth Sharp, and Lynn Rankin.

The banks of G-E floodlights at Georgia Tech's Grant Field can be adjusted to illuminate track meets as well as football games.

G-E Floodlighting Wins Favor for Football - Hockey - Track - Baseball - Tennis

G-E floodlighting equipment has a winning record. Its victories are counted in terms of pleased spectators, increased attendance, satisfied coaches and players.

The development of G-E athletic-field floodlighting equipment was planned with every consideration for the fundamental and special playing conditions it must meet. That is why the big Novalux projectors give ample and evenly diffused light over the entire playing area

The development of General Electric floodlighting equipment has largely been the work of college-trained men in the G-E organization — other college-trained men are largely responsible for the continuing leadership of General Electric in furnishing the many other products which bear the G-E monogram.

Annual Homecoming Celebrated By Milligan Game, November 7

MANY ALUMNI EXPECT TO RETURN TO SCENE OF MEMORIES

Old Grads Express Desire To Revisit Alma Mater.

LOYALTY TESTED

Bulldogs Promise Interesting Game to M. C. Fans.

By Bob West

The test of a dish is whether you want a second one or not. Simply as a matter of manners a fellow will clear his plate of anything he contracts to eat, but if he comes out with bean strings hung in his teeth, and cold beef grease stuck to the roof of his mouth, he's very glad to wipe his mouth, throw his napkin on the floor, and call it an experience.

Along the same line of reasoning comes the thoughts that, The test of of School is whether it instills a love for its character and the spirit of the true Alma Mater-nity in the minds and hearts of its students. A diploma and a degree soon get to be a matter of course, but the school with its offerings and friendliness lasts. If a student graduates and is glad to leave, glad to not live in the hall any more, glad to not sit in classes any more, glad to not have to go to chapel again; if he enjoys the consciousness of never having to walk the cinder paths again, of never being called upon to take part in activities on the campus of his school—that student should have left the school long before he did, for he was or is, a parasite on the fresh blood of the student body.

Thus we can judge Maryville College by the response which is given to the call or invitation for its annual home-coming game.

The old "Grads" and students have been given this call and we trust that their response will be as it has always been in the past. There seems to be a mixed feeling of willingness and anxiety to return to the scene of memories, which has stayed with them throughout the years. The home-coming game is to be played against Milligan College. This is a team which has proven its power and promises to give one of the best exhibitions of football played on the home field this year.

We are looking for you Alumni! Come On!

Here we go, here we go,
Down the field to crush the foe,
As the Scotties go marching along.
Men of might—men of fight
Orange-Garnet waving bright.
While we make the Hill merry with song.
Then it's hi! hi! hi!
We'll win this game or die!
Highlanders, fight to the end, Rah! Rah!
And we won't be done, until the victory's won
For the pride of our hearts, Maryville!

MARYVILLE ELEVEN DOWNS CARSON-NEWMAN EAGLES

Highlanders Given Breaks In Game Saturday Nov. 1.

GAME HARD FOUGHT

Woodard, Calloway and White Winning Aces For Scotties.

Displaying some fine defensive work, and taking advantage of breaks in their favor, the Maryville College Highlanders defeated the strong Carson-Newman team 14 to 0, at Jefferson City, Saturday. The Eagles boasting their best team in years put up a great defensive battle, and the Highlanders were able to score only after a pass, and a fumbled punt by the Carson-Newman safety man.

John "Sleepy" White, Maryville's alert left end, received a fifteen yard pass from Calloway in the second quarter, and scampered 20 yards to cross the goal for Maryville's first score. White has scored three times in the last three games. Late in the fourth quarter Carben, the Eagles' spectacular safety man attempted to catch a punt on his own five yard line, but was hit hard by Atkins, and he fumbled, MacDonald recovering on the four yard line. Calloway, who played a fine game, took it over in three buck. He made good both extra points.

Both teams presented fine lines, and neither was able to gain consistently. The Scotties, however, had the best of it as far as yards gained, and the number of first downs. Maryville also led in the aerial department. The Eagles tried many passes, especially in the second half, but the alert play of Ferguson, who intercepted three tosses, kept them from advancing.

Maryville kicked off to the Eagles, who were forced to punt, as MacDonald, Overly and White threw the Carson-Newman backs for losses. The Highlanders got away for some good gains approaching twice to the Eagles' 25-yard line, in the first quarter. on runs by Calloway, Gillespie, and a pass Woodard to White, but could advance no further. Carson-Newman got away for short gains on end runs, but were usually forced to punt.

About the middle of the second quarter, after an exchange of punts, the Highlanders got the ball on the Eagles' 35-yard line. Calloway dropped back and shot a pass to White, who shook off a tackler and crossed the goal line. Calloway kicked goal.

In the second half the Scotties could not gain consistently and elected to play a defensive game. The Eagles tried vainly to score via the air route. Late in the final quarter, after a punting duel between Woodard, and Calloway for

ALPHA SIGMA GAVE PROGRAM AT PEP MEETING OCT. 30

"More songs and yells" has been the hue and cry at Maryville for sometime. The cheer leaders have asked for new ideas, and everyone has agreed that another yell or two, and an additional pep song would come in handy. Yet, it seemed, nothing was forthcoming; the song and yell famine continued, unbroken.

At last, we are glad to say, a contribution has been made to our store of pep-stimulators songs. Alpha Sigma through its unique "cross-eyed chorus" presented at the last pep meeting a song which we feel sure will be a great asset in rousing spirit on all occasions. The song is set to the tune of the well-known March by John Philip Sousa, "Field Artillery". The words were written by Overly and French. Since no name has been given the new song, we would usggest the name "The Scotties' March". Here are the words:

Y.M.C.A. TO PRESENT PRIZES TO CROSS-COUNTRY WINNERS

As has been a custom for several past years a cross country race is held during the homecoming football game. This year the race will be held Friday during the game with Milligan College.

Several men have been out practicing for the race—among them are Young, Davis, Leach, Mattingly, Truesdale, and Taylor. The race will be tightly contested. The track extends over five miles of ground, consisting of roads, hills, and trails. The prize for the winner will be a gold medal or a trophy. Medals will be given as second and third prizes. The Y. M. C. A. is sponsoring the track meet.

TUMBLERS SCHEDULE MEET WITH VOL TEAM

Nov. 3—The men's tumbling team is aspiring to be bigger and better this year than ever before. In addition to the usual squad of eight, two more men have been added. The squad will start regular practices on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday afternoons at 3:45 o'clock. A meet has been scheduled with the Tennessee Tumblers for the next spring and several exhibition matches are being arranged.

BLISTER GATHERERS TAKE 15 MILE HIKE TO SPONSORS CABIN

Nov. 1—This afternoon the B. G.'s left for their first week-end hike of the semester, going to Miss Gamble's cabin near Walland. They left the Hill at three o'clock with nine in the party, including the two chaperones.

Each girl was loaded with a pack or blanket, and was wearing enough clothes to keep her warm regardless of the weather. They were to hike out the Sunshine Pike about nine miles, and then turn off the main road and hit a trail leading up to the cabin. In all, the distance is about fifteen miles. Enough food was taken to last for two days, and all meals will be cooked over the camp-fire. The party will return to the Hill some time Monday. All the members of the club except one made the trip.

FRESHMEN DEFEAT JUNIORS; SENIORS DOWN SOPHOMORES

The writer hereof, due to the fact that his identity shall never be known, will do his best to write up a very partial account of the proceedings of a great tag foot ball game which took place Thursday afternoon, between the Kings of the Campus (sophs) and the dignified but dashing seniors.

The seniors came straggling on the field one at a time and finally nine were there. Then "Buck" dashed to the gym and persuaded two wrestlers to engage in the rough and tumble game of tag football to make the required eleven players. The seniors were clad in many colors ranging from a nasty yellow sweat shirt which was worn by the blonde giant French, to the blue black pair of sweat pants worn by Hatcher.

The sophs seemed to take the game in a very serious fashion. "Buddy" Hickman was their outstanding backfield star, while "Saint" Paul played a big game at guard. "War Horse" Rummel seemed to get his dander up because a certain little tackle was slapping

Music Department Gives Chapel Program, Friday.

Friday morning in chapel a delightful program of Hallowe'en music was given by Misses Garnet Manges and Margaret Melody, adding much to the spirit of the Hallowe'en season. Miss Manges' first played two dance selections, "Dance of the Elves" and "Dance of the Witches", which were well received. Miss Hale, who was in charge of the program, then gave a synopsis of Saint Saens', "Dance Macabre", assisted by Miss Manges at the piano. The selection was then played as a duet by Miss Melody and Miss Manges.

COLLEGE MAID SHOP

The College Maid Shop received orders last week from several different states. One of the largest was from the Richmond Hosiery Mill, in Rossville, Ga. This same mill ordered a large shipment of dresses only a few days before.

A shipment of fifteen dozen suits of College-Maid pajamas was made to the Ozarks last week.

Orders were received from the Utica Knitting Mills, Utica, N. Y., and from the Gift Shop of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions, Fifth Avenue, New York City. This shop will carry College Maid wares all the time it is open.

RED CROSS PROGRAM MEETS NEED OF POPULAR ATHLETICS

Evidence that university faculties are giving thought to the need of a sports program which will increase the students is seen by Red Cross representatives having extensive contacts with the educational centers of the country.

The discussion of too much specialized athletic activity, in which only super athletes are wanted, or developed, leaving the majority of the students on the sidelines, has drawn the attention not alone of the public, but has aroused interest among the students themselves, even though the charge is not necessarily applicable in all cases.

In some instances, as one observer commented, too specialized athletics has resulted in what might be termed a course in "sports appreciation" but has added no extra credits to the individual student's record. What is needed, apparently, is a program which is valuable to all students primarily as physical recreation, and which has, besides, a certain practical aspect.

For years the Red Cross has been welcomed in universities and colleges with its program of swimming instruction, life-saving and first aid. These courses have been adopted as official requirements in certain institutions where physical education is stressed. In the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, among others, and most state colleges the Red Cross certificate is the highest award for swimming and life-saving. In technical institutions, such as schools of mining and engineering in normal schools stressing physical education the first aid course is recognized for its practical value after graduation.

These facts are generally recognized among college leaders, consequently each year sees a closer degree of cooperation between the Red Cross and the country's educational institutions. Educators are found among the important groups of Red Cross leaders in the country, while the contact of students with the practical values of Red Cross service to themselves and to the communities over the United States has drawn into local leadership of Red Cross Chapters many younger men as they have graduated and started their careers.

COLLEGE PLAYERS

Under the direction of Mrs. Veech, the College Players are preparing to present on the 24th of November the first play of the year, The Swan. The play was written in Hungarian by Ferenc Molnar, a Hungarian author, and has been translated into English.

As yet, the cast is not ready for publication. The College Players, however, consist of all the students in the expression department of the college.

him on the neck.

All went well until Morris Underwood was tying his shoe way out near the side line, and a pigskin fell into his arms and was embraced in that way which only the gallant Underwood can do. While still making love to the old ball, he turned around and, to his surprise, saw that the whole soph. team were buttin' in. He became frightened and ran across the goal line, and was informed that he had counted six times for the seniors.

The boys, midst much argument and protests, brought the ball back for another kick-off and they really kicked.

The senior backfield worked like all the famed four horsemen. Don Benn, the senior general, was carrying the ball like Carieado and kicking out on the yard lines like a Dodd.

If those sophs had had as much fight as they said they had, the old decrepit seniors would have been rushed off their feet. Everyone on the senior team seemed to have that non chalant expression. Even Jack Coughlin favored the seniors.

Well after all, the seniors had the referee; the juniors had the timekeeper and head linesman; and every soph was a referee, head linesman and would be willing to admit he knew something about football.

Every man displayed some kind of sportsmanship. The seniors were accused of tackling, tripping, holding and slugging but no one seemed to care. Much credit for the senior victory is due the two senior women who watched part of the game.

VOL. 16 MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE MON., NOVEMBER 10, 1930 NUMBER EIGHT

ALUMNI CONTRIBUTIONS THROW LIGHT ON VARIOUS OCCUPATIONS

School Teaching, Play Coaching And Graduate Work Lead.

High Point, Ohio,
November 2, 1930

Miss Hessie E. Keeton,
Editor Highland Echo,
Maryville, Tenn.
Dear Editor:

In one of your recent editorials devoted to the encouragement of a teachers' club, the following statement was observed: "Many students have had teaching problems and experiences that the authors of our text books have never had or forgot to mention." In this article you inferred that such a club would possibly prove beneficial to the "four out of every five."

The primary purpose of this message, dear editor, is to inform you that you are entirely correct in voicing the need for such an organization. The club, if rightly organized and conducted, may aid verdant teachers in solving the mysteries of spontaneous combustions and ventriloquism which occur continuously in many classrooms. It could teach the would-be educators a few things which are not gained at the feet of the saga element of our colleges and universities.

For example, an active teachers' club, which you should have, would make arrangements with the head coach to scrimmage with the football team once or twice a week, in order to develop power to handle the junior high ruffians.

Problems in Ethics might be studied by the club. Should the teacher agree with John's mother that his unruly behavior is due to his sensitive nature and nervous disposition; or should she hazard her life by declaring boldly to the worthy matron that her offspring is infested with evil spirits which can best be emitted via the peach branch treatment?

A wise organizer would also make provision for the club to participate in baseball practice. Only one who has been exposed to flying missiles can appreciate the value of being a skillful catcher. A teacher should be prepared to meet the hectic, desultory onslaught of chalk and spitballs which sweep upon her from every open direction.

If a teacher's club can be formed which will attempt the solution of some of the common disciplinary problems, it will prove to be of infinite aid to the inexperienced ones, and such training will grow from apathy to general demand.

Regretfully yours,
One Who Knows.

Princeton, New Jersey.

Dear Editor:

The writer pauses in his typing to listen to an admonition from his old lady, the Friar Tull. It is expedient for a junior in this school of the prophets to heed the words of wisdom concerning affectations in speech. Now to resume this letter in which will be given short items about the twelve Maryville men sequestered in this monastery.

One oJhn Wriggins, is still-married and hence lives outside the walls but continues his avid search for theological learning. His hobby is snapping pictures.

Little Benny Franklin is president of the senior class. He has been missing from the monastery for several days. If you should see him in Maryville send him back to the cloister.

Harold Gordon Harold, alias Low Down, is also missing from the ranks. Perhaps maybe he is personally delivering the autographed pictures for which there was an overwhelming demand. (It pays to advertise in the Highland Echo.)

Red Courtenay, the Canadian Scottish Highlander from Georgia, is pope of the Warfield Club of which Harold is president. He is acting assistant pastor, in charge of young people's work, in the Presbyterian Church in Plainfield.

Harry Ingram Fell has retained enough hair to be King Fuzz. He is rejoicing with Connie Mack over the Philadelphia Athletics World Championship.

Abie Tull, the uncommon roommate, insists that it is a great life. He is keenly interested in foreign missions. China seems to be particularly interesting.

The Inevitable Annick and Sargis have finally come home. They spent last year in California but decided that New Jersey climate was more healthful.

The Sage Laster, the popular Smiling Jim, is working hard each night in an attempt to earn a degree of doctor of letters. He has given several readings before his club. Yes, my dear editor, those that you heard so often.

The Sage's only rival in the field of letter writing is the Infant Mayer. The Infant is inspired by the Goddess Theona but the Sage has had more experience. Infant Billy has brought his famous or infamous laugh with him, also his ability to play touch-football.

Your correspondent, the Indomitable Jones, is manipulating the typewriter with the left hand only. The right wing is strapped securely to the body. The said right wing collided with the flank of the rangy Sage in the football practice.

Best wishes from the monks to our Alma Mater.

Sincerely,
Bob Jones.

P. S.—Eddie Osborne was added to our ranks on October 24. He came to us after spending a short time at Vanderbilt University. He makes our "twelve" complete.

—Bob.

Dear Maryville Friends:

It hardly seems possible that I have at last reached the often coveted status of being an alumna of Maryville College

It is quite a jump from Pearsons Hall to a room above in New York but this far, my training there has kept me from going astray! I am enjoying my year in the city very much. It would be hard to tell you exactly what I am doing as I am really doing everything from taking courses at Union Seminary in Religious Education to working in the clinic of the Columbia University Dental College. I'm also assisting in the Junior Department of Dr. Fosdick's Riverside Church and doing some coaching in dramatics.

We can feel the warmth of the Maryville Spirit even up here in this big metropolis for there are a number of Maryville Alumni here this winter. Hardly a day passes without some mention of Maryville being made and memories of our

Bainonian, Athenian Mid-Winters Chosen

The Bainonian midwinter has been selected. It is "Irish Cinderella". No leads have been chosen although several are trying out. Last year Jane Duke helped Bainonian to be victorious in winning the cup for the second time. Just how she will help Bainonian this year has not been definitely decided.

With the presentation of this midwinter Bainonian will either receive the cup as permanent property or relinquish it to another society.

The Athenians have chosen Joseph C. Lincoln's "Shavings" for their production. Bob Anderson in the role of "Shavings" takes the lead. Upper classmen will remember the excellent work he did in "The Poor Nut" Athenian's mid-winter for 1928-1929. Other parts in the play are taken by Mildred Crawford, Edwin Shelley, Lavinia Jones, Hadley Webb, and Alice Renegar. The play is a light-character piece and promises to develop well.

Miss Anne T. Reid, former candidate secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, was the speaker at the meeting of the Women's Presbyterial in Maryville Friday. She spoke, also from the pulpit of New Providence Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning.

Oriental Gift Shop Opens On Monday, Nov. 17

Sponsored by Y.W.C.A. to Raise Money For New Activity Building.

Plans for the "Oriental Gift Shop", which is to be held Monday, November 17, on second floor of Thaw Hall, are nearing completion, and the committees have already begun work to make the affair a big success. The object of the "Gift Shop" is to make money for a new building, in which Y. W. C. A. activities can be carried on.

The "Oriental Gift Shop" will be made up of three booths, each booth occupying one classroom, and each representing a different country. In these booths will be sold gifts of all kinds; gifts especially suitable for Christmas. From Japan there will be stationery, book-ends, letter openers, prints, and many other Japanese trinkets. This booth will be in charge of the faculty. A few of the gifts from India are Mexican-Indian bracelets, rings, and pins of fascinating designs, watch chains and watch-fobs, beads, and pillows. The new girls will be in charge here. The upper classmen have charge of the Persian booth. Here you will find animals place, ivory elephants, camels, pictures, and scented rose beads and bracelets. These are only a few of the many things which will be sold.

Besides the "Gift Shop", there will be a booth where delicacies from the heart of the Orient will be sold. Another feature will be the Japanese tea-room located in the Y. W. reading room. Here will be the place for relaxation and a time to enjoy oriental music. In the meantime sandwiches, cake, candy, and tea will be sold.

Much work is being done to make the affair a big success, so won't you do your part by buying your Christmas presents here? The prices will be reasonable so that every student will be able to buy something, and every little bit will help.

The "Gift Shop" will open at 9:30 Monday morning and remain open until 5:00 Monday afternoon.

Maryville Observes Annual Home-Coming

Many Faithful Alumni Witness Highlander's Victory

Perhaps Saturday afternoon would have been a more appropriate time to have held the 1930 Home Coming Football Game. But, nevertheless, on last Friday aftrenoon, November 7, several of the faithful Alumni came together and cheered the Highlanders on to a victory of 39-0 over the Milligan Buffaloes.

Truly the crowd was not so large as should have been represented. Although when one considers the cosmopolitan condition of present and former Maryville students, then it is easy to see why it is impossible for very many to come. Among those seen and heard on the campus were: James W. King of the class of '25. G. G. Gillingham of the class of '26.

Earl Blazer whose business like manners gave much dignity and honor to the class of '30 was present.

J. D. Davis and Harold Bird, two men who will long be remembered and honor due to their athletic attainments while on the hill, paid their tribute to the Highlanders.

Corky Crawford, '28, M. H. Gamble, of class of 1905. D. W. Proffitt, and Mrs. Proffitt of class of '16; Craig Tedford '22, Ruth C. Newell, 13, C. H. Dickerson, '13, V. F. Goddard, '13, R. O. Smith, '16, M. C. Biggs, '30, H. R. Miller, 28, Frantz Higgenbotham, '16, Joe C. Gamble '26, E. A. Storey, '27, Tom Hutsell, and Hubert Smith comprise most of the alumni, who were present.

Reggie Voorhees, class of '29, says he still loves his alma mater. He is teaching Human Physiology in U. T. Junior College at Martin, Tenn.

Fall Festival Here Tonight In Our Chapel

Varied Program Promises Great Treat For All Music Lovers.

Tonight in the Voorhees Chapel, the annual Fall Festival of Music will be presented. Our music department has been making elaborate preparations for this event, and rehearsals indicate that the time has been well spent. But not content with giving the critical Maryville audience the best that our local talent have to offer, Miss Hale has secured the services of an organization of musicians from the Second Presbyterian Church of Knoxville. The following program will be presented:

Zulu Missionaries On Hill Last Week

Rev. and Mrs. Charles Randsom Guests in Alexander Home

Rev. and Mrs. Charles Newton Randsom, returned missionaries from Zululand, were the guests last week of Dr. and Mrs. John M. Alexander. They both made speeches about their work and were cordially received by the students and by the members of the Presbyterian Church.

On Wednesday afternoon at four forty-five Mrs. Randsom spoke to a large group of students in Bainonian Hall. She told interesting stories of her work, particularly of what she did among the women and children. After the meeting she answered questions about the work, and displayed curios and pictures taken on the field.

Mr. Randsom was the speaker at the Presbyterian prayer meeting on Wednesday evening. Mrs. Randsom joined him in singing some of the Zulu songs, with the "clicks" and "clucks" characteristic of that music.

Mr. Randsom filled the pulpit at the Thursday morning chapel service on the Hill. He delivered an inspiring address and an earnest plea for laborers to go forth to fields already white unto the harvest.

Mr. and Mrs. Randsom were for forty years missionaries in the Natal district of South Africa. They loved their work and are very sorry that the time has come for them to retire. We may be sure that the people among whom they worked will be grieved not to have them return after their furlough.

Dr. McMurray: "Name ten prominent men who attended the Constitutional Convention."

Joe Peery: "George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, Martin Luther ——".

ADDITIONAL TRIBUTE PAID TO MARYVILLE'S SIX HUNDRED

FRIENDS PRESENT $3000 TO COLLEGE MAID SHOP, NOV. 5

Wealthy Cincinnati Capitalist Telegraphs Glad Tidings.

Nov. 5—A telegram announcing a three thousand dollar endowment fund was received today in the College Maid Shop.

The message, which is from one of the best friends of the shop is as follows:

"Mrs. Katheryn Romig McMurray,
"Maryille, Tenn.

"Will send in few days to Maryville College for College Maid Shop as working capital an annuity basis three thousand dollars from Watson Smith, Alice Bates Pollock and self one thousand each which seems to be all can do at present. Glad to have accomplished this considering conditions.

"J. K. Pollock".

Mr. Pollock is a wealthy Cincinnati capitalist who has given a great deal to the work. He gave money when the Shop was first started, and has been giving ever since. Sometimes it has been money for annuity endowments, sometimes for current expenses, and several times the gift of a sewing machine to be installed immediately. He made the very first sales for the shop to a store in Cincinnati.

The "Alice Bates Pollock" named in the telegram is Mrs. J. K. Pollock, who is evidently doing her share for the "College Maids".

Mr. Watson, an archeologist and research worker, is the brother-in-law of the mayor of Cincinnati. He, too, has been a staunch friend to the little college factory, and this by no means the first time he has sent substantial evidence of his friendship. In this he is following in the footsteps of his father, who was another cheerful giver.

Mr. Smith's interest was first aroused through Mr. Pollock. After the death of Judge Smith, also of Cincinnati, Mr. Pollock wrote to his son, telling him about the College Maid Shop and enclosing a copy of the annuity contract. A week later the contracte was returned, signed, and with it came a check for one thousand dollars.

It is because of the kindly assistance of such people as these, and because of the high courage and unfailing perseverance which Mrs. McMurray has displayed that so many "College Maids", past and present, have been enabled to earn part or all of their expenses in the College Maid Shop.

Echos For 1917-18 Reveal Facts About M. C. During World War.

Everybody rejoiced when the peace pact was signed and none were more joyful than the faculty, students, and friends of Maryville College. Maryville College sent forth six hundred soldiers to the World War. Some were alumni, some were undergraduates, but they all had within them a spirit that carried them over the top.

It is in memory and in honor of these loyal boys and men that the following data has been selected from the issues of The Highland Echo during the years 1917-1918, 1918-1919. Excerpts from these newspapers have been selected at random but they all pertain to some part that Maryville played during the World War.

September 18, 1917—

"War Calls Students from College Halls".

Maryville Represented in Company B.

When war was declared on the sixth of last April Maryville students began at once to consider the various branches of service with a view of finding a field of service where their efforts will be most effective. Several men connected themselves with Company B of the Third Tennessee Infantry commanded by Capt. E. J. Lones, and left for Camp Sevier, Greeneville, S. C., September 7.

October 30, 1917—

November 20, 1917—

"Maryville College Subscribes $2,253 to Y.M.C.A. War Fund"

Most remarkable demonstration of altruism ever shown. "An expression of true patriotism", says Dr. Wilson. Interesting examples of sacrifice go with this donation. Some students have agreed to frequent the ice-cream parlors less frequently. Others have 'cut out' the movies, while others will take it out on old clothing. One girl gave $7.00 that she had saved for necessary dental work.

December 11, 1917—

Company B expressed its gratitude to the girl who denied herself the necessary dental work to contribute to the war fund, by sending her a check for $115.

"Our New Edior"

"Red" Turner, faithful editor of The Highland Echo, has seen fit to answer the call of his country. Robert L. Taylor has been chosen as the new editor.

January 15, 1918—

The announcement was made at the College Boarding Club, Saturday, that only two meals would be served on Sunday; that there would be no church and Sunday School services would be held in the chapel. Close upon the heels of this announement followed the one that the coal supply was sufficient to last ten days. School would have to be closed unless more coal could be secured.

January 18, 1918—

Junior Class cancels annual contract. Of the twenty-nine boys of the class, three have been conscripted—the Business Manager, the Associate Editor and the Photographic Editor. For every dollar collected for advertisements, Liberty Bonds and War Saving Stamps will be bought. Every penny has been turned over to the government.

"Patriotic Exercises Held in Chapel"

Friday morning, exercises were held in chapel in honor of alumni, former students, and members of the faculty who are now serving their country in the great war.

"Honor Roll of Maryville College"

The Maryville College officials have been making an effort to keep a compete roll of honor of all alumni, undergraduates, and teachers who have entered military services. 271 names are now on it. (Note—Dr.

Being Educated

Down in our section of the country, the boys leave the old home town for the factories of the North. Eventually they return, and invariably, they look better than they did when we last saw them. We never know how much actual cash they have in their pockets, but they have a most interesting 'lingo' and always wear good clothes. We are impressed; they are satisfied; all is well.

The old grads who have been coming back to see us certainly look prosperous. Evidently the depression that we hear rumors of did not hit the school teaching profession. Or maybe they learned in college to make a little go a long way. Anyhow, they present good appearances. We are glad for them, and will be only too glad when we can draw a salary, pay our debts and taste of that freedom that the signers of the Declaration of Independence had in mind.

The boys who went North, and the graduates of Maryville, have one thing in common. They manage to look prosperous. But the college graduate should have something that the mill worker does not have. He should have learned not only the art of spending money (for it is an art as well as a failing) but he should have learned to enjoy the hours that are not spent in money making. Liberal arts colleges are not in popular favor just now—and it is deplorable that their graduates can do nothing but teach school—but they have within their power, the opportunity to acquaint people with something that makes for happiness. They should afford training—and training is not the word—in subjects that add to life's enrichment. Of course there are some of us who will always be Peter Bells, and yellow primroses have no other significance to a host of us, but if we are some times afforded occasional glimpses of the beauty that Shelley was so familiar with, we will have come a long way from the mob of people whose only adjective for a sunset is "cute."

—O—

Pause and Think

The Alumni of Maryville College are its representatives. In this issue we have gien them an opportunity to speak for themselves. There are others who have served the college who cannot speak for themselves. In the college chapel is a memorial tablet. On it are these words:

In commemoration of Maryville's Men and Women
Who Represented the College
In the World War.
Selected by the Liberty Class
1918

This editorial is to serve the same purpose as that tablet. Tomorrow is Armistice day. It does not mean so much to some of us because all that we know of the Great war we have learned from books and motion pictures. But it touched the lives of others among us, and left them with vivid, unpleasant memories. The writer would not advocate any spread-eagle sob stuff. She is simply asking that the present student body give more than a passing thought to that student body who represented Maryville, at home and on the battle field, in 1917-18.

A Dog In Chapel

We have a new pep song. We need a new nursery rhyme. It should read:

The Highlanders had a little dog
With yelp both high and low;
And everywhere the Scotties went
That dog was sure to go.

It followed them to chapel one day
Which was a queer thing—but—
How the students laughed and grinned
At the capers that dog cut.

Bad doggeral, yes, but the sentiment is there. We've had a lot of chapel visitors this year. A number of them have helped, but our canine visitor of Friday morning did little except yelp and wander disconsolately about the place. Of course our team should have a mascot; all good teams have them now. But I'm wondering if the Kentucky enthusiasts release their Wild Cat in chapel before each game. If so, I can understand how their players acquired their fighting ability. A dog on the street will command scarcely a passing glance, but a dog in chapel will draw the attention of all from the chapel speaker. And if it gives plaintive whines, it's funnier still—we can't help laughing; we're made that way.

Question in Political Science Class "Do you give true and false questions on your tests?

Dr. McMurray: "No, but I get true and false answers."

Calvin Bass: "Before long we'll be able to sit at home and see football games on our television screen."

Dr. McMurray: "Yes. And the yells will be played on a phonograph, so the moonshiners won't be bothered by the cheerleader."

Porter French: Seeing a visitor present, spoke of the junior child as 'the young gentle man.'

Co-ed: "Prof. Griffttts, does one have to know how to balance equations to be a chemist's wife?

Prof. Griffitts: "Heavens no! All you need to know is how to balance meals and love him hard."

We should like to hear Dr. Stevenson preach a sermon on the text: Much study is a weariness of the flesh—Ecclesiastes 12:12.

Edna Hampton—"Isn't today too cloudy to have your picture taken for the Chilhowean?"

Dr. McMurray (finding Gordon Vanderslice asleep in class): "Don't wake him up; we married men have a hard time of it."

Miss Green (after Zoology class): "For goodness sakes, open some windows in here; there's going to be a bunch of freshmen in here next period."

Found on a true-false test: True (false)

Prof. Proffitt: "When money talks what does it say?"
Student: "Buy, buy."
Prof. Proffitt: "Oh, no! Bye-bye!"

Question on Biology exam: "What is heredity?"

Answer: "Heredity means if your grandfather didn't have any children, your father wouldn't have any either—and neither would you."

Dick Marston: "Let's call Tiny Waters 'Mississippi' because he's the father of Waters.

We regret to announce that the boxing match arranged for today has been canceled, as the two fighters had a disagreement.

"Didn't I tell you to notice when the soup boiled over?"
"I did. It was half past ten."

"What will the girl of eighteen be in ten years?" asks a critic. Twenty-one!

Little Sandy: "Hey, pa, let's go to the Centennial Pageant, it's only a dollar."

Sandy: "Next time, laddie, next time."

"Pipe down there!" shouted the oil well engineer.

Then there was the Scotch student who signed up for Math because you were Given so much to prove.

LETTERS FROM THE ALUMNI

college days relived. I might also imagine myself back in one of Dr. Orr's classes or in Dr. Hunter's Shakespeare class when I see the familiar sight of Jesse Peirce asleep, in one of our classes at Union!

One of the very best things about Maryville, I think, are the friendships, we make there, and I realize all the more how much they mean to us now that I am away from the college. It is certainly a wonderful feeling to find friends of Maryville no matter how far away from Tennessee one may be.

I wish I could stop in for chapel some morning, and I'd like to be looking up at the beautiful blue mountains which loom in the distance back of Thaw, instead of these New York skyscrapers.

However, New York life is quite fascinating and I am having a very interesting and joyful experience here.

Greetings to all you Maryville people at the college and elsewhere.

With sincere best wishes,
Margaret Mevis.

Miss Hessie Keeton,
Editor, Highland Echo,
Maryville College,
Dear Hessie:

I think the Echo is fine this year. I am sure your regime will be a very successful one, and my best wishes are with you and the staff in everything you undertake.

Sincerely,
Edith Nash.

Ocean City, New Jersey,
November 4, 1930.

Dear Hessie:

I can't write. There are many many reasons why I can't namely; I don't know whether to address the letter to the Editor, to the Highland Echo or to people in general; I would never think of enough correct words to be presented to the public eye; and then there is nothing to say. Perhaps I could write I am Roberta Hickman, age 21, graduate of class of '30, lived in Green Pond, Alabama originally, but hither and yon at the present. My present occupation is coach for the Universal Producing Company. This particular position lends entertainment, variety, stubborn people, ox-like wills, hard work and the backache. Anyone who is from Maryville and abides near me please let your presence be known. Any youths wishing a similar position as mine write to party named and all necessary information will be furnished.

Then after I wrote that much what would I say next? How I miss the old school, that I long to look into the bright and shining faces and the like? Maybe I might write ten rules to be observed in earning one's daily bread. Nope! honey, you will have to count me out on it this time for however much I should like to see my name in print I have not the ability to put it there.

Luck to you.

Roberta.

Union Theological Seminary,
New York City.

To The Editor-in-Chief and Readers of The Highland Echo:

Through due process of time it becomes at once my solemn duty to write back and tell you all how much I miss you and my present pleasure to tell you how to act when you have been pushed out into the cold cruel world. Neither of which you are much interested in.

Fully a third of you are new Maryvillians and do not know what it is all about anyhow. That is where you have it all over us grads—you're not even supposed to know. Since everybody is giving you advice as free as chapel speeches, here is a little bit I've picked up in graduate school in the short time I've been here: Aside from good grades, the best thing you can get in college is training in journalism, dramatics, and debate. Aside from this I have nothing to offer you—not even encouragement. You don't need it.

My old friends will be glad to hear that I got in seminary. I am also taking a Master's at Columbia. If I have any spare time I am going to campaign for Heywood Broun for whatever he'll run for. I am not as busy as I was at college but I am doing more.

To the faculty I'd like to say that they should feel content with the work they are doing—I have had occasion to compare, and feel that Maryville has an exceptionally good faculty. With the new president, Dr. Lloyd, I'm looking for great things to continue to happen at the old Alma Mater.

Ed Driscoll and I are doing Maryville honor at Union, but we still carry on friendly relations with the boys at Princeton. Ed and I were just discussing the other night which one of us was coming back to teach Bible, and which to lead the February Meetings.

Sorry I cannot come up to standard with a line about the Echo, but I haven't seen a copy so far. I should guess it was coming along nicely under good leadership this year. With every good wish for a successful scholastic and athletic season to everyone personally and to Old College Hill, I send the challenge, "You Can't Beat Maryville."

Jesse Pindell Peirce,
Class of '30.

306 S. Lincoln,
Urbana, Ilinois.

Dear Editor:

This business of being an alumna of a college has its disadvantages, I assure you. After having attended Maryille for four years, or five as I did, it takes a heap of readjusting in a new environment. I like my work here at the University of Illinois very much, but I miss the friendly Maryville atmosphere. I thought at first that perhaps there was mud on my shoes, a hole in my stocking, or a split in my dress, or perhaps something else equally terrible because eeryone started at me as if I had done something amiss. But I have found that it is merely their customary expression and they really don't see you at all.

In case some of the Echo readers don't know it, I am working in the office of the Dean of the Graduate School. He is very pleasant to work for and he affords me a good deal of amusement of which he is not aware. He is very abrupt in speech and manners and has such a droll way of expressing himself that I am hard put at times to keep a straight face.

In closing I would like to say that I think the Echo is maintaining its usual high standard this year and I think it is a better and a much cleaner paper than the U. of I. puts out.

I wish you the best in all things.

Almira Alexander, '30.

THE OPEN FORUM

Last week in the Echo the B. G. Hiking Club was scathingly referred to as the "Blister-Gatherers". Of course, on the week-end mountain trip some of us did gather blisters, but that is not our aim in life, that is just a means to the end.

There is naturally, a certain, and no doubt an uncertain, amount of interest attached to the meaning of the letters "B. G." However, it is not our desire to divulge the secret, and I suppose we are due an increasing amount of anonymous appellations. Let me say here that we are not "Bad Girls", "Bus Grabbers", "Bachelor Girls", or any other nefarious names. B. G. stands for something, yes, ten somethings, but we shall not reveal our name unless we show a continued susceptibility to gather blisters which will not be the case, for we're going horseback riding on our next outing—perhaps.

So spare us further indignation, dear readers, by not referring to our worthy oganization as "Blister Gathers".

Written this sixth day of November at eleven o'clock with a fountain pen.

HIGLANDERS SWAMP MILLIGAN BUFFALOES, 39-0

FINAL HOME GAME WITH LENOIR-RHYNE

Visiting Carolina Team May Upset Dope Bucket.

Nov. 10—The Maryville College Highlanders bring their 1930 home grid schedule to a close here Friday, when they meet the strong Lenoir-Rhyne team from Hickory, North Carolina. Last year the Scotties defeated this team 20 to 7, at Asheville, but were forced to play their best game of the year to do it. At present the North Carolina school boasts one of its best teams, and has compiled an impressive record. Milligan was defeated decisively by them. They have a varied attack built around Newton, star quarterback.

The play of the Highlanders in recent games has been very good. Alert heads-up football, hard effective tackling and blocking has made the Scotties appear very formidable. The play of McDonald and Ferguson in the line has been outstanding.

"It's the way they have at old Princeton. Tuesday evening J. Hayden Laster, '30, treated the members of the Warfield Club to ice cream and cake. Whenever a member becomes so enamoured that he has signified his intentions to give up freedom, he confesses to the pope of the club and then the penace is a setup. Yes, my dear readers, the young lady is Miss Willie Nell Harold '30."

FROSH ARE CHAMPS BY 6-0 COUNT

Seniors Are Runners-Up In Tag Football.

(By a Freshman Sports Representative)

An excellent exhibition of what should be done at a football game for the big strong men who play tag took place Wednesday. The big game was on. Coach Coughlin was refereeing and this time he seemed to be partially impartial at least enough to win the game for the freshmen.

The seniors might have tied the score or won the game had it not been for the eyes of an official who thought Landrum was a freshman when he touched Lippard who had intercepted a pass and was headed for a touchdown when he was called back. But the seniors seem to have no alibis so why should we care. Some day the freshmen may get old like those whom they were very fortunate to lick playing tag football. Some day their wisdom may depart from them and their jake legs and befuddled brains no longer permit their youthful minds to engage in the popular mental and physical gymnastics which are offered by tag football.

The game was stiffly fought throughout beginning with the bitter attack made on the center of the line by "Stiff" French the blonde senior giant and ending with the stiff leg block of Johnson which is something new and very effective in tag football. Mr. Johnson should speak to Coach about this or maybe Coach should speak to him.

The senior girls numbered three at this game and all went well until once when the air was full of pigskins, some senior girl yelled Oh! "Dick" Catch it and be our hero." Dick missed it.

The seniors played a very good game, but in the last minutes of play the freshmen recovered a fumble near the senior goal line which was converted into the only touchdown of the game.

McMurray's Eleven Fail To Score Against Honaker's Flawless Squad

Gillespie, Ferguson Shine On Defense Plays; Calloway, Payne, MacDonald Star For Offense.

Nov. 7—Coach Honaker's Highlanders clicked together in masterful style to trample the Milligan Buffaloes this afternoon, 39-0.

It was Maryville's annual homecoming contest, and the Scotties took it upon themselves to make it a real day. From the beginning of the game, it was evident that the Orange and Garnet was out to take vengeance for the tie game which Milligan played here last year.

Floyd Wilson, flashy frosh halfback, made the visitors look bad all through the game with his sensational runs and line smashes. In the first quarter, he paved the way for the first score by a brilliant 45 yard run on a triple pass play, followed by another smash for the six counts.

Again in the second quarter, Calloway and Wilson combined their talents to register again, this time Calloway taking the pigskin over the marker. Late in the quarter, Payne, sub quarterback, added another touchdown, making it 19-0 at the half.

In the second half, both teams attempted numerous passes. Maryville's combination of Calloway to White proved the most effective, and soon another score was chalked up against the Buffaloes. The next time it was Wilson who grabbed one out of the air for 40 yards and a touchdown. Then Ferguson began to feel misgivings about not intercepting enough enemy passes, as he did in the Howard game, so he decided to take one that was not meant for him, thus giving the ball to Maryville near the Milligan goal line. Wilson soon made it count again, making the total margin of victory six touchdowns and three points after touchdowns.

As usual, the Scott line held up its part of the work in fine fashion. Martin Gillespie duplicated his work in the Howard game to show us he is a corking good man to back up the line, besides being a good blocker and hard running ball-carrier.

Gene McMurray's team did not display the brand of football that they did last year. Loose playing and penalties for rough playing hindered their chances of victory. Taylor, fullback, was their best bet in the game.

TUMBLERS PERFORM IN PEP MEETING

New Pep Song Increases In Popularity.

Nov. 7—The pep meeting tonight was short and snappy. It opened with the singing of the Alma Mater which dragged, during the first two stanzas, but was livened up in the last stanza. The yells were given with enthusiasm equalling any previous meeting and the new pep song seemed to be extremely popular.

Five members of the college tumbling team presented the feature of the evening. Captain Underwood led the group in a series of fast turns and spins. Byerley and Bratschie threw the top men, Underwood and Buchanan, in several somersaults. "Buck" seemed inclined to visit during one of his flips. Culver, as the clown, brought down the house with his clever antics and agile back. An encore was given in which Culver acted as an inverted suspension bridge and left everyone agape for fear they would break him.

There are not many more pep meetings so come out and enjoy the interesting programs while they last.

BASKET BALL OUTLOOK PROMISING

Hardwood Enthusiasts Start Preliminary Training.

In response to the chapel announcement last Tuesday morning about twenty-four hardwood enthusiasts appeared at the Alumni Gymnasium ready for early basketball practice.

Captain Kemp Davis, the most dashing and fastest forward in the conference, reports that the material looks good. Of course the members of the football squad have not reported as yet, so it is impossible to point out a probable team for the early games.

There are three letter men back this year, but this in no wise casts any doubtful shadows over the Highlander's schedule. In addition to Woodard, White, and Davis the three goal-tossing stars of last year's fame, there is West, Lewis, Calloway, and several other near letter men.

Th year looks exceedingly bright, and in keeping with his annual habit, we are sure that Coach Honaker will turn out a team which will bring conference honors to Ole Maryville.

Chilhowean Making Subscription Drive

All during this week the Chilhowean is putting on its campaign for subscriptions. Students, this is your opportunity to subscribe to a book which will be of everlasting value and pleasure to you. It is the record of Maryville College while you are here.

As has been explained before, the annual this year promises to be a surprise and a revelation to everybody, even to the most venerable faculty member. It will indeed be worth your while to purchase the annual when the solicitor comes around to see you. Have your check book handy, or ready cash if you are that fortunate.

The Chilhowean is being printed by the Knoxville Lithographing Company, and the engraving is being done by the Capper Engraving Company, also of Knoxville. In order to insure the best of work it is necessary that the subscriptions be collected as soon as possible. Be sure to subscribe when the solicitor comes to see you.

Seniors and juniors are urged to have their pictures taken as soon as possible. Club pictures can be taken at any time now. See Hadley Webb, Homer McCann, or Bob Wallace for club photograph appointments.

FORMER STUDENT OF MARYVILLE REMEMBERS

175 Broadway,
Passaic, New Jersey,
November 3, 1930.

Dear Maryvillians:

When, in some anxiety, I asked one of my Mount Holyoke friends what it is customary to put in an alumnae letter she replied, "Oh, tell what you are doing. Write interesting things." This is obviously impossible if I am to maintain the high standard of veracity insisted upon at Maryville, for the latter years of my pilgrimage have been devoted to teaching. Besides, I am not really an alumna, so the chances are that this ink is all wasted.

Having graduated at Peabody in 1917, I taught one year in Paducah, Kentucky, two and one-half in Richmond, Virginia, and then oppressed by the burden of the things I didn't know, came to Columbia for graduate work. One day while the usual crowd was waiting for Professor Brander Matthews I met the Head of the English Department of the Passaic High School and the place seemed so desirable that I have been here ever since. For New York is only a half hour away! Even tho' for ten years I have used an average of two fifty-trip tickets annually, I still feel that nothing offers more possibilities than to rush to the Erie station, catch the shabby little train just as it is pulling out, and in a few minutes transfer to the ferry, with the sky-line of New York only across the river. New York grows on one just as Maryville does. Whether one is Christmas shopping at the brass shops in the Russian quarter, or driving an ancient Ford down Fifth Avenue, or coming out of the theater into the crowds on Broadway after a matinee,, there is always variety and always charm.

Last summer I told myself that it was time I went to Europe; everybody else had been twice. The argument seemed a good one, so good that on the very day after school closed I found myself on the "Conte Grande" enroute for Naples. No, I missed the earthquake, and the cyclone near Venice and the hurricane late in August. However, Vesuvius was in eruption.I am sure Italy must be the most beautful place in the world. When I see an Italian digging in the streets or shining shoes or rushing to a factory, I am overcome, almost, with a desire to stop him and ask him why he is here. No wonder, they are willing to live frugally with the vision of a return to Italy always before them.

Of course I went to Switzerland, France and England, but everything was more or less disappointing after having seen Italy first. Sometime I hope to spend a whole summer in Rome and Florence, the Hill Country and on the Italian Lakes.

With all the friends of Maryville, I am hoping that this may be a very successful year. In the autumn one's thoughts always turn to college hill, with the desire to know those students that are now enjoying the places we loved so much—the College Woods, the mountains in the distance or the old fence overgrown with honeysuckle. It used to stand at the entrance to the cinder path. I wonder if it is still there.

Frances Brown.

Ace of Clubs

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

The Frenchc Club held a meeting last Friday evening instead of the usual time, Wednesday. Its meeting was deferred because of Mrs. McMurray's lecture.

The program consisted of the following numbers:

Springtime in the Rockies

Tap Dance—Carrie Lou Tweed

An Anecdote, en francais—

TRIANGLE CLUB

Nov. 3—More than fifty students attended the novel frolic that the Triangle Club held in the college woods this afternoon. At this Lumberjack Party the members of the club and their "dates" chopped wood, built fires, cooked pigs in blankets, ate pie, and listened to various musical stunts.

The chief guest of the party was Mr. , who, many club members prophesy, will be one of the most popular chaperones on the Hill. The other guests were Jane Duke, who read part of Booth Tarkington's Seventeen; Reno Smith and his harmonica; Ed Buchanan, who played on his ever popular saw; and Ed Shepard with his violin.

The most amusing part of the program was a wood chopping contest staged by the Toms brothers. The contest had not been on long before it seemed that Bob, the larger of the two, would cut the log first. He was swinging the axe in true Abraham Lincoln fashion. Everybody was watching for his last stroke. Finally, he separated the log and laid down his axe. It was found, however, that the log was severed in both places. They had both chopped through it at exactly the same time.

The girls had a contest with cross-cut saws. Lila Barr and Jane Duke won, because, it is said, they had the sharper saw.

Taylor Makes New Cross Country Record

Once again the long-distance defying squadron of Maryville College have performed. Roy Taylor, the iron man for speed and endurance covers the annual five mile cross country in 28 minutes and 35 seconds—which is about four minutes faster than any person has ever negotiated that distance at Maryville before.

Clark Truesdale came in behind Taylor with Sam Davis taking third place. The others, some of whom did not finish were: Young, Leach, Mattingly, and several others. Out of the ten starters seven finished.

The trophy, which will be awarded Taylor is furnished by the Y. M. C. A. as are the medals for second and third place.

It is certainly a shame that Taylor could not run in competition against other colleges in this section for his loopy-loop style of running should surely be rewarded by any medal offered. Why not a cross country with Carson-Newman, Milligan, King, Emory-Henry, Cumberland, Lincoln Memorial, and Maryville? This is something to work for.

NEWS OF ALUMNI IN NEW YORK

A number of Maryville Alumni were gathered together in New York, November 3rd. when Mrs. Will Furgeson entertained in honor of Miss Lucy Horton, and her friends. A very pleasant evening was spent in playing games, singing and general enjoyment. Jesse Peirce lead the Maryvlle cheers which quite drowned out the efforts of the U. T. enthusiasts

Those present at this gathering were: Lucy Horton '28, Peggy Mevis '30, Eleanor Franklin '27, Mary Clopton '28 and Edith Smith; Messrs. Jesse Peirce '30, George Crothers, Bob Cardwell, Paul Guthrie, Toby Legg and Jack Lester.

Dr. Andrew Richards '18 and Mrs. Richards are entertaining with a Maryville reunion at their home on November 17th.

Lucy Horton, Peggy Mevis, Mary Clopton and Sue Spencer visited the Statue of Liberty one afternoon last week. Mary and Sue climbed up to the top while Lucy and Peggy visited at the hot-dog stand below.

Mr. Frank Baker is to be located in business in Wall Street beginning the first of this month.

Miss Lucy Horton will give a fifteen minute program over the National Broadcasting system, December 17th.

COMMENTS FROM OTHER COLLEGES

Recently Le Bruce King, a sophomore at the University of South Carolina presented a petition to the College Officials that he be exempted from daily Chapel attendance. The refusal of his petition by the authorities and their threat to suspend him indefinitely if he continues to absent himself from Chapel services has aroused quite a bit of excitement in the University. King claims that he should be exempted from chapel for the same reason that Jewish students are excused, i. e., because the exercises do not conform with his religion.

U. T. Junior College at Martin is soon to have a modern gymnasium and swimming pool. The gymnasium will be fully equipped with the best apparatus.

Clemson Students had the opportunity to seeing "The Mrechant of Venice" as presented by the Elizabethan Players when the company came to Clemson College on November 8.

Our research department has finally discovered what becomes of those people who live through a summer saying, "It isn't the heat, it's the humidity." They are the ones who all winter keep telling you, "It isn't really cold, it's the wind."—Judge.

University of Kentucky Agrees With Maryville About Learbury Clothes

When college men get together there's plenty of argument about All-American possibilities. . . styles of play are heatedly debated. . . but when it comes to Learbury clothes there is a beautiful agreement.

Learbury scouts do not make their trips to leading campuses for nothing. . . they interview college leaders and get first-hand information on coming styles and trends from the very men who create them.

Is it surprising, then, that Learbury is accepted everywhere as authentic for college wear?

College Players Stage "The Swan" Monday Nov. 24

Duke and Gilmore Have Leads In First Play of The Year.

MYTHICAL SETTING

"The Swan" Has Had Successful Runs in Detroit and New York.

"The Swan" is coming on the evening of Monday, November 24. On that night, Jane Duke, Leland Gilmore and other College Players will stage in Voorhees Chapel the first play of the year.

The play gives a taste of royalty —a strange taste which always arouses the interest and curiosity of people of a republic. In a mythical Kingdom of Europe, a princess is faced with the problem of whether to marry Dr. Nicholas Agi, her learned but common young tutor, or the royal Prince Albert, the dutiful son of Princess Maria Dominica.

"The Swan" has had an interesting history. It was written in Hungarian by Ferenc Molnar, and was later translated into English. In this country it has been a great success. It was played in Detroit and also had two runs in New York City. The part of Dr. Nicholas Agi was taken by Basil Rathbone, a noted actor.

Among those in the cast are Jane Duke and Leland Gilmore, who have been stars of many plays in Maryville. Jane Duke had a leading part in "East is West", last year's cup-winning mid-winter. Leland Gilmore was an important figure in "The Cardinal". Athenian's mid-winter for last year. Unfortunately,

Maryville Observes World Week of Prayer

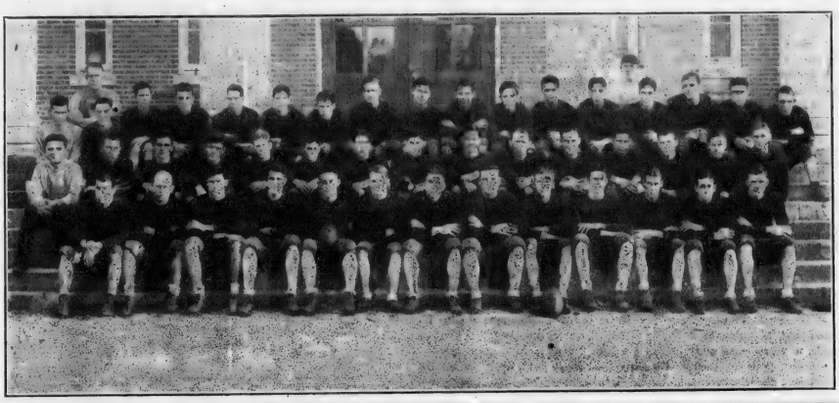
Student Leaders Take Charge of Chapel Programs.

The week of November 9-15 was observed everywhere among students as the Week of Prayer for World Felowship.

The Week of Prayer at Maryville began on Sunday morning at six-thirty with a sun-rise meeting on the east side of Thaw Hall. There was a prayer and song service, after which Andrew Newcomer played some hymns on the cornet The message of the hour was given by Miss Green.

Wednesday morning a string quartette played a selection from Brahmas. Stuart James, President of the Y. M. C. A., conducted the devotionals, after which Edwin Shelley sang "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer."

Carol Cushman, President of the Y. W. C. A., read the scripture lesson Thursday morning, and Alex Duff pronounced the invocation. The Choir sang "God is My Salvation", after which Dr. Stevenson delivered one of the best addresses of the year. His subject, very appropriately, was "What Constitutes an Adequate National Defense?"



He said, in part:

On Friday morning a quartette of trombones and cornets played "Close to thy Heart" and "Just for Today". Richard Strain led the devotional exercises.

The Girls' Glee Club sang "I am the Light" on Saturday morning. Merle Beebe read the scripture and Lea Calloway led in the last prayer of the week.

A cornetist drew the World Week of Prayer to a close at ten o'clock Saturday night when he played "Taps."

SMOKY MOUNTAIN CHAMPIONS

WRITERS' WORKSHOP EAGER TO SECURE MOUNTAIN BALLADS

Shop Considers Editing Volume Of East Tenn. Mountain Ballads.

The Writers' Workshop is continuing its collection of East Tennessee mountain ballads, a collection that was begun about two years ago. At present there are about one hundred ballads that have been gathered from various sources, and it is hoped that the collection will be greatly added to during the present year.

A book containing East Tennessee mountain ballads exclusively, has never been published, so far as is known, and a contribution of this nature would be valuable to the many people who are interested in the various mountain ballads. The Workshop is considering editing a volume of this kind if enough ballads are collected, and if the potential demand would warrant its going into this undertaking which would necessitate no small amount of time and money.

If there are any members of the student body, faculty, or friends of the college who are familiar with mountain ballads of this region, the committee in charge composed of Miss Clemens, Jane Morrow, and Hessie Keeton, will be glad to confer with them and to accept the contributions or hear any valuable suggestions as to the mountain ballads.

Culture Program In Chapel Tomorrow Night

Emily Post at Maryville! Well, if not in person at least in spirit. Who of us has not at some time felt the need of advice from this famous woman. Even the most calloused student wishes once in a while to court social approval and attention to the rules of etiquette.

Each year the Student Council of Maryville sponsors a program giving us pointers on what rules to observe. Don't get the impression that this advice is too formal for use. Far from it. The matters discussed are affairs of everyday importance. This year the Student Council has chosen the coming week for its program.

One affair of the week will be amusing as well as instructive. It might be named "Mr. Right and Mr. Wrong Hold a Public Demonstration." The correct and incorrect manners of eating, dressing for certain occasions, behaving in company, will be shown. So plan to attend this session on Tuesday evening.

Twenty-Three Frosh Now Have Temporary Places On Echo Staff

Selection Made on Basis of English Themes; Twenty Already at Work.

Twenty-three freshmen were given temporary positions as apprentices on the Highland Echo Staff as a result of a meeting of the Committee on Selection which met Tuesday, November 11. On Thursday afternoon, at the request of the Editor, all the favored freshmen who were interested in getting on the staff reported for assignments. Twenty of the number were present, and the other three sent substitutes.

Every member of the freshman class was required to write a theme on some subject from a list made by the Editor of the Highland Echo, and the choice of this group of twenty-three, was made after a careful reading by committee representatives of all articles submitted. It is customary to make a final selection on the merits of these papers, but the committee as well as others of the college, have had reason to feel that such a choice was hardly fair. Hence it was thought best to delay the final selection until further try-outs had been made. The twenty-three will retain their temporary positions for at least three weeks. Their names follow:

Bob Rule, Janet Warren, Phil Sorce, Richard Orr, Elizabeth Ayres, Dorothy Casseres, Geraldine Smith, Elynore Lanning, Merle Delozier, Frances Massey, Mary Eloise Harman, Ella Shields, Wilma Dorsey, Sherlock Ballard, Mary Morgan, Grace Moore, Dorothy Paul, Walter Campbell, John Weber, Frederick Kirchner, Norma Willoughby, Donold Buchanan and Margaret Parnell.

Junior Asso. Editor And Sophomore Cub Vacancies To Be Filled

Applications Must Be Submitted to Committee on Selection By November 29.

Contrary to a previous announcement made in the Highland Echo several weeks ago, a Junior Associate Editor will be chosen to fill the vacancy left by Kathryn Hodges. Any member of the junior class desirous of obtaining this position on the staff may submit his application to any of the members of the Committee on Selection. In this application he should state his name, address, age, experience, if any, and the kind of writing that he is most interested in. This application must be submitted within the next two weeks, by November 29.

A Sophomore Cub will be chosen upon application from any member of the sophomore class who wishes to become a staff member.

The Committee on Selection will chose whom they consider best, from the applications that are submitted. The same information is desired for the Sophomore Cub as is desired for the Junior Associate Editor. Applications must be submitted by November 29.

The Committee on Selection, to whom applications must be submitted are:

Dr. Hunter, Prof. Walker, Prof. Davis, Dr. Hussey, Dick Strain, Mabel Dickerson, Georga Burk, Hessie Keeton, Bill Graham, Ed. Buchanan, and Julia Terry.

Five Lettermen Sing Their Swan Song

Five of Honaker's Highlanders did honor to thmeselves, their class, and their school, in completing their gridiron careers in the game with Lenoir-Rhyne last Friday. Each of these five Senior Maryvillians played one of the best games of his career.

Captain Carl Storey, ex-Captain Lowell MacDonald, Robert "Farmer" Watkins, Wilfred "Smitty" Smith, and Tom Cash comprise this illustrious list of Highlander warriors.

Captain Storey finishes his third year as a regular guard. Last year he was placed on the official all-conference eleven, an honor which he rightly deserved by steady heads-up football playing all year. This year he has been considerably handicapped by a troublesome knee injury, but every time he was in the line-up it was real football that the fans saw in action. His best cultivated habit was that of dumping opposing ball-carriers before they reached the line of scrimmage.

Ex-captain MacDonald, our old friend and eminent moonshiner on College Hill, closed his college football in typical MacDonald style, a bulwark in the Highlander line, as he always has been. Mac's work in the snow and mud up at Emory last year will never let us forget him. A bashful smile, a sense of humor, and a fighting heart, that Mac.

Farmer Watkins is one of the scrappiest men ever to represent Maryville in football. After each play, he characteristically and slowly drags himself to his pins, hurls a suitable epithet at the opposing players for getting in his way, and

HILL ORGANIZATIONS WILL HAVE BOOKS AUDITED BY FACULTY

Prof. Walker and Miss Clemmie Henry Volunteer Services Free of Charge.

Nov. 8—A meeting of the presidents, secretaries, and treasurers, of the four literary societies, the four classes, and the Y.W.C.A. and the Y.M.C.A. was held today at which time it was announced that the books of these organizations would be audited by Professor Walker, and Miss Clemmie Henry, free of charge, if their services were desired. The books would be audited at the end of each semester, and would aid the organizations in knowing just where they stand.

It is primarily for the purpose of protecting everyone concerned, and to avoid any error that might accidentally occur. Miss Clemmie is also going to instruct the treasurers how to keep the books according to a standard form, so that they can make their entries and balance the accounts in the most efficient manner. The societies, classes, and Christian organizations are indeed grateful to these two administrative officers who have offered their help and services.

Oriental Gift Shop Attracts Many Buyers

Today, the Y. W. C. A. opened the Oriental gift shop in Thaw Hall at 9:30. The booths, representing different countries were very effectively decorated and an oriental atmosphere predominated.

In the Japanese tea-room, a program was given which consisted mainly of vocal and piano selections. Rachel Frost was in charge of the refreshments and Elizabeth Duncan the program.

The booth in charge of the students from town was a very popular place. Here delicacies from the "Heart of the Orient" were sold.

The financial results of the Gift Shop have not been estimated, but it is believed that the undertaking was not without encouraging results.

Seniors To Have Another Pre-Theism Celebration

The next Senior party will be a Thanksgiving function on Thursday, November twentieth. Miss Faye Lequire will entertain the class at her home on Court Street. The Thanksgiving idea will be carried out in decorations and programs, as the name, "Gobble-Gobble-Party" suggests. Turkeys should be present to gobble, and pumpkins, cornstalks and apples should be much in evidence.

M.C. Scotties Down Carolina Bears In Hard Fought Game

Calloway Makes Open Field Jaunt of 71 Yards To A Touchdown.

AIR-TIGHT PASS DEFENSE

Scotties Consistently Outplay Visitors; Carolina Captain Excels in Kicking.

Nov. 14—Flashing a brilliant first quarter attack that swept the enemy off their feet, the Highlanders this afternoon defeated a fighting team of Lenoir-Rhyne College Bears by a 13 to 7 score.

Led by the brilliant Lea Calloway, the Scotties scored their two touchdowns in the early minutes of play and took a six point lead that the Carolinians were unable to overcome.

After receiving the opening kick-off, the Maryvillians found themselves backed up on their own goal line and after a few plays had failed to gain, Calloway backed up to kick.

The visiting linemen dug their toes into the sod and charged through and blocked Calloway's kick but Lea was on the alert and caught the ball as it came to earth and returned it to the line of scrimmage, narrowly averting a safety.

Encouraged by their initial success, the visitors again rushed Calloway on his next attempt to kick and the punt traveled only fifteen yards and it was Lenoir-Rhyne's ball on the Maryville 20 yard strip. The visitors caught the Maryville defense off guard and rushed the ball across the goal line for the first touchdown of the game.

Apparently stinging under the humility of being scored upon, the Highlanders took the kick-off after the touchdown and cut loose with College Maid Shop Receives Gift of $100.

Gift Result of Director's Visit To Cincinnati.

The College Maid Shop received last week a wholly unexpected gift of one hundred dollars.

While the director, Mrs. McMurray, was in Cincinnati a few weeks ago she was to have gone to the Woman's Auxiliary meeting in one of the Presbyterian Churches to tell them about the work of the Shop. She waited for hours in the lobby of her hotel, but the person who was to have called for her through some misunderstanding, did not appear.

Meanwhile, a most distressed president was dragging out the meeting by the use of every known means with the hope that her speaker would appear and talk to the wealthy and influential women who had been gathered to hear her.

Because Mrs. McMurray and the transportation committee missed connections, she never arrived at the church, but the Woman's Auxiliary president was so interested and so sorry over the mistake that she sent the Shop a check for one hundred dollars.

The second big news item of the week are the adorable new one-piece pajamas being made especially for the J. L. Hudson Company in Detroit. These pajamas will be available to the Maryville clientele in a few days.

A number of big orders were shipped or received during last week.

For The Highlanders

A trite way of beginning this editorial is to say that football playing has its advantages and disadvantages. Anybody can say that. Any player can give you a dozen reasons why he plays; any one who is not a football player can give as many reasons why he does not play. All of them would be good reasons and satisfactory to defendants of both sides of the question. We don't know what reasons the Highlanders had for going out for football. They might have had selfish purposes, or perhaps were moved by the noblest of impulses. It doesn't matter. We don't care why they did it. We just know that they did, and from all appearances, as one of them said "they gave us all they had."

Perhaps it was useless, and that in a hundred years it will not matter who won the Smoky Mountain Championship, but we don't look at things that way. And it seems only fair to the members of the Echo Staff that this issue be the Highlanders' paper.

Good Manners In a Few Lessons

Evidently students have always been regarded as an irresponsible lot. Their disregard for conventions, their scorn for their elders, and their turbulent lives have made subjects for many an entertaining, and often shocking, story. A history of the Middle Ages records the fact that at one time a group of lawless students shot dice upon the altar of a church. The magazine and motion picture that depict college life as a four year's loaf and the college student always up to some devilry, have helped to shape the popular opinion that college is the place to sow the wild oats. People some how expect it of us, and there's a temptation to live up to their expectations. Therefore, we may forget our manners; dress extremely, outrageously and follishly; use the slang and get by with it because we are college students.

Almost every one on College Hill is skeptical about culture week programs, because the former attempts that were made to civilize us had no apparent results. But another attempt is being made. Some definite things are being done. No one can thrust culture upon us. It takes us years to get educated. True culture is acquired not in a week, nor a year, but in scores of years. But we as students should cooperate with this endeavor that is being made by people who are interested in us to give us some of the rudimentary facts. Perhaps it should be called "Good Manners in a Few Short Lessons", or "Humanizing Emily Post", but whatever be its name; let's feel that the responsibility rests with us.

Alumni Contribute Diary and Essay to Undergrads

Two letters that came too late for publication last week but that were too good to miss, are printed below:

"Peck's" Diary

June 5, I graduated from Maryville College.

June 12, I looked for a $10,000 job.

June 17, I looked for a $500 month job.

June 22, I looked for a $50 week job.

June 27, I looked for any kind of a job.

July 3, I was still looking for any kind of a job.

July 10, I purchased a pair of "Hoover Trousers" (double-seated and without pockets) and went to work for Daddy on the farm.

August 10, I decided to enter the time-honored teaching profession and filled my application with a well known teachers' agency.

August 20, I was notified by telegram that they wanted a man to teach mathematics and physics at Matooka, W. Va.

August 21, I went to Matooka to see the superintendent there. I found out that I wasn't qualified for the place, as he wanted a lady to teach home economics and physical education for girls.

At present, I am husking corn during the day and answering help advertisements during the night.

Results: I am still on the farm.
Post Office: Indian Springs.
Home Town: Bristol or Kingsport.

Dear Miss Editor:

During a fit of melancholy which troubled me but briefly, I composed the following short passage. No, put away your gun. I was not serious. The words I wrote, however, bring a tear to my left eye. I want the undergraduates to weep a bit.

I understand that the so-called Alumni are to have a shot at one of the fall editions of the Echo. If so you would be doing the world a favor by publishing this anywhere on the front page.

Flitting from limb to limb, jumping from branch to branch, and leaping from twig to twig is a little bird called Education. Its feathers are bright with deceptive colors. They stand erect with pride. It is a chirping bird, although it little understands just what it is chirping about. It chatters unceasingly and its mein is pompous. This little bird is without one or two of its tail-feathers. Some dear old professor has grasped him too closely. For the most part, this little bird escapes out-thrust hands that eagerly seek to encompass him. Consequently, we call him elusive. So the little bird is still leaping from twig to twig, jumping from branch to branch, and flitting from limb to limb.

Heed him not, all ye faithful. Traverse other paths. Remember, there is much in store for thee at the corner druggist.

I feel better now, thank you.

An Alumnist.

Teacher: "What is the meaning of the word 'matrimony', Johnny?"

Johnny: "Please, miss, father says it isn't a word, it's a sentence."

He loved a custom officer's daughter—but he hated to declare himself.

"I want a mirror."
"A hand mirror?"
"No; one for my face."

"And what did you do when the ship sank in mid-ocean?"

"Oh, I just grabbed a cake of soap and washed myself ashore."

CHEMISTRY CLUB

The Chemistry Club will hold its next meeting, Wednesday night, November 19, in the chemistry lecture room. The program will consist of two talks by Senior Chemists: first, "Organic Solvents and Their Use in Chemistry", by Hope Snider; and second, "Projects for This Year's Work in the Club", by J. W. Hina. All advanced chemistry students are urged to be present, and freshmen who are interested in chemistry are also cordially invited.

BUBBLES FROM THE SOAP BOX
(By Bob West)

I once heard the remark: "Vulgarity is excusable only in the intellectual". The subject of the conversation which led up to that statement was concerning the strange habits of the great. We are all more or less familiar with the eccentricies of the so-called intellegentia. The queer garb of the poets or the long hair of the musician as as a rule either amuses us or brings on feelings of hostility.

We are prone to wonder when we hear such statements as: Sherwood Anderson, a manufactury magnate, arises from behind his desk and strolls down the railroad track never to return. Ludwig Lewisohns also creates a disturbance when he runs off to Europe with a woman. But of course any good biography will declare the fact in no uncertain terms that Lord Byron did the same thing. Shelley tells us that he was astonished to find birds around Byron's old home in Italy. But this also reminds me that our own Professor Davis was surprised to find no trace of sparrows in Venice.

We have to be very inhuman not to smile when we are informed about the nutmeg hanging around "mammy's" neck, or at Uncle Joe's rabbit foot; but let us not forget that Oliver Wendall Holmes was in the habit of carrying a horse chestnut in one pocket and a potato in the other to ward off rheumatism.

Milton could, according to tradition, write better in summer than in any other season. He also had the peculiar habit of writing with his head hanging over the arm of his chair. Sarah Bernhardt declared to a reporter one day that ten was too many commandments. Sarah is also the person who it is alleged always carried an expensive rosewood casket around with her, and she would spend several hours each day resting in it.

Shiller, one of the greatest of German poets, always wrote with his feet in a tub of ice.

Ambrose Bierce, the American satirist and cynic, had his son's body cremated and put in a cigar box on his desk. Often, while talking to friends he would run his fingers through the ashes.

And then there is the fellow whom Johns-Hopkins hospital has been advertising for. It seems that they removed his brain and while doing a little disecting on it the man escaped. It is thought that he is in Maryville College and is a columnist on the Echo Staff.

ATHENIAN

The Athenian Literary Society met last Saturday night and enjoyed a short and snappy program, after which the new officers were elected. The results of the election are as follows:

President—Roy Taylor
Vice President Donald Benn
Recording Secretary—Cooley Combs
Program Secretaries—Al Duff and Harry Wood
Critics—Ben Groves and Calvin Bass
Editor—Gordon Benn
Sergeant-at-Arms—Don Buchanan

These officers will be installed at the meeting next Saturday night.

TERRY DISCOVERS NEW MUSICAL INSTRUMENT

A new musical instrument has made its appearance at Maryville. We believe it is unique. It is called a "corset" which Hessie says was once a real stringed instrument. This instrument is played by Andy Newcomer, and goes (the instrument not Andy) under an assumed name for it is most generally known as the "cornet."

The error of supplying an "s" for an "n" was discovered by the writer while reading proof. The editor was offered five dollars ($5.00) to leave it in but her sympathetic urge overruled her mercenary desire and she refused the offer.

B. G's REPORT DAYS OF PARADISE IN SPONSOR'S CABIN

"Irish" Proves Cooking Ability. Georga Burk Is Comedian.

We members of the B. G. Hiking Club were in paradise both literally and figuratively when we enjoyed a week-end of unadulterated pleasure in the Gamble cabin at Cowan Springs near Walland.

We left the Hill Saturday afternoon, November first, about three-thirty and were eating a delicious meal by seven o'clock after hiking eleven miles. Most of us slept soundly and non-snoringly in the mountain air although Irish was unduly disturbed by the presence of an unaccountable dog in the environs. Her fellow junior psychologists state that it was the emotion called fear, although she emphatically denies that unflattering accusation. However, she somewhat redeemed herself by baking two apple pies out of pancake flour and oleomargarine. Yes, the pies were eaten and commented upon—favorably.

After a real outdoor breakfast of pancakes, bacon, and coffee, we took to the mountains, indulging in snowball fights on the way up. After dinner we sang hymns, the first five being Sunday School and the second five counting as Church. It was really inspiring to be on the top of the mountain, looking to the East at the Smokies, and to the West all over the lowland to Maryville, Alcoa, and over to the Cumberlands. And all this in the lovely colors of autumn.

We came down the mountain about four o'clock, Georga aptly announcing that "two more slides and we'll be home." Since our project for the week-end was "back to nature" we followed the primitive custom of all eating from the same dish (pan). Fruit jello had been prepared in a dishpan of comfortable dimensions, so, armed with spoons we all began to spoon. After the evening meal we gathered around the friendly stove and had a somewhat bull-less session. We didn't like the idea of going to bed before the lights were out in Pearsons but we did turn in about nine-thirty. Miss Hudson kindly allowed everyone to get ready for bed before she even attempted to do so, saying, "You all get into your pajamas, and I'll take what's left."

One bed was found to be lying down on the job and continued to do so when additional slats crashed to the floor which heretofore supported the springs. Reluctantly we arose Monday morning but the breakfast was approached with no reluctance whatever. It was served somewhat in relays which is appreciably illustrated by Pat's asking, "Where's the first course? I've had the second." Georga answered by saying, "A few more scrapes and the toast will be ready."

Finally about nine o'clock we all left for home, Hadley Webb taking the blankets in for us. On the way home several machines stopped and invited us to ride (that is, the occupants of the machines did the inviting) but Georga always answered, "No, thank you, we're in a hurry."

COACH HONAKER

Coach Honaker has been the master mind for the Highlander's gridiron hopes for nine years. This year his reign has been exceptionally successful, the team losing only one game within their class and that by a close 7-6 score.

There are 1787 ordained women preachers in the United States.

More About The Lenoir Rhyne Game

the most devastating offensive attack that any Highlander machine has shown in many years.

With the inevitable Calloway bearing the brunt of the attack, the ball was rushed straight down the field and across the goal line before the visitors could do anything about it. Triple passes behind the line of scrimmage mixed with an occasional end run or line play, completely baffled the visitors and the Highlanders threw the game into a deadlock.

The Highlanders kicked-off to the Carolines after their score but every offensive thrust was halted and they were forced to kick. Capt. Jones got off a beautiful punt which was downed on the Maryville 29 yard line and the visitors apparently were out of danger.

The fans had hardly settled down in their seats after cheering the Maryvillians on in their first drive, when Calloway brought them to their feet again with a marvelous open field jaunt of 71 yards to a touchdown. The try for extra point went haywire but the men of Honaker had jumped into a six point lead and it was evident that they had no intentions of losing this lead.

Satisfied with their lead, the Scotties went on the defensive and played for the breaks. Two plays from scrimmage and then a kick was the only offense that they attempted during the second and third quarters and it was the most logical thing to do since a slow rain had started and the ball was getting slippery.

Early in the second quarter the Maryville boys had a good chance to score but Lenoir-Rhyne's defense proved to be plenty tough and the Scots were repulsed. Maryville had the ball on the 40 yard line and a pass from Calloway to White netted thirty-two yards and a first down on the 8 yard line but the Highlanders failed to take it over and it went to the visitors on the one yard line.

When the visitors discovered that it was fruitless to try to gain through the Maryville line, they started a passing attack that almost equalled the one that Milligan opened up last week but the Highlanders proved without a doubt that their defense against passes was air-tight and out of 16 attempts, only three were completed. Eleven were incomplete and three were intercepted.

The Highlanders consistently outplayed the visitors, as figures will show. They made 14 first downs to five for Lenoir-Rhyne, completed four forward passes out of twelve attempts, and gained about three times as much ground from scrimmage than did their opponents. In only one department did the Carolinians excel. Capt. Jones' kicking was better than the combined efforts of Calloway and Woodard. It was his kicking that kept his team in the game.

The victory over Lenoir-Rhyne brought the Highlanders' average above the 500 mark. They have played a nine game schedule and have emerged victorious in five of them. They were defeated only by strong teams that are not in the Conference and they are non-holders of the Smoky Mountain Conference championship.

COACH THROWER

Bob Thrower, our 200 pound lineman coach, proved his worth during the past season, by producing a flawless forward wall. He has been coaching here for 5 years and during that time the line has noticeably improved.

Only Three Lettermen Return. Promising New Material Starts Training

With the football season brought to a successful close, basketball now occupies the center of the stage in Maryville Athletics. Regular varsity cage practice under the direction of Coach Honaker will begin next Monday. Pre-season practice with Captain Kemp Davis in charge has been held for the past two weeks. Coach Honaker has only three lettermen back, but a wealth of new material is expected.

Interclass basketball begins tomorrow, when the Seniors will tangle with the Sophs. Thursday the Juniors and Frosh will play. The finals are scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

SENIORS CLOSE FOOTBALL CAREERS

Farmer is ready once more to put all he has into a play. Four years of real football play is a modest description of Watkins' worth to Maryville.

"Smitty" and Tom Cash have not been at Maryville as long as their classmates—but it has not made a difference to them. After a bad shoulder injury which kept him out most of last year, Smitty came back this year to perform at the quarter-back post, where he saw lots of service, running, passing, and even juggling punts to kid us along. Cash, too, had to take one on the chin when he developed a case of blood poisoning from a minor scratch received in practice in the earlier part of the season. Especially in his last game Tom smeared plays everywhere and performed like the fighter that he is.

It is estimated that one person in two hundred in the United States is feeble-minded or mentally defective.

THE STUDENT'S STORE CELEBRATES 11TH ANNIVERSARY

Proffitt's known for many years as "The Student's Store" is celebrating their eleventh anniversary this week, with many unusual and interesting events.

They are opening this great event Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock with a "Fowl Party". Thirty fowls including: turkeys, geese, ducks, guineas and chickens will be released from windows on the top floor and will be yours for the catching. Other events planned for this celebration are, an old fashioned spelling match, band concert, free coffee and the distribution of valuable prizes.

Proffitt's is owned and operated largely by Maryville College Alumni and former students and it has always been the policy of this store to fill any vacancies, whenever possible, with Maryville Alumni.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Nov. 11—The Student Council held a short meeting this evening. Several matters of importance were discussed. It is expected that the interim between the football and basketball seasons will afford time enough for the Culture Week Program. Norma Spilatore was made general chairman of this work.

The matter concerning student support of the Chilhowean was also discussed at some length. The student body will be given a chance to vote on this proposition at an early date.

The freshman representatives were requested to have the campus benches which had been left in the Gym since the Freshman Party, returned to their proper places on the campus. Hereafter the benches are not to be moved from their places.

FALL FESTIVAL OF MUSIC

Nov. 15—One of the best musical affairs given for several years, was the one of last Monday night, when the Second Presbyterian Church Octette from Knoxville assisted our own department of music, in the Fall Festival of Music, directed by Miss Hale.

The quartette of woman's voices in the number, "In the Carpenter's Shop" also won much favor with the audience.

The piano department was well represented by Mildred McMurray, Mildred McKenzie and by Margaret Melody and Garnet Manges, all of whom gave evidence of a high order of musicianship.

They laughed when I sat down at the piano. (There wasn't any stool.)

Romantic Comedy "The Swan" In Chapel Tonight

Duke, Gilmore and Culver Are Seen Involved in Love Triangle.

LOVE OR POWER?

Marley and Avery Prove Good Match-makers; Smith Is Comedian.

Tonight at 8:00 o'clock, the College Players step before the footlights in Voorhees Chapel to present a romantic comedy, "The Swan".

The scene of the play is a room of Princess Beatrice's castle in a mythical European kingdom. Here a tutor struggles against a prince for the hand of a princess. Here Alexandra, the princess, is torn between her love for a common tutor, Dr. Agi, and the desire of her mother that she marry the royal Prince Albert. The situation becomes very tense when Prince Albert, not knowing of the love between Agi and Alxandra, calls Dr. Agi a presumptuous intruder. The fates of the members of this hopeless triangle are settled by a decisive assertion on the part of Alexandra.

Such surprising bits of conversation as this punctuate the seriousness of the play:

"On which side is the prince lying?"

"On his right side."

"Then he is not lying on his heart?"

"No, on his l-i-v-e-r!"

Moreover, it is predicted that the antics of Caesar, a servant, will bring down the house.

The part of Alexandra will be played by Jane Duke. Leland Gilmore as Dr. Agi and Wesley Culver as Prince Albert will take the parts of the two rivals. Each is particularly well suited to his part. Louise Marley acts as Alexandra's mother, and Alice Renegar, as Prince Albert's mother. Both of these loving parents are exceptionally good match-makers. Reno Smith handles the part of Caesar very well.

Civil Service Dept. Wants Junior Chemist

Announces Exam; Salary $2,000 a Year.

The United States Civil Service Comission announces the following-named open competitive examination:

JUNIOR CHEMIST

Applications for junior chemist must be on file with the U. S. Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C., not later than January 27, 1931.

The entrance salary is $2,000 a year. This examination is to fill vacancies in the Departmental Service or in the field.

Competitors will be rated on general chemistry and elementary physics, and on one or more of the following-named optional subjects—(1) advanced inorganic chemistry, (2) analytical chemistry, (3) organic chemistry, and (4) physical chemistry.

Applicants must show that they have been graduated with a bachelor's degree from a college or university of recognized standing, such degree requiring the completion of at least 118 credit hours, 30 credit hours of which must have been in chemistry.

Full information may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of examiners at the post office or customhouse in any city.

1915 Chilhowean Has Long Honor List For Dr. Lloyd

President Was An Outstanding Man of His Class.

Although making many enviable records after graduating from Maryville College, Dr. Lloyd was an outstanding man of his class as the record in the Chilhowean for 1915 reveals. One of our prospective freshman apprenices has made a report of this record and the following list contains the offices and honors that Dr. Lloyd held while a student at Maryville. President Alpha Sigma, '14; Secretary, Alpha Sigma, '12; Vice-President, Alpha Sigma, '12-'13; Class President '11-'12; Secretary-Treasurer, '13-14; Intra-Class Debater '12-'13; Class Football, Basketball, Baseball, Tennis Teams; Treasurer Y. M. C. A. 13-'14; Advisory Board of Y. M. C. A., '14-'15; Y.M.C.A. Editor on College Monthly, '13-'14; Swimming Pool Committee, '14; Manager of Lyceum Course, '14-'15; Varsity Football, '13-'14; Varsity Basketball '11-'12-'13-'14;- Capt. Basketball '14-'15; Manager Basketball '13-'14;. Baseball Reserves '13; Winner Doubles and Singles in Tennis Tournament; College Tennis Team '12-'13-'14; Assistant in Physics '11-'12; Assistant in Physiology '12-'13-'14; Business Manager of Chilhowean 15.

Debate Class Choses Pre-Season Debaters

Nov. 21—This afternoon in Athenian Hall those who are out for the varsity debate team sat and listened to each other debate. Jesse James, Dick Strain, Roy Taylor, and Bill Graham were picked to enter Maryville's three pre-season debates. They were judged and chosen by the debate class as a whole.

Next Monday Jesse James, and Roy Taylor will meet a team from Carson and Newman in a non-decision debate at Strawberry Plains. Later a radio debate will be held with Carson and Newman. The third debate is scheduled for the University of Chattanooga.

SOCIETIES TO HOLD JOINT MEETINGS SATURDAY NIGHT

A & B Theatre Opens; Theta-Alpha Sigma To Give Old Fashioned Party.

The A and B Theater will conduct its formal opening next Saturday night, November 29, to which all Athenians and Bainonians, and friends are cordially invited. Tickets will be on sale at the door so don't fail to bring fifteen or thirty cents as the case requires.

The joint meeting of the Athenian and Bainonians promises to be an unusual affair. The program will consist of vaudeville acts of professional dimensions. No amateurs are permitted to mount the platform. The idea of a theater will be carried out in every possible way, even to the refreshments. You'll think you're in that old corner drug store, having refreshments after the show.

Come and see the latest in theatrical accomplishments. The theater will be opened at seven-thirty central standard time on the lowest floor of the chapel.

On Saturday night, November 29, Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma Literary Societies will hold their regular joint meeting in Thaw Hall, at eight o'clock.

An old fashioned idea is being carried out in the program, decorations, and refreshments, and the committees have been at work for some time in order to obtain the desired effect.

The program, which will be presented in the Y. W. auditorium consists of songs, readings, and dances of old fashioned origins. A one-act play may also be presented.

DR. LLOYD SENDS GREETINGS TO M.C. THROUGH LETTER

Says He Is Convinced Call To Maryville Was No Human Call.

To the Alumni, Students and Friends of Maryville College:

My dear Friends:

In response to a request from the Editor of "The Highland Echo", I am writing this greeting from my Study in Pittsburgh. Outside is the city to which we have grown attached during the past four years: the shaded avenues with their magnificant homes and not far distant the houses of workmen under the smoke of steel mills, the vast industries, the extensive public institutions, the busy population of many races. It all seems a long distance from the Maryville campus. Yet, even in the midst of varied duties here and many farewell functions, I find it difficult to keep my thoughts away from the College, her students and her alumni who, scattered to the corners of the earth, help carry the responsibilities of our generation.

All reports indicate that under the Faculty, the program for the year is making fine progress. I am delighted, although in no way surprised, that it is so, and Dr. Wilson recently writing from London expressed his joy in it.

Ever since last June when the Directors announced their invitation to me to become Dr. Wilson's successor, I have been receiving from many quarters the heariest and most unqualified words of appreciation concerning Maryville and her leaders. This evidence of the high regard in which the institution is held is, I confess, something of a revelation to me, and I would have yielded to no one in my respect and affection for her. In a day when liberal arts colleges are being

A Word of Welcome

Next Thursday is not only Thanksgiving Day for us. It is New Year's Eve. With Dr. Lloyd's coming on Friday, a new year begins for Maryville College. Dr. Lloyd is going to live and work among us, and reveal to us by his life and deeds, the 'Open Doors' that he told us about in the February Meetings of 1928. We welcome him and his family, and with our joy at their coming, there is mingled a feeling of humbleness and wonder that we should be so blessed.

Permanent Places On Echo Staff Goal Of Eager Freshmen

Prospective Apprentices Are Covering Assignments.

(by a Staff Member)

Our yearlings have found an interest in life. In fact they are so much interested that some of the upper classmen are mobbed whenever they appear on the campus unguarded. There are twenty-three of the freshmen who are displaying their wares as prospective freshman apprentices.

A few nights ago the writer was interrupted during study hour by a brisk knock on the door and in came a freshman breathless, but teaming with unsurpressible energy. "Say, I'm a freshman. Tell me something about the barnwarming and the reception for Dr. Lloyd." I told her I didn't know anything but she wouldn't believe me. Finally she consented to go across the hall and there she received similar aid.

Another time I was stopped in the hall by a freshman. "I'm trying to get on the Echo staff, and I want some information about the senior party", she said. She had seen all who were supposed to contain such information but they had been examined and had been found wanting. I likewise professed ignorance and sent her on her weary, but determined way to an upperclassman who might have an idea.

However, we staff members are indeed gratified to see and experience the interest displayed by these loyal freshmen. We wish they could all make the staff. The articles that have been submitted this week are acceptable and show that time and labor have been spent on the writing. We congratulate them and spur them on to greater undertakings.

Freshmen Photographs—By Julia Terry

Contrary to my expectations and desires, the members of the freshman class are better looking than I had at first anticipated. In looking at the pictures of all the freshmen that are on file in the office, I found it difficult to find many that could be the object of scorn, sarcasm, or witticism. From all indications the members of the present junior class have improved a hundred fold in appearanes since the days of their freshman photographing. We juniors blame our photographs on the photographer. You freshmen were fortunate in having a photographer who could make the best out of a bad bargain.

However, there are a few whose pictures need a little explanation and comment upon. Elizabeth Ayres is looking at the camera as if she is saying, "Take me, I'm all yours." Betty Lanterman looks as if she has just completed a strenuous job of scrubbing floors. Geraldine Smith is gazing with utter dejection as if she is alone in the world. Andrew Graf also has a similar expression and appears to be saying, "I give up, what's the use?" David MacArthur gives us a little hope by looking rather freshman-like and seems to be saying, "Well, I hardly know what it's all about, but I'm game." Ella Shields sits up straight in her chair and expresses herself in not uncertain terms, "I guess I know what I'm doing. You just go chase yourself."

Arthur Courtenay looks as if he is giving advice to the photographer by saying, "Go West, young man." Dorothy Paul is putting her soul into her eyes and saying, "I'm interested in you." Cecil Skidmore is the very essence of determination. Ah yes, that was in the pre-orientation days of innocence and self-confidence. Bernice McNutt is smiling as if she has just finished quoting from Milton, "Come and trip it as you go, On a light fantastic toe." Lucille Swafford, the prize piano puncher, is slumping in her chair and announcing to the disinterested photographer, "I wanta go home." Sherlock Ballard is living up to his Christian name by appearing to be on the verge of going sleuthing. Edna Carringer from all appearances, has just heard some scandal and can't wait to break the news to eager ears. George Stone is sitting self-confidently in the fatal chair and stating, "I know everything and I don't mind telling you some of it." Willis Morrow mouses down in his chair as if he is squeaking, "I'm sorta scared, but I hate to admit it."

Donald Buchanan is all expectancy and says, "really, I'm all agog. What should I do next?" Viola Lightfoot has the appearance of an efficiency expert and says, "Now, I know what I'm talking about." Don McNaughton impresses one as being on the point of explaining, "Here I am, the big he-man from Jasper Creek." Echard Cutshaw evidently just heard an amazing fact, probably the mention of the famous, noted, and notorious college seal, and exclaims staring wildly, "You don't mean it." Harry Mathias has adjusted his glasses and is announcing, "Friends, photographer, and classmates, lend me your undivided attention. I know what I know." Peggy Smith assumes an individual air of informality and smilingly says, "I'll sit this way if I want to." William Goforth looks as if he went forth and doesn't want to go forth anymore. John Weber gives one the delightful impression that he, also, is a freshman by stating, "I know I'm a freshman,

Ring Wearing Privilege Denied Many Seniors

The senior rings have come—and gone. Last week forty-one rings arrived at the post office. But, instead of being distributed among their purchasers, they were returned to the jeweler.

All the rings came C. O. D. to Dick Strain, who has charge of the senior rings. About $400 was to be collected. In order to collect the money from those who ordered them, a class meeting was held. Only seventeen people out of the forty-one came, however, so that the required amount could not be obtained. Since it was deemed unwise for anyone to take the responsibility of paying for the rings himself, they were returned with the request that they be sent C.O.D. to each individual purchaser. In this way each person will be responsible for his own ring.

This order is the second that has been bought by the class of '31. One batch of rings was bought last spring.

New President To Be Formally Presented Sat.

Faculty and Students Plan Receptions to Honor Lloyd Family.

ELABORATE PLANS

Family Probably Not to Occupy New Home Until After December 3

Dr. Lloyd will arrive at Maryville on the evening of Friday, November 23, The exact time is not known at present but it will be announced during this week. The family will probably not become settled in its new home until after Dr. Lloyd's trip to Atlanta on the third of December.

Saturday morning, November 29, Dr. Lloyd will be formally presented to the college through an address that will be made by Dr. Dawson, president of the Board of Directors. The program will be an extensive one, and the full plans are not being made public as yet.

On the second of December the students will make their welcome known to Dr. Lloyd and his family by giving an informal reception in the Alumni gymnasium. The Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. are in charge of this informal gathering and have made plans which correspond somewhat to the "barnwarming" of former years. The classes, societies, and musical organizations will entertain; and there will be time between the numbers on the program for the students to make themselves acquainted with the new president.

The following day, Wednesday, both Dr. Lloyd and Dr. Hunter will leave for Atlanta, Georgia where they will attend the conference of the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges.

The next important social event in honor of Dr. Lloyd will be the faculty dinner of which Daddy

Miss Clemmie Henry On Eastern Trip

Student-Help Secretary's Trip In Interst of College.

Nov. 19—Miss Clemmie T. Henry, Student-Help Secretary, left today on her annual trip North in the interests of the College. The most important stop on her itinerary is Boston, Mass., where she will speak at an important state meeting of the D.A.R. The trip will probably take about ten days in all. In addition to stopping at Boston for several days, Miss Henry also hopes to spend a short time in Hartford, Connecticutt, where she will see Mary Elizabeth Deaderick, '30 who is now attending Hartford Seminary Foundation.

Each year Miss Henry makes one or more trips of this sort. On one of these journeys north a staff-member of the Echo had the privilege of rooming with her for a night. And so Maryville's opportunities were extended to one more student, that year.

An Appreciation

Let us not forget, while we are welcoming Dr. Lloyd into our midst, the man who has so successfully and thoroughly carried out the work of the college as acting president.

Dr. Hunter has proved his worth in every respect. He has cooperated with the students and the faculty in a way that has been entirely satisfactory and appreciated by all who have come in contact with him. He has made decisions and formulated plans with an open, unprejudiced mind. He has established on the Hill a more friendly and understanding feeling between the faculty and the students.

He has labored day after day, making no complaints, taking no credit for what he has done, and omitting no detail in his untiring, ceaseless efforts in carrying on the work of Dr. Wilson, and preparing for the work of Dr. Lloyd. Let us give credit where credit is due.

—A Student.

A Six-Day School Week

Every day we hear students complaining of too full schedules; of times when lessons simply must go unprepared. There are nights when it would seem that the next day's assignments are too many and too formidable to attack. On some days we have straight classes from 8:30 o'clock until 3:00 o'clock, or even 5:00 o'clock. On other days we have only two classes. Of course we could use that extra time to make up back work, but few of us do. We just aren't made that way. And on Monday we have no classes. The sensible person would contend that Monday is the time to prepare lessons and do all outside reading. But how many students take the advantage of it? Visit the library on Monday and notice the vacant chairs. Consequently, instead of the proverbial Blue Monday, we have a Blue Tuesday. Something should be done about it. What is the solution to this problem? We should say the six-day school week.

According to this plan three hour classes would meet every other day, thus giving ample time to prepare assignments. Under our present system, two days elapse between the classes meeting at a and b periods, while the other three hour classes meet on consecutive days. Two days is two long, and every day is too often. With the six-day schedule one's time will be divided more evenly. We would probably have the afternoons free.

The students earning their way would have more time in which to work. The writer knows from experience that those people who work all day on Monday are too tired to study at night. Under the new plan, work and study may be more easily correlated. The teachers, too, will have more time.

U. T. uses the six day plan. In addition to enjoying the advantages that I have cited, they accomplish in thirty-four weeks what we do in thirty-six.

We realize, of course, that some students might study on Sunday, but these will be in the minority, and those who will do it under the six day system, probably do it under our present system.

BUBBLES FROM THE SOAP BOX

By Bob West

Dr. Hunter says that when a person is in love he does not have a sense of humor. Think it over yourself.

Prof. Davis says, "One of the most remarkable things he noticed abroad was that there were no sparrows in Venice."

The average Co-ed has plenty of backbone and is not afraid to show it.

If students could get as much entertainment and enlightenment out of reading these articles as we get in writing them, then the Echo would be the greatest college newspaper in the world.

Somehow there seems not to be such a huge demand for Echoes since the drug store quit running free drink ads.

It seems only logical that if those in favor of prohibition are to give the Eighteenth Amendment credit for all the helpful things that have followed its advent—the level headed people have the equal right to hold it responsible for all harmful things that have followed.

Maryville College is now like all Gaul—Divided into three parts. Those who are passing, those making D's—and those others.

Professor Griffitts has asked me to announce through this column, that due to his inability to wake several students in his classes, that snoring would be prohibited.

Of course there is that bright freshman who jumps up and exclaims; "but look what we have to go through with."

This is the season of culture, and one of the most recent inovations into this field of personal prohibitory degradation is; when anyone very apologetically states that, "I have a cold or something in my head," you always reply very sympathetically, "Undoubtedly a cold."

It seems funny, but seemingly, college is a place where one spends thousands of dollars for an education and then prays and yells for a holiday to come on a school day. Is it not true?

This job reminds one of a conversation between a man and his wife. It gets monotonous hearing one person talk.

Famous Explorer: "On my last trip I bagged two large elephants."

Flapper: "How thrilling. Did you have much trouble getting them into the bag?"

THE KENTUCKY CLUB

The Kentucky Club held its bimonthly meeting last Thursday night in Theta Hall. A delightful program had been arranged which was enjoyed by all. The program included several songs, dancing and readings. A large number attended the meeting, including several visitors. At the close of the meeting Mr. Cudney and Mr. Shade offered the club special rates on their trip home by bus Christmas.

Is Effort Its Own Reward

One of Browning's greatest dramatic monologues, "The Grammarian's Funeral" is in praise of a man who put forth effort on dry-as-dust grammars. He merited the praise not because he knew and contributed something to grammar, but because he devoted all his life to endeavor that was un-noticed by men; because he strived and expended energy even though, in the world's eye, he did not achieve any success.

Evidently Maryville College does not possess such individuals. We are sane and sensible and believe in getting results. We desire to have acclaim, praise and reward for all that we do. In no other way is this revealed so much as in our attitude towards contests. Every year fewer and fewer people enter into prize competitions. Even though the reward be tempting, once we hear that some one for whose ability we have high regard, is making a try for it, we decide that, there's no use. We probably wouldn't get it and then there'd be all that time wasted. Of course every one has a chance to win, but there are more chances that we wouldn't.

Is endeavor for endeavor's sake its own reward, or should there be a tempting bait?

SMOKE

I was sitting on the steps of the chapel one evening,
Listening to someone play the
Hallelujah chorus on the organ,
And watching the smoke from the tall chimney of the power house.
And somehow, it seemed that when the sonorous notes swelled out,
The smoke was thicker and darker.
And at the climax of the music it rolled out in dark clouds
Over the sky.
As the music died away, so did the clouds.
And when the last note was gone,
there was not a wisp of smoke
Coming from the tall chimney of the power house.

SMOKE

I have never been to war;
But the other day as I rode past
the campus,
I fought with soldiers.
As I passed, I noticed the Flag was out,
And I thought how fine and clean it looked up there against the blue.
Just then a great black cloud of smoke bulged from the power house,
And rolled upward, blotting out
the Flag.
But through the smoke I could see it, still flying, fine and clean.
Then for an instant, I was on a battlefield,
Charging, amid the shrieks of cannon and the groans of men,
And looking upward to the Flag,
Which fluttered bravely on through the smoke of battle.

Closeups, Slapstick, News Reels

Naomi Willingham: "If we can't have the radio in the dining room I think it would be a good idea to have it in Pearsons Parlor. It would help the senior girls to entertain their dates they have once a month."

A letter was received by the College Station Post Office addressed to the "Dance Committee of Maryville College." The desired committee has not yet been found but the contents of the letter revealed advertisement for high class orchestras.

Overheard in the bookroom; "Bill, what are those good-looking red books on the table? I think I'll take a course next semester if I can have a book like that." Whereupon Bill produced the "good-looking red book" which proved to be Webster's Secondary School Dictionary. At least it would be a desirable text for a word study class.

Kitty Hodges in Education Class: "Miss Gamble do men like the clinging vine type?"

Miss Gamble: "Well, how should I know?"

Dr. Rogers: "I had a book but a man borrowed it and he evidently had studied bookkeeping."

Hugh Hannah: "Is it possible that Washington threw a dollar across the Potomac?"

Gordon Benn: "Well, a dollar went much farther in those days."

Dr. McMurray: "We will have a test on Thursday."

Student: "Will the questions be true and false?"

Dr. McMurray: "No, but the answers will."

Student—I did, professor, I shook my head.

Professor: But you didn't expect me to hear it rattle way up here did you?

The habits of the dumbest students are not permissable to be printed.

Father—Son, what does this sixty on your chemistry experiment mean?

Son—I don't know sir, maybe it's the temperature of the room.

"Be good."

If you can't be good—be careful. If you can't be careful—be prepared.

Motorist: "Is it very far to the next town?"

Native: "Well, it seems further than it is, but it ain't."

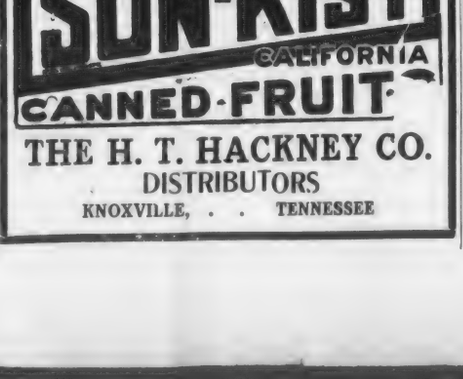
First Friend: "I am troubled with sleeplessness. The doctor calls it "neurio insomnia paralaxitis!"

Second Friend: "I've got it too, but we call it a baby."

The chemistry professor was asked if it was injurious to the brain to peroxide the hair. "No," replied the professor, positively. "Why I've heard it is", said the student. "No", repeated the professor. "Any person who peroxides the hair hasn't any brain to injure."

THE OPEN FORUM

"I suppose you had a good nap!" So said a fair young lady as we met and paired off to emerge from chapel. Even if I had been only halfway inclined to submit to a little informal snooze, it is very likely that the bombardment of noses and coughs would have taxed not only a worthy effort to sleep but a sense of humor as well.



Some noses, it is true, would work in ship-shape fashion with a muffler attachment; however, if they were camouflaged, we would not be afforded an opportunity to hear sounds of a rattling tenor, a rat-a-tat-tat soprano, or a snorting bass ncse. Then there are other noses that are reminders of wind-broken horses. Still others, too, that sound like porpoises or turtles when they come to the surface for air. They blaze forth in heavy whiffs. Wheezenots and snort-knacks seem to comprise the gentle art of noseology. Under these conditions a speaker, as well as a—perhaps maybe—would be rested with eyes shut, meets an onslaught of used-to-be gill slits.

Keeping this in mind we next have a barrage of subtle, cough-laden, spasmodic whoops. "Here a bark and there a bark and everywhere a bark", is a worthy parody of a familiar prototype. It is small wonder whether or no the acoustics will stand the strain. For example, a deep, croopy, rasping sounds forth as if a boatswain's mate were piping the word for all hands on deck. Next, a shrill tenor cough pierces the would be quietness with a peculiar three-part rythmn. Again, we hear a mezzo soprano run the scale which for a brief second is a gentle reminder of an anti-aircraft gun. Finally, they all seem to chime in with 14" calibre. But there is some consolation, for with eyes half closed we may encounter a vision of a pack of hounds trailing closely behind a rabbit. Does it not follow that even the sounding-boards in Voorhees Chapel undergo a warped change?

As a suggestion, therefore, tune down on a lower wave length. Then if the throat continues to produce various and varied Salt Lake City, Denver, or Phoenix college yells—coughs—remember the roof is only a roof after all! Do you say, "Pine tar and honey?"

Hamrick Wins Women's Tennis Tournament

Veteran of Many Victories Retains Championship Easily

Defeats Carswell in Straight Sets.

Nov. 18—Nez Hamrick, sophomore, won the women's tennis championship this afternoon by defeating Grace Carswell, frosh, in straight sets 6-0; 6-2.

Miss Hamrick was never threatened, taking each game wihout apparent effort. She had a slight advantage over Miss Carswell due to her steadiness and form gained in previous tournaments. It will be remembered that Nez won both the fall and spring tournaments last year, and before she came to school she won her city's championship. Last summer, having moved to Toledo, Ohio, she won the city public courts championship, and also went to the finals in the city tournament. Here she was defeated by a more experienced player, the holder of the North Western title.

The most outstanding feature of the champion's game is her serve. She has developed the typical American serve, and puts the ball across with more force than most men. She is also steady in her returns and is able to place the ball with precision.

Miss Carswell is to be commended on her ability to make back-hand shots good. She also exhibited some excellent sportsmanship. To reach the finals she defeated Pat Henry, Christine Foster, and Grace Caulton.

Miss Hamrick lost only four games during the tournament, however two of her games were won by default.

Nez says she hasn't even started to learn to play yet, but she is trying to learn right from the start so she will have a good foundation on which to build up her game. During the winter when the weather is too bad to play, you will find Nez some where on fourth floor Pearsons swinging a racquet. She says she can learn more off a court than on. Part of her knowledge off the court comes from reading books written by tennis experts. She is hoping to be a champion some day and we're wishing her success.

Besides being an excellent tennis player, Nez is good in all sports. Last year she made every freshman team, making the highest number of points made. A sweater and letter her first year is an honor in itself. However, Nez isn't only athletic, but she's an all around girl.

ORR WARNS FRESHMEN

By Richard Orr

Judging from all appearances, and often non-appearances, someone must have misinformed some of the freshmen about the absence requirements. At the present rate most of the students will have used up all their absences before Christmas. It might be timely to say now, for the benefit of the homegoing students that it will count double the last day before vacation and the first day following.

Seniors, of course, can talk about the way they cut class and come to class late, but the rest of us have to be content with the fact that we're not seniors, and they are, or at least they should be, judging from the ostentatious display of their wealth of knowledge.

Work is made harder for the students and for the professors as well, by unnecessary absences. They are undesirable and generally uncalled for.

Those students who expect to make a big hit with the professors should bear in mind that absence makes the heart grow fonder—for somebody else.

KANGAROO COURTS

Carnegie Hall has been thriving on Kangaroo Courts during the past few weeks. For the benefit of the uninitiated, these courts are serious procedures, conducted strictly according to all the statutes of law in America, Carnegie Hall, the South Pole and the rest of the world.

On a very still night, a group of members gather in a room, quietly elect a judge who appoints lawyers and witnesses for the case, and then very respectfully take their seats in any part of the room available. Some petty charge is brought up against some one present, usually but not always, a Freshman, and the prosecuting attorney is requested to deliver his charges. After a veritable third degree, numerous other charges also appear and very often even the lawyer for the defense refuses to uphold his client. In a case such as this, the victim is immediately called to defend himself. The jury then retires and invariably proclaims the man guilty. The judge tells the victim of his guilt and his sentence is meted out to him by all the members present.

One of the worst crimes any member of the Kangaroo Court was ever accused of, and to which the most severe punishment was administered was one which very few college boys ever think of. The victim was accused of studying in the publicity of his own room.

Maryville Defeats Notre Dame

Scotties Could Beat Carnegie Tech, 42-0.

According to our statistics, Maryville College has the only football team that can defeat Rockne's Rambing Rushers from South Bend.

No, Notre Dame has not as yet booked the Scotties; perhaps they will never meet on the gridiron, but if you observe closely our figures, you will notice that we have by far the better record of the two teams.

Several weeks ago the Highlanders motored to Jefferson City to combat the Spreading Eagles of Carson-Newman College. The home team was thrown for a loss to the tune of 14 to 0. The vanquished Eagles recovered sufficiently to defeat Mercer by a score of 12 to 7, making us 19 points superior to Mercer. Earlier in the season, Mercer set back Oglethorpe, an old rival of Maryville, by a score of 2 to 0. Our superiority now has reached 21. In an early season game, Oglethorpe vanquished Furman, 13-7. Four weeks ago, Furman startled football fanatics by upsetting Florida at the rate of 14 to 13, making us 28 points better than the Alligators. Florida later battled Georgia to a tie; but Georgia hurried to the Yankee Stadium the following Saturday to down New York University, 7-6. New York University later went to Pittsburg and succeeded in smothering Carnegie Tech, 20-7, raising our superiority stock 42 points above Carnegie. Notre Dame humiliated Carnegie Tech, 21 to 6; but we are 42 points ahead of the latter team, so that if you subtract the Irish's 15 points advantage you will obtain as a result 27, the margin by which we should best Carideo and his gang if they were so unfortunate as to meet Captain Story and his supporting cast.

Of course, Coach Honaker does not play out his football schedules on paper, but we can imagine the Coach smiling as he looks over the figures that make his proteges National Football Champions.

COACH WATKINS ANNOUNCES 36 ASPIRANTS FOR HONORS AS MATMEN

Wrestling Is Inducement To Many Husky Collegians.

Coach Farmer Watkins has issued the official call for wrestling aspirants. The schedule this year is rather heavy and Farmer predicts some very interesting meets.

Among the mainstays or rather lettemen from last year, are Overly 175 pounds, Cash 165 pounds, Buchanan 125 pounds, and Watkins 165 pounds. Several other promising matmen are out for the team among whom are: Don Wilson unlimited, Bratschie 135 pounds, Kingley 155 pounds, Hatcher, Peacock, Topolian, and Marston.

Mr. Raymond Anderson Young, Jr., the manager, states that the tentative schedule for the year has been arranged. It is as follows:

1—Freshmen Wrestlers vs. Varsity
2—L. M. U. vs. Maryville, 2 meets
3—Knoxville vs. Maryville, 2 meets
4—Chattanooga vs. Maryville, 2 meets
5—Atlanta vs. Maryville, 2 meets

Coach Watkins wishes to announce through this paper that any who are interested in wrestling may come out and practice with the team and try for a place on the team.

Wrestling is one of the oldest of sports and yet one of the newest on College Hill. It should be given its rightful place in college athletic calendars.—Let's bring more honors to Maryville.

Sophomores Win Easy Victory Over Junior-Senior Soccerites

Orange and Garnet Bow To Blue and White 9-2.

Saturday night in the gymnasium the sophomores soundly trounced the junior-senior team 9-2 in the first interclass soccer game of the year.

Starting the game with a flash, the Orange and Garnet team scored a point before the Blue and White knew what it was all about. However, no sooner had the ball been put into play again, than the sophomores launched a powerful drive and also went over the goal line for a point. At the end of the first quarter the score was tied, 2-2.

Both teams came back with the fighting spirit to win, but the sophomores really swung into action, and their lead was never threatened. At the half they held a two point lead.

Many substitutes were sent in, but the strong blue and white combination was too much for them. As the final whistle blew the score stood 9-2 in favor of the sophs.

For the junior-senior team Rachel Frost, forward, Iva Babcock, halfback, and Carol Cushman, fullback showed up exceptionally well. For the sophomores Martha Story, Mary Gamble and Nez Hamrick were the highlights. Nez made half the points made by her team, and played only three quarters.

The next interclass game will be played between the junior-senior team and the freshmen, Thanksgiving night.

SOPHS INTERCLASS BASKETBALL CHAMPS

Lewis Stars for Sophs; Nee and Ledbetter for Frosh.

In a bitterly contested game, the sophomores defeated the freshmen 27-25 to win the interclass basketball championship Saturday. The game was fast and well played. Fine defensive work and exceptional long shooting featured. Nee and Ledbetter for the frosh, and Lewis for the sophomores kept the crowd on its feet, by making some fine long shots. The freshmen led until the last few minutes when the sophs put on a spurt that was not to be denied.

The sophomores defeated the seniors 33 to 10 on Tuesday, to go into the finals, while the freshmen defeated the juniors 32 to 19 on Thursday.

Some good material was brought to light during the tourney, which may be of some use to Coach Honaker when varsity practice begins next week.

There had been a motor accident. One of the drivers, in a fit of temper, climbed out and strode up to a man standing on the side walk, thinking him to be the other driver.

"Say, you, where is your tail light?" he roared.

The innocent bystander looked up at him.

"Wot do you think I am, a bloomin' lightning bug?"

Cut Scarcity Defended On Grounds of Expense

There has been some comment as to the lack of pictures in the Highland Echo and many indications as to the desirability of pictures in the college newspaper. However, the editor, business manager, and a few others are the only persons who realize the expense of a cut in the paper, and the consequent necessity of having only a few cuts printed during the year. Of course an old cut costs the business staff and the printer nothing but a new cut is an unusual item of expense.

As an illustration: the cut of the football team in the Echo last week cost a total of $10. The picture had to be taken to Knoxville to have cut made. It was then brought back to Maryville Monday afternoon in time to be run in last week's issue, the printing of which cost an additional $45.

This one example is just a single illustration of what has to be done in order to run a picture in the paper unless a former cut is used.

LLOYD SENDS GREETINGS TO M. C. IN LETTER

subjected to unusual pressure, it is heartening indeed to hear wise men deliberately saying that Maryville promises for the future an expanding and unique usefulness, so long as she holds to the central fact of her original purpose—the development of leaders equipped with a thorough scholarship, a vital religion, and uncompromising ideals of service.

My decision to turn aside from the pastorate was made only after long consideration and in the growing conviction that the call to Maryville was more than a human call. The abundant kindness and affection of our Pittsburgh friends do not make the farewells of these days easy, but now that the die is cast, Mrs. Lloyd and I—and the junior members of the household also—are turning our eyes toward the South with high anticipations. We expect to arrive in Maryville within a day or two after Thanksgiving, making the trip by automobile.

To hundreds of people the names of Dr. Samuel Tyndale Wilson and Maryville College are inseparable, and I enter upon the office made honorable by him and his predecessors with a very real humility: but also with sincere gratitude and confident hope, for I know of the abiding foundations which have been built and of the strong body of Directors, Alumni and Friends whose joy it is to serve the College.

Cordially yours,
Ralph W. Lloyd.

Seniors Merrily "Gobble Gobble" at Lequire Home

Nov. 20—Sixty members of the Senior class gathered tonight at the home of Faye Lequire for a "Gobble-Gobble" party. The affair proved very successful in every way because of the untiring efforts of Esther Horton and her committee.

As the guests arrived they were delightfully surprised to see the rooms decorated in a most fitting manner. Paper decorations with the usual Thanksgiving insignias hung from the walls and the ceilings. The tables were covered with cloths and napkins that had pumpkins and turkeys printed on them. After the guests had observed the pleasing scenery, the program committee began to function.

The first number on the program was of an historical nature; the members of the class had baby pictures made. It was amazing to see with what ease some of our dignified seniors sat for their individual juvenile photographs.

The games were the feature of the party. To see our budding B. A.'s on the campus one would never suspect that they are on intimate terms with such puerile games as "London Bridge is Falling Down", "Pop goes the Weasael", "The Farmer in the Dell", and other games of a similar character. They were not allowed to remain in Fairyland very long. A so-called intelligence test was conducted. The purpose of the test was to find out how much and how easy one can forget during four years of college life.

It was discovered that fourth-year Maryville students, like all other people, do not forget how to eat and drink; they ate everything placed in front of them, and none of the punch was allowed to remain in the container.

At eleven o'clock the festivities came to a close.

Waitress: "Oh, I'm sorry I spilled water all over you."

Patron: "That's perfectly all right, the suit was too large anyway."—Drexel Drexerd.

NEW PRESIDENT TO BE FORMALLY PRESENTED SAT.

Knapp is the chairman. This dinner will be given on the evening of December 9 and promises to be a real affair.

Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson have made exhaustive preparations for their reception in honor of the Lloyd family. The faculty members, and the members of the Board of Directors will join with Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson in welcoming the Lloyds into the life at Maryville. This reception is to be given on the twefth of December anl bids fair to be the outstanding social event of the year.

We are all looking forward to the day when Dr. Lloyd arrives on the campus and it is up to us to make him and his family a part of the life on College Hill.

Dr. Lloyd comes to Maryville well equipped to serve in the capacity of President. Graduating from Maryville in 1915, he was, for two years a professor in Westminster College, Salt Lake City, Utah. In 1917 he went to war returning with rank of First Lieutenant of Field Artillery. After this he spent two years in business with the Fulton Company of Knoxville, Tennessee. He entered McCormick Theological Seminary in 1921. At his graduation he was presented with the Bernardine Orme Smith fellowship awarded for highest excellence in studies during the three years. After graduation he became pastor of the Illinois Presbyterian Church. In 1926 he was called to the pastoate of the Edgewood Pittsburg Presbyterian Church where he has since carried on successful work.

Biology Lecture Room Undergoes Improvements

The Biology lecture room, room 4, Anderson Hall, is being greatly improved by the college carpenters, Dolensik and others. Formerly the lighting system was inadequate and the blackboard was too far away from the light that came through the windows.

Now the electric lights are better and more numerous. Moreover, a platform is being built at the side of the room, which, when the chairs are turned aruond, will become the front of the room.

Carl Draegger has just appreciated a good joke and is complimenting the photographer by saying, "That's a good one." Bob Rule appears to be all fagged out after the exertion and other forms of torture endured when having a picture taken. Fred Rule is one of the life guards we saw on the beach this summer. John Burdette seems to be saying, "You didn't like my last wise crack? I upperclassmen sure are dense."

Betty Hayes is stealing a last look at the preacher before she bows her head. Her eyes are in the top of her head. Etta Trapp looks sorrowfully at the camera and says, "Now don't pick on me, I'm only a freshman." Frances Mathieson has just eaten something, a particle of which became lodged in her lower right jaw, and she is working her tongue around in a vain effort to dislode it. B. W. Mattingly has just heard a hair-raising ghost story but contradicts himself by saying, "That ain't no ghost story. I don't believe in ghosts." But his hair standing on end makes his story inconsistent. Walter Rapp, nothing daunted, speaks out, "What next?" Pat Murphy true to her name, says, "Aw, let me laugh, I can't hold it any longer." Lucille Coots just looks and says, "What's the use?" Mary Williams is sitting in wide-eyed amazement as if saying, "I saw something." Walter Pippert is looking rather understandingly and saying, "That joke wasn't so hot." Barbara Martin is looking skyward as if expecting showers of blessings any minute. Sara Dick is almost going into convulsions and if she could speak she would say, "Stop, I'll laugh out loud." Edwin Beck looks like an animated lemon that is saying, "I don't like anything or anybody." Boyce Mahan is a man in a million who says, "Now, I'm here, and I intend to get everything I can out of this school. "Romeo and Juliet" At Maryville High Dec. 6

On Saturday night at 8:00 o'clock, December 6, the Avon Players will present at the Maryville High School, the Shakespearean play, "Romeo and Juliet."

Mrs. West says that the Avon Players come to Maryville with very high recommendations. They will undoubtedly make an excellent presentation. It is hoped that both the English and Expression Departments of the College will be well represented by delegations from the Hill.

ORGAN MUSIC

I always look up when I hear organ music.
Somehow, an organ does not belong to a bowed head,
Nor to anything which looks earth-ward.
It is an instrument of the skies, and the winds, and the soul.
At the first note I lift my head,
And far, far above me I see
A golden shaft of light shining from Cathedral windows—windows so tall that
The face of the Figure on them is almost lost
In the mists floating about His head.

The naval orange was introduced into California from Brazil in 1873.

Theta To Present "The Big Pond" on Monday, Dec. 8

First Mid-Winter of Season Is Middleton and Thomas' Farce Comedy

FOREIGN SETTING

Briggs In Role of Frenchman Woos Hatmaker In Role of American Heiress

Theta Epsilon will present the first mid-winter of the year. "The Big Pond" will be staged on Monday, December 8th at 8:00 o'clock, with Don Briggs and Alma Jane Hatmaker in leading parts.

This play will carry a particular signficance this year as the Theta Epsilon society will put forth an extra effort to win temporary possession of the Theta Alpha Phi cup, for which the four literary societies of the college are contesting. The privilege of having possession of this cup has been won by the Bainonian Society the last two years. If Bainonian presents the best play this winter, it will be given permanent possession of the coveted cup.

The cast of the play is abundant in dramatic talent, Don Briggs as Pierre de Mirande, a romantic Frenchman, plays opposite Alma Jane Hatmaker, who takes the part of Barbara Billings. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Billings are played by Bill Graham and Esther Horton. Louis Penland as Ronny Davis has an important role.

The first act takes place in Italy where the Billings family is touring. Mr. Billings, being a thorough-

Biology Lab. Secures Live Marine Animals

Interested Group Gather To Watch Starfish Strut.

Nov. 28—This morning some living specimens of marine life were brought to the biology laboratory of the college. Miss Green obtained them from the Woods Hale Marine Laboratory, which is situated at the tip of Cape Cod. Attempts are being made by this coast laboratory to supply inland laboratories with living marine animals.

There are five different kinds of animals in the collection: clams, sea urchins, star fish, sea anemone, and sea cucumbers. In order that they might be given environment as much like their natural habitat as possible, five gallons of sea water and many pieces of sea lettuce were sent ahead of the animals themselves.

At three o'clock this afternoon Miss Green fed bits of minced oyster to the little creatures before a group of enthusiastic students and teachers. The sea anemone were the only ones that were noticably hungry.

These sea animals are expected to die in a few days, but they will, even in so short a time, be of great value to those who are studying zoology.

THE EDITOR GETS SOCKED!

The Editor of the Highland Echo has been socked. Last Thursday, a package containing four pairs of gay hued, multi-colored and fantastically striped socks, size 10½ came to her via U. S. Mail. Along with the gift came a letter from the manufacturers of "College Sox" requesting the Editor (whom they adressed as "Dear Sir") to accept the socks, display them to his friends, and find agents to sell them to their friends.

BRIGGS—HATMAKER

These students have the principal roles in "The Big Pond."

Dr. Lloyd, Dr. Hunter To Represent M.C. At Atlanta Conference

Annual Conference of Southern Asso. of Schools and Colleges Meets Dec. 4-5

On Wednesday, December third, Dr. Hunter and Dr. Lloyd will leave Maryville, by motor, for Atlanta, Georgia, where they will represent Maryville College at the annual conference of the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges. Last year Dr. Hunter attended the conference when it met in Lexington, Kentucky. In years previous to this Maryville College was represented by Dr. C. H. Gillingham.

This year the Association meets in Altanta on the fourth and fifth of December, and will be attended by representatives from over one hundred schools and colleges.

The opening address will be made by Bobby Jones, and the remainder of the conference time will be occupied by reports of commissions, by banquets, and by addresses of college professors.

Neither Dr. Hunter nor Dr. Lloyd will address the Association, but will merely represent the college.

M.C. STUDENTS COUNT THEIR BLESSINGS ON THANKSGIVING DAY

Expressions of Gratitude Varied; Students Are Materialists

What are you thankful for? At this season of the year, this question is a very pertinent one. Realizing this, the writer decided to interview some of the celebrities on the Hill and find out just what each one was most grateful for, with what result you shall see.

Roy Taylor, runner, debater, and scholar, extraordinary has this to say, "I am thankful that I have a Spanish test this afternoon and a debate to give." If every one in school took this attitude, Isaac Anderson, Professor Bartlett, and a few more illustrious Maryvillites of days gone by would turn over in their graves.

Joe Hacker, that versatile young man from the mountains of Kentucky, answered our query in this fashion. "I am thankful that I am not as other men are." Probably every one else is too. Joe also is thankful that his bills are paid up for the rest of the semester. Porter French, also from Kentucky, says, "I am thankful for an extra day on Saturday night." With this cryptical remark, the inquiring reporter had to be content. Carl Storey, our good-natured football captain and hash-slinger, stopped his morning ablutions long enough to say, "I am thankful that I am through with Freshman Chemistry." What a noble thought, expressing, no doubt, the inward feelings of many a Hill boy and girl.

Tiny Waters and Jim Shirley, the Damon and Pythias of Carnegie, were interviewed together. Says Tiny, "I am thankful that I have the rare privilege of rooming with Liszt's only rival." Our friend and contemporary, Mr. W. J. Shirley, says, "I am grateful for having the benefit of the presence of Sir John Falstaff." Then these two noble characters said in unison, "We love each other."

Little David McArthur, our mutual friend from Meridian, Mississippi, when questioned, replied very promptly "I am glad my roommate has an extra topcoat." David's roommate had nothing to say.

"Yankee" Lewis is thankful that he has sense. "Think of it", he argued. "There are thousands of men beating their head against padded walls in insane asylums." Yankee was also thankful for his ancestors; he is a descendant of Daniel Boone.

Bob West remarked that he was glad to be "free, white and twenty-one."

There are two main reasons why Charles Beale is happy. He is getting good food and plenty of it at Pearsons and he did not get a

Seven Women Enter T.T. Alexander Prize Contest This Year

Contest Open to Women of Sophomore, Junior and Senior Classes

The T. T. Alexander Oratorical Contest, the fund for which was anonymously provided in honor of one of Maryville's foreign missionaries, is open this year to women of the sophomore, junior and senior classes. A prize of one hundred dollars in gold is offered for the best oration in any of the following subjects: The Diety of Jesus Christ; Christ's Atonement for Sin; The Resurrection; and Salvation through Faith.

The contest is conducted under the supervision of the Department of Bible and Religious Education and all the arrangements are in the hands of Dr. Orr. The invitation for applicants was extended last week and seven women of the three classes responded. They are, Mary Carroll, Mildred Crawford, Ernestine Hedden, Louise Marley, Mildred MacKenzie, and Mildred Purviance.

The date for the final tryouts will not be set until after Christmas, but work has already been started by the applicants who may chose whichever subject they desire.

Athenian Mid-Winter "Shavings" Presented Here Monday, Dec. 15

Study in Character Proclaimed One of Unusual Merit; Anderson Stars

Although the date for the Athenian Mid-Winter is December fifteenth, "Shavings", the Athenian offering in competition for the Theta Alpha Phi trophy cup, is noticeably being molded into final form under the direction of Mrs. Nita Eckles West.

"Shavings" is a comedy in three acts taken from Joseph C. Lincoln's great story by the same name, and is dramatized by Pauline Phelps and Marion Short. The scene of "Shavings" is laid in Connecticut, where Jed Winslow as "Shavings" makes the children happy with toys carved with his own hands, and molds the spirit of the community by his many acts of kindness and charity.

"Bob" Anderson, success of many of the dramatic productions on the Hill, in particular the lead in the "Poor Nut", has the role of "Shavings". Assisting him in this Mid-Winter are Alice Renegar, Lavinia Jones, Mildred Crawford, members of Bainonian, and Russell Gilmore, Alexander Duff, Hadley Webb, Edwin Shelley, Robert Leach, James Shirley and Homer McCann.

DR. HUNTER HONORED

Dickerson Presents Flowers To Mrs. Lloyd From Students

Nov. 29—This morning at nine thirty Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd was welcomed as the new president of Maryville College at the morning chapel service.

Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd, and Dr. Stevenson entered the chapel at the playing of the Alma Mater by the college band. The audience then joined in singing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow", and Dr. Stevenson made an appropriate and beautiful prayer. A song of former years, "Dear Old Maryville", was sung by the choir after which a program of speeches was carried out.

Dr. Hunter made a short introductory address in which he read the names of the absent members of the Board of Directors who were unable to attend the service, but who expressed their wishes for success in Dr. Lloyd's administration.

Dr. William R. Dawson of Knoxville, an alumnus of Maryville, and president of the Board of Directors spoke about the choosing of Dr. Lloyd to succeed Dr. Wilson. He spoke about the work of Dr. Wilson, and of the training of Dr. Lloyd in carrying out the work accomplished by his predecessors. He said that the duty of Dr. Lloyd was

Reception Tonight In Honor of the Lloyds

Informal Student Welcome in Alumni Gym.

Tonight in the big gymnasium the students of Maryville will welcome Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd to the college. The annual barnwarming, usually held on Thanksgiving evening, has been postponed until our new President and his wife could attend. It is the students' reception for the Lloyds.

Decorations, programs, and refreshments have all been planned to carry out the agricultural idea and thus make the event a real barnwarming. Every important organization on the campus is to contribute some "stunt" on the program. This will include numbers by the glee clubs, as well as by the literary societies and college classes.

Many Alumni Spend Thanksgiving Here

Thanksgiving Day was characterized not only by the absence of many students from the Hill, and the presence of turkey on the dinner table, but also by the return of many former Maryvillians to their Alma Mater. The writer saw and heard many eager and effusive greetings to and from the visitors.

Among those returning, were Lucile Dinwiddie, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Vogel, (Mrs. Vogel was formerly Eleanor Kuhlman), Mary Ella Sullivan and Ed Sprouse, Edith Nash, Olive Clopton, Louose Carson, Sarah Howe, Jack Frost, Eslie Bowden, Margaret Haynie, and John Johnson.

Edna Hampton: "We had a turkey gobbler once but he had a chemical antipathy for me."

Mustaches—Their Ruses, Abuses And Uses—By JULIA TERRY

A new kind of foliage has recently made its appearance on the Hill. It might properly be called the winter front, for it certainly affords protection against any kind of contact. It is a covering for the face, a covering which only partially shelters the affected area.

In other words, to be specific, this method of protection, and newest of the beautiless treatments is the mustache. Of course the devotees may say that the mustache is valuable in serving as a soup strainer. A soup strainer is perfectly useless here, though, because there is nothing to be strained. Surely, the mustached must be looking forward to and preparing for a Christmas repast of soup and more soup.

An entirely different theory might also be proposed. These bristle growers may be attempting to gain entrance or even admission to some of the oncoming, future, or futuristic plays that will be presented in Voorhees Chapel at 8 o'clock. Villains are hard to procure and a mustache is a distinct aid and an even more distinct essential of what the well dressed villain must wear.

Another solution of this desperate Desmond problem is the possibility of obtaining a position as Santa Claus when the respective owners reach their homes for the Christmas vacation. What a delusion and a hallucination for the youngsters. At the rate the beards are following the mustaches in the race for longevity, the country will be over-supplied with black-bearded Santa Clauses.

Dr. Hussey states that the best way to acquire a turned up mustache of Germanic proportions is to tie each end to a bed post and sleep likewise. Don Briggs expresses his viewpoint on mustaches by saying that a Maryville mustache is like a baseball team, nine on each side. Miami is of the opinion that a mustache looks like a misplaced eyebrow. And yet others of equal importance and experience agree that a mustache is really a cookie duster.

George Brown has the most mature mustache that is being raised and reared by any student. Jim Shirley, "our friend and contemporary", is apparently making an energetic attempt to fool the public into believing that he is really serious about his outgrowth. Tiny Waters is endeavoring to prove to everybody that he has hair-raising qualities. Bugs Baer is likewise producing antennae of no uncertain dimensions. Piccolo Pete is beyond the first round in the cookie duster campaign. And then there are the four Georges, George I, II, III, IV, Stone, Whitehead, Lauder, and Fishback, respectively and perhaps respectfully, who are also endangering their possibilities for usefulness in this world.

No doubt before the advent of many more hairlips, we shall be hearing of a newly-organized club called the "Bold Bad Bandits" or "How to Become a Santa Claus in Seventeen Daze."

A Snap Substitute

Some one returning from Snap last Thursday night asked us why we didn't write an editorial on a substitute for Snap. That something should be done about it is apparent. That fiery editorials about its being an out worn custom, could be written, is also plainly evident. We are making one more attempt on paper to do away with Snap.

The Snap social once had its place. It has served its purpose. The moonshiners welcome Snap night because it furnishes an opportunity to sit side by side, high and lifted up, above the few who venture out upon the floor and chase each other around in an aimless and half hearted manner. The Frosh welcome the first, and even the second one. The other students grumble. Some wisely remain at home, while others go and return to vow "Never Again". But what is one to do about it? The writer submits a suggestion.

Why couldn't (or shouldn't) the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. take the matter up as a project? We read and hear about, and sometimes see, the excellent results that the "Y" recreational directors are doing all over the United States. It does seem too bad that college students must be taught to play, but it remains everlastingly true that there are many of us who should subject ourselves to such instructions. Student opinion should be ascertained. The advice of many educational directors should be sought. Of course, it is our own problem, but often the disinterested person is for that very reason able to arrive at a solution of a knotty problem.

We want social gatherings, but we don't want Snaps!

What Newspaper Men Say About Journalism Courses

A few weeks ago an editorial appeared on this page which had as its purpose to set forth arguments against a course in journalism at Maryville. The writer gave few points for the other side, but argued wholly from a subjective point of view. There is indeed much to be said on either side. The people whose opinions should be most valued are those who have been in the newspaper game a long time. A recent article in the November Epsilog contains the view points of five men prominent in the newspaper world as to the training preferred. It is interesting to note that although they disagree on some points, three out of five place strong emphasis upon the value of a general course that leads to a Bachelor of Arts degree. The opinions follow:

"I am in favor of the college-trained newspaperman first, last, and all the time. I recognize that many excellent newspapermen have come direct from high schools but they are the exceptions. I believe there is a technique in newspaper work and that some of it can learned before the neophyte begins to draw his salary. I do not think that the high school has any business teaching journalism. Its work should be sound grounding in the fundamentals.—Paul Benton, managing editor of Rochester Times-Union.

"All other elements being equal, one who enters newspaper work via college journalism will give, in my opinion, decidedly better performance than one who enters by another route. The recognition of journalism as a part of the college curriculum undoubtedly has had an elevating effect on newspaper making. I strongly urge however, that the student provide himself with a liberal background of arts and science before turning towards the more specialized journalistic course, for that larger knowledge is the really vital stock in the trade after the journalistic technique has been learned.—G. B. Parker, editor-in-chief of the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

"My opinion, pretty well sustained by an experience of about thirty years, is that the best training for newspaper work, whether in the business office or editorial department, is an ordinary college course which gives a Bachelor of Arts degree. There is very little technical knowledge that can be imparted to a student in a school of journalism and my experience has been that most of the ideas with which graduates of schools of journalism are possessed when they come to us have to be uprooted before their services become valuable. The broad general culture which a Bachelor of Arts course in College gives is the soundest foundation upon which to build. Given the equipment, six months in a progressive newspaper office will teach a young man more about the newspaper business in a practical way than six years in the best school of journalism in the world. This may be heresy, but at least it is honest. —Frank Knox, general manager of the Hearst newspapers."

The chief value of schools and departments of journalism is that they weed out the hopelessly unfit—those who temperamentally and intellectually are unsuited to the work. High-school courses in journalism are of doubtful value because they are usually taught by persons who have had no newspaper training. Two or three courses in newspaper technique and the history of journalism in the senior year, with some practical work on a newspaper during the year, should offer ideal training. A real newspaper man will pick up technique quickly. He is much less likely to get the fundamentals which make for intelligent handling of news after he starts actual practice. —M. V. Atwood, associate editor of the Gannett newspapers.

"Journalism students are highly preferable to the old fashioned "cub", but it is my opinion that the average department of journalism could improve the products of their schools by having a closer working knowledge and teaching more of the fundamentals of clear, concise, tolerant treatment of news and the extreme importance of newspaper policy. —Roy Moore, general manager, Brush-Moore newspapers."

HOLIDAY EVENING

Oh, if tonight I could be there
Within your room, within those four
Dear walls! Two years ago
There was another room that I recall
Full of the mellow charm that age can give.
The firelight tried to reach
Its far-off corners, and to warm them, too,
But we saw dreams—young dreams—
Instead of flames that flared before our eyes.
There had been months of loneliness before
And so in every gesture, every look,
There was more meaning than we dared to think.
Your touch was magic, and your kiss brought tears
Of happiness, warm tears that mirrored flame
And held the vision of your own dear face.
There is no fire tonight, and dreams bring pain;
The wind blows with a sobbing, lonely sound.
I want you so! The tears that smart my eyes
Are tears of long denial, longer love.—M. I. A.

"Why?"
"There seems to be so much of her having a good time."

BUBBLES FROM THE SOAP BOX

by Bob West

If Maryville can beat Notre-Dame, according to statistics, and Notre-Dame can beat Ohio State, Who in actual face to face combat defeated the Navy then Maryville can administer a decisive licking upon the boys in blue. Now to revert to type, as this article forces me, I continue the argument futher by declaring that the navy won the World War, (If you don't believe this ask Sumpter Logan) Therefore, by higher mathematics we won the World War too.

Of course, Emory and Henry could win the war too, but we don't have to count them you know, unless you have some personal friends there.

With the appearaance of Jupiter Pluvius the walk between Pearsons and the Postoffice again becomes the subject of many unmeditated syllables. Students who under ordinary conditions abstain absolutely from the use of profanity, swear as fluently as deep-water sailors when they splash through one of those puddles.

Many of the alumni were visiting on the Hill this past memoriable week-end. Did any of them speak to you about the exceedingly high cultured atmosphere which prevails on the Hill this season?

Despite his ability to always keep the world guessing at the true meaning of his statements, Professor Albert Einstein came to earth the other day and explained to a group of scientists in understandable words: "The intellectuals always have microbes before their eyes."

There are students at Maryville who have been known to portray or show symptoms of intelligence. Take for instance, the other day, a mob of students had gathered in the lobby of Carnegie, the scene could have suggested a fight, a football game over a radio, or a discussion led by Tiny Waters, but upon investigation discovered the cause for the intense excitement was the very sensible topic, Would the Siamese twins have to pay double tuition at Maryville?

Due to a certain false set of social ethics which seem to be adhered to with death like tenacity, I suggest that a leap week be observed. During this week the girls shall be the social advisors as well as the proverbial Collegiate mashers and cake eaters. Any boy not in favor with this suggestion please call at room 407 and explain. A bounty of ten (10) cents per word will be paid for all reasons accepted.

Miss Clemons: "Correct this sentence: 'Before any damage could be done, the fire was put out by the volunteer fire department'."
John Burdette: "The fire was put out before any damage could be done by the volunteer fire department."

Heard from the alumnae:
Fifth grade student: "Miss Clopton how old are you?"
Olive Clopton: "Forty-one."
Student: "Why Miss Clopton, you don't look a day over twenty-six or seven."

Heard in a Systematic Discourse speech: The Colonial Bus Company is the longest in the world.

Mr. Justwed—What in the world did you do to this meat? It has such a peculiar taste!

Mrs. Justwed—Oh, nothing. It did get a little burnt but I fixed that—I applied Unguentine right away.

The new G-E low-grid-current Pliotron tube capable of measuring a current as small as 10⁻¹⁶ ampere

This Little Tube Measures Stars Centuries of Light Years Distant

BY MEANS of a new vacuum tube called a low-grid-current Pliotron tube, astronomers can gather the facts of stellar news with greater speed and accuracy. In conjunction with a photoelectric tube, it will help render information on the amount of light radiation and position of stars centuries of light years away. It is further applicable to such laboratory uses as demand the most delicate measurement of electric current.

So sensitive is this tube that it can measure 0.000,000,000,000,000,01 of an ampere, or, one-hundredth of a millionth of a billionth of an ampere. This amount of current, compared with that of a 50-watt incandescent lamp, is as two drops of water compared with the entire volume of water spilled over Niagara Falls in a year.

General Electric leadership in the development of vacuum tubes has largely been maintained by college-trained men, just as college-trained men are largely responsible for the impressive progress made by General Electric in other fields of research and engineering.

Season Was a Success In Every Way

As we look back over the 1930 football season, we can again say that the Highlanders have been successful. They finished the season with five victories to their credit while four teams took their measure.

The Maryvillians played by far the most strenuous schedule that any Highlander machine has attempted in many years and their achievement of winning the majority of their games is one of which we can justly be proud.

The Highlanders overwhelmed a woefully weak team from Mars Hill by a 46 to 0 score in the opening game of the season, but the week following they went down before mighty Tennessee by 54 to 0. They got back on their feet again after the Tennessee setback and kicked Tennessee Wesleyan in the pantaloons to the tune of 19 to 7, but the week following they took another one on the chin when Kentucky's Wildcats went really wild and won 7 to 0.

Emory and Henry, and Howard succeeded in slapping defeats on the Scots on two successive Fridays by scores of 7 to 6 and 14 to 6, respectively. The Highlanders returned to form and crushed Carson-Newman 14 to 0 and Milligan 39 to 0 and ended the season with a glorious 13 to 7 victory over Lenoir-Rhyne.

Twenty-one Highlanders were awarded letters for their services

OUR LETTER FORWARD

Honaker's Quintet Appears Ready for Tilts.

The Scotties having gained the apex in the football world, have turned their attention to the season's topic, basketball. The second week finds them in full swing with promises of a very strong team. Captain Davis reports that the men are working hard and that by next week he could lead his charges against anything in the conference. The team misses the services of Waddell, Cherry, and Reed, but with much new material the gaps have been practically filled, with the result that another championship cup looks possible for the 1930-31 shelf in the trophy room.

The first chance to see the Highlanders will be on December 13th when the Alumni will give them some practice.

The tentative early schedule is as follows:

Alumni—December 13
U. T. All Stars—December 16
Chattanooga Tepecoes—January 9
Chattanooga Tepecoes—January 15
Kansas Tornadoes—January 16

The Mrs: "Whatever made you put that bad quarter in the plate?"

Scotties To Lose Five Star Football Players This Season

Absence of These Athletes Will Be Felt

Maryville is to lose five sterling athletes upon graduation. The sportsmanship and athletic prowess of these men, during their stay here at college have been outstanding. The men are none other than Messrs. Storey, McDonald, Watkins, Cash, and Smith.

Storey, with a determined countenance, successfully captained our football team throughout the season. Our former captain, MacDonald, proved himself a formidable lineman. It was he who time after time broke through the opposing team to upset a play. Our fiery, fighting center was, or as should be said, is a player of some renown. Cash, another linesman, could always be counted on to fight with all he had. And to Smith belongs the distinction of being one of the best running backfield men that Maryville has ever had. Lots of luck to you athletes as you go through life.

Central—Number?

Freshman—Number nothing! I put in a nickel and I want my chewing gum.

Matmen Begin Work in Earnest As Opening Time Approaches

Grapplers Await Opponents With Confidence

The Maryville Bone-Crushers, under the tutelage of Coach Watkins, held their initial workout Tuesday with an attendance of something over twenty. Farmer led his men in a comparatively light work-out and ended up with a little practice in the old art of wrestling. The old men, of course, were not all in top shape, but showed indications that "it won't be long now." The freshmen performed with due credit to their class and a good time was had by all.

Mr. Raymond, Etc. Young, manager of the team has no more definite news as to the schedule, but feels confident that a full schedule will be arranged soon.

SOCCER GAME

In the second battle of the women's soccer tournament the junior-senior team went down in glorious defeat last night, to a fighting freshmen aggregation by the count of 4-7.

Air tight ball prevented a mountainous score, the freshmen being held to a single point the first quarter. In the second period both teams loosened up, with the score tied 1-1, only to have a sudden spurt of flashy team work and good passing by the freshmen, to pile up the score three more points. In the final period the freshmen were not able to garner a single point.

Kitts, Foster, and Cushman showed up well for the junior-seniors, while Heidel, Bing, and Kellar were the stars for the frosh.

Miami And DeKalb Colleges To Sell For College Maid Shop

Christmas Sales Popular; Shop Gets Sensational Orders

Two of the Christmas sales of College Maid garments being held this month are in Miami College, at Oxford, Ohio, and DeKalb College, at Sycamore, Illinois. The sale in Sycamore is held annually by the Pan-Hellenic Society. These sales are always popular, and bring good returns both to the sponsoring organizatins, and to the girls here in the Shop.

Several orders of unusual size have been received recently. One is from B. L. Hudson Company, Detroit, and demands twenty-five dozen of the sensational new one-piece pajamas. Another is for five hundred forty-eight dresses to be sent to a mill in Philadelphia.

The College Maids do not, however, limit the products of their machines to smocks, dresses, pajamas, and aprons. They manufacture, also, uniforms, and very formal church vestments. At present they are working on robes for three choirs in the Greenwood Presbyterian Church, at Scranton, Pennsylvania. In the mornings, when there is plenty of strong light, they sew on the black cossacks, and in the weaker light of the afternoon they make the white coats.

DR. DAWSON OPENS WELCOME SERVICE FOR DR. LLOYD

carrying on the work of Dr. Wilson, plus God. He emphasized the thought-provoking statement, "Learn to be, to do, to do without, and when to depart."

Dr. Dawson's speech was followed by a word of welcome by Dean Barnes on behalf of the faculty. He stated that Dr. Lloyd was educationally and intellectually prepared for the presidency of the college. Dean also mentioned Dr. Lloyd's moonshining qualifications. He said that the work of Dr. Lloyd is the translation and application of Christian principles to twentieth century ideas.

Richard Strain, as representative of the student body, further emphasized the fact that Dr. Lloyd is the students' choice for president. He promised Dr. Lloyd the cooperation of the students, and at the end of his speech referred to Dr. Lloyd as a wise and sympathetic adviser and friend.

Upon Dr. Hunter's inquiries as to his speechlessness, Dr. Lloyd made an address which was eagerly received by the audience. He said that a preacher always makes three points in a sermon, and so he made his three points. The first was, A Word of Appreciation, in which he thanked the various departments of the college for their work and friendliness in receiving him and his family. His second point was A Word of Explanation, in which he showed how his decision to come to Maryville was based on his belief in God, belief in education, belief in service, belief in youth, anad belief in the South. A Word of Request, was his third point and he brought out the necessity of patience and cooperation of faculty and student body with him in order to carry out the desired purpose. He closed by saying, "Let forward be our watchword, ever forward."

Dr. Lloyd's address was followed by the song composed for his coming, and by cheers and yells. Mrs. Lloyd was presented with flowers by Mabel Dickerson from the four college classes. The audience joined in singing to Mrs. Lloyd after the presentation and her acknowledgement of the flowers.

The remainder of the program was under the new administration and was led by Dr. Lloyd. It consisted of the public appreciation of various organizations for the work that Dr. Hunter has done as acting president of the college. Dr. Lloyd ble expressed the appreciation of Dr. Hunter, and Judge M. H. Gamble expressed the appreciation of Dr Hunter from a local citizen's viewpoint, and showed the difficulty of a chairman of the faculty or acting president in filling the gap between administrations. Judge Gamble expressed his appreciation of service from the faculty directors, and citizens of the community.

The heartfelt appreciation of the student body was expressed by Donald Benn.

After Dr. Hunter's simple and sincere acknowledgement the Alma Mater was sung and the audience was dismissed by Dr. Lloyd.

Students Make Night Trip To Greet Lloyds

Nov. 28—Tonight the student body extended its first welcome to Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd. About four hundred trooped out to the "House in the Woods" to greet the newcomers. As quietly as possible the group gathered around the house. Then they burst into a cheer for the Lloyds. Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd came out to acknowledge the salutation and Dr. Lloyd said a few words to the assembled multitude. Then, after more cheers and the singing of the Alma Mater, some of the group broke up into twos and threes to straggle campuswards feeling that "we'd extended the right hand of fellowship to the Lloyds". The rest of the group visited Dr. Hunter's home and serenaded him with cheers and the singing of the Alma Mater. Thus ended an eventful evening, one long to be remembered by every present student of Maryville.

bred American business man, is bored by the trip and has his heart more on his business than in Italy. Consequently, Mr. Billings goes alone to London to tend to business matters, leaving his family under the guidance of Pierre, a French courier. Pierre and Barbara Billings become deeply interested in each other. Pierre goes to Ohio with the Billings family and enters business. Then another figure comes on the stage; Ronny Davis, who is head of Mr. Billing's shipping department, becomes Pierre's rival in an involved love affair.

This farce comedy was written by George Middleton and A. E. Thomas. It was put on the screen with Maurice Chevalier starring as Pierre de Mirande, the Frenchman.

The cast is as follows:

Pierre de Mirande - - DonBriggs
Barabara Billings - - - - - -
Alma Jane Hatmaker
Mr. Henry Billings - - Bill Graham
Mrs. Billings - - Esther Horton
Mrs. Jane Livermore - - -
Louise Marley
Ronny Davis - - Louis Penland
Molly Perkins - - Anne Smartt

"Doc" Duff is thankful because on Thank-giving Day he shot nine rabbits on Hell's Half Acre.

Wesley Culver expressed a sentiment that is common to us all when he said he was thankful that Christmas was so near.

Upon inquiry Thanksgiving day it was found that:

Miss Molly was thankful that all the girls were well—(although the effects of the Thanksgiving dinner hadn't taken effect yet!)

Miss Hudson was thankful she didn't have to work.

Louise Marley on being asked, said: "I'm thankful I had all the turkey I could eat."

Mabel Dickerson was thankful that a "certain party" is so far away—(?)

Jane Duke: "I'm thankful I'm not in the jail or the alms house.'

Dot Kellar: "I'm thankful for my new dress."

Billy Gruchy was thankful that no one stacked her room.

And Carol Cushman, being not quite so specific said: "Oh, I'm thankful for so much; just every thing!"

No Highland Echo will be published next week. Only thirty issues are to be published each year, and there has come a time to declare a holiday. The next paper will appear December 15.

Lloyd Home Cleaned By Willing Students

Moss and dust doth indeed corrupt; but a clean-up committee stole it away from Dr. Lloyd's house last Monday. Under the supervision of Mrs. Butcher, the Lloyd's new home was scrubbed and swept 'til it virtually shone. The feminine officers of the various classes were responsible for recruiting eight members from each class, and reported that the students were not loathe to answer the call to arms.

The upperclassmen labored diligently all morning, with invaluable assistance rendered by some male members of the student body who lay claim to having done "all the dirty work." From three to five o'clock in the afternoon the Freshman were privileged to add the final touches. It may have been thought that, being fresh from home, they would be able to imbue it with the spirit of "Home, Sweet Home" they haven't yet forgotten. At any rate, we may rest satisfied, that the president's house is clean and shining, awaiting the advent of Dr. Lloyd and his family.

Y.W. Gift Shop Has Encouraging Results

The financial results of the bazaar conducted by the Y. W. C. A. on Monday, November 17 have not as yet been completely totalled. An estimate of two of the booths shows that the money cleared is over seventy-five dollars. This estimate also includes the money taken in by the Japanese Tea Room.

There are two more booths that have made no report, and there will be more money collected from remaining articles sold between now and Christmas. The bazaar was conducted for the purpose of raising money for the proposed Y. W. C. A. activity building, plans for which were drawn up last year by a Knoxville architect.

It is hoped that the final earnings will warrant annual bazaars conducted by the organization so that the proposed building will be a reality as soon as possible.

Science Progresses At Expense of Philosophy

The old saying "It's an ill wind that blows no body good", will work both ways. The new platform in the Biology lecture room, the improved lighting system, and other such transformations may be very helpful to the progress of Science. But to the students of Philosophy, not so! The Theism students gave gasps of dismay upon beholding the rearranged chairs. As well they might, for people found themselves on the front seats who had never before occupied such conspicious places. Every moonshining couple is now twain and never the twain shall meet in the Theism class!

Dean Caldwell's Xmas Message

Among the many expressions of good will for the Christmas season comes one of especial interest—that from Miss Mary E. Caldwell, Dean of Women, who extends to all her Christmas message. Below is Dean Caldwell's statement in full:

"A Merry Christmas to all who are so fortunate as to be at home with loved ones—and to those who are not so fortunate that the loss may be made up to them in new friendships made. Unto us all that the joy of the season may inspire us all for a happy and a prosperous New Year."

—Dean Caldwell

BOB ANDERSON

Bob takes the part of "Shavings" in the Athenian Mid-Winter.

ATHENIAN MID-WINTER "SHAVINGS" TONIGHT IN CHAPEL

Cast Has Many Stellar Members; Anderson Leads

Tonight at 8:60 o'clock, Athenians bring to the Maryville stage one of Joseph C. Lincoln's most lovable characters in a setting of quaint New England village life. This year "Shavings", a comedy in three acts, is Athenian's bid for the Theta Alpha Phi cup.

Jed Winslow, nicknamed "Shavings" by reason of his occupation, is the central figure of the play. He has had to resort to making windmills and wooden toys, since he has been unable to obtain a hoped-for college education and one of the careers that goes along with it. He mellows into a genial philosopher and a lover of mankind. Joy is brought into his life by a sweet acquaintance with a lovely widow, Ruth Armstrong. But when the widow's former sweetheart, Leander Babbitt, returns from the World War, Jed Winslow is defeated in another of his great hopes.

Among those in the cast are Bob Anderson, Russell Gilmore, and Alice Renegar, all of whom are experienced and may be considered to be in the stellar list. Bob Anderson takes the part of "Shavings". Russell Gilmore is Phineas Babbitt, the father of the sweetheart who returns from the war. Alice Renegar

Contact Committee Adopts New Name

Reorganized Body Called Faculty-Student Committee

Dec. 9—This afternoon at three o'clock the representatives from the faculty and the student body met for the purpose of reorganizing the former Contact Committee which was instituted at the beginning of the present year.

It was decided that the name of this committee should be, "The Student-Faculty Committee"; that the meetings of the committee should be conducted under the chairmanship of the president, Dr. Lloyd; and that the meetings should be held every other Thursday at three o'clock alternating with the semi-monthly faculty meetings. It was also decided that minutes of the meetings should be recorded, for which duty Mildred Crawford was elected secretary.

The matter of fewer chapel announcements was brought up by the president and discussed by the committee. It was suggested that the student council consider the problem and then render its decision to the president for further action.

The next meeting of the Student Faculty Committee will be held on Thursday, January 8.

Students Pledge Nearly $800 To Fred Hope Work

Dr. Johnston, Missionary To Africa, Has Charge of Annual Drive

The annual Fred Hope Drive was conducted Wednesday and Thursday, December tenth and eleventh under the leadership of Dr. Johnston, a friend and co-worker of Fred Hope in Elat, Cameroun, Africa. Nearly $800 was pledged, although a complete and final count cannot be made until the pledge cards have all been collected.

Dr. Johnston has been in missionary work in Africa for thirty-five years, and at present, he is back in the United States on a furlough, but is continually called upon to speak of his work as field secretary and supervisor of the Presbyterian Mission at Elat.

Dr. Johnston's work with Fred Hope has largely been through the industrial school of which Mr. Hope has been an untiring, successful leader, administrator, and promoter. The school was founded on a one thousand dollar memorial fund and is accordingly called the Frank James Industrial School. At present carpentry, tailoring and chair-making are the principle industries carried on in the school. It has made such successful strides that it is now self-suppporting. The money that Maryville College raises each year goes to further the work of the industrial school.

An item of interest to all Maryvillians is the fact that one year the money sent by the College was used for a chapel which is called "The Maryville Chapel". It is used for the morning prayers, and for classrooms where Mrs. Hope instructs the native women the simple arts of homemaking as followed in Africa, and also reading and writing.

Fred Hope is a graduate of Maryville College of the class of 1906, and he has been at work in Africa since 1907 with intermittent furloughs to this country.

Eleven Students Gain Positions On Echo Staff

Four Apprentices Yet To Be Selected; All Vacancies Filled

At a meeting of the Committee on Selection for the Highland Echo, Friday, December 12, eleven students were chosen as permanent members of the staff. One junior associate editor, two sophomore cubs and eight freshmen apprentices were selected.

J. Weldon Hina was elected to fill the vacancy for junior associate editor which was caused by the resignation of Kitty Hodges. Nathalia Wright and Robert Stephenson are to take the places of Willard Cudney and Aubrey Bradshaw as sophomore cub reporters. Cudney resigned recently because of overwork and Bradshaw's long illness has rendered him incapable of serving on the staff.

The junior associate editor and sophomore cubs were chosen from a number of applicants all of whom had been given ample opportunity to demonstrate their respective abili-

From among the group of twenty three freshmen who have held temporary positions on the staff for some time, Elizabeth Ayres, Grace Moore, Dorothy Casseres, Geraldine Smith, Phil Soree, Richard Orr, Bob Rule and Charles Beale were chosen as permanent apprentices. Four more apprentices will be chosen some time near the beginning of the second semester.

The Committee on Selection consists of four faculty members—Dr. Hunter, Prof. Walker, Dr. Hussey, and Prof. Davis; three members of the Student Council— Richard Strain, Mabel Dickerson and Georga Burk; and four members of the Highland Echo Staff—Hessie Keeton, Julia Terry, William Graham and Edwin Buchanan.

Dear Santy:

Many Maryville instructors wrote letters to Santa Claus. However, the poor absent-minded dears forgot to mail them and some fell into the hands of a Highland Echo reporter. Since teachers should be examples, we print these letters so that students may learn what the well bred person will dare to ask of Santa Claus.

Dear Santa Claus:

All my little pets are dead. Even the starfish and clams died, though I took good care of them and fed them all they wanted. Please, dear Santa, bring me some pets that won't die. I need them to play with.

Your good little girl,
Sue Green.

Dear Santa Claus:

Perhaps maybe you could bring me a new car, a closed one, for Christmas. My old one is pretty cold. And please bring me a box of chalk too. Mine never lasts long, for it gets thrown around a lot.

From your little friend,
George Hussey.

Hello, Santy:

I've got a dandy new car but sometimes it doesn't run very well if it doesn't have any gas. And gas costs a lot of money, too. Could you please bring me a filling station so I needn't have to buy any more gas? I'll be a good boy and not take any Maryville College girls riding.

Good bye,
Robert Thrower.

Dear Santy:

I have tried to be a good little girl and take my cod liver oil, but it is awful nasty. Won't you please bring me some that tastes good? I'd rather have some without the liver in it. Please bring me lots of other things too, and don't forget my little friend, Allie Jewel!.

From your little girl,
Catherine Wilkinson.

Dear Santa Claus:

Will you please bring me a set of dishes? I want good strong ones that won't break when my little friends use them and wash them.

Good bye, I'll go to bed early Christmas Eve.

Lula Darby.

Dear Santa Claus:

Please bring me a new doll, but not one that talks. The talking ones are too noisy. I want one that will shut its eyes and sleep most of the time.

From your little girl,
Lydia P. Snodgrass.

Dear Santy:

That boy doll that you brought me last year is still pretty good, but he needs some more clothes. Will you please bring me some little suits for him and also a pair of shoes?

From your little friend,
Evelyn Queener,

P. S.—Don't forget my little playmate Verton. He tries to be a good little boy.

Hello, Santy:

I want you to bring me a flash light, 'cause my old one is about worn out. You know I have to be out a lot at night, and I'm kinda scared if I don't have a light. I'll be a good little boy and go to bed early Christmas Eve.

Good bye,
Ralph Irwin.

STAR

It was one night as I came back from the library.
I remember that it was quite warm
But as I looked up I was fanned by a cooling breeze from the stars.
The dark heavy curtain of the sky was pierced by a thousand holes,
And the red light that twinkled from them was friendly.
It seemed that they were telling me of the ecstasy of lights and music which shone through them
From behind the curtain.
My diary says: "I never saw the stars so brilliant.
I think the sky was like this on the first Christmas."

—Nathalia Wright.

Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Honor Guests At Two Receptions

Montvale Springs, "The House In The Woods", Scenes of Festivities.

Dec. 9—This evening from five to nine o'clock the faculty entertained Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd to dinner at Montvale Springs. The hotel was beautifully decorated with holly and evergreens which added to the general air of festivity.

In the receiving line with Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd were Dr. and Mrs. Hunter who introduced the faculty members to the new president and his wife.

Dec. 12—From eight to eleven, this evening, Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson entertained the faculty members, the Board of Directors, and friends of the college to a reception given in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd.

"The House in the Woods" was decorated with holly, mistletoe, and evergreens, and the Chistmas colors were carried out in every detail. Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson, and Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd were in the receiving line and the introductions were made at this time.

The guests were entertained throughout the evening by a quartette composed of Jane Duke, Naomi Willingham, Donald Briggs, and William Cooper, accompanied by Alma Jane Hatmaker at the piano.

Vesper Choir Sings Christmas Cantata

Capacity Crowd Hear "The Holy Child"

Dec. 14—This evening at seven o'clock the Vesper Choir under the direction of Miss Frances Henry presented its annual Christmas cantata. This year "The Holy Child" by Horatio W. Parker was presented in a beautiful and effective manner.

The cantata consisting of two parts was featured by a soprano and tenor duet, "The Cradle Hymn", sung by Jane Duke and Chilton Bowles; and a tenor solo, "The Angel" by Yervant Topalion.

The program was as follows:

Part I—
- Processional—O Thou Joyful Day
- Invocation
- Tenor Solo—The Angel
- Chorus—Night in Bethlehem
- Chorus—The Manger Throne
- Soprano and Tenor—Cradle Hymn

Part II—
- Chorus—Old German Carol—Silent Night
- Chorus—Ancient Noel—Angels We Have Heard on High
- Male Chorus—Procession of the Magi
- Final Chorus—Hymn of Praise
- Recessional—Sicilian Christmas Hymn
- Benediction

Dean Howell's Holiday Greetings

Dean Howell, the busiest professor on the Hill, stops one of his chemical reactions long enough to give out Christmas greetings from his position as Dean of Men. His message in full is typical of the friendship that he has for the students.

"As the Wise Men of the East had faith to follow the star of Bethlehem so may you ever have faith to follow the Christ Child. Having this spirit of Christmas, the coming New Year will be fraught with happiness and joy. I wish you that peace and happiness."

The Christmas Spirit

Some one has said that anticipation is greater than realization. Certain it is that if the realized joys of the holidays exceed those anticipated joys in which Maryville College students have been revelling, every one will indeed have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

One shabby old man said last week that he had Christmas in his bones. We all want it—not only in our bones but in our hearts and minds. "Don't forget the real meaning of Christmas" is a time worn truism. However, we need it every day. The artificial aspects of festivity that the exponents of Big Business present to us for months before Christmas help us to live life day after day in anticipation of the gala days ahead. If Big Business could find a method of presenting to human beings the real meaning of Christmas in just such an attractive way for the same length of time before the holidays, then there'd be satisfaction with every day rather than an impatient counting of days, and endless sighs for delights to come.

But perhaps then business would suffer, because with every one possessing that inner peace and tranquility that communion with the Christ child gives, what need have we for the baubles and tinsel that every year hide the real meaning of Christmas?

We of the Highland Echo staff wish for every one of you a measure of that strange, quiet joy.

Modern psychology has limited the number of instincts that man is known to possess, but it devotes a great deal of space to the discussion of dominant human urges. We are glad that psychology does not deny that man has an urge to collect. Otherwise we could not explain the disappearance of so many posters as soon as they are put up. Maryville College has many collectors. One of the most talked of is the poster collector. Any collection to be worth while should be unique. Therefore collections to be unique must consist of fresh posters. By fresh we mean placards that have just been made and are being exhibited for the first time. Of course they usually advertise some play or a "Y" activity, but that is a minor thing. People will hear about those activities any how; if the placard were left exposed to the weather it would soon be ruined, and all is fair in the collecting game.

The poster chairmen of the various organizations work hard to advertise in a novel and effective way any movement that the respective organizations may be behind. They not only mix and daub the paint themselves, but they get in touch with others who can and will, lend their aid Poster making requires originality, natural ability, willingness and money—the last item not being among the least. A number of unusual and attention getting posters have been put up all over the campus at different times only to be taken away immediately. It is a lamentable thing that no sooner than the results of the artists' labors are posted than some one comes along and promptly acquires them.

We have had many complaints about the disappearance of posters and we feel that something should be done about it. Among the rules of etiquette which should have been stressed during our recent culture craze is one that should read something like this:

"One does not take posters before the said posters have served their purpose. It is also considered the correct and courteous thing to ask the permission of the poster painter before taking it."

STAR

It was the Saturday night before Easter.
I was walking along Main street in a great hurry
When suddenly I happened to look up at the sky.
It was a deep, silent blue;
And just over a dingy furniture store gleamed a great white star.
That star reduced all humanity to an atom.
And even as I swiftly passed I noticed
The buildings and store fronts looked like some painted cardboard setting
In a cheap vaudeville.

Y. Organizations To Abolish Snap

In keeping with a new feeling of progress which seems to be prevailing on the campus at the present time the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. are doing a little work in regard to social activities. An investigation is being made which will show what many of the colleges throughout the country, with much the same spirit as is present at Maryville, are doing about this question. It is evident that a new feeling has invaded the campus. Discussions are heard wherever two or more students meet— and it is due to this that the Y.M.C.A. is taking a hand in the question, with so much interest.

In view of this fact, and considering the fact that the Y, M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. are student organizations they feel that it is only fair that the students be allowed to express their feelings as to what we should do for social recreation so think it over during the holidays—you will be given a chance in this paper to express your plan for a substitute of snap or an alteration of the game as it stands at present.

Maryville Basketeers Swamp Alumni In Opener, 40-21

Varsity Matmen Humble Freshmen In Hectic Try-Outs For Squad

Headlocks and Half-Nelsons Down New Men.

The Maryville wrestling fraternity, I Kracka Thi, held a convention Friday afternoon, pitting the Varsity against the new men. The varsity won in impressive style, 24 to 5. Most of the old men were paired with heavier, though less experienced men and indications are that a team can be worked together that will show up well against the Knoxville and Chattanooga Y's. The first meet after the holidays will be with the Chattanooga Y. on January 17.

Burns and Cash, 165 pounders, started the festivities with a gruelling match which went all the way with two extra periods tacked on. Both wrestled wearily, trying to get a hold for a fall. Experience won out and Cash was winner by 45 seconds time advantage in the final extra period.

Dixon and Beck, 115 pound bantams, furnished, perhaps, the fastest match of the day although Dixon, the varsity man, required 4 minutes to secure a crotch and half Nelson for a fall.

"Blondy" Bertram, though heavier, was not equal to Peacock's experience in the 135 pound class and succumbed after 5 furious minutes to a double arm lock.

Hatcher took on two beginners, subduing Blevins with a fall in 4 minutes, and later taking Teffeteller on. They see-sawed about for the most of the time but in the extra periods the fight got furious and Hacher emerged winner by a 4 second margin.

Wirm, the only freshman to get a fall, seemed snowed under by Kinsey who secured a crotch and half Nelson after the first minute of scrimmage. However, Kinsey's faulty balance enabled Winn to roll and use the same hold to win by a fall in 1 minute, 15 seconds.

Topalion and Tope, in the 155 pound class, wound up the afternoon with a whirlwind match in which Topalion won by a 2 minute time advantage.

Another minor sport as yet unrecognized, held a match Saturday afternoon. The two soccer teams organized by "Red" Cortenay, engaged in a hectic fray in which one side was victorious although nobody could tell which side it was. "Red", who is president, vice-president, and mayor pro-tem of the soccerites stated that no more games would be held until some time next spring when the weather is more favorable.

These minor sports are a great institution at Maryville and should have more support. A fair crowd was attendant on the wrestling match but the soccer supporters were not so numerous. Soon after the holidays end, there will be more minor sports contests of various and sundry kinds. In the language of the chapel announcements, "Everybody out."

SPORTOGRAPHY

By Bob West

Not satisfied with its showing on the Gridiron, the hardy husky Highlanders in all of their resplendent power step upon the hardwood court with what promises to be telling effect upon their foes.

Starting the season with an exhibition game against the former stars of Maryville should be a good way of judging our team for the year.

Perhaps it is a little early in the season to venture anything like a plausable championship in the court circles of the conference race. Naturally we feel sure that the Highlanders have a hefty chance to cop the cup this season, and somehow I feel sure that this chance is not misplaced.

Under Coach Honaker's able tutelege we came very near winning the conference last year and considering the fact that three of the fast letter men are still working for us, it is logical to assume that we will sweep all before us as the gusty winds clear the grounds of leaves.

SOPHOMORES WIN SOCCER TOURNEY

Heavy Toe Work Wins For Co-ed Kings.

Dec. 6—The final game of the women's soccer tournament was played off tonight between the sophomores and freshmen, the sophs coming out with the large end of the score. When the final whistle blew, the score stood 3-1.

The game was a nip and tuck struggle from start to finish, and it was due only to the excellent playing of Mary Swasick, soph goal keeper, that the freshman score was kept down. The freshmen played the best offensive game of the two teams, and the sophomore goal line was threatened many times.

For the sophomores "Tootsie" Nash played the best defensive game, while Mildred Purviance was the best on the offense. Katie Heidel,, forward, and Molly Little, goal keeper were the stars for the frosh.

WOMEN'S BASKET BALL STARTS

Dec. 10—The first call for women's basket ball practice was issued today, with thirty reporting.

Much enthusiasm was shown, and it is hoped that the basketball season will prove just as successful as the soccer season which has just past. There will be one more practice before the holidays, and three or four afterward, before the tournament starts. If it is possible each class will have a team, whereas, before this year the junior and senior classes have combined.

Bagpipe music was broadcast recently. Lots of people took their sets to pieces in an endeavor to locate the trouble.

Senior: I get twice as much sleep as you do.

Frosh: You ought to. You take twice as many classes.

FOOTBALLERS ELECT 1931 CAPTAIN WED.

Entire Squad To Be Tendered Banquet Here.

Dec. 15—The 1930 Maryville College Football squad is to be tendered a banquet Wednesday evening, 7:15, in Pearsons dining hall. The banquet is to be given to the squad through the cooperation of the college and businessmen of Maryville.

All men who were on the squad at the end of the season, are invited. This season, Maryville had one of the largest squads remaining out all year, than for some time. There were about forty-five men in uniform when the season ended.

A program for the banquet is being arranged by "Corky" Crawford. Outstanding events will be the election of next year's captain, and the presentation of gold footballs to the Senior members of the team. The coaches and some members of the team are to enliven the occasion with short speeches.

The squad is very grateful to the College and to the business men of the town who are making the affair possible. The Highlanders have always received splendid support from the business men of Maryville.

The banquet is to be served by the Home Economic Department.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER JOINT MEETING

Dec. 8—The Student Volunteer Group met with the Morristown delegation and students of Knoxville Colored College at Knoxville today. The purpose of this meeting was to discuss problems, and the solution of problems, relating to the negro. A round table discussion was held, with one of the students of Knoxville acting as chairman. Joe Hacker was the discussion leader for Maryville.

The next meeting will be held in Maryville, the second Monday in January. It is probable that the students of the three schools may have a full day meeting later in the year.

U.T. ALL-STARS PLAY M.C. TOMORROW NITE

Hack and Mack Combination Boasts Individual Stars.

Tomorrow night Maryville will play the U. T. All Stars, commonly known as the Hack and Mack team, an aggregation composed of football men from the U. T. team. They have won two successive games and lost none, and will probably be out to take Maryville's scalp, to add to their spoils. The fans, for the first time, will be afforded an opportunity to see what the Maryville squad can do, when under pressure.

Maryville's next game, after the holidays, will be with the Chattanooga Tepecoes, January 9, at Chattanooga. The next evening they will play Tennessee Wesleyan there.

HIGHLANDER SQUAD DISPLAYS TEAM WORK

Capt. Davis, White, High Scorers; New Men Good.

Dec. 13—The Maryville Varsity basketball squad opened the 1930-31 season tonight, in the Alumni Gym, by defeating the Alumni team 40-21. The game started off with a bang whewhen a player on the Alumni team scored a sleeper. Captain Davis quickly retaliated with two successive side shots, to give the Varsity the lead, which they increased, until they had the game well on ice. Coach Honaker injected several of his freshmen, near the end of the second period, and from that time on several substitutions were made, each combination working equally well. Davis and John White were the outstanding scorers of the evening. John Nee, R. Cooper, and Frye stood out for the freshmen.

Miss Clemmie Henry Home From Trip Made For Student Benefit

Dec. 6—Miss Clemmie Henry returned today from her trip, north, which she made in the interests of the Student Loan Fund.

Her particular purpose, this time, was to interest certain potential benefactors in the establishment of a Rotating Student Loan Fund. This fund differs from the Endowed Loan Fund in that all of the principal of the former may be loaned to worthy students at once, whereas only the interest of the Endowed Loan Fund may be used. Miss Henry says that the great financial need of Maryville now, is such a fund so that more students may be given help at once. In addition to working for this Rotating Loan Fund, Miss Henry also interviewed various individuals in the interest of adding to the general endowment of Maryville. The interest of this fund would help in paying the running expenses of the college.

The main stops which Miss Henry made were in Boston and New York. Her trip occupied about three weeks time. She said that she had an enjoyable Thanksgiving Day in Boston. On one night she stayed with Miss Green's mother.

Student Council Says Few Chapel Announcements

Dec. 11—The Student Council met this evening in Pearsons Parlor. It was decided that the time of meeting should be changed. From now on the Council will meet every other Thursday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock.

Another matter was the decision that no announcements should be read in chapel except those which concern the Student Body. A calendar of all other announcements will be published in the Echo. Items for this calendar must be in the hands of the editor on the Saturday before the Monday on which the Echo comes out.

DEAR SANTY

Hello, Santa Claus:
I need a new bank. Please bring me one. And I'd be glad if it could have some money in it when I get it, 'cause sometimes money is awful hard to get around here.
Your little boy,
Fred Proffitt.

Dear Santa Claus:
Please bring me a big box of dates for Christmas and be sure that they are all in chronological order, because you know that is the way I like them best.
Your good boy,
John Herbert Kiger.

Dear ole Santa:
My joke book is all worn out and I need a new one, with lots of good new jokes. Please bring me one, a big one. I'd like one that will make people besides freshmen laugh.
Your little boy,
Fred Albert Griffitts.

Dear Santa Claus:
My new boy doll is so long that the old bed in the doll house won't fit him. Please bring me a longer one. I'll be awful good if you will.
Your little friend,
Betty Newberry.

Dear Santa Claus:
I am a good little girl but am not very fat. I want to get big and great so I can be a B. G. girl. I drink lots of milk every day, but it is just plain milk, for that is all our cow gives. Won't you please bring me a cow that gives chocolate milk shakes?
Your little friend,
Helen Gamble.

Faor the first time in the history of Maryville College, women were present when the Faculty Executive Committee met, last Thursday afternoon.

The Faculty Executive Committee is composed of the department heads but formerly, the women who held these responsible positions were not invited to attend the meetings. Last Thursday's occurrance seems a marked advance in the emancipation of women in Maryville.

On Wednesday night at 10:00 p. m. the Y.M.C.A. will sponsor an outdoor program of Christmas Carols to be played by a Brass Sextet. Among the selections will be such favorites as "Silent Night", "The First Noel", "God Rest You Merry Gentlemen." The Y. W. C. A. is also sponsoring Carol singing.

College Maid Shop Holds Annual Sale Tuesday, Dec. 16

New Machines To Be Installed During Holidays

The annual College-Maid Shop sale to townspeople will be held tomorrow night in the Shop, which occupies half of the basement of Thaw Hall. On Wednesday, the sale will continue and will be open to students. Everyone should give at least one College-Maid Christmas gift, especially since there is such a wide variety to choose from.

The College-Maids hail with delight the announcement that some new machines will be installed during the holidays. These big new-tailoring machines with table attachment will greatly aid in the filling of "rush' orders. The direcor says that such orders "are coming so fast we don't know where we are."

Everyone wishing to sell College-Maid garments during the holidays should meet Mrs. McMurray at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Shop to receive instructions.

FORMER STUDENT'S FATHER DIES

The many freinds of Mary Elizabeth Deaderick, '30, will regret to hear of the death of her father, who died at his home in Knoxville last Saturday. Mary Lib will be remembered for her active work in Y. W. C. A., having served as vice president last year. She was also an enthusiastic member of the Vesper Choir, and Girls' Glee Club. At present she is doing graduate work in Religious Education in Hartford Seminary Foundation at Hartford, Connecticut.

MARYVILLE VARSITY DEFEATS ALUMNI

The team played well, for the first time on the hardwood this season. The game gave promise that Maryville is in for another successful winter at basketball. Maryville's old men were back in their regular positions playing the same, consistent game they are known for, while the new men, on thefloor, showed a great deal of basketball talent. The freshmen, espcially, showed up well;

Twelve women will sing carols, Wednesday night. On Thursday morning they will sing in the dormitories.

Two M. C. Students Undergo Operations

Two Maryville College students were recently operated on for appendicitis. Etta Mae Trapp, a freshman, is in a serious condition at St. Mary's Hospital, Knoxville. Her father is with her. Cecil Marley a member of the Junior Class was operated on Thursday night at Knoxville General Hospital. No complications have set in and although the operation was a serious one, he was resting comfortably according to the latest report. We hope that the recovery of both students will be rapid and complete.

DR. RALPH W. LLOYD TO LEAD FEBRUARY MEETINGS

"IRISH CINDERELLA" TO BE PRESENTED MONDAY, JAN. 19

Cup Winners For Two Years To Present Rollicking Comedy Drama.

GILMORE-DUKE AGAIN

Third Mid-Winter Offering Proclaimed One of Merit.

"My Irish Cinderella" will be played on the evening of Monday 19 by the versatile winners of the Theta Alpha Phi cup for the last two years. In this third mid-winter of the year the stars of the Bainonian Literary Society will put forth a special effort to gain permanent possession of the trophy. If they win it this season, the required three years will have been completed, and the cup will go to Bainonian.

Jane Duke and Leland Gilmore, sucesses of many a play on College Hill, who played opposite each other last fall in "The Swan", will have the leads in this play. It is predicted that Jane Duke as Peggy O'Neil, a little Irish orphan, will bring down the house with her Irish wit. Ray Dollenmayer has the important part of the Earl of Lonsdale. Louise Avery, who has been in many college plays, will appear as Mother McGhee, a cranky old woman.

A romantic appeal runs through the four act comedy. The first part of the play takes place in Mother McGhee's woodshed on the outskirts of New York City, where little Peggy is leading an unhappy existence after being taken there from an orphanage. The remaining acts were laid in the London home of the Earl of Lonsdale. There arises the baffling problem of whether Peggy is the granddaughter of the earl or not. There the love affair between Peggy and the wealthy Clifford Morgan takes place.

The play was written by Cecil Spooner and Charles E. Blaney, and is being coached by Mrs. Nita Eckles West.

The cast of the play is as follows:

Mother McGhee - - Louise Avery
Peggy O'Neil - - - Jane Duke
Mansfield - - - Ben Groves
Earl Wingate - - Paul Edris
Burton, a butler - Alexander Jones
Annie, a maid - - Betty Wilbar
Earl of Lonsdale - Ray Dollenmayer
Margaret Wingate - - Lou Repass
Clifford Morgan - Leland Gilmore

Maryville President Makes New Friends

As the weeks pass, Dr. Lloyd's acquaintanceship is growing in this region outside the College as well as "at home." He has spoken recently at New Providence Church and the Kiwanis Club in Maryville, at Northside Presbyterian Church, Chattanooga, and at Second Presbyterian Church, Knoxville. He speaks in Chattanooga again this Tuesday, at the Maryville Baptist Church next Sunday at Graystone Church, Knoxville, a Sunday or two later. During the week of January 19th he will attend the annual meeting of the Association of American Colleges and of the Presbyterian College Union in Indianapolis.

Mrs. Mary Bassett, of Highland Avenue, who three months ago fell and fractured her hip, is slowly improving and is expected to recover.

To many of the girls, especially those of the Y. W., in whom she is greatly interested, she is a beloved friend and is known as Grandmother Basset. Christmas, as a token of their regard, the Y. W. girls sang carols to her.

Mrs. Bassett, who is now 79 years old, seems very cheerful and hopes to be walking again soon.

East Tenn. Historical Asso. Holds Annual Banquet Here Jan. 9

Dr. Lloyd Delivers Welcome Address; Prof. Queener Reads Paper.

Jan. 9—Members of the East Tennessee Historical Association were entertained by the College at their annual banquet this evening. The guests were members of the association from Maryville, Knoxville, and Chattanooga, and a few invited members of the Maryville College faculty.

Dr. Lloyd delivered the welcome address, the first official welcome the President has extended since his arrival in November.

Papers were read by Dr. Margaret B. Hamer, of the University of Tennessee, and Miss Zella Armstrong, of Chattanooga, author of "Notable Southern Families." Professor Queener read a paper on William G. Brownlow.

The following officers were elected for the new year:

President—Dr. Hamer, University of Tennessee
Vice President—Prof. Heseltine, Chattanooga University
Secretary—Laura Luttrell, Lawson McGhee Library, Knoxville
Treasurer—Ruth Rothrock, Knoxville
Executive Counsel—Prof. Queener, Maryville

Music was furnished during the banquet by Flavia Tweed, Eleanor Henry, and Beulah Duggan.

This is the first time Maryville College has entertained the Association. Sixty-five people were present.

Y.W. Officers To Be Elected This Month

Changes In Constitution To Remedy Difficulties.

A change in the date for the election of officers of the Y.W.C.A. was made at the Sunday meeting of the Association. Elections are now to be held in January, and the officers installed early in the second semester. Heretofore they had been elected in March and installed before the end of the year. The date for the election of the Advisory Board was changed to one in accordance with that of the election of officers. The annual business meeting will be held in January instead of in March.

Several difficulties are expected to be remedied by this change in the Constitution. The new cabinet will be able to get advice from, and work with, the old cabinet for a whole semester; whereas before, this aid was available for only two months. The summer interval will give the officers a chance to get new ideas for the following year, and will refreshen them after their four and a half months labor. The problems to be discussed at the Sunshine Conference will no longer be vague ones, but actual difficulties encountered in the preceding months. Furthermore, as seniors are not to be elected, it will free them for the last semester of their senior year. The change will be of great advantage also to the Nu Gamma and Lyceum chairmen as well as to the Treasurer, who will take better care of the books knowing that she herself is to return to them.

A CORRECTION

The Highland Echo wishes to correct a misstatement in the last preceding issue, to the effect that women had recently been admitted to the meetings of the Executive Faculty for the first time. This statement is, of course, not correct and the Echo regrets that it was the unwitting agent in setting forth this misstatement.

Course in Practice Teaching To Be Offered For Seniors

Office Announces New Courses; Ethics Will Not Be Required

Beginning next semester the College is offering a course in practice teaching. Many of the state boards of education require that applicants for teacher's certificates shall have had practice teaching. By the introdution of this new course into the curriculum many students who wish to teach in those states will not find it necessary to attend summer school for special instruction. Only seniors may take the course, and they will obtain their practical teaching experience at the local high school.

Several new courses will be offered next semester in various departments of instruction of the college. Greek 14, a three-hour course in Greek literature in translation, which has never been offered before, is elective for Juniors and Seniors, under the instruction of Prof. Davis. No knowledge of the Greek language is required; the course is a study, in the English translations, of the masterpieces of Greek literature.

English 11C, English Poetry, is elective for Sophomores. This course was scheduled for the first semester, but, because of insufficient demand, was witheld. The instructor is Dr. Hunter.

History 17, Tennessee History, is offered as a sequence to history 16, The Southern Frontier, which was a new course the first semester. Both are two hour courses, taught by Prof. Queener, and elective for Juniors and Seniors.

Philosophy 4, Ethics, will be an elective this year, with its regular instructor, Dean Barnes.

The members of the Senior class will be interested to learn that a change will be made in the department of philosophy. Ethics which is taught by Dean Barnes will not be required, but may be taken as an elective. At the beginning of the year all seniors were required to sign up for Ethics which was to

Varsity Debators Hold Try-Outs For Positions On Team

Professors Hunter, McMurray And Davis Judge Contestants

Jan. 12—The tryouts for the men's varsity debating team were held this morning in Professor Davis' room, for the purpose of choosing eight men for the team. The tryouts were judged by three members of the faculty, Dr. Hunter, Dr. McMurray and Professor Davis. The proposition, chosen by a nationwide vote of the schools belonging to the Pi Kappa Delta debating fraternity, is: Resolved: that the nations of the world should adopt a policy of free trade. The members of the debating classes under Professor Queener, debating coach, have made an intensive study of this question and todays tryouts decide who is to represent Maryville in her debating activities for the coming season.

Five members of last year's squad are back again this year to try for a place on the team. These men are Bill Graham, Jesse James, Richard Strain, Roy Taylor, and Bob West. Most of last year's freshman team and a few new men were also working for a place.

FEWER CHAPEL ANNOUNCEMENTS

Upon suggestion of the Student-Faculty Committee made in December, the Student Council voted to make the following recommendation to the student body:

"In the interest of the best possible morning chapel service the Council urges that organizations and individuals co-operate in confining public announcements made in the service to those of interest to some large proportion of the persons present.

To this end, we recommend that regular stated organization meetings not be announced in chapel except in unusual cases."

Signed: Dick Strain,
President Student Council.

Solving The Exam Problem—Terry

Now is the time to start thinking about exams but by no means does this mean to start reviewing. Don't review until the night before the vicious, auspicious occasion. It is interesting, entertaining, and revealing to see how much one can get into one's head at one time, on more than one subject.

One should by all means study alone in one's room. It helps one's roommate (to commit suicide).

If possible find a comfortable chair so that Morpheus may inevitably claim another victim. If sleep is not forthcoming visit relatives and old friends of the family next door.

Never fail to disregard a "busy" sign on someone's door. It merely indicates that he is alone concentrating on nothing in particular and is undoubtedly eager to receive company.

Be sure to boast next morning about the knowledge not contained or absorbed and then proceed to fill paper after paper with discoveries and inventions of astounding proportions. It is an essential to write at least a blue book full on each subject because professors are always "imprinted" by quantity. Have at least 57 varieties of answers so that the professor may choose his favorite reply.

And now in conclusion: let the professors know that you are interested in the final outcome of the exam by going to them at least three times each day until the desired enlightenment is received, asking them your grade, and by all means ask them to raise it at least one point. Explain that you must have extra quality credits in order to graduate; you'll be sure to receive what's coming to you.

Dr. Hunter Expresses Gratitude To Students For Christmas Gift

"Won't I Strut With That Bag!" Says He in Letter To Strain.

111 Wilson Avenue,
Maryville, Tennessee
December 27, 1931

Mr. Richard E. Strain,
Maryville College,
Maryville, Tennessee
Dear Dick:

A day or two before Christmas, Santa Claus brought a fine new traveling bag to my house with indications in it that it was from the Students of Maryville College and that it was for me as another of many tokens of their kindness.

During the first three months of this college year I fell into the habit of holding you responsible for whatever the students did, and so I fall back once more upon that habit and write you this note as a means of thanking you and them through you for this very gracious gift. Words are idle! Just to say "Thanks" seems inadequate, but it will have to do.

I've never wanted so much to travel in all my life as I do now, and when I do find a good excuse, won't I strut with that bag!

Again, Thanks; and Best Wishes for all Maryville for 1931.

Sincerely yours,
Edwin R. Hunter.

Women To Present New Type Of Debate

No Try-outs Necessary For Women's Team.

No tryouts were necessary for the women's debate team as there were just six women trying out for the team. The following women make up the team: Mildred Crawford, Alice Renegar, Ann Deal, Hope Snyder, Elizabeth Duncan and Mary John Metcalfe.

In their coming debate with Miami University of Oxford, Ohio, the women will present a new type of debate. It is called the Oregon plan and differs radically in purpose from the old formal type of debate. Instead of each side trying to convince three judges that they have produced the most evidence, they try to get the audience to believe in their side of the question. Under this plan, neither side is concerned about "winning" or "losing". The debaters are interested in affecting their hearers' beliefs on the question rather than their beliefs regarding the comparative ability of the contestants.

There are three speakers on each side. The first speaker of each side presents all the arguments of his side of the question. The second speaker cross examines his opponents, asking them any question he wants. The third speaker presents the rebuttal of his side.

Johnston—Vanderslice

The marriage of Miss Annie Vanderslice to Dr. R. H. Johnston was celebrated in Pekin, China, recently. Both were former Maryville students and went out under the mission board last year.

The Editor of our Chilhowean believes in starting the New Year right. Zelma Alexander also believes in ringing in the new. Who said love doesn't laugh at business depressions?

MARYVILLE'S NEW PRESIDENT TO HOLD ANNUAL REVIVIAL.

Fifty-Fifth Series of Meetings To Begin On Tuesday, February 3.

DR. WILSON MISSED

Rev. Sidney Stringham To Be Back as Leader of Song.

The fifty-fifth series of February Meetings will begin on Tuesday, February 3, with Dr. Ralph Waldo Lloyd as leader, and close on Friday, February 13. A very noticeable difference this year will be in the absence of Dr. Samuel Tyndale Wilson who was a junior in Maryville College when Rev. Nathan Bachman led the first of these historic meetings over a half century ago. Year after year for three decades and more Dr. Wilson has been their guiding spirit. His service has been beyond estimate and we shall miss him greatly. And yet he will not be entirely absent, for his heart will be here and his prayers will aid us.

Our leader, President Ralph Waldo Lloyd, as a guest of the College, led the meetings of three years ago. The 1931 series will open just two months after his arrival from Pittsburgh to assume the duties of the presidency. This makes it unnecessary to include in this announcement any biographical introduction; the events of recent months have resulted in several such being given through this paper. Dr. Lloyd believes thoroughly in the high value of the Maryville February Meetings. He has had opportunity to know them as a student, as a visitor, and as a leader. He has had acquaintanceship as the speaker or as observer at similar religious services in various other colleges; and he is convinced of the unique and unsurpassed usefulness of this established plan at Maryville.

Rev. Dr. William P. Stevenson, College Pastor, will preside and conduct the devotional period at each service. Dr. Stevenson came to Maryville thirteen years ago from a fifteen year pastorate in the strong First Presbyterian Church of Yonkers, New York, just outside of New York City.

For the tenth consecutive year the leader of song will be the Rev. Sidney E. Stringham, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Auburn, Illinois, and a former pastor of the Methodist Church in Alcoa.

M. C. Alumnus Killed While Deer Hunting

Maryville College laments the untimely death of one of her most promising alumni, Edgar W. Candler, Jr., of Candler, North Carolina. On Christmas day he was accidentally shot and killed while deer hunting. Wreaths were sent by the Class of '28, of which he was a member, and by the Athenian Literary Society, of which he was once president.

Ed Candler is well remembered by most of the present seniors, who were freshmen here during his senior year. He was an excellent student and graduated with the rank of Cum Laude. He was one of the best students of mathematics that ever attended this institution. Following his decided bent for mathematics, he taught it in high school from the time of his graduation from college until the time of his death.

Dr. Lloyd made three interesting addresses on December 28th, at the Northside Presbyterian Church in Chattanooga.

He was introduced at the morning service by a Maryvillian. The topic of his sermon dealt with "The New Year".

We Do Hereby Resolve

Some one asked us if we made our usual New Year's Resolutions. We replied in the affirmative. Our college pastor said something to the effect that the very fact that people made resolutions at the beginning of each year, was an indication of the finer, nobler side of man. We agree most heartily. It's a 'comforting theory. There's something in the idea of turning a new leaf that we like. So many of us would like to blot out our past mistakes and start all over again. If we can't do it we like to talk about it. Rip Van Winkle was always taking his last drink. Valstaff made many vows to reform. These two characters are to most of us very dear by virtue of their very humanness and their frailties. We may make all the resolutions that we like. Perhaps we may keep some of them; should we break them, then we've neither gained nor lost any thing.

Therefore the students of Maryville College may resolve to prepare each assignment, take examinations very seriously and avoid low grades. They may also resolve to observe all rules and regulations concerning moonshining and other privileges. Henceforth, we may strive to sit quietly during chapel sermons or entertainments, and abide by all rules in the etiquette book. The faculty will probably resolve to give fewer quizzes, rely less upon the text book, require more library work, and treat students not as children, but as future citizens who must be taught to think for themselves. Then, too, there will be the usual determination to find a substitute for Snap. The Echo staff will resolve to get articles written before Monday morning, and the Editor will have as an aim a bigger and better paper.

Because, the very fact that man turns over a new leaf is a clear indication that he wants to do better.

Privacy Preferred

The students of Maryville College are on the whole, a law abiding body. Few of us know the meaning of communism, and to the writer's knowledge there are none who band together to denounce the government, prohibition and the church. The debators argue convincingly on both sides of the question about the tariff, but they don't take it seriously. Most of us are good Protestant Republicans and Democrats who still believe in Santa Claus. Our aim in life is happiness, and we desire to get it with as little injury to our fellow man as possible. Intrigue—plotting— dread secrets—are unknown.

Just because one wants a private conversation over the telephone is certainly no proof that he or she is plotting mischief. A private telephone booth would be a means of bringing about better feeling between students and authorities. Even though our affairs are not important we like to pretend that they are, and talking about them over the telephone in the presence of others takes away that something that makes us pleased with ourselves. After all, two is company and three is a crowd even when telephoning.

I shall not return next year—
It is decided.

My chums will not be here;
I could not stand it without them.
And He will be here—and that
I could not stand, for I know now
That my dreams are hopeless.

And so, I want with all my heart to forget
Everything: my dormitory, my cozy room,
The worn paths to my classes—
all
I have known and loved these two years.

Oh, I want to forget—yet I know
Were I to forget all this
I would be the same as dead.

Oh, I love it all so—and I know
It is mine forever; for what are we Without Memories?

COLDS; THEIR CURE AND PREVENTION

Quack Quack Dr. West

About this time of year practically everyone is afflicted with the common, or garden variety of cold, due to the unpleasant, not to disagreeable, weather. It behooves us, therefore, to learn some of the precautions that are necessary to take in order to avoid this common disorder.

First, every morning on arising, before each meal and before going to bed each night, bathe the face gently, but firmly with warm water and soap. This leaves a thin film over the face which makes it difficult for the cold germs to penetrate. If this face bathing is kept up long enough the germs will finally grow disgusted with the face as a means of egress and seek another place. This time it may be the hands, so,

Second, instead of washing the face five times a day, you may now turn your attention to the hands. These should be thoroughly washed, scrubbed, and scoured before meals and at morning and night. Another way to protect the hands would be to dip them in shellac which would leave a thin layer on them and save the trouble of washing them so often. Another advantage of the shellacking method is that dirt may be removed with a damp cloth, thus saving much time and trouble.

Third, when the germs find themselves barred from the hands, they immediately go back to the face. When they come back this second time they are usually fired with that do-or-die spirit that causes them to be hard to conquer, but here women's ingenuity again outwits them.

Fourth, the women, in order to trap these bothersome cold germs smear a preparation of cold cream over their faces at night. (Where name cold cream originated). The germs, alighting on the face are immediately stuck fast in the cream and so perish ignominiously. The fact that men do not as a rule use cold cream accounts for the fact that men are more subject to colds.

Board of Editors,
Highland Echo,
Maryville College,
Maryville, Tenn.
Gentlemen:

G. P. Putnam's Sons are planning to publish, yearly, a carefully edited volume containing the best contributions during each college year of stories, essays and verse which have appeared in college publications throughout the United States.

We believe that the importance of such a volume—not only as a work including worthwhile literature, but as a presentation in permanent book form of deserving undergraduate effort— cannot be over-estimated. With the indorsement of well known critics and men of letters, and with a foreword by one of them, it will, we are sure, occupy a very real place in the field of American literature.

Assuming that you will wish your own publication to be among those from which the material will be selected, we ask your cooperation to the extent of forwarding us from time to time such material as you yourself believe deserving of inclusion in such a volume. We believe you will readily understand that examination on our part of every college publication that might have something important to offer —especially weeklies and dailies— would be a task which, if entirely self-imposed, would require an outlay disproportionate to financial returns.

Hoping that you will agree with us as to the merits of the proposed venture, we remain,

Yours very truly,
Winfield Shiras,
Book Editor.

Editor's Note: All students who have material (which has not appeared in the Echo) are kindly requested to see the Editor of the Highland Echo.

ART CLUB

Jan. 10—The Art Club will meet immediately after supper, Thursday, in Bainonian Hall. A very interesting Oriental entertainment has been planned by the program secretary, Eunice Grant. Visit us, you will be welcomed.

Ministerial Association

On Tuesday evening the Ministerial Association will have one of its most important meetings in the school year. The election of next semester's officers and a talk by Dr. Lloyd will be the features of the meeting. It is hoped that every member will be present to hear Dr. Lloyd's message.

Cynicus—"Sold my car and ain't goin' to get another one as long as I live."

Pontius—"Why?"

Cynicus—"Bought an airplane."

Pontius—"Why?"

Cynicus—"No chance in it for a backseat driver."

THE OPEN FORUM

It is becoming more and more apparent that the long venerated and characteristically Maryvillian game of "Snap" is no longer answering at all adequately the purpose for which it has served many years on our Campus. This is no new nor unsaid statement, however. Everyone recognizes the fact. The time has been—some of us can even remember—when the students went out on Baldwin lawn or down to the gymnasium properly dressed for playing the game, and most of them played, too, with at least some degree of enthusiasm and delight. There were evenings of real enjoyment and benefit and the game served admirably as a means of social contact between the men and women. But the last snap, in fact every one the last several months, bears witness to the fact that the game as a social part of our college life is already obsolete. On several occasions sincere attempts have been made by personnel of the YMCA and YWCA to revive things and get the game again on a worthwhile basis. Always the response is the same, with never more than half a dozen or so playing and the others parked on the bleachers or standing around tweedling their thumbs in misery. It fails completely to meet any social need for the larger majority; it has simply had its day.

Now it has been easy to say all the foregoing thitngs about snap; everyone says them. It is easy for all of us to urge that a change be made as soon as possible, but to what shall the change be? This is a bigger question than it seems. The two Associations have been and are looking around for a substitute, and the College authorities are also awakened to the need for a change. There is just one real substitute that immediately comes into everyone's mind, and personally, I sincerely believe that under the proper strict supervision dancing could be introduced at Maryville with the finest of results. But perhaps there are really good and sufficient reasons why it cannot be, and the decision of this question must be left to the proper ones. We do need something, though, because there is something missing in the social life of the average Maryville student. It certainly behooves all of us to aid cooperatively in the quest for that which will make college life here more balanced in this respect.

J. Stuart James.

HIGHLANDERS HUMBLE KNOX PIONEERS 34-30

Easy White Leads Scotties To Close Victory.

By Bob Rule

Jan. 6—Coach Honaker's Highlanders flashed brilliantly only in spots tonight but eked out a close victory over the Knoxville Pioneers, a team composed of the cream of the Knox County basket ball crop. The final count was 34 to 30.

Led by the ever dependable Easy White, the Highlanders staged a spirited rally in the last quarter that gave them the lead over their more experienced opponents, and an air tight defense in the waning minutes of play preserved this lead.

The first quarter saw both teams play careful basket-ball and as a result the score at the end of the first period was very low. Both teams had scored six points. However as the game grew older both teams opened up everything that they had in the way of an offense but neither seemed to be able to make its plays work and the first half of the game was rather tame. The visitors led at the half by a score of 16-14.

After their pitiful performances in the first half, the teams came back with a desire to atone for their wild passing and erratic shooting but in their efforts to get started they allowed themselves to play rough and tumble ball and three men went out of the game on personal fouls. Greene and Bolin of the Pioneers and Woodard of Maryville were ejected from the game.

In defeating this team the Highlanders accomplished a feat of which they have every reason to be proud. It was composed of the outstanding performers on the Fountain City Kadets aggregation, which last year won the Independent Championship of East Tennessee. Cecil Thomas, former Lenoir City star, Vaughn Snodderly of T. M. I., Buddy Shanton, formerly of Knoxville Central and Kyle Mynatt, also of Knoxville were members of this team and their names are very well known in East Tennessee basket ball circles.

White, with nine points, led the Highlanders in scoring besides playing one of the most brilliant defensive games of his career. White was in every play and his work excelled that of any man on either team. Lewis, Capt. Davis, Woodard and Frye also came in for their share of the scoring honors. Thomas, with 12 points, led the Pioneers in the scoring department while Snodderly was second with seven.

The Highlanders play the Kansas Tornadoes, a crack professional team from the west which is making a tour of the South. The Tornadoes have one of the fastest teams in their section and this game should be the banner attraction of the year for Maryville hardwood fans.

When mother said, "I want you never to do anything you would be ashamed of having the whole world see you do," little Harold based his reason for not taking a bath on what mother just said.

M.C. Highlanders To Play Kansas Tornadoes Tuesday Night, January 13, 7:30 O'clock

One of the best games ever to be scheduled for the local court was arranged when Coach Honaker booked the Champion Kansas Tornado Professional Basketball Team for a game with his Highlanders on Tuesday night, January 13. The Tornadoes make a tour of the United States every year and are champions in every sense of the word. Coach Honaker has a well-groomed outfit this year and those fighting Scots can be depended upon to play their best game against such a veteran bunch of basketball players that comprise the Tornado team.

Lea Calloway Is Football Captain

Dec. 17—Lea Calloway, all-conference half back for the past two years was elected to lead the Highlanders through the season of 1931 tonight at the annual football banquet which was given in honor of the team.

Calloway has been the key man in the Highlander attack for the past three seasons and his election as Captain for next year met with favor. Cliff Overly, veteran tackle, gave Calloway a merry battle for the honor.

Talks were made by Dr. McMurray, Dr. Lloyd, Coach Honaker, retiring Capt. Storey and Capt.-Elect Calloway.

Young lover (on telephone)—Hello, darling, would you like to have dinner with me tonight?

Sweet young thing—Love to, dear.

He—Well, tell your mother I'll be over at seven o'clock.

She—I want a pencil, please.

Clerk—Hard or soft?

She—Soft, please, it's for writing a love letter.

M. C. REUNION HELD AT VOGEL HOME IN CINCINNATI, O.

On Monday evening, December 29, 1930, E. Philip Vogel and Eleanor Kuhlman Vogel of the Class of '30 entertained most delightfully in their apartment on Yale Avenue, in Cincinnati, all the Maryville people in the city for the Christmas vacation. Those present were Marguerite Caldwell, Lincoln Hurst, Dorothea Thompson, Bill Marston, Dick Marston, Edwin Green, Madison Byars, Howard Kipp, Aaron Posegate, Ray Dollenmayer, and Ethel Kuhlman. After playing games and enjoying a "gab fest", a delicious waffle supper was served and all left at a late hour having had a most enjoyable evening.

A young colored widow stood at the grave of her late departed. She looked at the grave a while and then she said, "If you is where I thinks you ain't, you pray for me. But if you is where I thinks you is, don't mention ma name."—Presbyterian Magazine.

She: Hip boots.

Scots To Play Hard Teams This Week End

Jan. 12—Coach Honaker will send his Highlanders into two tough battles the latter part of this week when they engage L. M. U. on the Maryville court Friday night and then play the Hack and Mack team Saturday night at Jefferson Hall.

Little is known of the strength of the L. M. U. cagesters but their teams are always hard for the Highlanders to defeat and one of the best games of the season should be played when these two teams meet.

The Highlanders met and defeated the Hack and Mack team earlier in the season and the football heroes will be out for revenge but the Maryvillians will be just as anxious to make it two straight over their more advertised opponents.

VOGUE OWNER GOES TO NEW YORK

Mr. Siskum, owner of The Vogue, left last Saturday for New York to select his spring line of coats, hats and other apparel for women and girls. Students are invited to come in the latter part of this week and look over the latest styles.

Sportography

Who put out this erroneous rumor that Coach Honaker has little to work with save tradition and a gymnasium.

Our old reliable trio, Davis, Woodard, and White, certainly pour oil on the troubled waters. They don't need alcohol in their radiators.

In fact there are many out for the team who are showing a great fight. Only a few are acting as if college is a four year loaf made by the son from the father's dough.

Among the newer men who are showing great form, should be mentioned "Yankee" Lewis from down in Springfield. Yankee had a good high school record and is continuing his hardwood song.

There have been several articles appearing on this page time and again trying to stimulate interest in some of the minor sports—Why can't we support a boxing team? There are many on the Hill who would relish this idea of being astronomy instructors.

The Wrestlers under Coach Watkins are progressing nicely, we are looking forward to seeing them in action this season.

So much for this column this week—even if I wrote more the chances are you would only laugh.

MARYVILLE LOSES TWO GAMES ON ROAD TRIP

Tepcos-Wesleyan Eke Out Wins Over Scotties.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 9—A fighting team of Maryville College Highlanders won the plaudits of a large crowd of basketball fans here tonight but went down in defeat before the superior forces of the Chattanooga Tepcos, Southern Independent Champions, by a score of 35 to 30.

The visitors, presenting a team that looked like high school boys beside the rangy Tepcos, started off with a brilliant offensive attack and lead the champions by 16 to 9 at the end of the first quarter but the more experienced Tepcos came back doubly strong in the second period and had a comfortable lead at the half.

The Tepcos retained their lead throughout the rest of the game but another assault by the plucky Maryvillians gave the Chattanoogans plenty to worry over but the rally fell short and the Tepcos won a deserved victory by 35-30.

The Highlanders were led in the scoring department by one Sleepy White, who amassed 12 points to be high scorer of the night. Jack Nee played a bang-up game at guard.

The Tepcos veterans, Capt. Bill Redd, Humpy Phillips, Chuck Braidwood and Johnny Baseman played their usual steady game.

Athens, Tenn., Jan. 10—Maryville College's Highlanders stopped off here tonight after holding the Chattanooga Tepcos to a close 35 to 30 win Friday night, and took one on the chin at the hands of the Tennessee Wesleyan Bulldogs by a count of 27 to 24.

It fell the lot of Ed Costner, former Maryville High School star, tto kick his fellow townsmen in the pantaloons and the blonde forward did the job in a convincing manner. He was sent into the fray when Overby was ejected on personal fouls and before the Highlanders could do anything about it, he had scored six points and pulled his team together thereby spelling disaster for the men of Honaker.

The game was close throughout and it was evident that the margin

College Maid Installs Machinery Worth $1000 During Holidays

Reece Buttonhole Machine Lent To Shop.

The new sewing machines which were received during the holidays are now being installed in the College Maid Shop. One thousand dollars worth of these factory-type machines were purchased at a very special price in a bankrupt sale a short time ago. An extra machine to sew sleeves into garments is also being installed, and a Reese buttonhole machine has been lent to the Shop.

It is customary for the College Maids not to sew during the Christmas holidays, the one and only official vacation taken, but this year there were so many and such large orders to be filled that the machines were run until December thirtieth.

The music committee of the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Dayton, Ohio, were so pleased with the vestments made here for the Westminster Choir that the chairman of the committee called Mrs. McMurray, the director of the shop, on the long distance telephone to tell her how well the committee like the garments. A very gracious letter was received from the pastor, and another from the music chairman.

Registration Begins On Tuesday, Jan. 20

Seniors—Tuesday, January 20
Juniors—Wednesday, January 21
Sophomores—Thursday, Jan. 22.

Freshmen were registered for the year in September. Necessary readjustments for them will be made on Tuesday, January 27.

Upperclassmen who were registered for the year in September need not go to the registrar's office.

Registration will begin each day at 9 a. m., at the registrar's office in Anderson Hall, and continue until 4 p. m.

Students will register with the classes in which they enrolled in the first semester. No changes in classification will be made until the grades are recorded. Those eligible promotion will be notified.

Students should have their students' cards with them when they register. A duplicate will cost ten cents.

All students will be reported to teachers by Tuesday, January 27, and absences will be recorded beginning with that day.

The treasurer's office will be open for the payment of bills on the afternoons of Thursday, Friday and Saturday, January 22, 23, and 24, and all day on Monday and Tuesday, January 26 and 27. The late registration fee of $5.00 will go into effect on Wednesday, January 28.

RING OUT THE OLD, RING IN THE NEW

The holidays have yielded to, brought forth, and submitted to the appearance of four new rings. Indeed 'tis a story that's been told and told, and will doubtless keep on tolling.

Alice Renegar, an example of beauty for which her native state of Kentucky is famous, is the proud wearer of a lovely ring which tells its history in a sparkling fashion. Another senior who is impeding the flexibility of the third finger on her left hand is Velma Farley, but she earnestly believes in that kind of impediment.

A junior who is living in the shadow of a great rock is none other than Jane Duke. She has not been left speechless and consequently tells an interesting story. May she have a whole Cotton plantation. Frances Buntin, a freshman, has come to the front by making her left hand likewise useless for anything but admiring gazes and piercing glances. She remains true to the South and to old Mississippi.

Thus, the inevitable but hoped-for results of successful and profitable moonshining have been demonstrated by four delighted and victorious coeds. May they live forever in the State of Happiness, City of Marryville.

"No", said the honest man, "I was never strong at literature. To save my life I could not tell you who wrote Gray's 'Elegy'."

Travel Not Yet Safe According to Tales Related By Students

Christmas Adventures Comparable To Days of Stage Coach.

Wrecks, flats, flips, breakdowns and hold-ups are all in the day's work to the traveling Maryvillian. At least it would seem so from the tales being ardently recounted by many of the returned students. Perhaps after all traveling is the liberal education that it is said to be. At least John Hendry and Bill Hanna know quite a bit more about a Velie than the average stay-at-home. It seems that in accordance with the growing custom of owning your own car these two nomads purchased a Velie (automobile) in which they intended making their regal entrance to Maryville. However, the Velie, as all good cars eventually do, developed an acute case of tempermantalism and refused to come closer than two hundred and fifty miles. Leaving it in good hands they caught a bus (perhaps the Colonial) and arrived on the hill pretty liberally educated.

Andy Newcomer has found that his car doesn't travel quite so smoothly on its top as on its wheels. About seventy miles beyond Knoxville the wayward machine somehow imagined itself to be a diving mermaid, attempting a side one and one half flip, leaving the top and windshield scattered over the Tennessee soil. Being not satisfied with that outrage the animated bus later shows itself the true college can by having no brakes and aering through a red light in Baltimore, over the curb, skillfully dodging the traffic and finally stopping in front of a private garage. Lila and Winn Barr, Elinor and Paul Winn were his companions in distress.

Leland Gilmore reports much excitement. Having a serious breakdown at 12:30 a. m. was bad but to be held-up by the fellows taking him for help was beyond Leland's powers to accept gracefully. However, sitting between an ex-pug and a doper, the latter fondly handling a shiny 45 Caliber revolver, was hardly the place to refuse to hand over the cash requested by the men, but the old Gilmore combination of pathos and persuasiveness won the issue and the situation was so altered that the would-be yeggs actually hauled in the broken down car. Bill Dobbie, Jim Shirley, Betty Wilbar, Horace Cunningham, and Katherine Keeler attempted the long drive with Gilmore.

Larry Summers gaily departed for Philadelphia with the campus Nash loaded with a unique group as cargo. A broken connecting rod, innumerable flat tires, a thirsty radiator and Tom Cooper kept him pretty well interested. Fortunately, or otherwise, Tiny Waters was along and one cold morning as Larry was pasting together an inner tube the obese gentleman visited the nearest farm house where he proceeded to put a hook on that notorious line of his and began to fish for a breakfast. Well, he got it and from all accounts he got practically all of it. "Why yes, I will have a cup of coffee but please nothing else", but he had eaten seven huge biscuits and all that goes with them before he left.

Hitch-hiking Highlanders report a few instances of the unusual but on the whole their trips were not particularly remarkable. Likewise the bus travelers seem to have been left out of most of the fun.

MARYVILLE'S NEW PRESIDENT TO HOLD ANNUAL REVIVAL

Each February those on the Hill find great strength in the knowledge that the Meetings have a long and honorable history, in the interest and prayers of many folk all around the world, and not least in the spirit of earnestness and prayer which rules among the students and faculty of the College. God's blessing has been given often; it is our privilege to expect it again.

Glee Club Plans Mid-Year Concert For February 2

The Glee Singers are rounding into shape for their big concert of the year which will be on February 2. According to the amount of time spent on this program, it promises to be the best in the year. The club abandoned the custom of the last few seasons of having a fall concert, and has been spending its entire time and energy on this mid-year program.

The plan is to have the first half of the program filled with a variety of numbers, which will apease the taste for classical, spiritual or popular music. Not only, close harmony but swinging rythm and sentimental feelings will be expressed by the eighteen voices.

The last section of the program will be taken up by a rollicking comic opera "Romeo and Juliet".

As a take off on Shakespeare's famous tragedy, this operetta is certain to be full of witty comebacks, and puns, and it will present a happy ending for the twelfth spring concert of the Merry Music Makers.

STUDENTS IN MARYVILLE DURING HOLIDAYS ENTERTAINED

The students who stayed in Maryville during the Christmas holidays received some compensation in the form of a Taffy Pull. Mrs. Queener and Dorothy Kellar entertained the girls on Friday evening, December 26th. About fifteen girls were present and found that taffy, cocoa, sandwiches, rook, and a victrola help to make a chattering good Christmas celebration.

Three of the girls who attended the party, Pauline Throne, Janet Warren, and Annabel Anderson, enjoyed staying with Mrs. Hall at the Lamar Hospital. Carol Cushman, Ruth Boyd, Katherine Smith, and Bernice McNutt were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Webb. The Glascocks were pleased to have Mildred Purviance as their Christmas guest, and Lois Cupler and Margaret Kellar kept house together at Prof. Smith's apartment. Other students who stayed in Maryville were: Elizabeth Gillis, Jean Martin, Don Fortune and Michael Testa.

Pre-Med. Students Must Take Aptitude Test Friday, Feb. 13

Hereafter, all students who are applying for admission to medical school must pass an Aptitude Test, decrees the Association of American Medical Colleges.

During the past two years about 15,000 men applied for admission to medical schools in the United States and Canada. Of this number slightly more than 7,000 could be admitted on account of lack of facilities for accommodating more. Of the number admitted, 20 per cent have been forced to drop out. Therefore a committee appointed by the Association, after two years work has devised an Aptitude Test which gives a very high degree of correlation with the success of the students in the medical course.

The above is a brief summary of the information received recently by the Registrar of Maryville College from the Association of American Medical Colleges. The Registrar has been asked that a member of the teaching staff be designated to give the test and to collect the fee of one dollar from each applicant. The tests are being given the same day in all schools and colleges. The test requires approximately two hours and will begin at 3:00 o'clock, February 13th. The committee will score and tabulate tests. All students desiring to enter medical school in 1931 should arrange to take the test on the date indicated above.

Active Moonshiners Secretly Married

One of the surprises of the Christmas season was the announcement of the marriage of Miss Jane Glascock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Glascock, to Mr. Paul Milburn Edris, on September 8, 1930.

The marriage was anounced at a reception held Thursday evening, December 25, from 5:00 to 6:00 o'clock, at the home of the bride, before fifty schoolmates, relatives and friends.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Lois Cupler and Mildred Purviance, Mr. and Mrs. Glascock, parents of the bride, entered and said: "We were married September 8, 1909." Following them came Mr. and Mrs. Homer Rhea, relatives of the bride, and announced: "We were married September 8, 1919". Then Mr. and Mrs. Paul Edris entered and said: "We were married September 8, 1930."

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Glascock of this city. She is a member of the Class of '31, and is a Home Economics major.

Mr. Edris is a member of the Junior class and is very active in all campus actiivities

DR. EDWIN R. HUNTER NOW DEAN OF COLLEGE

M. C. PRESIDENT AND TREASURER TO REPRESENT COLLEGE AT INDIANAPOLIS

DR. LLOYD AND MR. PROFFITT LEAVE FOR INDIANA TODAY

Delegates to Attend Three National College Associations

A WEEK'S TRIP

Claypool Hotel, Indianapolis Scene of Educational Activities

During the week of January 19th Maryville College will be represented by Dr. Lloyd and Mr. Proffitt at three national college associations, all of which will meet at the Claypoole Hotel in Indianapolis, Indiana.

On Monday and Tuesday is the annual meeting of the Presbyterian College Union, attended by the presidents or representatives of the various colleges in America under Presbyterian auspices. The membership of the Union includes more than fifty colleges, and the president is Dr. Harry M. Gage, president of Coe College, Iowa. The program for the two days consists chiefly of addresses on things of interest to such schools as Maryville. It is interesting to know that Dr. Wilson was invited to address the Union on the subject, "Reminiscenes of a College President", but, on account of absence from the country, was unable to accept.

On Wednesday the Liberal Arts College Movement has its first annual meeting. This movement was instituted a year ago for the purpose of presenting to the American people the value of a college of Liberal Arts. On account of the recent increase of attention toward professional schools and universities, the colleges of Liberal Arts have suffered, and this newly established organization of over two hundred colleges, of which Maryville is a member, plans to improve conditions by emphasizing the true purpose, advantage, and value of the college of Liberal Arts.

On Thursday and Friday the Association of American Colleges holds its regular annual meeting. This organization includes colleges from all over the United States, and will be attended and addressed by famous educators, musicians, and sculptors. Last year the Association met in Washington, D. C. and Maryville was represented by Dr. McMurray.

Although Mr. Proffitt probably will not remain for the entire week, he will attend the meetings of the first few days, and through him and Dr. Lloyd, who will remain for all of the sessions, Maryville College will receive the benefit of contact with the hundreds of other American colleges in these three associations.

Maryville Graduates Three This Semester

Five Other Students to Leave School

The end of the semester was graduation day for Velma Farley, Bob Anderson and Horace Lillard, seniors. Farley's major is mathematics; Anderson's major is political and social science; and Lillard majored in history.

Maryville is also losing three other students who plan to take up work elsewhere.. Lucille Heddon, freshman will begin work at Asheville Junior College; Rosemary Shoopman sophomore, plans to enter Center College, Danville, Kentucky; Marion McMurray, sophomore, will enter Pratt Institute in Brooklyn to take up the study of art; Veta Mae Stephens also a sophomore, will not be able to return next semester because of ill health.

Women Forbidden To Burn Midnite Oil

Miss Caldwell presented the facts of the coming examinations, and the consequent desire of the women for permission to sit up and study after lights are out at 10:30. She emphasized the undesirability of this plan, due to the fact that lighted candles are a menace to the buildings.

After some discussion it was decided to change the schedule for study hour this week, beginning the 13th, and also change it during examination week. At present, study hour begins at 6:30 and lasts until 9:00. A half hour is then given for the purpose of getting ready for ed, with an hour to study before lights are out. During examination week, Miss Caldwell said it might be possible to keep the lights on until eleven o'clock, but if this was done, there must be no sitting up studying by candle-light.

"Green Stockings" to Be Given By College Players Next Monday

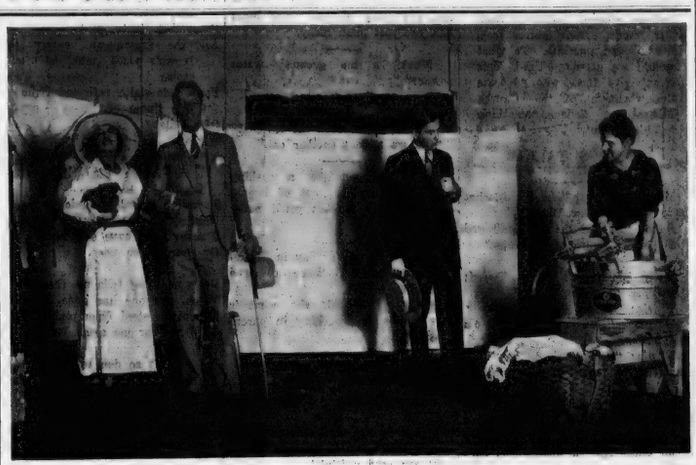
Second Offering of Players Starring Jones and Briggs

On Monday evening, January 26, at 8 o'clock in Voorhees Chapel the College Players step before the Foot lights to present as their second play of the year, "Green Stockings." It is a comedy drama by A. E. W. Mason, and is being coached by Mrs. Nellie Caldwell Morton.

It is an old English custom for the oldest sister of a family to don green stockings when any of her sisters marry and the Faraday family, around which the story lies, has always adhered closely to this custom. Celia Faraday, a dependable girl of twenty-nine, has donned the stockings twice to see two younger sisters slip away into matrimony. She is the one in the family to whom everyone looks for aid. She is classed as the old maid type, not much apt to get married.

Celia falls in love with a fictitious man, to show the people that she, also, has room in her heart for romance. To prove herself, she writes a very lovely letter to her John Smith, in the presence of the whole family. Celia purposely fails to mail the letter, but it is accidentally placed in the mail by the butler.

When Celia's lover fails to materialize she gives out a report that he has been killed. When the entire family is suffering its greatest remorse over the loss of the much loved John Smith—alas—he appears on the scene in person.



The play develops many comic circumstances of this kind. An added bit of farce comedy is exhibited by the acting of Ed Buchanan and Wesley Culver; each takes the part of an empty headed Englishman.

"Celia" is played by Lavinia Jones. The part of John Smith, the REV. H. T KERR IN KNOXVILLE THIS WEEK

Rev. Dr. Hugh T. Kerr, Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, and President of the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church is to be in Knoxville on Wednesday, January 21. There will be a popular meeting in the Second Presbyterian Church at 7:30 p. m. to which the public is invited. Prior to that he is to speak at a banquet in the same church to pastors and church officers of East Tennessee. During the day he is to speak at the University.

The above is a scene from "My Irish Cinderella" which will be presented tonight in Voorhees Chapel at 8:00 o'clock. The characters pictured are Jane Duke, Paul Edris Ben Groves, and Louise Avery. The fowl is Rupert Emert. Other characters are Alexander Jones, Elizabeth Wilbur, Ray Dollenmayer, Margaret Auld and Leland Gilmore.

Dayton Westminster Choir To Sing Here Thursday, Feb. 19

Choir of International Fame Has Five Maryville Singers

The Dayton Westminster Choir will give a concert in Voorhees Chapel on Thursday, February 19, at 3:30 p. m. under the auspices of the Vesper Choir.

The Dayton Westminster Choir is one of the most famous groups of religious singers in the world. It has been warmly received in New York, Boston, Detroit, Baltimore, Cleveland and in the capitals of Europe.

Maryvillians have a special interest in the Choir because some of the members are alumni of our school. Among them are Froney French, Robert Jensen, Walter Buchanan, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Alvin Keene. Mrs. Keene was formerly Miss Ruth McMurray, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. McMurray.

The Westminster Choir concert will be one of the most important musical events of the year. No one should miss it.

Mr. Harry Kimmel, manager of the Westminister Choir School stated in a letter to Mrs. McMurray:

"Because of the fact that Westminster is so close to Maryville College and so many connected with Maryville College so close to Westminster Choir School, we shall look forward to this concert just as much as the people of Maryville will look forward to our coming.

Glee Club Prepares To Present First Program on Feb. 2

Excellent Program Promised Miss Henry Acting as Director

Under the direction of Miss Frances Henry the College Glee Singers will present their first program on February 2. Jim Shirley will act as accompanist. The talent of the club seems better this year than ever before so that the program promises much in the way of charm and art.

The first part of the program consists of a collection of numbers including old, familiar melodies, popular pieces, and modern selections. The latter part of the program is to be a musical burlesque on that famous production of Wm. Shakespeare, "Romeo and Juliet".

Harry Matthias as Romeo is a character well worth seeing. Wesley Culver, in the role of Juliet, is a modern flapper while "Little Buck" takes the part of the Nurse. Then another enjoyable part of this presentation will be the Apothecary as played by Edwin Shelley who is marvelous pill-compounder and places great confidence in the use of his stomach pump.

So, in more ways than one, this concert of the Glee Singers promises to be an excellent program of entertainment.

And then they say there was the Scotch student who couldn't help but look forward to the time when exams would be wiven!

Cherniausky Trio To Entertain Here On Tuesday, Jan. 27

Unusual Talent to be Brought to Hill in Third Lyceum Number

The third lyceum number of the year will be presented Tuesday evening, January twenty-seventh, at eight o'clock in Voorhees Chapel when the Cherniausky Trio will give a varied musical program.

The trio is composed of Leo, Jan, and Mischel Cherniausky, all musicians of unusual ability. Mischel plays the 'cello. The Cherniauskys have been playing together since their childhood.

Leo was first presented to the public as a violinist at the age of six years, "when his remarkable performance, clear and facile in intonation, and flawless in execution, made him something more than a nine-days wonder."

Jan made his first concert tour with his brother Leo at the age of seven. Some years later he studied in Vienna and "acquired the musical knowledge which has placed him among the greatest living pianists—perhaps the foremost of the younger generation."

Mischel has also been performing since his youth and Saint-Saens considered Mischel's rendering of his magnificent Concerto in A minor to be perfect and prophesied a golden future for him.

Since 1901 the Cherniauskys have toured the world several times and have been acknowledged in five continents as belonging to the first rank of executive artists.

On Being Crabby—Julia Terry

There are many different forms of crabbiness each particular form being dependent upon the source of crabidity.

I for one have acquired one of the most peculiar forms of crabbiness, and since it is just a recent acquisition I have decided to expostulate on my particular genus, a genus to which I have become a firm but painful addict, not by choice but by surprise.

It seems that the zoology department has been reveling in the estate of crabdom for the past week or two; and a particular member of this class decided one of her friends was not sufficiently well acquainted with crabs to the extent that her knowledge of crabidity had been sadly neglected.

After the lights went out, the unsuspecting and totally ignorant friend (that is, ignorant in the sense of any impending danger) turned in—and immediately turned out, not an easy process when one sleeps on top deck. And then by candlelight, in the calm and quiet of the night, and in the privacy of her own boudoir, and also before the terrified eyes of an equally amazed roommate, this martyred friend brought forth a detached fore-leg of a dead crab—the crab had been left in the laboratory, at least the victim hopes that the animal in its totality will not be the second and more advanced lesson on becoming crabby.

The trophy is hanging in state in the room of the victim preparatory to its being used on someone else who has not reached a satisfactory state of crabidity.

"FLU" AND PLEURISY CLAIM STUDENT VICTIMS

Mrs. Hall, of the Lamar Hospital, has been entertaining for some time now, three of Maryville's students who have been ill either with the "flu" or pleurisy.

Veta Mae Stephens has been ill for two weeks and is not expected to be out for another week.

Caroll Cushman also has a slight attack of pleurisy, but it is hoped that she will be out in a few days.

Winn Barr, who has been suffering with the "flu" is able to be up now and probably will be able to be oSn and will probably be well enough to take his examinations this week.

HEAD OF ENGLISH DEPT. SUCCEEDS DR. BARNES AS DEAN

Dr. Barnes Made Dean Emeritis By Directors' Committee Jan. 5th.

DEAN SIXTEEN YEARS

Both Appointments Effective At the End of Present Semester.

Dr. Edwin Ray Hunter, Professor of the English Language and Literature, and one of the most popular members of the College Faculty, was appointed Dean of Maryville College, January 15, by the Directors' Committee on Proffessors and Teachers. Dr. Jasper Converse Barnes, for the past sixteen years Dean of the College, was elected Dean Emeritus, effective at the end of the present semester.

This action was taken at Dean Barnes' own request, because his health is such as to make it impossible for him to carry both the work of his teaching and of the Dean's office. He will continue his work as Professor of Psychology and Education, and will retain his office in Thaw Hall.

Dean Barnes is the oldest member of the College Faculty in number of years of service. He has been connected with the Institution thirty-eight years. He came to Maryville College in 1892 through the solicitation of Dr. Wilson, as Principal of the Preparatory Department and Professor of the Science and Art of Teaching. In 1901 he became acting professor of Psychology, and in 1903, he became Professor of Psychology and Political Science. He was elected to the deanship of the college in 1914, succeding Dean E. B. Waller.

Dr. Barnes received his B. A. degree from Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio, in 1890, and his Ph. D. from the University of Chicago in 1911, having done his work entirely during the summer vacations. Dean Barnes is recognized as one of the leading psychologists of the nation, being prominent in the American Association, and having contributed many articles to scientific publications. During his years in Maryville College he has received many attractive offers from institutions of higher learning, but his devotion to the college has caused him to remain here. He has sent out some very capable students who have gained distinction as psychologists.

The Directors' Committee expressed its high appreciation of his extended service in his office, and its hope that he may long find joy in his teaching.

The new Dean is a graduate of Maryville College in the Class of 1914. He received a Masters Degree

Women Elect Beebe Y. W. C. A. President

As a result of the Y. W. C. A. election held Thursday, the following women were elected to office:

President—Merle Beebe
Vice-President—Pat Henry
Secretary—Barbara Lyle
Treasurer—Betty Wilbar
Nu Gamma Chairman—Nez Hamrick

This is the first time in the history of the Organization that the annual election has been held in January, and it is hoped that the work and cooperation with the retiring officers will aid the new officers in the carrying out of their respective duties. The installation of the new officers will be held shortly after the beginning of the second semester. During the interim the new president will select her cabinet for the coming year.

The offices will be held for the year 1931, the next election occurring in January 1932.

Dishonor Reports

A moonshiner at a recent chapel performance, picked up a discarded honor report blank from the floor, and showing it, said:

"Those little white lies!"

On Tuesday morning when the chapel monitors take honor reports for church attendance, we are inclined to compare the signing of the said reports with Touchstone's "Seven Degrees of the Lie" in As You Like It. We attempt to nominate in order the degrees of dishonor.

Those who really go to church are of course eliminated from this discussion. For the others there are the three degrees of dishonor. Suppose one goes to church the first Sunday in each month. He is then well able throughout the month, to place on the date line the name of the month, but he omits the day. The monitor will think that the student couldn't recall the day, or else was so hurried that he neglected it. This we would call the Report Lacking. There is another who did not go to church at all. He signs the report, however. He writes dog latin, or some thing else in an illegible script. The monitor is to conclude that the signer has writer's cramp. This is called the Report Undecipherable.

People who practice the first two degrees of dishonor evidently believe that their monitors have weak minds, implicit faith in mankind, and poor eye sight. They also support their deeds with strong arguments. "I did go to church in January", is a good answer to any inquiry about the Report Lacking. "You see I didn't say what Sunday I went." "I didn't write down the name of a church" is an excellent retort to any question that might be raised concerning the "Report Undecipherable.

The third degree of dishonor is called the Lie Direct. It is practiced by those who have hardened their consciences or who are probably too dumb to think up a ruse. Or maybe they have criminal tendencies. They didn't go to church, and they defy God and man by putting down in black and white that they did! Their chapel monitors evidently have good eyesight.

When is a lie not a lie? When it is an evasion? Hardly. Freshmen write essays on Truth; preachers talk about it; commencement speakers tell us to pursue it. We evidently have some respect for it or we wouldn't try to kid ourselves into thinking that we are not lying when we evade the truth.

The above paragraphs about the three degrees of dishonor may sound like hookum in the nth degree, but it remains everlastingly true that such petty deceptions are practiced every week. Should we call them dishonor reports?

The Maryville Mind

Recently some of the young women were asked by the Y. M. C. A. to write discussions of their ideal men. The men were given the same opportunity by the Y. W. C. A. to put on paper what they expect of women. At recent meetings of these organizations, the letters were read aloud. From all reports, the women had taken their task seriously, and had enumerated in detail the qualities that man desires in woman, but we regret to say that a few young men could not resist getting funny.

It is not our point, however, to elaborate upon the merits of the respective letters. One thing did impress us—that on the whole, Maryville's student body is clean minded and wholesome. Despite the belief and writings of Judge Lindsay and other students of so called "flaming youth" to the contrary, we refuse to believe that our campus harbors students suffering from sick minds. Their desires seem normal and unselfish. To what should we attribute this? This might give those who advocate the abolition of the Church Liberal Arts College, something to think about.

The Highland Bard

TO BEETHOVEN, HANGING ON MY WALL

Do you always wear that stern
frown that wrinkles your brow,
And draw your lips into a straight line?
Does your hair always lie in the same curly precision?
And your eyes—do they always stare coldly on my bed, as they do now?
Or do they sometimes flash with martial fires and symphonic raptures?
Perhaps your hair is sometimes
tousled,
Disordered by excited fingers as they turn aside a moment
From their instrument.
And the frown—ah, surely the frown's place must be often stolen
By a soft smile reflected from the tiny flame
Of a lullaby.

FAIRY FANCIES

There's a crowd of pixie people
Dancing on the grass;
I never once have seen them
Or heard them pass.

But something tells me that
When everyone has gone,
The pixies steal from pixie homes
To dance for me alone.

If I weren't so deaf to fairy strains,
I'm sure I could hear the pixies
laugh,
Like pixie music from afar
That on a cool, night breeze is caught.

If I weren't so blind to fairy forms,
I could see eerie pixie shapes,
With our secret, dance and play
In most delightful pixie ways.

WALKING WITH GOD

I walked with the stars at midnight,
When all was quiet and still;
I even talked with them,
Those brilliant, sparkling worlds,
Beautiful, scintillating,
Of red and green and blue and white.

And as I looked and dreamed,
I could but wonder
Which of all the shining multitude
Shone on Bethlehem's Babe so long ago,
And guided Wise Men to His bed
With gifts of gold and myrrh.

Maybe you haven't heard the one about the absent minded professor who forgot where he put his examination questions. Neither have we!

'NOOGA WINS OVER MARYVILLE MATMEN

Experience Counts as Scotties Bow 21 to 15

The Chatttanooga "Y" wrestling team proved to be a wee bit experienced for the boys Saturday evening and the scorers chalked up a 21 to 15 score with Maryville on the small end. Points were awarded on the basis of 5 for a fall and 3 for a win by time advantage. Peacock, Teffeteller, and Overly procured the three falls for the home boys.

Dixon, of Maryville, and Larue of Chattanooga, set off the fireworks with a 115-lb tussle. Although Dixon took the offensive, Larue's reluctancy to mix caused the referee to put them on the mat with Larue having the perfect leaal advantage. The 'Nooga boy promptly jumped on Dixon and remained there for the most of the remaining time, thereby gaining three points for his team.

Couch, highly touted 125-lb man for the opponents, didn't look so hot when Dick Marston took him on. They foubht nip and tcuk until the perfunctory time had elapsed, when Crouch was found to have slight time advantage.

Peacock, in the 135-lb class, had no trouble at all in subduing Anderson (no relation, by the way, to our Bob). After a fast minute of scrimage, Peacock secured the hold that spelled 5 points for Maryville.

In the 145-lb. class, Hatcher, newly elected captain of the Maryvillians, lost by a fall to Selcer.

"Teefy" Teffeteller, grid luminary, added another 5 points to the Maryville score by pinning Bunn, who had good intentions but was unable to carry them out.

Hall, visiting 165-lb. boy (?), seemed to put a jiny on Tom Cash by wearing a pair of trousers like beach pajamas. Although the pants had nthing to do with the outcome, Cash finally succumbed to a loss via the fall route.

Although Burns was engaging in his first match, he gave a real fight to Headrick, former Maryvilleite. However, experience again won out the visitors gained 5 more points.

In the Behemoth class, "Pee-wee" Overly and Fox, of Chattanooga, had a real scrap. Fox, however, was not so wily as the proverbial animal of the same name and Overly climaxed the meet by winning the Unlimited match and 5 points.

Maryville has another hard meet next Saturday nite with the Knoxville "Y". With its added experience, the team hopes and expects to make a much better showing.

And don't make them think that you are doing it because of their wavy golden hair, money, raccoon coat, spats, reckless past, or likker. It's because we are betting on them to win—always.

TENNIS PLANS ARE NEARING COMPLETION

Buchanan and Strain Are Letter Men Back.

Tennis season again approaches, and with it the arrangements for another successful year. The former stars of the clay court have dissapeared save Buchanan and Dick Strain. These two were both letter men last year and will constitute the nucleus around which this year's team will be based.

The trip this year will be through North Carolina and will last through an entire week if present plans materialize. Several men have expressed a desire to try out for the team among whom are: Don Buchanan, Fischback, John Phay, John Talmadge, Edgar Shephard. Let's have this another case of another sport, another honor for Maryville

SPORTOLOGY

By BOB WEST

The word Luck is often used in describing basket ball games. But really and truly luck means hardships and privations you have not hesitated to endure; the long hours you have devoted to practice or work. Luck means the appointments which are always attended to promptly. Luck is not, as usually thought, something handed you by a friend. It comes from hard work and plenty of it.

—:—

The luck which comes to the Highlanders is certainly won. The final scores have laurels both of team and individual honor. Hard work is bringing them Luck.

—:—

There is no luck attached to finding a collar button when you know that all collar buttons roll under the dresser. There seems to be something uncanny about the way the Scotties know what and when to do a thing and how to do it.

—:—

L. M. U. gave the boys a pretty good run for their score but it was noticeable that the Highland machine was not functioning at its best. The last half looked much better, in fact. It portrays that true Maryville sport spirit—the "ole" fight to the finish.

—:—

It is a noticeable fact that the better the opposition the better any team plays. Some of that "I know your pace" stuff. We are having the opportunity of seeing some of the country's fast teams play this year—let's give the boys a pat on the back once in a while.

The Maryville Spirit

"You aren't going to the ball game? Well, I must say you don't have any school spirit!

Some one said this to us recently. We wonder what that person should have done had we answered in this manner:

"You haven't done your library reading? You aren't going to prepare that lesson? Well, I must say you don't have any school spirit!"

The college bulletin says a lot about the Spirit of Maryville. As freshmen we heard upper classmen talk about it. We hoped we'd get it. Some one told us we'd have to graduate first. Of course we didn't swallow that—but—

Neither do we believe that neglecting work, or leaving a book that we like to read, or putting off needed rest in order that we may sit, on the bleachers and add our feeble pipe to the "Rahs Rahs", is school spirit. Of course we believe in intercollegiate athletics. We think college would be a dead old dump without it. We want our team to win, and we're willing to back it—within reason. But we refuse to believe that the way to manifest the Maryville spirit is to be a "Rah Rah" student. Other extra-curricular activities are essential, too, but the representative student is not one who participates in them to the neglect of the cultivation of the mind.

We would hold that the Maryville spirit is manifest in the contact of sharpened intellects as well as on the gridiron. It lurks in the unused books in the library as well as at chapel performances. We should like to believe it is the combination of every thing that we think worth while.

HIGHLANDERS TRIM KANSAS TORNADOES

Jan. 13—Plainly showing the evil effects of extensive traveling and every night's playing, the Kansas Tornadoes were handed their most decisive defeat of the season tonight by a dashing team of Maryville College Highlanders in a rather listless affair that saw the men of Honaker all but throw the Professionals off the court. The score was 44 to 25.

Arriving long after game time following an all day ride from Little Rock, Arkansas, the Kansas team hurriedly donned their uniforms and started the game without any warming up and as a result they turned in a pitiful performance. They went about their business with as much energy as a convict crushes rocks while the Maryvillians, expecting to be hopelessly outclassed, took advantage of the opportunity and scored points almost at will.

Like most other Professional teams, the Tornadoes played man for man defense and this just about proved their undoing. The well-conditioned Highlanders moved over the court with the speed of Texas jack rabbits and before the game was five minutes old they had their opponents gasping for breath. It was a scream to see Miller, who finally went out on fouls, try to keep pace with Kemp Davis.

Again the majority of the Highlanders' points were made by Coach Honaker's crack forward combination, Davis and White. Kemp was here, there and everywhere, continually breaking up plays, intercepting passes and starting the Highlanders on an attack of their own which generally resulted in a basket. He passed the ball unselfishly and it was through his work that many of the Highlanders' points were scored. "Easy" was there with the same dead eye for the basket and his shooting efforts resulted in the scoring of 15 points which lead both teams in this department. He was closely followed by Captain Davis who registered eleven.

The visitors presented one player who gave the fans an exhibition of plain and fancy basket ball. He was Grant a forward, and it was through his efforts that the Tornadoes were kept in the game. He brought the stands to their feet with beautiful one hand shots that made the art of goal tossing look easy and at times bewildered the Scotties with tricky fake plays and hidden ball tricks. He accounted for eight of the visitors' points.

OLD RIVALS ARE FEATURE THIS WEEK

University of Tennesse and Tenn. Wesleyan.

One of the best games of the season will be played on the Maryville court Thursday night when the Tennessee Wesleyan Bulldogs invade the Maryville stronghold for an effort to win their second straight victory over the Scotties.

The Bulldogs won a close victory over the Highlanders last week, and the men of Honaker will battle their hearts out Thursday night to atone for this defeat.

On Saturday night, the Maryville-game with the Mighty Volunteers of the University of Tennessee. This game means more to the Maryville boys than any other one on their schedule as a victory over Tennessee would give them a high rating in Southern basket ball.

Swimming Pool Opens for New Season

The swimming season will open officially at tthe beginning of the second semester when the swimming team will begin practice. n a few weeks there are to be five class meets held to determine the winner of the Coughlin Cup. The class teams are expected to be in top form for these inter-class events

The Coughlin Cup was instituted last year by Wm. B. Coughlin, and his son Jack, who is instructor at the College. Mr. Coughlin is active in Y. M. C. A. work in this section of the country. He has put forth an extra effort to encourage swimming in Maryville by offering the cup to the school. Last year, the first year the cup was in existence, it was won by the Sophmores. This team expected to put up a good fight in hope of repeating their performance of last year.

The swimming instructor will begin classes as soon as the semester begins, in advance swimming, advance diving, and life saving. There will also be special classes for students who wish to learn to swim.

SCOT'S TAKE FAST TILT FROM L. M. U.

Visitors Gave Good Fight But Caved in End.

The Highlanders found the L. M. U. cagesters in a basket ball playing mood in the first half Friday night but came back strong in the last period ond overwhelmed the visitors by a score of 46 to 30.

The Rail Splitters took a slight lead in the early stages of the game but the Highlanders soon overcame this slight advantage and took a two point lead which they retained throughout the remainder of the game The Highlanders were never able to gather more than a four usually there was only two points difference. The score at the half was 22 to 20.

Led by the brilliant one-hand shooting of Breezy White, the Scots came back with a rush in the final period and gradually drew away from their opponents and took a large lead that was never threatened Capt. Davis, Cooper, Nee and Woodward gave White Excellent support both on the offense and the defense.

Fulkerson, all-conference foot ball man, was the outstanding figure for the visitors. He garnered 10 points to lead his team in scoring. He was second only to White, who scored 18.

Students interested in Babson Institute, the school that gives an intensive training in the fundamental laws of business, may meet Mr. W. R. Mattson, Assistant to the President, on Sunday and Monday, January 25 and 26, by appointment, at The Read House, Chattanooga.

Exasperated by this show of indolence the traveler said "Boy, if you can act any lazier I'll give you fifty cents." And in answer came the drawl, "Put it in my pocket."

A new record for meaness: The prof who borrowed the students pencil to mark him down a zero.

Chilhowean Theme Clever and Unusual Asserts Loyal Staff

Work on the Chilhowean is progressing satisfactorily under the direction of Homer McCann and Hadley Webb with the cooperation of the staff members.

An unusual theme has been selected and is being followed throughout the book in every way possible. The arrangement of the pictures and the kind of feature section promise to be novel, to say the least. A beautiful color scheme is being employed all through the book and in the cover. All old students will notice a great difference in the type of cover that will be found on the annual this year.

It is hoped that the book will be completed by the middle of March so that copies will be ready for distribution by the middle of April or on May Day.

Pictures of all students must be in the hands of the editor by the first of February. The senior pictures have all been taken, but many individual pictures of the juniors, sophomores, and freshmen are yet to be submitted.

M. C. Scene of Well Attended Inter-Racial Meeting

"The Negro In Industry" was the topic discussed at the Inter-racial Meeting held in Thaw Hall, January 12. At this meeting there was present one of the largest attendances which has been known since the beginning of gatherings like this. Representatives from Knoxville College, U. T. and from Morristown College were there and took part in the discussion. Several points were made by the speakers among which were noted the (1) injustice of the labor-unions toward the negro, (2) increase of negroes in professional work, (3) decrease of negroes engaged in menial work. The fact that changes are being made by the negro is evidence that he is facing a crisis in his development and that he needs help and encouragement.

DR. EDWIN R. HUNTER NOW DEAN OF COLLEGE

Succeeds Dean Barnes.

in 1917, and a Ph. D. in 1925—both are from the University of Chicago, and both are in English. He taught one year in the East St. Louis High School, and has been a member of the College Faculty for thirteen years. In the summer of 1926 he taught in Emory-Henry College; in summers of 1927-28-29 at the University of Tennessee, and in the summer of 1930 at Duke University.

Dean Barnes was well pleased with the choice of Dr. Hunter as his successor. The new Dean will assume his official duties at the opening of the second semester on January 27, 1931. His office will be located in Anderson Hall.

Washington, D. C.—A proclamation was recently issued in the name of the National Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment representing 33 national temperance bodies, which includes practically all the national temperance groups, both large and small. It called upon the pastors of the churches of all denominations to observe the eleventh anniversary of the Eighteenth Amendment on January 16, 1931, by preaching appropriate sermons, and that local committees were urged to celebrate this anniversary by mass meetings, luncheons and dinners to be addressed by prominent officials or other leaders. The proclamation also urged radio broadcasts wherever possible.

One of the most important pronouncements of the National Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment is the following resolution:

"The Eighteenth Amendment was adopted by the orderly process of government. It could be repealed only by the same orderly processes. There is no provision for a referendum under the Federal Constitution. The American form of government established by the Constitution is a representative government of the people through the sovreign states associated for the common good. Having won the Eighteenth Amendment, there is no occasion for the dry forces to join in any movement by referendum or other process for its repeal.

"Believing as we do in the Eighteenth Amendment and the laws pursuant thereto as the best governmental policy yet devised for dealing with the liquor problem, we are definitely and unequivocally opposed: First—To the submission of any amendment which would weaken or repeal in whole or in part Amendment Eighteen, or to any national referendum thereon as contrary to the American principle of representative government. Second—To the submission of any part of this national constitutional policy to either a binding or a non-binding referendum which would tend either directly or indirectly to weaken or nullify the said prohibition amendment. Third—To any procedure or program which would directly or indirectly assist the enemies of the prohibition policy in their efforts to repeal, weaken, or nullify that amendment, or the laws pursuant thereto, or which would tend to encourage lawlessness or make more difficult the enforcement and observance of the prohibition law."

Student Congress Deplores Subsidization In Athletics

Officers Empowered To Investigate Possibility of Staging Nation-Wide Conference on Collegiate Athletics.

Winding up three days of heated discussions and parliamentary fights student leaders at the Sixth Annual Congress of the National Student Federation at Atlanta, Ga., December 29 to January 3rd, passed three resolutions on the evils of college athletics which summarize general student opinion on the problem.

The resolutions were as follows:

1. That the Sixth Annual Congress of the National Student Federation of America deplore the subsidizing of college athletics.

2. That the Sixth Annual Congress of the National Student Federation of America go on record as favoring the award of scholarships on the same basis regardless of participation in extra-curricular activities.

3. That the Sixth Annual Congress of the National Student Federation of America empower its officers to make a thorough investigation of the possibility of staging a nation-wide conference of college presidents, athletic directors and student leaders on COMMERCIALISM AND PROFESSIONALISM IN COLLEGE ATHLETICS.

GEORGE F. MILTON AWARDS IN JOURNALISM

The late George F. Milton, president and editor of the Chattanooga News established a fund to be known as the George F. Milton Awards in Journalism, in his will.

For 1931 the cash award of $500 will be made to the writer who shall publish in any newspaper or periodical in the south during 1931 the best editorial advancing the cause of "International Peace."

In addition to the award in Journalism this fund offers a cash award of $200 to the woman in the south who shall accomplish the most for her sex during the calendar year 1931. This award will be determined, without competition, by the administrators of the fund.

For further information on this subject address the administrators of the fund at the University of Tennessee.

WHY HOME ECONOMICS GIRLS MAKE THE BEST WIVES

By Dorothy Kellar

As I listened in on Bob West's illuminating discussion on the above subject, I began to realize what a break we Home Ec. girls had in the struggle of man for woman. As a starter he took the liberty of changing the title to read "Why Home Ec. Girls Should Make the Best Wives." We allowed the correction.

According to West it is an actual fact that boys like girls. (This is a satisfying bit of knowledge although we sometimes doubt its veracity). A fellow also likes to feel that his girl is a little better than he. Among the many things he admires is the ability to cook. Our most precious legacy is the love of eat-

FREE TRADE LEAGUE

The Free Trade League offers three prizes, respectively, $100., $50., and $25., in a competition open to students majoring in economics in any American college for a fair, non-partisan dissection of the new tariff, with regard to the interest as consumers of our 123,000,000 Americans and in view of the relations of farmers, wage-earners and salaried workers as both producers aand consumers in face of the reduced purchasing power of the dollar, and with reference to the industries claiming permanent benefit from the protective tariff.

The papers will be judged by three members of the American Economic Association, and those proposing to compete are requested to send their names promptly and to submit their papers before December 15, 1930, to the Free Trade League, Room 908, 2 West 45th Street, New York.

The League reserves rights of publication of the winning papers but will give specific permission to the authors and to newspapers and others desiring to republish. There are no rules or regulations but compactness of statement will be counted a merit.

Spring Recital Of Glee Singers On Hill Tonight

Truth About Romeo and Juliet Told In Rollicking Musical Comedy.

CULVER—MATHIAS

Classical Renditions To Offer More Serious Tone To Entertainment.

Mon., Feb. 2—This evening at eight o'clock in Voorhees Chapel the Maryville College Glee Singers present their spring concert. The program is divided into two parts; the first part to contain the classical attainments of the artists and characterized to entertain those preferring "ars gratia artis". The second section is to make an appeal to the ordinary individual by a rollicking parody of Shakespeare's famed moonshiners "Romeo and Juliet". Wesley Culver, with his natural charm, is admirably adapted to the balcony seat as Juliet and receives with true feminine grace and poise the hot impassionate advances of her emotional suitor, Harry Mathias, as Romeo. Juliet's maid is aptly portrayed by the versatile Edwin Buchanan who so far forgets herself as to fall in love with an apothecary, Edwin Shelley, which condition necessitates the introduction of the austute Donald Briggs as a Justice of the Peace to take charge of the incorporating intentions.

Shakespeare's attitude toward "moonshining" as portrayed in the play has often been called in question, so to make the plot conform to the existing ideas of Maryville College, the drama has been reworked by a master hand to exclude all tragic material and introduce humorous and incongruous situations. Interjection of typical

Statistics Prove M. C. Students Read Little

West and Stidham Get Benefit of Library Fee.

January 29—Statistics computed in the college library today show that since last September the majority of Maryville students have made very little use of the "circulating books"—books which may be drawn out for not longer than two weeks. Many students have not taken out even a single book. Many others have made use of only one book.

Some students, however, have done a remarkable amount of reading, considering the time occupied by regular school work and extra-curricular activities. Charles West and Emmet Stidham each have achieved a very high record. The following table shows the rank, the name of student, and the number of "circulating books" drawn out:

1.—Charles West - - - 57
2.—Emmett Stidham - - 56

THE SERENADE OF THE BROOMSTICK

Wednesday morning immediately after the rising bell had pealed and tolled, the inmates on the east side of Pearsons were serenaded by two husky, hearty masculine voices the owners of which were making a sweeping success of their work.

Arthur Schade and Willard Cudney were evidently Thawing out—keeping time to the stroke of the broom and playing a gripping accompaniment on the broom handles.

DAYTON CHOIR TO BRING BEST MUSIC OF YEAR TO M. C.

Westminster Singers To Give Concert Here, Thursday, February 19.

The Westminster Choir will bring to Maryville some of the best music of the year in its concert on February nineteenth.

The voices in the Choir are so perfectly balanced and sing with a precision of tone such as is seldom found. The tonal quality is perhaps superior to that of any other organization in America. Every member is an artist in his own right.

The Dayton Westminster Choir is the logical outgrowth of a system of Choral directing and teaching built up by Dr. John Finley Williamson, designed to achieve first, worship, and second, highest art.

Coming from the home of a clergyman, he realized the value of spiritual songs to the spiritual life. He was convinced that the artistry of church music should be systematically developed, and choir directing made a profession. To this end he established the Westminster Choir School. For the first four years of its history, the school was in Dayton, Ohio. In 1929 when Dr. Williamson became Dean of Music at Ithaca Conservatory, the Westminster Choir School was affiliated with it, and the school opened in Ithaca.

The International Sponsors' Committee includes such prominent people as Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Sir Esme Howard, Dr. Walter Damrosch, the Viscountess Astor, Mrs. R. W. Wurlitzer, and Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, and others.

Dr. Robert E. Speer, of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., and a former Moderator of the General Assembly of that church, said, "I think the Choir is one of the greatest and most useful religious institutions we have. For reverence and beauty and spiritual purity I have never heard any music superior to that of this Choir."

Over nine thousand people heard the Westminster Choir in St. Louis at the concert in the new Coliseum.

Dean of College Fights The "Flu"

For the past ten days Dr. Hunter has been confined to his bed endeavoring to "win a war with the flu" as he appropriately remarks.

The first signs of his approaching illness were evidenced during the holidays but it was not until Thursday of examination week that he finally went to bed. At present he is in a rather slow convalescent state but he hopes to meet his classes by the end of the week.

He is conducting his business as best he can, dictating and signing letters, making out grades, assigning lessons, and performing various other duties of a professor and dean. It is the earnest desire of everyone connected with the college that his recovery be as rapid as possible and that he return soon to his place on the Hill.

CHANGE IN SCHEDULE

February 2—Beginning tomorrow morning several changes will be made in the schedule.

The a and b classes will meet between 8:10 and 9:45. At 9:45 the morning services will be held in the chapel. The services will last one hour.

The evening meal will be at 5:15 instead of 5:30, in order that all of us may be ready to go to the evening meeting which will begin at 6:30.

Debate Season To Be Opened By Women On Afternoon Of Feb. 7

M. C. and Miami U. Co-eds Will Present New Type of Debate.

On Saturday afternoon, February seventh, Maryville will engage in her first debate of the season when the women's team meets Miami Univrsity of Oxford, Ohio, in the Y. W. auditorium. The question is: Resolved: that the nations of the world should adopt a policy of free trade. Maryville will have the affirmative side and will be represented by Elizabeth Duncan, Mildred Crawford, and Hope Snyder.

This debate will be carried on under the Oregon plan, a new type of non-decision debate. Under this plan, each side tries to persuade the audience to believe in its side of the question rather than try to convince three judges that they have produced the most evidence. The first speaker of each side presents all the arguments for her side. The second speaker conducts a cross-examination of her opponents, asking them any and every question relative to the subject. The third and final speaker for each side summarizes the arguments her side has brought out during the debate. The novel part of this debate is the so-called cross-examination. Professor Queener says that this is the most interesting feature of the whole debate and has expressed a desire to see a large number of students present at the debate.

On February 27, the women's team will participate in a triangular debate with Carson-Newman and East Tennessee Teachers College. Both the Maryville affirmative and negative teams will be away from home. Another triangular debate between Maryville, Tusculum,

New Set Of Hymnals For College Arrives On Friday Morning

Selected By Dr. Lloyd; To Be Used For First Time Tomorrow.

An entirely new set of hymnals will be used during the February Meetings. They will be used for the first time tomorrow morning and hereafter, will be the standard hymnal for the College.

The hymnals, which arrived Friday, are an improvement over the old ones in many respects. They were bound especially for the College by the Westminster Press. The hymns were first compiled in 1928 by a group of men and women who have had experience with music in colleges and young people's groups. The selection of the book was made by Dr. Lloyd after having consulted the Music Department, Dr. Stevenson and various members of the Faculty. Dr. Lloyd in giving reasons for his choice said:

"The range of hymns is better. It contains almost all of the best old hymns, and more of the newer ones than do the other books. It also has an unusually good group of special readings, worship programs, prayers and religious poetry. The hymns will be of especial interest to the young people. Many of the songs that deal with the sorrowful side of life have been omitted."

The new hymnal is considerably smaller than the old one. It contains about 400 hymns, whereas the old one contained more than 700. It also presents a very good appearance. It has a special binding of dark green cloth, and the words Maryville College are printed in gold in the upper left hand corner. The title—which is the Church School Hymnal for Youth—does not appear on the cover.

Hina's "Huh"

J. Weldon Hina

There are "huhs" and "huhs" still more "huhs", each one telling its own little tale and imparting its own peculiar sentiment. The Frenchman talks with his shoulders, the Jew with his hands but the American carries on his conversation with this little gutteral. He has a "huh" for every purpose and is very generous in the use of this versitile rumble.

A cross between a hiccough and a grunt, occasionally approaching a snort or falling back to a gurgle, this little phonetic marvel is projected upon the least provocation, expected to express any emotion, idea or feeling that the human organism is capable of harboring. Even the disappointment suffered by the patrolling parent when the new baby is a girl instead of a boy is voiced with "huh". The friend who caught the big fish last summer must be content with a half-hearted semi-credulous "huh" as a response and the ten year old boy after the local chastisement invariably feels called upon to remark his disdain with "Huh, didn't hurt."

But to say that a "huh" is a "huh" regardless of where, when or why spoken is hardly correct. The "huh" used by the self-sufficient young co-ed to a matron is hardly the same masterpiece of intrigue that she coyly uses to the local and contemporary "weakness". True the spelling is identical but here the similarity ends. Force, pressure, depth of tone and general speed are the factors the observer must consider in obtaining the true sentiment. It is at once evident that great complexity is practically unavoidable. It is a word that may be easily misinterpreted and much grief and heartache result but when correctly understood is a constant source of pleasure and expressiveness to all.

Perhaps the best known of all "huhs" is the one always used by the student when asked a question. It begins at a fairly high tone, passing swiftly to a climax two thirds its duration, at which point it strikes the black note above hereby producing the desired inflection. It is usually accompanied by a wrinkling of the forehead and a slight wiggling of the ears if Nature has been so kind as to permit local motion. This is of a general class known as the Interrogative Huh. As a special class we have the remarkably spontaneous ejaculation if the question is propounded as the budding Socrates is enjoying his normal forty five minute stupor. This is a sharp exhalation of the breath, permitting the vocal chords to be acted upon for only an instant and at a very high pitch. It is usually accompaied by the sound of both feet hitting the floor and the snarring creak of the chair as the unfortunate victim of circumstances assumes a vertical position. It is known as the Awakening Interrogative Huh.

Another special class is the "huh" used when the professor reports that no written work was handed in on a certain date. This is known to each of us by personal experience so that no description is necessary.

Then of course there is the "Huh" used by the girl that you have just met. A low sibilant tone, tinkling musically as it echoes from tooth to tooth, vibrant with practically nothing and effectually concealing the least traces of disrespect or inattentiveness. It is usually accompanied by various coy contortions and expressive glances. So well known is this gesture that it has become universally dubbed the Tag Interrogative since it is so reminiscent of the old game

Educ. Meetings Beneficial, Says President Lloyd

Finds Educational Leaders Broadminded and Religious.

Dr. Lloyd, who returned last week from Indianapolis, talks very interestingly about the four college associations he attended while there.

The Presbyterian College Union, composed of fifty Presbyterian colleges, held its thirtieth annual meeting on Monday and Tuesday of the week of January 19. The president-elect of this association is Dr. H. W. Reherd, president of Westminster College, Salt Lake City, Utah, in which institution both Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd were former instructors. The discussions of the Union were particularly about plans for presenting to the American people facts about the importance of a Christian Liberal Arts College. One of the speakers on the program was Reed S. Dickson, Secretary of the Board of Pensions, who was football coach of Maryville College in 1906 and 1907, and under whose direction the Maryville Highlanders defeated U. T.

On Tuesday and Wednesday was held the twentieth annual meeting of the Council of Church Boards of Education, which is attended by representatives of all Protestant denominations which have educational institutions. Among the speakers were Prof. Edwi Mims, of Vanderbilt University; President Charles F. Wishart, of Wooster College; President W. M. Lewis, of Lafayette College, in Pennsylvania; Mrs. Lucy D. Franklin, Dean of Women at Boston University. Such subjects as these were discussed: "Religion and the Modern Educational Process"; "The College and Vocations"; "The Contribution of a College to Leisure"; "The Influence of a College on Homebuilding".

On Wednesday was held the meeting of the Liberal Arts College movement, organized a year ago of over two hundred Liberal Arts Colleges. A program of appeal for money and of national publicity concerning the value of Liberal Arts Colleges was inaugurated for the next three years. It is believed that this plan will put the College of Liberal Arts on a

New Volumes Added To College Library

Of interest to practically every student of the college is the recent addition of approximately three hundred and twenty-five volumes to the Lamar Library. These books cover such a variety of subjects as to make at last some of them valuable to nearly every student. Some of the departments having rather large additions are Bible, Biology, English, Latin and Greek, Mathematics and Physics, Political Science and Psychology. Under the heading of "General Books", comprising books of biography, fiction, etct., about fifty volumes were added.

Maryville College is very fortunate in having one of the largest and most complete libraries of any southern college. There are on the shelves of this institution over thirty thousand volumes and this number is being increased by the expenditure of between three and four thousand dollars for new books.

The library receives also a complete selection of periodicals. Eighty-nine of these are by subscription and sixty-eight by donation, making a total of one hundred and fifty-seven periodicals, at least, received monthly.

The latest wedding ring is to be very thin and narrow. The old fashioned, cumbersome affair, of course, was meant to last a life time.

Dr. Lloyd Gives First Message In Chapel Tomorrow

Dr. Stevenson To Preside And Conduct Devotional Periods.

FIFTY-FIFTH SERIES

'God Make The Meetings Better Than Ever", Says Dr. Wilson's Letter.

Feb. 2—Tomorrow morning in chapel, Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd opens the fifty-fifth series of the February Meetings which will continue until Friday, February 13. Dr. Lloyd came here three years ago for the purpose of conducting the Meetings, and he has had the opportunity of knowing them as a student, a visitor, and a leader. He will naturally have a clearer idea of our student problems than would a visiting minister.

Rev. Dr. William P. Stevenson, College Pastor, will preside and conduct the devotional period at each service. Rev. Sidney E. Stringham, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Auburn, Illinois, wil be with us again as leader of song.

The Meetings will suffer this year in that Dr. Wilson will not be with us. Every old student will remember the interest that Dr. Wilson never failed to create when he told of the joys of his experience as a Christian. He is thinking of us this year. A letter to Dr. Lloyd dated January 1, from Sidon, Syria brings word of his deep interest in all that transpires at Maryville and especially in the February Meetings. He says: "It is a great comfort to me to know that you are thoroughly acquainted with the philosophy and history of our February Meetings—God make the meetings better than ever!"

J. W. Hina Chosen To Head Junior Class

New Executive Succeeds Glenn Murray.

Jan. 29—At a meeting held today of the junior class, J. Weldon Hina was elected president of the class to fill the vacancy left by Glenn Murray.

The members of the class feel very fortunate in securing a man of Mr. Hina's abilities and qualities. Already he has shown an intense interest in the welfare of the class and is making an effort to arouse more class spirit and co-operation among the members.

He has appointed a cabinet as he calls it, to aid him in the carrying out of various plans and functions of the class, and he hopes by means of working together with these members to make the junior class a more united whole and to obtain more functions in which the class may participate. The following students are members of the cabinet: J. Weldon Hina, Naomi Willingham, Georga Burk, Cooley Combs, Homer McCann, Betty Wilbar, Merle Beebe, and Julia Terry. The cabinet will meet as often as necessary and map out plans and conduct the business of the class.

DR. DAWSON HONORED

Dr. W. R. Dawson who is a long time friend and Director of the College and the present chairman of the Board of Directors, was installed as permanent pastor of the Fort Sanders Presbyterian Church, Knoxville, yesterday. He has acted as supply minister for about two years, and was urged to accept his present position by the people of the church who became very devoted to him. Dr. Dawson conducted the February Meetings just exactly thirty years ago. Dr. Lloyd preached the installation sermon.

A Modest Proposal

Not long ago the students of Maryville College were asked by their instructors to answer questions in writing. The process was known as an examination, and the recently acquired knowledge was written down in a little blue book and handed to the examiner. Let us say that there are eight hundred students in college, and that each student took five examinations. The sum total of blue books marred and stained as a result of this intellectual activity is 4000 a semester, or 8000 a year. Taking it for granted that examinations are an old college custom, in the Century of Maryville College some 800,000 blue books must have been used. Since the country is suffering from such a severe business depression, it is our proposal to end unemployment by utilizing the said blue books.

Some of the books actually contain useful information. These should be collected, published and sent to a museum. People will have to be employed to collect these rare volumes; type setters will be in demand, and the museum will employ another person to dust the new curiosities.

Gleanings from the student writings may be bound together under the title "Bright Sayings By Brighter Children." If this little volume is beautifully illustrated, and Eddie Guest can be persuaded to write an introductory poem, wide sales will result. It will make an ideal gift to shut-ins, maiden aunts and blind grandmothers who live in the country. Gleaners, artists, printers and Eddie Guest will be needed to carry on this work.

Since the teaching profession is so overcrowded and many teachers will be left without positions this year, we should suggest that they retain all blue books which they collect. They will be useful for black mail purposes. Breathes there a chemist so cocksure who would not reach for his purse when confronted by his old school teacher who has the chemist's freshman chemistry examination paper?

———o———

Grade Reactions

Now is the time of the year that students are making the sort of adjustments that psychologists would probably label as "grade reactions". The harassed teachers are reluctantly admitting that we made an A; matter-of-factly stating that we are in the great middle class, or confidingly breathing that our grade was "D", "E", or "F". We are writing home to explain to parental authorities why we didn't make the honor roll, and the reasons why we flunked chemistry. A few of us, perhaps, will have to get them into an expectant mood so that they'll welcome their failures home.

Some of us who expected a "B" cannot understand why we made 'C'. We studied before examinations just as every one did; certainly no one talked more in class than did we. Of course sometimes we weren't listening to the instructor and we had to ask him to repeat the question, but he didn't know that we weren't a little deaf. As for that outside reading, we didn't do it all because we thought the teacher would never look at our notes. How did we know he was conscientious?

"Every teacher I have just hates me. I can't make over 'D' in a thing", we overheard a freshman say. "I knew from the very first that the man didn't like me. I don't want to seem conceited, but he thinks I'm beautiful but dumb", was a remark for which a senior was guilty. It seems deplorable that after four years we should still be resorting to such obvious rationalization.

Wouldn't we like to meet the student who boldly says: "I flunked chemistry because I slept in classes and didn't hand in my note book on time. I wanted to moonshine on Monday afternoon, and, therefore, I didn't bother to take the final examination." Why couldn't, or shouldn't, we all admit that low intelligence, ball games, moonshining, fiction reading, bull sessions, midnight feeds, week-end trips, procrastination, and down right laziness are the sole reasons for the poor grades that are handed down to us.

But we won't. We'd lose our self respect. Therefore we maintain that grades are old fashioned; that students who make A's are grinds, and that only saps work. Above all, we don't forget to say that a man named Browning wrote a poem about endeavor being its own reward.

Former Editor Commits Himself

Union Theological Seminary,
New York City,
January 26, 1931.

Miss Hessie Keeton,
Editor-in-Chief, The Highland Echo
Maryville College,
Maryville, Tennessee.

Dear Hessie:

I have come into possession of a copy of the January 19 issue of the Highland Echo today through the kindness of a student who knows of my interest in the paper. Since it is my first glimpse of the college weekly, you may imagine my surprise when I saw—well, not what I had expected to see.

I'll tell you it's a tough old world when you begin to realize that you are no longer missed! Not only did I see a paper that had no need of my worry about its appearance, but the editor able to get better stories out of the staff than I could ever elicit from a staff of equal intelligence and ability! If the Echo had any difficulties getting under way at the beginning of the year, it certainly has made up for lost time.

I couldn't quite see how the college was going to get along with out me—and Frank Baker, but here it is having the president run off to a college convention and Dr. Hunter made dean all in the same week. Talk about news! You seem to have lots of it. The only thing I regret is that you did not use the picture of Dr. Hunter that I had in the "morgue" with the rest of the cuts—I was saving it for such an occasion as this. After all these years and you don't use it. Well, save it—he might do something to get in the headlines again soon, who knows?

Your editorials are good—but I suppose they are read about as much as mine were. The faculty adviser and the proof-readers have to read them. I like the idea of running one in on the sports page—some of the students are likely to get halfway through before they realize it is an editorial. You must have an able crop of frosh to help out. Who knows but that one of them may become a Brent Stearns, a Viola Pettit, or a Julia Terry.

More power to the Echo—it exceeds even my fondest hopes for its success. If you should be short of space and use this to fill in with, let this convey my best regards to everyone on College Hill.

Sincerely an ex-
Jesse Pindell Peirce.

WHY TEACHERS GET MARRIED

Question: What are glaciers?
Answer: Guys that fix windows when they are broken.

Question: What is a peninsula?
Answer: A bird that lives on ice-bergs.

Question: Why does a dog hang out its tongue when running?
Answer: To balance its tail.
Question: What is etiquette?
Answer: Saying, "No thank you" when you mean "gimme".

"Was your uncle's life insured?"
"No, he was a total loss."

"Bobby can you tell me two things necessary for baptism?"
"Yes'm. Water and a baby."

"How does it happen", said the teacher to the new pupil, "that your name is Allen and your mother's name is Brown?"
"Well", explained the small boy, after a moments thought, "you see, she married again and I didn't."

Being told to write an essay on the mule a small boy turned in to his teacher the following effort:
"The mewl is a harrier bird than the guse or turkie. It has two legs to walk with, two more to kick with an' wears its wings on the sides of its head. It is stubbornly backward about coming forward.

Joe: "When do you do your hardest work?"
Sleepy: "Before breakfast always."
Joe: "What do you do?"
Sleepy: "Try to get outa bed."

To subjugate a cold in head.

At first 'tis very hard to go
But doctor says it must be so.
Surrounded by all kinds of pills
He conquers over all his ills.

From his royal throne in bed
He directs letters; grades in red.
With assignments he is not prudent
He overworks each lowdown student.

Shakespeare may think he's neglected,
Poets of 11C are rejected;
Advanced comp. students cease to write,
American Lit. puts up a fight.

Room 51 in dear old Thaw
Crows its swan song, "Caw, Caw, Caw."
We miss seeing the Chevrolet
That dominates us day by day.

We know the sick man will get well.
How soon? Only time will tell.
He has a very excellent nurse
Who keeps him from becoming worse.

Although we miss him very much,
Necessity says he must not touch
The steering wheel of his Chevrolet
Until his cold has gone away.

And now my ode is almost done
'Twas a battle but 'tis now won.
But tell me something, do confess,
Am I an odor or an odoress?

SUPERIOR SCOTTIES

It seems that, since people must gossip, and since we must earn our daily provender, the natural thing for us to do is to present to the talkative public some of the much-to-be-desired gossip in question. We hope that the seniors (who are natural subjects for gossip, because they have spent four Maryville years in compiling reasons for the same) will bear with us if they don't like our soliloquies and pat us on the back if they do.

Of course, when casting our eyes about for someone about whom to submit facts, (and otherwise), what could be more natural than to turn our minds' eyes to our fair haired swimming instructor, Jack Coughlin. Jack hails from Cincinnati, Ohio, quaint old southern city situated on the Gulf of Mexico, the Panama Canal, or some body of water. Anyway, Jack learned to swim. And how! In his first year or so, he held innumerable positions. He was coach of the tumblers, a prominent figure on the stage, and was, in general, an all-round busy fellow. A couple of years ago, Jack presumably issued a statement in the Echo in which he made a few remarks concerning females. He said that, among other things, girls gave him: fits, red neckties, a pain, advice, encouragement, and the air. They, (or she) still gives him encouragement but the remainder of the gifts is a thing of the past. Jack has practically made up his mind to enter some phase of teaching.

Another senior who need have no fear of over-adverse criticism is Kemp Davis, diminutive captain of the basketeers. He has lettered each of his years as a member of the varsity squad, no small accomplishment in itself. As this season's captain, he has proved to be a steady, reliable man as a player and as a captain who has the interests of his team at heart. Kemp, during his three and a half years at Maryville has made many friends and held many positions of responsibility. To give a list of either his friends or his Maryville accomplishments would be folly, if not impossibility. His work as business manager for the Echo and as president of his literary society, Alpha Sigma, presents the proverbial clean sheet. Kemp plans to enter medical school next fall, and his Maryville friends wish him the fullest success as he enters for the purpose of learning how to cur'em or kill'em.

(Editor's Note—Since the freshmen and probably some of the upperclassmen do not really know the campus celebrities, it is our plan to maintain this Who's Who column for the benefit of the uninformed. The blame rests on a freshman apprentice.)

CAMPUS TALKIE

Naomi Willingham: (studying for history exam) "Ask me about the men; I'm interested in them."

Prof. Griffitts: (pointing to Sears-Roebuck catalogue) "That is the American Encyclopedia of commerce."

Heard during exams: "Will the curve system be used on judgment day?"

Freshman preparing outline of Lincoln's life:
"Well, I guess his education should come after his birth."

Mary Lovette: "During the World War the battleships were camouflaged so that the people could tell which way they weren't going."

Grader: "Why this boy made only 65 on his Biology test."
Miss Hudson: "Yes, and I had to stand over him to keep him from making more."

MATRONS LUNCH AT DRUID HILL

Four prominent Maryvillians were present at the luncheon given by the Major James Houston Chapter of the Daughters of the War of 1812, which was given at the Druid Hill Tea Room, on the Knoxville Highway, January 26. They were Miss Caldwell, Mrs. Snodgrass, Mrs. Worley and Miss Hudson. Miss Caldwell and Mrs. Worley are members of the Society, and Mrs. Snodgrass and Miss Hudson were their respective guests at the luncheon.

The purpose of this organization is to promote a spirit of patriotism and also to preserve the graves of those soldiers who were killed in the War of 1812. It will interest Maryvillians to know that they contribute $50.00 a year to the scholarship fund of the College.

Grapplers Complete Two Hard Matches

Tie Knoxville Y.; Win Over Chattanooga Y.

Meet With Knoxville Y. (20-20)

The Wrestling team has had two important meets since the last Echo appeared. Winning over Chattanooga Y. and tying the strong Knoxville Y. grapplers. The following is a record of the two meets:

115 pounds—Dixon won by a fall over Tolbert in a fast match. Time, 5 1-2 minutes.

125 pounds—Ervin, of the Y. was too experienced and fast for Marston, and secured a fall in 7 minutes.

135 pounds—Askin, Knoxville Y., won by a fall from Peacock in 5 minutes.

145 pounds—Watkins, after a week of hard training, proved too good for Maher of the Y. and secured a fall in 5 minutes. Maher is defending Southern Champion in his weight, so Watkins may well lay claim to the title.

155 pounds—Teffeteller, Maryville's drawing card, again proved his stamina by staying on the mat for 15 1-2 minutes before getting his man. It was a hard fought match from beginning to end.

165 pounds—Burns, after 2 1-2 minutes on the mat, got his fall with such strength that Loy, of the Y., was knocked out for several minutes.

175 pounds—Cash did not seem in the best of condition, losing to Wayland of Knoxvlle in 6 1-2 minutes. The winner was obviously less experienced.

Unlimited—Overly did not have the experience to cope with Kelley, who won by a fall in 2 1-2 minutes.

Maryville vs. Chattanooga Y. (21-11)

115 pounds—Dixon again proved Maryville's standby when he secured a fall over L'heureaux in the second extra period.

125 pounds—Couch of the Y. was too tough for Marston, but was unable to get a fall. The Y. got the decision with 6 minutes time advantage.

135 pounds—Anderson, of the Y, was unable to get down to weight. His extra 1 1-2 pounds gave the match to Boretsky by forfeit.

145 pounds—Hatcher and Silcox went the full 10 minutes period without a fall, but the decision went to Silcox, who had 8 minutes time advantage.

155 pounds—Teffeteller and Bunn were so evenly matched neither could secure a fall, but Teffeteller, with 3 minute time advantage, got the decision.

165 pounds—Hall again proved too much for Cash, who was better than in his last appearance, however. Hall got the fall in 4 minutes.

175 pounds—Burns gave a good exhibition by securing a fall in 7 minutes over Fox of the Y.

Unlimited—Overly and Wallace went the full period, but Overly had 2 minutes time advantage and got the decision.

Maryville Divides Hard Fought Games

Loses To Carson-Newman 28-27 Defeats Milligan 31-26.

Jefferson City, Tenn., Jan. 29—In one of the most stubbornly fought games of the season, the Carson-Newman Eagles defeated Maryville College Highlanders tonight by a score of 28 to 27. The score at the half was tied at 12-12.

The teams battled on even terms throughout the entire game and the last few minutes of play found both quintets fighting desperately to snatch a lead. The lead changed hands on numerous occasions but the Eagles held the advantage when the final whistle blew and it was Maryville's second conference defeat in as many nights.

Although the Highlanders were defeated, there is consolation in the brilliant work of "Easy" White and Capt. Kemp Davis at the forward positions. White was the high scorer of the game with 14 points to his credit and Davis accounted for eight. Cooper, Nee and Woodard, the other three starters, also played good basket ball.

The Eagles were led in the scoring department by a young fellow who answers to the name of Horton. (He's not related to the Governor). He was a constant pain in the neck for the Maryville boys and it was through his work that a large number of his team's points were scored. Smith, Nicely, Wood and C. Littleton also figured in the scoring.

Jan. 31—Coach Honaker's Highlanders defeated the Milligan College Buffaloes tonight in one of the most exciting games of the season. The score was 31 to 26.

Cooper, freshman center, with 13 points and White, veteran forward, with 12, led the Highlanders in the scoring department while Morley and Taylor were outstanding for the visitors. The Buffaloes were conference champions last year and Maryville's victory gives them a high rating in the conference standing this year.

SPORTOGRAPHY

By BOB WEST

The boys have been on another rampage and although they were stopped in two fast games still they have acquitted themselves nobly and are worthy of the colors they wear.

—:—

But this is another proof of how important it is to stand behind the fellows—you remember games in which the score was even or worse—and neither team seemed to get an upper hold—then the home team is cheered on into a super-human stage of fighting and the tide turns. Let's back the Scotties in all of their home games.

—:—

"Farmer" Watkins, wrestling coach, has been strutting a taped nose around the campus lately. "Farmer" says that it is due to a girl who cracked a smile. But the smile was on his own face.

—:—

The interest in wrestling is growing by leaps and bounds in southern colleges and at the present time Maryville can hold her own with any of them. Somehow I would just like to see Burns, Watkins, Cash, Teffeteller, Hatcher, Peacock, and Dixon meet the University of Tennessee on the mat. Why can't this be arranged?

—:—

Several members of last year's track team have been seen on the cinder trail during this season of tempestuous reprieve, and one of the most promising new men has been reported in the person of James Heflin, a high school star last year.

—:—

Just a word of consolation to some of the worthy athletes who are not receiving their just amount of recognition and reward for efforts expended. In general the American Sports followers are fickle. Cheers turn to jeers, cries of "take him out", "whose that bonehead", can often be heard everywhere. These things are echoed throughout every sports stadium or gymnasium in America for they are ruthless, bloodthirsty, unsympathetic, commercial mob who only champion or praise a winner.

ROBERT WATKINS

Robert "Farmer" Watkins, one of Maryville's leading athletes, and wrestling coach, has recently added anothr laurel to his string—that of Southern Amateur Champion Wrestler in the 145 pound class. He won this by defeating Mayer of Knoxville who is the defending Southern Champion.

Farmer is ending his fourth year at Maryville and his departure will be strongly felt in the athletic department of the college.

Tennessee Weslyan Properly Trounced

Jan. 22—Coach Honaker's Highlanders evened things up with the Tennessee Wesleyan Bulldogs tonight by handing the Athens boys a decisive 43 to 17 drubbing in a rough and tumble game.

The visitors came here holding a close victory over the Maryville boys and they had high hopes of making it two straight over the Scots but the Highlanders couldn't see it that way and their hopes were blasted, thanks to dead eye shooting of White, Cooper and Captain Davis.

Highlanders Defeated By U. T. in Cage Game

A Brilliant Game But Vols Prove Winner.

Jan. 24—The University of Tennessee Volunteers spurted brilliantly in the last half tonight and defeated an aroused team of Maryville College Highlanders by a 40 to 27 score after one of the fastest hours of basket ball of the season.

The Maryville boys kept pace with the Tennesseans throughout the first half but their attack slowed up in he latter stages of the game and the Vols took advantage of the opportunity and scored several baskets to run their margin of victory up to 13 points. The score at the half was 20 to 15 in favor of the Vols.

The Highlanders came back with a rush soon after the half started and scored two field goals in rapid succession to put them in a threatening position but the Tennesseans drew away and before long they had a comfortable lead. The Highlanders, however, never stopped trying but they were simply outclassed by the more experienced rivals who rate as one of the best cage teams in the south.

One of the prettiest scoring duels that has ever been staged on the Tennessee floor was waged by White, brilliant Maryville forward and Greenblot, lanky Vol center. Both of these men lead their teams in this department and White had the best of the individual struggle by scoring 14 against 13 for his opponent.

The playing of Joe Woodard and Jack Nee at guards won the applause of the Knoxville fans but the dead eye shooting of Easy White gave them one big pain in the neck. White kept the Vol supporters on the edge of their seats throughout the game with his brilliant shots although he was closely guarded by the entire Tennessee team. Capt. Kemp Davis and Russ Cooper also sparkled brilliantly for the Highlanders.

Mildred Purviance: "Miss Green, where do jelly-fish get their jelly?"
Miss Green: "From the ocean currents, I guess."

Minor Sport Takes Center Of Interest

Highlanders Enjoying Unusual Success on Map.

The Scotties have been leading a very successful year thus far in the sport of wrestling. In the first place the match with Chattanooga was won by Maryville through the inelegibility of Headrick who won over Burns in the match here on the home floor. Then last Saturday night, January 24th the grapplers met and tied the Southern Amateur champions, the Knoxville Y. M. C. A., thus classing our team with the best in the field.

The men who have won their letters this far are Dixon 115, Peacock 135, Watkins 145, Burns 165, Teffeteller 155, and Overly, unlimited. Signal honor has been bestowed upon Sam Hatcher, 145 pound member of the team. He was unanimously chosen as captain and is keeping the fighting moral of his charges in good shape.

One of the most promising wrestlers on the Maryville mat is Burns.

This hard working, fast thinking boy has been showing some rare form. It is the opinion of several of the judges that he is among the best if not the best to be seen in the South.

The next meet will be here on February 24 against the Southern Amateur champions—Knoxville Y. M. C. A.

Freshman "Fussers" Chosen From Large Group Last Monday

Initial Argument Scheduled For Early Spring.

"Worthy judges, Honorable opponents—my Colleague has proved to you that the man who gets second in the presidential election, should be made senator at large for the next four years." Or, maybe, you would chance to listen to the girls—"My honorable opponent has tried to prove that the five day working week should be adopted; now, I am going to prove—." And so the freshmen debated. The biggest trouble the freshmen had was deciding who should be honorable and who should be worthy. There was also a little difficulty in distinguishing between the colleague, and the opponent.

When the smoke had cleared from Room 15 in Anderson Hall there were left, three judges, Miss Gamble, Miss Jewell, and Professor Kiger, who had the responsibility of choosing the twelve students who will represent the freshman debate team this semester. After much deliberation the judges announced their choice, as the twelve best debaters. The women's team was chosen as follows: Frances Massey, Ercelle Hunter, Ella Shields, Lucile Swafford, Pauline Throne, and Carrie Lou Tweed. The men chosen to represent the freshmen are, Harry Mathias, Randolph Shields, Walter Pippert, Don Buchanan, Fred Kirchner, and Richard Orr.

On April 13, the women's team will debate Tennessee Wesleyan in a dual debate; four days later, April 17, the men will encounter the University of Tennessee debaters in a dual meet. The women's question is to be the same one that they used in the preliminaries, while it is probable that the men will debate a different question for their dual debate.

Neither of the two teams will meet until after the February meetings.

Zoology Students Go On Field Trip

Jan. 28—Due to the fact that the biological specimens did not arrive in time for Zoology "lab" this afternoon, Miss Green took the entire class for a walk in the college woods. Before leaving the laboratory she made it perfectly clear that the trip was purely for business and not for pleasure!

On reaching the woods the class separated into groups, some going straight to the stream to look for craw-fish, and others lagging behind studying leaves, moss, and bark of trees. Each person had a small hand lens to study whatever specimen he found.

When the trip was over, it was found that three crawfish had been captured, a clam shell had been found, and numerous bugs, beetles and worms had been collected. No one felt that the time had been wasted and one student went so far as to say—"Thank goodness those fish we were to have cut open didn't come!".

and Milligan will be held on March 9th with both the Maryville teams from home. On March 23, Asheville Normal comes here. Arrangements are being made for a debate with Berea College on March 28.

The men's team opens its season on February 20 with a triangular debate with King College and Tusculum. On March 6, the team goes to Chattanooga to engage the University of Chattanooga. The next debate will be a four-cornered one on March 20 with Maryville, Carson-Newman, Tusculum, and East Tennessee Teachers College participating. On the twenty-seventh of the same month, the team will meet Berea College. Two tentative debates are planned; one with Centre College and a triangular debate with Emory-Henry and Milligan.

Alpha Sigma To Give Last Of Midwinters

The last of the midwinters is in the making. Mrs. West is directing rehearsals for "The Crisis", Alpha Sigma's bid for the Theta Alpha Phi cup. It will be given on February 23.

"The Crisis" is a story of the Civil War. It shows the attitude of both the North and the South. It demonstrates the noble manhood and courage on each side.

The leads are to be played by Lenore West, as the southern girl, and Chilly Bowles, as the northern man, who courts her.

Andy Alexander, plays the part of the southerner who is a rival suitor. Jesse James and Bob West will also have important parts.

BIOLOGISTS THROW BETROTHAL PARTY

On Saturday, January 24, the assistants of the biology department enjoyed their annual party, this year held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Olin, honoring Zelma Alexander and Homer McCann.

Invitations read: "The Biology Bugs will have a Buzzing Bee to boast a Betrothal. Swarming will take place in Mrs. Olin's Beehive."

The "Biology Bugs" included seven assistants and three teachers. Transportation to and from the hill was afforded by Miss Green, who took Zelma and Homer, and by Andy Newcomer's "Green Dragon", whose color scheme has since changed to one of rose and silver.

The evening was spent in such games and contests as "The Garden Wedding", "Cross Pollination", "Gathering a Bouquet", "Wing Flapping", and "The Elopement". Activities culminated in the serving of a course of "Bee Bread."

—HUH—

of "Now I chased you. Chase me."

However, interrogations are not the only ideas perfectly expressed by this hybrid hiccough. Answers, statements, threats, emotions and even thoughts are made known by its use. A little "Uh" placed before it makes a very expressive and beautifully simple positive answer so convenient when the mouth is being used for some other purpose. An utterly uncontrolled and explosive "huh" by our father immediately following some real or imagined disrespectful remark of ours was always instantaneously and correctly interpreted into "Say it again and we'll discuss the matter in the woodshed." Where is the young man that cannot testify to its power when employed by the girl friend at a time when said young man has been somewhat indiscrete in his phrases or unfortunately put the other ending on the story. Such scorn or such ridicule could hardly be as adequately expressed in a lengthy oration as in that potent grunt.

Then too, we have the Huh of Disdain, experienced by many college men as they thumbed their way along the country's highways. This expression is as a rule peculiar to women drivers or riders only. A slight but pronounced lift of the right shoulder, a turning of the head away from the offending sight, a sneering curl of the lips and a vocal selection closely approaching a snort, which by the way requires some natural ability as well as practice, constitutes the most spirit crushing experience of the modern hitch-hiker.

Again, among the lesser expressions, we find the Huh of Derision, the Grunt of disgust, the pleasant little feminine gurgle of Expectancy and the gruff rumble of Disapproval. All variations of the same inarticulate vocalization. The Stalling Huh of the Embarrassing Situation is still another example of the versatility of this semi-groan. If perchance, the vital and all-absorbing question is suddenly flung at the one and only the little Huh, interrogative hopeful and perhaps just a bit pleading, is the invariable response, defying all powers of description and to be understood only after much and frequent experience.

To the American the "Huh" is a linguistic Eldorado, a powerful interrogator, a convenient answer, a perfect salve for the embarrassing moment and as a consequence he goes merrily on huhing his way through life, for he knows that regardless of the situation a grunt will be the proper retort, and, even though he be highly educated in the Arts and Sciences no foreigner may claim complete Americanization until he is thoroughly acquainted with his "HUHS".

Maryvillians Attend Paderewski Ricital

Miss Hale, Mrs. Butcher, and Miss Butcher had the privilege of hearing Paderewski in an incredibly great performance at the Memorial Auditorium in Chattanooga last Wednesday evening.

The Chattanooga Times, in an enthusiastic article on Thursday morning said: "Paderewski, a time-ravaged man, approaching his eighties, played last night in Memorial Auditorium to more than 3,000 people, most of whom went away satisfied that they had at last heard the perfect."

The Maryville people who were there echo and endorse this compliment, saying that it was a truly marvelous concert.

The program lasted from 8:25 to almost 11:00 p. m., with only a short intermision. The great artist played selections from Handel, Liszt, Schelling, Debussy, Rachmaninoff, and Chopin.

During her stay in Chattanooga Miss Hale attended also the luncheon and meetings of the district Federated Music Clubs Convention. Artists from Knoxville, Chattanooga, and other cities including New York contributed to the program. Miss Hale described the meetings as delightful and inspiring.

Mrs. Butcher and Miss Butcher drove through the country, and report an unusually pleasant trip.

EDUC. MEETINGS BENEFICIAL, SAYS PRESIDENT LLOYD

stronger basis than ever before.

On Thursday and Friday the Association of American Colleges held its seventeenth annual meeting. Colonel Rees, of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, spoke on the subject, "College Men in Business". President Lowell of Harvard, and several other speakers, told of recent experiments in college work. Dr. Lorado Taft, famous Chicago sculptor, made an address. Dr. John Erskine, of New York, spoke at the annual banquet on the subject, "The College and the Fine Arts".

Dr. Lloyd's two most outstanding impressions of the Associations are the general broadmindedness of leading educators, and the fact that they favor religion as a dominating factor in the college life.

"I was", he says, "greatly interested to find that the men who are old in the business, and who are supposed to know, have no set method of working with colleges." These men are broadminded enough to believe that if one way is as good as another, a person may use his own choice.

Dr. Lloyd spoke in chapel several mornings ago of the general feeling among college workers and officials of the importance of religion in the life and spirit of the college. Even the representatives from colleges not designated as church schools, have the same idea about religion's rightful place in the institution.

The students of Maryville College may well be proud of the fact that Maryville is a church school, and that her instructors and officials are in sympathy with, and help to promote her high ideals and Christian atmosphere.

SPRING RECITAL OF GLEE SINGERS ON HILL TONIGHT

Class '30 Enjoys Periodic Pleasure

Among the many activities seemingly created to induce forgetfulness of the recent examinations, was the monthly senior party, held last Wednesday night. The seniors feeling right royal and in a princely mood, chose as the scene of their regularly scheduled amusement, the Palace. Ruth Chatterton, in a dual role of mother and daughter, did some splendid acting in "The Right to Love." A pleasant comedy in which blonde babies featured, was also offered for the edification and distraction of the blase group.

Having sat through the show, news reels, advertisements and all, the pleasure seekers sauntered down to the corner drug store for refreshments. Norma Spilatore was present and sang several songs in keeping with the occasion. "Buck" rendered something on the saw, and Corky Crawford, a Maryville alumnus, gave a chalk talk.

The royalty walked home.

Miss Kellar: "Why do psychologists begin with childhood study in the genetic method?"

Lucy Anne Voorhees: "Well, that seems to be the beginning."

DR. LLOYD MAKING PERSONAL APPEALS IN SERMONS

Oldest Living Graduate of M. C. Writes of Student Experiences

Mr. Calvin C. Duncan Gives Graphic and Amusing Account of Early History of College.

Alamogordo, New Mexico,
November 24, 1930

Miss Margaret Melody,
Maryville, Tenn.

Dear Miss Melody:

Your favor of November 13 came to hand. You write me, as one of the original "thirteen" that answered the call of the old College bell on the morning of the first Wednesday of September 1866, when Prof. T. J. Lamar re-opened Maryville College after the Civil War. You ask me to say something about the College especially during the first few years after the re-opening.

Aided by Dr. Wilson's little book on Prof. Lamar, I will try to dig up something from my subconscious mind, in compliance with your request.

Dr. Isaac Anderson founded the College in 1819 and did a far reaching work in his day. All buildings used in his day had been removed from the old site at the time of the re-opening. I can remember seeing the small brick building that stood on the southeast corner of the old College lot, a building used in Dr. Anderson's day. This building was torn down by the soldiers during the Civil War and the bricks were used in making chimneys for their tents.

There were present at the re-opening thirteen students, but during that first year the number was increased to forty-seven. I was the youngest of the group, only fifteen years of age and quite small for my age. I think it very probable that I walked to the college barefoot that day, and so far as I know I am the only one living of the forty-seven that were enrolled that year. The re-organization took place in the building that was erected some years before the war. It was a large two-story brick building that ran parallel with Main Street in Maryville, on the site of the present New Providence Presbyterian Church. The building was in a terribly dilapidated condition at the end of the war. It had been used by both armies, and it was "a mere skeleton, with no doors or window frames or even window casings. The endowment of $15,739 had been reduced to a face value of $7,182 and an actual value of $5,539. The entire assets of the College did not amount to more than $6,036. Maryville College was indeed a scrap heap."

food was corn dodger and sorghum molasses and some vegetables.

The back yard of the College was used for two purposes. First for athletic sports. Here was located the trapeze, or home-made acting bar where many athletic stunts were performed. One very popular sport was that of jumping, a running jump, with a heavy stone in each hand of the jumper; just as he made the leap these stones were thrown violently to the ground with the effect of forcing the body forward and so causing a longer leap. The champion jumper was my lifelong friend, Jim Green. Green was a large man with a heavy body. In one of his leaps, to prevent himself from falling, he threw out one of his arms and the weight of his body came upon it and broke it at the elbow joint. The boys carried him upstairs to his corner room in the old College building, and a runner was sent to his good mother who lived several miles from Maryville and she came and remained with her son till he was convalescent, but his arm was stiff at the joint all the rest of his life.

Hugh Sawyer was a very active man on the playground. He could scream like an Indian and was a jolly good fellow whom we all liked. He was one of the thirteen. He received his diploma from the College in 1869. He was the best informed student in the College. His father was a Presbyterian minister, thoroughly educated, and his

In that early day the boys formed an eating club and hired old Aunt Polly Pope, a colored woman, to prepare the meals. The principal

Coming Choir Holds Acclaim Of Critics

Westminster Singers Highly Praised By Press.

The Westminster Choir, which is appearing here in concert on February 19, comes with highest recommendation from both American critics and foreign audiences. While abroad two years ago they sang to an audience of skeptical Scotchmen in Edenborough. Mr. Sam Franklin was in the audience and states that before the concert was half over the listeners though previously determined not to like the music were vigorously applauding each selection.

American press critics also have joined forces with the foreign audiences in praising the work of these master choristers, and Maryville music lovers have a real treat in store for them on the date of their appearance.

The program will be given in Voorhees Chapel at 3:30 in the afternoon on Thursday, February 19.

Professional Tailor Will Teach College Maids Dressmaking

Shop Takes Up Dressmaking As An Entirely New Enterprise

The College Maid Shop, organized and maintained to help Maryville College students in every possible way, is undertaking an entirely new enterprise.

Organdie, voile, and linen dresses are the newest thing in Maid-Shop wares. The dresses may be had in plain and figured material of good quality. They will sell for from five to eight dollars.

The making of these dresses will be under the supervision of Mr. Lewis, the best ladies' tailor in the country, so good style is assured in all of them. Models will be ready in a few days, and orders should be placed early, because the initial supply of material is small and the next order will be more expensive.

Mr. and Mrs. George Coyle and Mr. Coyle's two sisters visited the College Maid Shop last week. Mrs. Coyle is a very good friend of the college. She is now starting her own rotating student loan fund, and is especially interested in Maryville students.

The College Maid Shop recently received an order for 1,000 uniforms from the Jarman Shoe Factory, makers of "Friendly Five" shoes. These uniforms are the prettiest the shop has ever handled, and are made of unusually good broadcloth.

The factory is now uniforming the Grove Silk Mill, at Dunmore, Pennsylvania.

Among other recent orders was a request for choir vestments from a church in Scranton. This choir is the second one in that city to order from the College Maids.

Two of the drug stores in Maryville use College Maid uniforms. The girls at Walker's wear them, and even the furniture at the City Drug is costumed by College Maid.

The Chattanooga Hosiery Mills have asked for the new spring samples. Mrs. McMurray, director of the shop, expects to go to Chattanooga in a few days, and hopes for several big orders.

Shelley And James Honored By Fellows

The Athenian Literary Society met Saturday afternoon, February 7, for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing semester. The following members were chosen for the positions.

President, Edwin Shelley; Vice President, Robert Wallace; Recording Secretary, George Osborne; Program Secretaries, Alvin McCann; Aubrey Bradshaw; Critics, Andy Newcomer, Robert Stevenson; Editor, Hadley Webb; Sargeant-at-arms Al Duff (unanimous).

Feb. 7—Alpha Sigma Literary Society met this afternoon for the purpose of electing officers. After the completion of some old business the following officers were elected:

President, Jesse James; Vice President, Robert West; Secretary, Andy Alexander; Treasurer, Raymond A. Young, Jr.; Editor, William Graham; Program Secretary, Donald Briggs; Assistant Program Secretary, Lawrence Somers; President Emeritus (Janitor), Porter French.

AN APOLOGY TO THE BROOMSTICK

The writer of the "Serenade of the Broomstick" that appeared in the Echo last week wishes to make an apology. The serenaders were not Arthur Shade and Willard Cudney. The songsters compose the team of Shirley and his friend and contemporary, Burgen.

Mistakes do occur, and when one is awakened suddenly by voices from out of the night one is not responsible for what one says and does.

Echo Accounts Of 1928 Revival Carry Praise of Dr. Lloyd

President Described as Sincere, Able Leader Who Won Confidence.

"With a pleasing combination of effective personality and a definitely planed outline, Rev. Ralph W. Lloyd has already attracted the students to the meetings in a wonderful way. His messages are overflowing with good, sound advice and words of truth. And behind it all, the spirit of Christ manifests it all, in every statement. Only a true appeal, with God as a foundation, could arouse the interest that has been shown."

Thus read the Highland Echo in February 1928, discussing the February meetings of that year. Dr. Lloyd is described as a "sincere and able leader", a leader who "has the confidence and enthusiasm of the students", and who explains everything "in such a natural way, with deep sincerity and devotion" that it "touches the practical nature of the students."

Some of Dr. Lloyd's "Rabbinical Reflections" in those meetings were:

"You are living now as much as you ever will live."

"You'll have to decide it for yourself."

"The world needs every ounce of leadership it can get."

"Every person you meet is different because of your meeting him."

"You simply can't drift up."

"Christianity is not a peculiar thing; it is a normal thing."

"The worst of it is, that for the moment, you are the kind of a person that does that kind of a thing."

"Faith is the reasonable key to the doors of life."

"The normal life is the life that is adapted to the whole scheme of things."

After his return to Pennsylvania, Dr. Lloyd wrote an article for the Presbyterian Banner entitled "Ten Days at Maryville College." Some of his impressions of Maryville College and of the February Meetings

Crawford And Marley Get Women's Votes

The Bainonian and Theta Literary Societies elected as their respective presidents for next term, Billy Crawford, and Louise Marley. The other officers were:

Bainonian

Vice-President, Rachel Frost; Secretary, Minnie Jones; Program Secretaries, Marjorie Jones, Janet Stanley; Poster Chairman, Mary Carroll; Sergeant-at-Arms, Lila Barr; Editor, Ellen Metz; Critic, Wilma Dick.

Theta

Vice-President, Cora Houk; Secretary, Virginia Carter; Program Chairmen, Bess Mitchell, Jaculyn O'Dell; House Chairman, Lois Blessing; Editor, Nathalia Wright; Critic, Dorothy Marshall; Sergeant-at-Arms, Lucy Dent.

The officers will not assume their various duties until March. The election was held early in order that the last term officers might have their pictures in the Chilhowean.

A RACY STORY

I have heard of men who walk a mile for a Camel but never before have I heard of men who run two and a half miles for a quarter. I should say "man" because it is indeed a singular case.

Saturday afternoon Hadley Webb ran ten times around the track for the sole purpose of winning a bet of twenty-five cents. It was either a mercenary purpose or perhaps a desire to succeed; or again it may have been the one opportunity to take advantage of Dean Rodger's generosity.

Annual February Meetings Set Forth Basic Religious Truths

Searching Introspection On Part of Students Follows Reasonable Challenge of Leader.

Feb. 8—The February Meeting which began here last Tuesday morning, are arousing much interest among the students and townspeople. Dr. Lloyd as leader, is developing the themes of "Loyal to the Royal in Thyself" and "Christ and the Living Issues" His logical and reasonable arguments are reassuring the students that they have chosen the best thing, and are convincing the most skeptical that there must be some thing in religion after all.

Rev. Sidney E. Stringham, as song leader, is living up to, and surpassing, his high standards of the past.

A summary of the meetings follows:

Tuesday Morning, February 3

One of the elements of being loyal to the royal in oneself is the element of self esteem. Self esteem is the opposite of conceit. It is not a superiority complex. Self esteem often makes us ashamed of ourselves. It is a deadly foe of mediocrity. There is a danger of being satisfied with the average which self esteem prevents. Self esteem is the basis of all noble character. Be true to thyself. Self esteem is true to the facts in science.

Tuesday Night, February 3

Dr. Lloyd spoke of our scale of values; what things come first in our lives. Everyone has a scale of values. There is something at the top in everyone's life. We should have an organized life and make our life not a brushpile but a tree. Furthermore, we should have a proportioned life. A life is beautiful only if its proportions are right.

Wednesday Morning, Feb. 4

The general theme of Dr. Lloyd's morning addresses is "Loyal to the Royal in Thyself", taken from Tennyson's Idyls of the King.

One of the elements of such loyalty is Expectancy. Expectancy is the characteristic of normal youth. A child believes in things beyond what can be seen. The scientist believes in unseen atoms and electrons. The world needs eternal youth, which believes not only in the realities of honor and integrity. People are old when they stop expecting better things Expectancy leads to great discoveries. What we expect, we get; in college, in happiness, in people, in truth, in science, in exploration. Christ expected much from his small band of disciples; his expectation was realized by the way in which they spread the Gospel.

Expectancy leads to the inner power of confidence of prayer, and of an ideal. If an ideal lives in our hearts, it will lead us to God. And, like the climbers of the Matterhorn who come to the small chapel on the slope, when we follow an ideal up the mountain side, it leads us to the chapel, where we find God.

Wednesday Night, February 4

The issue discussed was that of our beliefs. First of all, we should have a belief in a personal God. We should believe in a personal Saviour and we should believe in a personal immortality. As a consequence of these beliefs, we should believe in a personal moral obligation. A belief is worth nothing until it is very real to us; and it is real only when it is vivid and when it is a controlling force in our lives.

Thursday Morning, Feb. 5

The third element is self denial. The necessity of self-denial is strongly emphasized by the fact that each person consists of more than one self. If we encourage the best, we must repress the worst side of our nature.

Self-denial is a necessary cleansing process. It helps us reject the positive evils which hurt us, and which keep us from the best. Some things harmonize with Christ, and others do not, and have to be taken away.

Self-denial demands heroism. We

Medals Are Awards For Pi Kappa Delts

Winning Students Represent Maryville In Meet.

Contests for selecting college representatives in oratory and extemporaneous speaking will be held on the second of March under the auspices of the local chapter of the Pi Kappa Delta. Four students will be selected, a man and a woman in each of the two fields. Oratory and extemporaneous speaking. Each of these will receive a Pi Kappa Delta medal in addition to the opportunity of representing Maryville at the Provincal Convention held at Centre College, Kentucky. The medals have never been given here before. This is not only open to members of the Fraternity but to any student in the college.

In oratory the contestants will select their own subjects. In extemporaneous speaking the general subject for the boys will be "The Economic Depression", and for the women "Higher Education".

Professor Queener wishes to meet the candidates on Tuesday, the 17th of February or on Wednesday, the 18th at 3:00 p. m. in his class room.

When Hearts Are Trumps—Terry

Roses are red,
Violets are blue,
You love me
And I love you.

(with apologies to Mr. Anonymous)

Although the essence of spring hasn't arrived as yet, a young man's fancy always turns to love in the middle of February.

When a student comes to Maryville there are certain regulations that he must follow with regard to Valentine's Day. The "sweetest girl in the world" must be showered with candy—chocolate drops, gum drops, and any other kind of delicacy yielding to the powers of gravitation, in order that the needed shower may be productive. The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la, will also make a blooming good present.

Valentines of course are the substitutes "when words fail" the erstwhile young swain. However, do not tax a girl's sense of humor by sending her a comic valentine. Back in the good old days, when we were in the age of innocence during grammar school, a comic valentine was acceptable and capable of producing cachinnations of no small degree; but now in this age of sophistication comic valentines are received as an insult and the roommate suffers as much as the dispatcher of this noisome pestilence.

"Three little words" are all that are necessary in this epistle of adoration although if a person is so inclined to write or to pay for words of Stevensonian dimension he may do so.

Reciprocation on the part of the girl is expected, if not necessary, but the method is entirely a personal matter. The vagaries of womankind cannot be commented upon by this inexperienced member of that sex.

However, follow this rule: Let the heart rule the head on Valentine's Day regardless of circumstances or of impending disaster. It pays to please.

And Hereby Hangs The Tale—Terry

This brief episode is not a parody on The Tale of the Tub, it is merely a dissertation on the tale of a shirt, in other words, a shirt tale.

A sophomore who frequents the library unconsciously yet unceasingly, furnished the inspiration. He was sitting at that inconspicuous, secluded table which upholds the Oxford Dictionary located in front of the doors as one enters the library, and he was unintentionally attempting to read or perhaps study for an e class.

Beneath his sweater, a piece of tan material drooped down disconsolately, although a side view revealed a forty-five degree angle to this animated, misplaced piece of goods. Ignorance was indeed bliss for him because he walked through the library totally oblivious of any excess baggage or any unusual form of drapery attached thereto. The look on his face belied knowledge of any kind even though as a sophomore his exposure to trig should have at least introduced him to the interesting tale of angles forty-five degrees, more and less.

After he had unwittingly entertained the audience in the library he proceeded to go out and face the great outdoors thus presenting a most unusual background for the moonshiners who no doubt enjoyed the tale of the shirt as much as did the non-moonshiners inside. Whither he went next I know not, but this tale of a shirt has come to a definite end.

We would put in some of the little by-play in which Dr Stevenson and Dr. Lloyd indulged, but it was most too subtle for us. Just when is Dr. Stevenson serious, anyhow?

Our Tribute

The old newspaper adage that "names make news", has been observed faithfully by the members of the present Echo Staff in regard to our President, Dr. Lloyd. We have spilled a lot of ink about Dr. Lloyd, his family and their activities. It is a constant temptation to write an editorial about him each week, not only because we feel sure that the students would read it, but because he merits all the praise that we may give him.

We of the Highland Echo Staff take this opportunity to express our appreciation of Dr. Lloyd's guidance in the February Meetings. Simply, modestly, yet so convincingly spoken, his daily messages not only afford inspiration, but a comfort that must surely be the essence of true religion.

—O—

One Way

The passage from the Bible that says in substance "And what does it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?", has been running through our thoughts recently. It would seem that this pertinent question, alone, would justify the February Meetings. Justify isn't the correct word. The meetings don't have to be justified or reasoned about. They are to be accepted among the many things that are ordered for our good. The acceptance is not a passive, but an active one, each student almost unconsciously falling into the proper attitude.

We like the word revival because to most of us, the Meetings are really a revival of faith. They are a reminder to prevent our forgetting where to place the emphasis. They are another attempt on the part of the older and wiser people to set us right. They are a means that those interested in our welfare employ to enable us to make choices, to help us solve our problems.

To others of us the Meetings are a breaking away of the old life, a means by which we begin the spiritual life that is so essential to the well rounded personality.

The finest things in the world are the oldest things, and all the terms that have been employed to describe them have been branded as trite and worn out. We wish that we had new expressions or the power of saying old things in new ways. Had we either of these gifts, we should be able to express what the February Meetings mean to the college, and what their present leader means to us. Confessing our inability in apt turns of expression, we may at least resolve in the words of our leader to be,

"Loyal to the Royal in Ourselves."

—O—

Found in the Highland Echo for February 18, 1929:

"Mr. Stringham entered Pearson's Hall the other day when Miss Molly was putting the last letters in the big box in the hall.

"'Miss Molly', he exclaimed, 'you don't mean that you keep your hope chest down here!'"

Highland Flings

"What's a college professor?"

"He's the person who gets the money that's left after the athletic coaches are paid off."

"What would you do if a horse fell in the bath tub?"

"Why, pull the plug out, of course."

Willie was our darling,
But now he is no more;
For what he thought was H2O
Was H2SO4.

Ruth: "The man I marry must be as brave as a lion, but not forward; wise as Solomon, but meek as a lamb; he must be kind to every woman, but love only one; above all, he must be handsome as Appolo, but not conceited."

Harry: "Gosh! how lucky that you met me."

And then there was the absent-minded professor who threw himself from a third story window while testing his life-time pen.

They were walking across the street when an Austin passed by:

Co-ed: "Did you see that?"

Co-Eddie: "Yes. Why,"

Co-Ed: "I was standing on the corner the other day and one of those things ran up my sleeve."

CAMPUS TALKIE

Student—"Say, I don't believe Dr. Lloyd likes Sinclair Lewis and H. L. Mencken."

Who was that famous Greek runner? Was it Phideppedes?

Hiro is a much shorter word. Perhaps Dr. Lloyd didn't know. He contented himself with saying, "The runner has returned."

Did any one ever learn the name of the history student who in response to a certain question put by Miss Jewell, answered:

"The most interesting thing in the lesson to me was when the night watchman went to sleep."

ECHO ACCOUNTS OF 1928 REVIVAL CARRY PRAISE OF DR. LLOYD

are contained in such passages as these:

"Speaking twice a day for two weeks to audiences of from seven hundred to a thousand alert college students, faculty, and friends; meeting many in interviews concerning life problems; experimenting with the joy of generous friendship and contact with responsive minds and hearts; coming away somewhat weary in body, but refreshed and encouraged in spirit—such is the story of a leader of the annual religious services at one of our denominational colleges. The writer of this paper recently had the privilege of this experience in connection with the fifty-second series of February Meetings at Maryville College, Tennessee."

After speaking of the opinion prevalent among certain leaders and educators that college youth is but slightly concerned about religion, Dr. Lloyd continues:

"This paper aims to set forth no general conclusions, but its writer comes from Maryville convinced of a real and intelligent effort to have vital Christianity and true education grow into one structure. The February Meetings effect but a concentration of the emphasis running through all the year at the hands of an able college pastor, a Christian faculty, an expert and developing Department of Bible and Religious Education—equally significant, to the understanding of youths attitude to religion may be the student's reaction to the presentation of the claims of Jesus. Of their interest there could be no doubt. And not only interest, but response also. That the vast majority of seven hundred and fifty American students, in the absence of any high pressure methods, would definitely register a forward step in response to plain and demanding propositions, augurs much for youth and the future of the Christian enterprise. And it signifies the essential presence of the Spirit of God."

Mrs. West (making up characters for My Irish Cinderella) "Mrs. Veech, I think the lord needs some more make-up."

SUPERIOR COTTIES

Searching for material from which to extract a paragraph on seniors is not, by any means, the easiest job in the day's work. First, there is the abundance of seniors from which one is forced to choose Then, in rapid succession, come the matters of censors, indignant seniors, the Wickersham report, high doctor, fees in Afghanstan, etc. However, anyone with no insight at all can see, sans the slightest mental effort, that Dick Strain's turn isn't far off. Dick, in times past, has told quite an interesting story concerning the way in which Maryville came to be his Alma Mater. He says that, being disappointed in his ambition to become a globe-trotter, he searched his lexicon of college catalogues and chose Maryville because it happened to be at the farthest distance from his home town, Crow's Landing, California. He goes on to say, moreover, that Indefinable, intangible, Maryville spirit has held him in spite of the fact that he is no longer a "strange man in a strange land" but on the contrary, one of the best known men on the Hill. During his three-year stay at Maryville, Dick's pleasing smile, presumably gained in sunny California, has been a great factor in his formation of many friendships. It has, no doubt, carried weight with his debate audiences, if not with his judges, who are generally pretty sure that he would have won even had he worn a face as long as the proverbial neuralgia victims. Dick is not, however, confined to excellence in forensic circles. That he has been on the tennis team roster since freshmanhood and is captain of the squad this year is reminder enough of this fact. Dick, hoping and planning to enter medical school next fall, will be another sawbones from the class of '31. Well Dick, whatever you undertake, Maryville wishes you the best of a well-deserved success.

Another to whom we must inevitably turn our attenion is Donald Benn. A native son of St. Peters burg, Florida, Benn is, at least a geographical rival of Dick Strain. However, in spite of the numerous disputes between Fla. and Cal. concerning weather, fruits, etc., Dick and Don are the closest of friends, and it seems that both states have prcduced a Maryvillian of whom to be proud. Don has reached that zenith of ability and popularity to which every true collegian aspires the honor of his senior class presidency. And it is a well-merited honor. He is fulfilling his duties as president in a manner which would do credit to anyone. He has been a Maryvillite only since his junior year, coming to us from a Florida junior college, but during his three semesters here he has made of all who know him firm and fast friends. He has chosen the law as his profession. We congratulate him on being a student of whom Maryville is proud and wish him the high success to which he will inevitably attain.

MARYVILLE REPRESENTED IN "WHO'S WHO"

Maryville College has four representatives in "Who's Who in the South". They are Miss Mary Ellen Caldwell, Dr. Jasper C. Barnes, Dr. Samuel Tyndale Wilson, and Dr. George Alan Knapp.

Miss Caldwell, our dean of women, taught in Maryville College Prep School for seven years. After acting for some time as a matron, she was in 1913, appointed Dean of Women and has held that office to the present time.

Dr. Jasper C. Barnes, the second representative, who is now Dean Emeritus acted as dean of the college from 1914 to 1930. He is also the author of several books.

The third member of the quartet is Maryville's ex-president. Dr. Samuel Tyndale Wilson. His "Century of Maryville College" in which he records the various phases of the growth of our school, has had a wide circulation.

Dr. George Alan Knapp, better and affectionately known as "Daddy Knapp" is the last of the four representatives. His lovable nature has endeared him to his students and colleagues alike. But his skill in mathematics has won recognition for him, elsewhere. He has been here at Maryville since 1914.

Andrew Newcomer (in a Systematic Speech) "Hackettstown has progressed much since I left it."

Black woman by the creek,
Hanging out your clothes,
Do your hands get very cold
When it snows, When it snows?

Black woman by the creek,
Smiling in the sun
What have you to think about
When your work is done?

Black woman by the creek,
Tell me, do you know
That the sheets you're hanging out
Match the snow, match the snow?

PRAYER

O God, Thou art like the mountains,
Changeless, eternal, infinite,
Mysterious, deep confiding,
Like beauty that is too painful to bear;
There is a majesty and strength
That makes man in his smallness,
Feel he is clay.

EVENING THOUGHTS

The gold and mauve of a fading sunset,
The distant rim of purple mountains,
A pale evening star, Spica, I think,
Faint shadows, deepening into dusk,
The dim outline of friendly cedars,
The smell of cool, clean earth,
The soft call of a nightbird. . .

These turn my cares, fretful and anxious,
To soothed thoughts, quiet and free—
When forgetfulness is redemption,
And pain is lost in the joy of being still.

IRREVOCABLE

The Maiden of the Morn
Walked through the sky,
Gathering stars
Into a bright bouquet;
She stopped so suddenly
I thought one she had forgot—
But no. . . .
She turned and fled as if pursued
By some relentless Kismet,
And then—I saw Aurora.

Heard at the last snap—
Maryville College gone Mother Goose
Mother Goose! Mother Goose!
Maryville College gone Mother Goose
Rah! Rah! Rah!

FROM DR. LLOYD'S ADDRESSES

"Self esteem often makes us ashamed of ourselves."

"There have always been two kinds of people on the cross; the highest and the lowest. They don't crucify the average because the average doesn't count."

"Make your life not like a brush heap, but like a tree."

"When men and women quit looking for better things they are old."

"Every time that Christianity has gone out into the world it has gone in the spirit of heroism."

"College is an organized opportunity for self education."

"Expectancy is a special heritage of youth."

"Youth believes in the unseen realities."

"Expectancy leads to discovery."

"Expectancy leads to inner power."

"Self denial demands heroism."

"Self-denial is the price you pay for the thing you want most."

"In order that the best may be expressed the worst must be repressed."

STRINGHAM CHILDREN PERFORM IN CHAPEL

Feb. 8—Last night, at the evening worship service, the daughters of our song leader, the Rev. Mr. Stringham, assisted in the song service. Ruth gave a piano number and Jean sang "Have You Been in the Garden with Jesus".

February 5, 1931

Dear Hessie:

Just an item that might be of interest for the Echo. The Atlantic Highlanders are holding their annual banquet and reunion at Princeton February 28 and March 1. Dr. Lloyd will be in Princeton at that time and address the organization at the banquet. Plans are underway for a bigger and better reunion than ever. We are 100 per cent behind Dr. Lloyd and Maryville in the February Meetings. Our prayers and thoughts are with you.

Let's go Maryville. Fight—fight—fight.

Sincerely,
Al Tull,
Secretary Atlantic Highlanders.

M. C. ALUMNUS WINS INSURANCE HONORS

A. B. Waggoner, local district manager for the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, America's oldest life insurance company, won first place among the 5000 agents of the company in The U. S. and Canada, for lives insured in 1930. This is the first time in the history of the Company this honor has ever been won by a Tennessee representative. Waggoner also led the State of Tennessee in volume of paid for business, as well as being the first in the state to qualify for the National Convention to be held at Colorado Springs in June.

Mr. Waggoner graduated with A. B. degree from M. C. in the class of 1914. He is a regular advertiser in The Highland Echo and is a loyal supporter of all College activities

SPORTS

SERIOUS THINKING TAKES PLACE OF ATHLETICS

SPORTOGRAPHY

By BOB WEST

In view of the fact that the February Meetings are in progress there are no games by means of which I can use my usual technique, but diversity is the essence of the soul of a poet, druggist, M. D. (mule driver), and Superintendent of light and heat in Carnegie Hall. Thus I have the privilege of holding a private bull session on this page with no fear of future complications.

—:—

Anyhow there are more true sports off the Athletic field in any institution than there are on it. For instance you know Dr. Lloyd holds a degree of Sportsmanship. He reveals it in every sermon. Clean, clear-cut, fair, open discussions, presented so that even I can appreciate them. That is certainly one of the qualifications of a good Sport.

—:—

A true speaker, or writer, should not be much wiser than his hearers, or readers, thus for anyone to try to make this fact one of his principles of life is to show his true colors. We know or can call to mind some who do not follow this rule—probably a teacher. Charm and manner is what we all need—"What mountains of blasticum bull—connus it eliminates.

—:—

As a matter of fact The Golden Rule of Athletics applies everywhere. For it requires faith in your fellowmen. Down deep in the hearts of everyone is the sense of fair play, of goodness. Your faith is a ray of Sunshine vitalizing that germ of goodness. It has often been said, and biologically proven, that anyone who does not obey the golden rule can be classed as subnormal—diseased.

—:—

It all seems strange but somehow things take a peculiar trend in general. Have you ever stopped to think that there must be a future life. Something must make up for the inequalities of this one. Look at some of the exalted beauties; sunset, storm on mountains, plain, prairie; sublime majesty of the mountains; these make you feel lonely. Now consider how man encraches on man so that we are almost in truth servants of each other, our freedom seems ephmeral, civilization appears created by some decaying bacillus, and that from a natural condition we have gotten into a hurly-burly where rivalry is rife. And it seems sensible to think that the wise are those who have least—they hold earthly ties and goods very lightly. Seemingly stripping for eternity. Their earthly blessing is that they will never be shown up in biographies.

—:—

It's certainly a good thing that I don't have to earn my living by writing. For there can be no doubt about the fact that I would starve. I have never as yet been dubbed a Knight of the Pen and am frank in saying I'm not very expectant.

—:—

Writing is becoming a profession. It is rather hard on the gray cortex, but the novels, magazines, papers, etc. that are turned out daily and are bought by the unsuspecting public stand as monuments to this fact. You do not have to be a Theosophist. Words do not mean much, it's their use, the ideas they express. True writing is a collaboration between the writer and the reader so all things must work together to keep from turning discourse into discord.

—:—

This is as true in sports, religion, literature, Psychology or moonshining. The way we act, think, or do determines our goal. And in the end, we win chiefly by the guns we never fire.

King Plays Scotties Here Friday Night

Game Promises To Be One of Unusual Interest.

The King basketeers will invade the Highland territory Friday night. The King squad is reported to be in good condition, and when it is remembered that last year they won from us at the Conference Series, then it is time for us not only win a revenge match but show them we are out for the cup this year.

This is the first game the Scotties have engaged in for about two weeks and the machinery should be in good working order. The offensive part of the game will lay with White, Woodard, Cooper, and Davis perhaps.

Turn out Friday night and let's make the King bunch think that their rule extends over but a small bit of basketball world.

According to the Public Health Service of Washington, there are 120,000,000 rats in the United States.

FEBRUARY MEETINGS GIVE ATHLETES TWO WEEKS VACATION FROM COURT

REVIEW OF SPORT ACTIVITTIES DURING PAST MONTHS PROVES SUPERIORITY OF HIGHLANDERS

In view of the two weeks reprieve in Sports it is altogether fitting and proper that we review the activities of Maryville to this date.

The Highland gridders have had a most successful year. Not losing a single conference game. And playing very creditable games against such outstanding teams as University of Tennessee, University of Kentucky and Howard College.Of the nine games played Maryville won five.

The Basketball team has given the student body many thrills. Captain Kemp Davis, with his reliable ability has led the Highlanders very successfully through many games and is promising more laurels for the Scotties' trophy bowl before the year is over.

Tennis is beginning, the plans have been practically completed, according to Manager William Landrum, for an invasion into the enemy territory of North Carlina. Buchanan, and Strain ought to give us several victorious articles for the Sport page.

Women's athletics, while being confined chiefly to inter-class activities, has proven of much interest to the student body. There is much ability among the women which would give Maryville advertisement on the sport sheets of many college newspapers if the opportunity were given.

In summarizing, it can truly be said that the Highlanders are playing the game in their usual consistent manner, and are worthy of their titles. The reason for success on the fields of battle is found in the old Latin adage, "Oui Laborat Vincet."

DON'T GET ALARMED!

The deadly calm and quiet of the librarical atmosphere was shattered at 5:15 Wednesday afternoon by the unpremeditated presence of an exceedingly noisy alarm clock.

It rang itself into the hearts and ears of those present, Miss Kennedy calmed its clarion call and peace was again esablished.

Roberta Hickman On Hill

Miss Roberta Hickman, member of the class of '30, visited Lutie Toole of Maryville, and friends on the Hill, last week. She came here from Chicago. She reports that she saw no gangsters during her stay in the Windy City. When asked if she, too, was teaching school, she replied:

"I have been coaching plays. At present, I'm a member of that great class called the unemployed."

Roberta will be remembered for her excellent work in dramatics, and for her famous statement, "Bigger and Better Women!"

Prof. J. W. Rowe, industrial engineer of New York, says that power generated by machinery in the United States is equal to that of 12,000,000,000 slaves.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Each year during the February Meetings, it is customary to have the Christian Endeavor Society of the New Providence Presbyterian Church meet on the Hill on Sunday night. The meeting was held last night at six o'clock in Bartlett Hall.

The topic for discussion was "What is meant by 'God is my Father'?" Those taking part were: Sam Broughton, Carol Cushman, Roberta Robinson, Phil Sorce, and Leland and Russell Gilmore. Lea Calloway, Eleanor Henry and Raymond Young led in prayer. A solo by Norma Spilatore concluded the program.

Recenly when the Elgin Academy at Elgin, Ill., celebrated its diamond jubilee, the same chimes which were tolled 75 years ago were rung by Frank B. Perkins, who first sounded them.

Efficiency experts in large enterprises in the United States estimate that the average working girl requires six minutes before the mirror to "make up" her face during business hours.

Womens' Basket Ball Game Saturday Night

On Saurday night, February 14, the first women's basketball game will be played between the sophomores and junior-seniors. The game will begin at 7:00 o'clock.

Both teams have been practicing for several weeks, and the fray promises to be an interesting one. Martha Storey will captain the sophomores, while Edith Kitts pilots the junior-seniors.

WEST'S OBSERVATIONS CONCERNING SNAP

"The root of all evil"; the supreme objective of the daily grind; the cause of premature wrinkles and gray hair; discontent; wrecker of homes; the foundation of hopes; the maker of black despair; students sternest task-master; slave driver of humanity; the primary cause of war; a thing of inconsistency—changes.

Perhaps this is a peculiar way to start an article which is to deal with the "popular" pastime called Snap. But enough questionaires which were run in the Echo recently have been filled out and turned in to give vent to the above utterances. The answers to the questions are for the most part exceedingly humorous, ranging anywhere from "don't be silly; too dry; too dumb; uninteresting; antiquated, and nothing to it," were given in answer to the question of why or why not play Snap. There is a practically unanimous decision that Snap cannot be improved in itself but some new form of entertainment must be introduced.

In answer to some possible substitutes another list of Falstaff specials can be listed. Several have seriously offered the suggestion of companionate marriage, of course this is a bit too advanced to be introduced at the present time. Next comes a reasonable number of coupons marked, "Hide and go seek" (in couples). This game was not fully discussed and so it would be left up to authorities of the game as to just who would do the hunting and what the penalty would be if not found. Now to report the greater part, or practically the bulk of the returns which are marked "Dancing and cards for those who don't care to dance." This suggesion has been rumored before and of course sounds only a logical answer to the present social situation at Maryville. However, just what the outcome will be is a matter of time, and wills.

Weather Ideal For Tennis Enthusiasts

Manager William Landrum Is Working On Plans.

Spring weather has brought Maryville's tennis aspirants out on the clay courts en masse for the opening of the new season. It seems that the warm weather of the past two weeks has proved an incentive for players to get back on the courts; many racquets appeared out in the open for the first time, from their winter's hibernation.

The players are expecting to have the two varsity courts fixed up in good shape in a short time. As soon as possible the courts will be covered with a thin layer of black loam, to make them more compact.

Although William Landrum, manager of the team, has written several schools for games, no word has been received to definitely close any deals. It is expected that the teams will take several trips, before the season comes to a close.

In the early part of March there will be a tournament held to determine the eight men who will play on Maryville's team this year. All players who desire to make the team should make an extra effort to be in top form for this event.

WEEK-END PARTY AT THE "HERON'S NEST"

Miss Heron, Mabel Dickerson, Alice and Bill Renegar, Billy Crawford, and Irish Terry spent a most enjoyable week-end at the Heron cabin near Tallassee Springs.

Eating and woodchopping were the two activities most indulged in although sleeping was done on the side—right, left, front, and back sides. The brides-to-be made practical use of their cooking ability while the as yet unengaged damsels indulged in wood chopping. An interesting pictorial review was made, the prize picture being that of Mabel Dickerson representing a time-to-retire advertisement, a la nightgown and candle to say nothing of an extensive and broad-minded yawn.

Hikes were taken in order to get even more enjoyable mountain views. The most serious casualty was Alice Renegar's losing her heel but her sole still remains intacked. For further information concerning the week-end party and especially the password, "Passive but willing", see any of the above mentioned campers.

Chilhowean Activities

If late hours and the midnight oil are indications of activity, work on the Chilhowean is progressing rapidly.

During the past week numerous club and society pictures have been made. Willamara Minton, the art editor, has completed her clever drawings for the different sections of the annual. Details for the feature section are being carried out and they help in further illustrating the theme.

The business manager is still receiving money for down payments so that any students who desire a copy of this pictorial review of their college year, may make arrangements with Hadley Webb or his assistants.

OLDEST LIVING GRADUATE OF M. C. WRITES OF STUDENT EXPERIENCES

mother was a fine school teacher. From early childhood he had the best kind of literary training and had read many books. He was our ablest debater in those days. To carry his point, in a learned way, he would sometimes appeal to history. He would turn the leaves of a book and gravely manufacture history and he seemed to be reading it from his book. The president and the members of the society did not know but that it was real history to which they were listening, and usually the decision was on Hugh's side of the question.

Hugh was a practical joker, and here comes in the second use of the College back yard; it became a turnip-patch. Ben H. Lea, also one of the thirteen, had been a soldier in the Civil War and was among the oldest students in the College. Ben was a very active industrious man, and nearly always was doing something in addition to his studies. The College back yard was fertile ground, and Ben spaded it up thoroughly and raised a fine crop of turnips on it. Hugh Sawyer to whom we have just referred, selected one of Ben's largest turnips, washed it thoroughly and made as neat a bundle as any woman's dexterous hand could make, directed it to Ben in small letters with the name and best compliments of his favorite lady friend, and paid a colored boy to put it into his hands. Of course he saw the joke the next call he made on the young lady and very easily detected the guilty perpetrator.

Prof. Lamar received his primary and academic education in his native county of Jefferson County, Tennessee, and he then came to Maryville College to study under Dr. Isaac Anderson who had founded the College in 1819. In September 1848 he graduated with the highest honor in a class of six young men. He continued a while in the College studying Theology under Dr. Anderson and tutoring among the students, and then entered Union Seminary in New Jersey where he graduated in June 1852. After his graduation he went to the neighborhood in Missouri where his parents had settled. They had left Tennessee at the time of the beginning of his course in Maryville.

In response to the call of Synod he returned to Tennessee in 1857 to accept a professorship in the College. He was passionately fond of teaching. The College had to close its doors on account of the Civil War. In the autumn of 1861, he came to the home of my parents near Maryville and continued there for ten years. His room was upstairs above the old parlor in the building now occupied by my brother. It was while Prof. Lamar lived in this home that, in November 1865, I and fourteen others gave our hearts to Christ and united with the Forest Hill Presbyterian Church, a country church on the Montvale Springs pike, three and a half miles south of Maryville.

During all the dismal period of the War, Maryville College was a constant presence in his mind and heart. I well remember the long evenings when after supper he came into the family room and tarried with us. We all gathered in front of the wide old fireplace, a place of comfort. The back wall was occupied by a log, usually hickory, and there was plenty of wood in front. My dear old uncle Andy was a champion fire maker and would not tolerate a poor fire. We spent many pleasant hours there, and there the real heart of the kindly man revealed itself. Maryville College was often the subject of his conversation. He was a far-seeing man. His plans were formed to throw his life with all his might, as soon as possible, into the work of building up Maryville College. To show how he planned to execute his purpose, he induced the Board of Home Missions to commission Dr. P. Mason Bartlett for a six months' term of service as Stated Supply of New Providence Church of Maryville, then vacant. Dr. Bartlett came January 1, 1866. Prof. Lamar had met him while in Union Seminary. With a view to re-opening the College in the coming autumn, he asked Dr. Bartlett to organize a class in Latin. The class was organized and the teaching was done in the James Toole residence in northwest. Maryville. This residence was at that time occupied by Rev. Samuel Sawyer and family. The class consisted of Edward W. Tedford, recently deceased, Thomas P. Cowan, Jimmy Blackburn and myself.

After the re-opening of the College in September 1866, for some time Prof. Lamar was the only teacher, but he soon secured the services of Isaac A. Martin as tutor. In October 1867, one year after the re-opening, Prof. Alexander Bartlett, younger brother of Dr. P. Mason, was induced to come to Maryville. His specialty was Latin, but he was a thorough all round scholar and noble man. In March 1869, Professors Lamar and Bartlett were joined by Dr. P. Mason Bartlett, who came as President of the College. Dr. Bartlett was a great man with a great sympathetic heart. These three men, Lamar and the Bartlett brothers, worked in perfect accord with each other, united in the noble work of building up Maryville College. How earnest and agonizing were the prayers of these men at morning chapel, only a reflection of their constant prayer in private! And coupled with these prayers was their most strenuous and persevering effort!

Trusting that this little production will be of some service to you, and with my best wishes for you and the great cause you represent, I am

Most sincerely,
Calvin A. Duncan.

ANNUAL FEBRUARY MEETINGS SET FORTH BASIC RELIGIOUS TRUTHS

are heroic because we have to be, not because we choose to be. Jesus and his doctrine appeal to the heroism in every nature because of the risk, the venture, the heroism the self-denial that are the characteristics of Christianity.

Self-denial is unescapable. We sooner or later pay a price for what we want most. We either deny an education for other things, or we deny having an education. We either deny ourselves for Christ, or we deny ourselves the privilege of following Christ.

Thursday Night, February 5

The issue of usefulness was brought out. Christianity demands usefulness. Greatness and happiness are two rewards of being useful. There are several hindrances to being useful; selfishness; a negative attitude toward life; the fact that we are willing to help people in Africa but not at home; the common-place routine which makes us lose our zest for usefulness; and the lack of opportunity due mainly to personal limitations. In order to be useful we should have a will for service; make the most of our capacities; pray continually and steadfastly; cultivate a spirit and personality that are right; and be cheerful. Two sources of usefulness are a spirit of gratitude and a spirit of faith.

Mrs. West In Workshop

Feb. 4—At the weekly meeting of the Writers' Workshop Mrs. West read some Civil War reminiscences written by her father, Dr. Charles Eckles who died last October.

The stories were written by Dr. Eckles in his eighty-fifth year and portray his remarkable faculty for remembering incidents that occurred back in the days of the Civil War. Dr. Eckles' ability to write well and interestingly is displayed in these stories, and they were read exactly as he had written them just a year ago.

These Civil War stories and other incidents that he has written will be treasured by his daughters who are making plans to have copies printed from the original.

Friday Morning, February 6

Another element that one must consider if he would be loyal to the royal in himself is the element of obedience. Jesus said "Enter ye in by the narrow gate." The narrow gate leads to wide places. Youth is seeking thrills. No one wants a drab life. Freedom is the desire of every one whether it be civic, conomic or personal freedom. To be free one must be obedient. Being free does not mean letting yourself go. If you were to follow all your dominant human urges, ruin would result. Golf players, artists and musicians are free not because they turned loose but because they spent years in practice. We are fashioned by what we obey. Men who have responsible positions feel the need not only of human relatinships, but of divine guidance. We should obey the highest that we know. The voice from within and the Voice from above are the highest that we know. There must be developed within us a taste for the finest and the highest. The voice from above grows out of the voice from within. It is a judgment of man's taste when he does not find Jesus beautiful.

Friday Evening, February 6

Tonight, as his fourth discourse on the theme "Christ and the Issues of Life", our leader spoke to us on the subject, "Right or Wrong—how can you tell which?" There are several places, he said, to which we go when in doubt concerning the correctness of an act, but often times these authorities help us little. Dr. Lloyd gave us five questions to apply when we want to decide about a matter. 1. Is the act in accord with my own nature? 2. Is it beautiful? 3. Is it kind? 4. Am I willing to make my act a universal principle for every body? 5. Is it Christlike?

Saturday Morning, February 7

Reverence is the fifth essential to being loyal to the royal in oneself. Like everything good, the price of Reverence is high. Reverence is the capacity to respond to something high, to adore it, to look up to it, to count it one's glory to serve it. Reverence costs (1) the developing of an appreciation for things high and fine; (2) the ability to see the two ways of getting at the realities of life—by the artistic and the scientific approach. But Reverence is worth all it costs. Sometimes it is sold or cast away in thoughtless haste, through cynicism, through believing that all things can and must be explained; through the growth of careless habits such as profanity. People swear because they want to be impressive, because they want to be independent and they have the habit. Profanity is unnecessary and inexcusable. It makes you lose your sense of reverence. It develops a coarse streak in you. It separates you from God.

Saturday Evening, February 7

Temptation, although we do not speak today of temptation as people used to do, the terminology we use means the same thing, in the end. Every man must deal with his own temptations. The battle with evil is a real battle—not a sham battle—and a running battle. Five practical ways of dealing with your temptations are: (1) Identify them—find out what they are by letting the white light of Christ shine on your life; (2) Attack them—do it immediately, uncompromisingly and never give up; (3) Avoid unnecessary temptations—you'll get enough of them, anyway. It's not cowardice to run from temptation; (4) Crowd them out—put yourself into good places, give your time to good companions, good books, fill your life with the things of Christ. (5) Use every reinforcement you can. Your highest reinforcement will be found in your religion. Your religion makes Christ real to you, it makes you live the best.

Sunday Morning, February 8

Text: 1 Timothy 4:12—"Let no man despise thy youth." Some of the perplexity about our young people is a perplexity that older people have always had in regard to youth. Even as far back as Pliny's time the older ones were worrying about the conduct of the young people. Everything is not right with the youth of today. Young people as a group, are not as reverent as the facts of life demand. At heart, though, young people are as true and sound as they have ever been. Today young people face many bewildering facts. (1) They face all that is involved in a knowledge of the scientific approach. (2) They face the changes made in life by industry. Young people do not live so much in their homes as they once did. (3) The new status of women has complicated matters. (4) Our young people face a multiplication of difficulties because there are so many things to be done. (5) Last of all, there is a new spirit of independence in the world. (speaking to the young people). It will take more real character for you to make good in life than it did for your parents. You must not only have physical strength, but the deeper strength of character. You must be an example in conduct, in spirit and in faith. A good motto for you to take, in this day of stress and challenge, is the one followed by Von Hindenburg—Ora et labora, pray and work.

Sunday Evening, February 8

Dr. Lloyd took for his subject this evening "What It Means to Be a Christian". It is equally important for those who have never decided to be Christians and those who are Christian to realize what it means to be a Christian. A Christian is not merely (1) a citizen of a nation in which the majority of people are Christians; (2) a man who tries to do his best; (3) a man who is a church member; (4) a man who believes in the doctrines of the church; (5) a man who believes the Bible. That is, a Christian may be all these things, but these things do necessarily mean that a man is Christian. A Christian is a Christman. He is first of all a learner; then a believer, and last a follower of Christ. Being a Christian means starting out in the Christian life and going straight ahead, even though you can't see the whole path at the beginning.

Special Issue Next Week

Next week's paper in addition to the news write-ups, will contain several articles which were written by members of the Writers' Workshop. Since the February Meetings claim our attention, and no other activities take place while they are in progress, it is usually customary to omit a paper at this time.

Alpha Sigmas To Stage "The Crisis" Monday, Feb. 23

Last Mid-Winter Offering Is Dramatization of Novel By Churchill

WEST—WEST—WEST

Unusually Large Cast Includes Many Stellar Members; Mrs. West Is Coach.

On February 23, the dramatic talent of Alpha Sigma and her sister society will take the stage in the last mid-winter of the season, "The Crisis". Lenore West and Chilly Bowles have the leads.

The four act play is a dramatization of the historical novel of the same name by Winston Churchill. The play deals with a great crisis in the history of the United States, the Civil War. It gives the viewpoints of both the North and the South. It portrays the noble character and devotion of the men of both sides. It is rich in characterization.

The play, in its connection with Maryville, is securely linked to the name of West. Mrs. Nita Eckles West is coaching the players. Her daughter, Lenore West, has the part of the girl of the South. Bob West is an old Southern Colonel in the play. In addition to these, Charles West, also, has a place in the play.

Besides the Wests there are Chilly Bowles, as the young man of the North, and Andy Alexander, as the young man of the South. Jesse James takes the part of an old judge, a close friend of the colonel's in everything but politics.

A list of the unusually long cast follows:

Colonel Carvel - - Robert West
Judge Whipple - - Jesse James
Stephen Brice - - Chilly Bowles
Clarence Colfax - - - - Andrew Alexander
Carl Ritcher - - - Floyd Waters
Eliphalet Hopper - Lawrence Somers
Tom Catherwood - - Dean Rodgers
George Catherwood - - Coile Quinn
Maurice Renault - - - Charles West
Jack Brinsmade - William Landrum
Mr. Canter - - - -
Josephus - - - Reno Smith
Ephum - - - Jesse Willis
Virginia - - - Lenore West
Mrs. Brice - Mildred McKenzie
Puss Russell - - Kathryn Kizer
Anne Brinswade - - Mary Lovette
Maude Catherwood - Ruth Hannah
Eugenie Renault - Mignonne Goyne
Nancy - - Naomi Willingham

Campus Workers Lay Gas Main For Dr. Lloyd

February 13—Heavy rain today prevented the laying in and welding of the two-inch gas main along Bartlett Avenue.

During the week Brownie and the campus workers have been wielding their picks and shovels making a trench along the street from before Science Hall to behind Pearsons Hall and from there to the president's residence. A gas range is to be installed in the president's home in place of the coal range. In laying the line, pipes are being used which will be large enough to supply Pearsons kitchen, when gas ranges are installed there. From Pearsons to the president's house a regular service line will be used.

Last fall a gas main was laid to Science Hall, so that city gas is now used in the laboratory jets. The improvements now under way are merely an extending of this line.

Dorothy Kellar (having done her hair up in an absurb fashion)—"I'm going to wear my hair like this to the senior party. Do you suppose any one will ask me for a prom?"

Irish Terry—"Oh, yes, you'll be quite prominent."

"Goodness, Jasper, where in the world did you get that lantern?"

"I picked it up. Some careless person left it out there by the hole in the road."

Frosh Make Echo Office Shine

Much hilarity accompanied the periodic bath of the Highland Echo office administered by the freshman apprentices last Tuesday afternoon. In fact so much uncontrolled laughter was forthcoming that the noise finally seeped through the walls to the sensitive ears of Prof. Ellis and the ambitious group were requested to put on the silencer. But anyway, the office was all shiny and clean for the staff meeting later in the afternoon, and many and varied were the compliments passed upon its appearance.

We are informed that Charles Beale cavorted on the ladder with rag and Bon Ami for the benefit of Elizabeth Ayers and Grace Moore, while Dick Orr performed the necessary rites with the mop, spurred to unheard of heights of ambition by the moral support of Dorothy Casseres.

SENIOR OPEN PARTY TONIGHT IS GALA BALLOON CARNIVAL

Celebrated Company of Ball And Loon To Appear Here In Gym.

The class of '31, keeping up the tradition of an annual spring party, have chosen tonight as the most auspicious occasion for relaxation. These blase dignitaries being wearied of the ordinary forms of diversion, have engaged the services of the reputable company of Ball and Loon who will present for the entertainment and divertisement of the seniors and their guests a balloon carnival. It will be held in the Alumni gymnasium which is being transformed at Ed Shelley's direction by the decoration committee.

The company of Ball and Loon is very widely known, and Louise Marley, as chairman of the program committee, is to be given much credit for having secured the services of a so highly acclaimed company. Among the actors who have the distinction of having unusual histrionical abilities are Tiny Waters and Don Driggs who are at their funniest and loudest in a unique medicine show act. Other well-known members of the company are Jane Duke, a successful director of chorus dances, and Naomi Willingham, a soloist of no mean accomplishments. Leland Gilmore is the barker, and, according to the critics, he is no smash. Of course there will be the band, the strolling singers, a ventriloquist and the ever present strong man.

The food committee, superintended by Alice Renegar, is devising strange, delicious concoctions to tempt the jaded palates of the guests. They say it will not be typical carnival food, therefore pink lemonade addicts will be deprived of their old favorite.

Westminster Choir Here Thursday

The Westminister Choir, pictured above, will sing here, Thursday afternoon, February 19. This is the outstanding event of the year, and no one can afford to miss it. The admission fee is $1.00 with a special student rate of $0.50. Robert Jensen, who graduated from Maryville with the Class of '27, is a member of the choir.

DEBATORS TO MEET TUSCULUM AND KING ON FRIDAY FEB. 20

West, Barr Will Debate Here; James and Graham Go To King

On Friday night, February 20, the men's varsity debating team will meet Tusculum College in the Y. W. Auditorium. The question is the same as the women's team discussed last week—Resolved, that the nations of the world should adopt a policy of free trade. Maryville will be represented by Winn Barr and Robert West, who will uphold the negative side; and Tusculum will have the affirmative side. The decision will be rendered by a critic judge from the University of Tennessee. The debate will start promptly at 7:00 in order that everyone may go to the basketball game at 8:15.

On the same night, the Maryville affirmative speakers, Jesse James and William Graham, will meet King College at King.

Professor Queener received a letter the past week from Miami University expressing the favorable impression their women's team received when they were here. They invited Maryville to come up there and debate and said they wanted to come back here next year. The letter stated that they appreciated "the part you played in causing the girls to enjoy the Southland", and that the girls had "cordial impressions of Maryville College and of the atmosphere on the campus."

FACULTY WRITINGS CLAIM ATTENTION OF ECHO REPORTER

Faculty's Literary Efforts Not Without Value.

Many students are not acquainted with the literary publications of some of the members of our faculty. We have succeeded in getting some information which may prove interesting.

Dr. Barnes has a group of publications worthy of recognition. They follow in the order of their appearance:

1900—A booklet entitled The Development of Personality in the Afro-American

1912—Pressure Curve, a report to the Southern Educational Society.

1913—A monograph published in the University of Chicago Review, Voluntary Isolation of the Control in a Natural Muscle Group

1914—A report given at Atlanta, Georgia at a meeting of the American Association for the Advance of Science.

1915—Academic Status of Physchology in the South, printed in the Physchological Review.

1918—Article published in the Southern High School Quarterly, Teachers' Salaries Now and Before the War in Terms of Food and Clothing.

In 1918 Dr. Orr's article entitled "What Is Religious Education Aiming at in the College" appeared in

FACULTY, STUDENTS CABLE DR. WILSON "HAPPY BIRTHDAY"

Tomorrow Is Seventy-Third Birthday of President Emeritus.

Tomorrow Dr. Wilson, beloved President Emeritus of Maryville College, will celebrate his birthday in Syria, the land where he was born seventy-three years ago. By a unanimous standing vote taken in chapel Saturday it was decided that Maryville College will cable him a birthday greeting. Born in Homs, Syria, in 1858, Wr. Wilson devoted himself to missionary work in Mexico until poor health compelled him to resign. As a professor he was connected with the faculty of Maryville College from 1884, when he came as a professor of English and Spanish, until 1901 when he became President of the institution. Under his leadership, from 1901 until 1931, the college saw phenomenal growth. His influence was not confined to the college but was felt in every corner of the globe.

For some people the names of Dr. Wilson and Maryville College are synonymous, and rightly so, for during the thirty years of his presidency, he put all he had of devotion and service into the building of Maryville College, and today, to quote the Echo of February 10, 1930, "it stands as a fitting monument to his unselfish work."

Dr. Lloyd Closes Annual Meetings Friday Morning

"Everything Depends on You" Says Dr. Stevenson To Students.

LASTING MESSAGES

Students Take Stock of Them Selves; Sermons Are Practical.

The February Meetings were brought to a close Friday morning with a well chosen and helpful sermon on "Dedication". As Dr. Stevenson has assured us all along, everything now depends upon us.

Realizing that the students would like to keep these messages in mind, we print the following summaries of the last meetings:

Monday Evening, February 9

Following the theme of "Christ and Living Issues" Dr. Lloyd spoke on Keeping the Doors Open.

The first door he mentioned was the Door of Extended Interests. By keeping this door open we may live above and beyond our immediate environments. Small people close this door. The second one was the Door of the Faith of Others in You. You are never so good because of fear as because of someone's faith. The nearer we come to being "the fellows our mothers think we are" the more do we avert the tragedy of having someone lose faith in us. The next door opening one's life to real abundance is the Door of Ideals. Without the highest aims in life, we are apt to revert to the ignoble instead of the royal in our souls. Just as the nomads travel over the Arabian desert with the guidance of the stars, so must we be directed by the loftiest of purposes. Last is the Door of Enlistment With Christ. This narrow gate leads to the widest places of earth and heaven.

Tuesday Morning, February 10

Following closely the plan of presenting the elements essential to being "Loyal to the Royal in thyself" Dr. Lloyd spoke on the subject of Courage on Tuesday morning. In clear and concise statements he brought out the fact that "without courage there is no secure footing for the other virtues" that follow if one is "Loyal to the Royal" within. He then showed that it took real courage just to live, for there are always the two voices in constant opposition,—the voice of the hero and the voice of

President To Occupy His New Office Soon

The new office for Dr. Lloyd is nearing completion. Room 5 in Anderson Hall, which was formerly the art room, has been changed by a partition wall into two rooms; it has been given hardwood floors, and new plastering, and will soon receive further improvements to equip it for occupancy. The work, which is being done entirely by students, under the direction of Engineer Brown, is now slowed up while gas pipes are being laid to the president's home, but it is hoped that the new office may be finished within three or four weeks. The work remaining to be done includes sandpapering the floor; fitting the windows with weather-stripping, and with frosted glass in the lower sashes; installing electrical fixtures; painting; decorating the walls.

When the office is ready for Dr. Lloyd, Dr. Hunter, as Dean, will occupy the present office of the president. This position will enable the Dean to be near the records in the Registrar's office.

In his list of the ten best Proverbs in the book of Proverbs, Russell Gilmore noted Proverbs 21:19: "It is better to dwell in a desert land than with a contentious and fitful woman." We wonder whether he's had any experience which caused him to select this Proverb.

The Eternal Woman—Even At Twelve

One Of The Best Short Stories Written For Writers' Work Shop

Occasionally Fate gets her chromosomes badly mixed, and a girl is born who should have been a boy. Such a one was Patricia, aged twelve, the despair of her mother's life and, more or less secretly, you may be sure, the joy of her father's. Patricia herself, who had not yet become resigned to her unhappy lot and who still spent hours in futile attempts to kiss her elbow, had two idols in life. One was Bill Bailey, the thirteen year old son and heir across the street, commonly known in the neighborhood as the Terror; the other was Tom Mix, whose daring escapades she and Bill acted out every Saturday morning in her father's back lot under Bill's direction. Patricia's mother never knowingly let her go to Western movies.

This morning as Mrs. Taylor picked up Particia's sweater, marbles clattered to the floor. With a sigh she laid the sweater beside Patricia's books. She was never quite sure just what would fall from Patricia's pockets. Suddenly a shrill whistle resounded through the hall. Mrs. Taylor stepped to the foot of the stairway.

"Patricia Taylor! What on earth! Was that you?" she called up the stairs.

"Oh, mother!" came the excited answer, "did you hear me? I can whistle through my fingers just like Bill! Listen!"

Again the ear-splitting whistle, just as Mr. Taylor came to the door to take a hand in matters.

'Hurry up, Pat, and get ready for school. Two more tardies this month and you don't get that bicycle, remember!"

"All right, Dad. Mother be sure and put an apple in my lunch."

Mrs. Taylor followed her husband back to his shaving.

"Well, I wish you wouldn't call Patricia that awful name! And the idea of promising her a bicycle! You simply encourage her in her tom-boyish ways!"

Mrs. Taylor always spoke in exclamations when talking of Pat.

"What's wrong with calling her Pat?" was the husbandly retort, "and, as for giving her a bicycle, you know mighty well that the things that usually appeal to a girl would be no inducement whatever to her!"

"I know it! That's just the trouble! I don't know what I'm going to do with her! She's not normal! She even refuses to go to Mary Ellen's birthday party Friday night. When I was her age I looked forward to a party for weeks! And I can't make her go! If I do she'll do something terrible and be the talk of the neighborhood!"

Mr. Taylor turned from the mirror. "Here, shave my neck. I wouldn't worry about Pat for a minute if I were you, mother."

"No, you wouldn't!"

"Well, what's the use? Whether she knows it or not, she's really a girl at heart and sooner or later she'll come into her own. Great guns! It's nearly seven-thirty. I've got to run!"

And with what Mrs. Taylor termed the indifference of a husband he promptly forgot home, family, and the problematic Pat in his usual morning rush for the office.

Pat, hearing the clock strike seven-thirty, slid down the bannisters and snatched sweater and book strap.

"Maybe she won't tell me to come straight home after school," she thought, muttering "Aw heck!" under her breath as her mother followed her to the door.

"Patricia, come straight home after school is out, and try to see if you can get through one day without having to remain after school. I wonder if you can spell 'separate' this morning."

Judging Our Instructors

Some time ago the writer was talking with a former student of Maryville who is now graduating from the University of Pittsburgh about the difficulty of the courses in the respective schools. The Pittsburgh student told of an economics course which was unusually hard to master and said that the instructor often lectured about things that she could not grasp. When asked why she did not remain after class, and ask for explanations, she gave a contemptuous laugh and said:

"My dear, Pitt. is not Maryville."

Of course we rush to the defense of our school and our instructors who have not lost their human sympathies. We realize now that the University of Pittsburgh has too many students to encourage any after class explanations. We understand, too, that by the time we have reached the upper years of college work we should be able to figure out things for ourselves. But we still maintain that—except the student—the most important thing in the whole educational system is the teacher.

We hear that at Rollins College a plan has been devised whereby the students may judge the teacher. Of course, we have always judged our instructors, but it seems that this system will be efficient, result-getting and probably cold blooded. We should like to protest. A teacher just is or he isn't. Usually he knows it, too. And he should know that enthusiasm for his subject and interest in the students are the two prime essentials.

In view of the above argument aren't we justified in saying:

"Yes, Maryville is not Pitt."

—O—

Reading and Enthusiasm

During this week of religious ardor we have listened to many prayers. They have been beautiful, sincere prayers which have, echoed the aspirations and desires of youth. One wish that has frequently been expressed is that we may learn to really live—to fill every hour of our days with rich experiences, with beauty, with humor. It is natural that college men and women should pray in such a manner. It is because they have dreamed of days brimming with new knowledge and great happiness that they have come to college.

Why are some of us disappointed? Why do our days sometimes grow monotonous, full of little daily tasks and commonplace conversation, hours of routine and study? Have some of us lost already that young feeling of "expectancy"?

Enthusiasm for life is not a secret of the gods that is grudgingly given to human beings. It is a habit that develops in people with wide-open eyes and sensitive natures. It is evident in those who find joy in walking across the corduroy at sunset and watching the sky behind the court-house tower. It is a characteristic of those who find joy in delightful companions. And it is plainly seen in the personalities of students who treasure their opportunity to read the wealth of literature in our library.

We may say that we haven't time, that studies are too pressing, that we haven't a minute to spare. But although it may be true that we haven't hours to spare there are bits of time in every day that we waste. They might be used to gain knowledge of experiences that we shall never know in any other way. The wise reading we may do while we are here in school may contribute largely toward an assurance that our lives will be, as John Galsworthy has said,—"really dignified and beautiful, not just a breathless, grudging, visionless scramble from birth to death, of a night with no star out."

—A Student.

DR. LLOYD CLOSES ANNUAL MEETINGS FRIDAY MORNING

the coward. Then, to live on a higher plane as the Christian life, it takes a tougher kind of courage for here one must, in a measure, stand out from the crowd, and this of course requires a greater amount of courage than mere conformity. He then suggested the three methods for gaining this courage: (1) Self-determination or the will to be brave, (2) The giving of one's self to a great cause, and (3) a deep religious faith.

Tuesday Evening, February 10

The living issues discussed were the three major choices of a life: Vocation, companion, master. The choice of a life work should not be made anyone else, or by chance; there should be a definite plan. This plan should include consideration of one's own tastes and aptitudes, the world's needs, and how one can be of greatest service. It is not necessary that every one should marry, but those who do should consider carefully these qualities in their choices: A common cultural back ground, purity, love, loyalty, and religion. The choice of a master is easily made, for most of us to a certain degree inherit our religion. The difficulty lies in following Christ.

Wednesday Evening, February 11

"Influence" was the living issue under discussion. Our own habits are largely determined by some one's influence over us, and conversely, other people's habits and their happiness are affected by our attitudes. Character, also, depends on influence. George Elliot constantly emphasized that men and women make men and women. Our beliefs, also, depend upon influence. One believes in Christianity because he has known a Christian. No one goes to heaven or hell alone.

Wednesday Morning, February 11

Another essential to being "Loyal to the Royal" in ourselves is Sincerity. This element was the subject of the discourse Wednesday morning. Insincerity comes from a misunderstanding of real Christian character and living coupled with the everpresent "power of sin" in our lives. By "power of sin" in our lives was meant that we are all about as bad as we dare to be and because of this a tendency to insincerity is only natural. Then there are two kinds of insincerity: that in which one tries to appear better than he really is and that in which one tries to appear worse than he really is. The latter kind, according to Dr. Lloyd, is the type most frequently seen on a college campus. The results of insincerity are often the ruin of influence, self respect and character.

Thursday Morning, February 12

It is obvious that if one is "Loyal to the Royal" in one's self he must be decisive and Decision was the subject of Dr. Lloyd's talk on Thursday morning. In treating the subject he discussed the elements that enter into the ability to reach decisions. In the first place, one must face the issue squarely without an attempt to side track the problem. One must be willing to pay the price by which was meant that since one cannot have everything he desires, he must be satisfied with those things that naturally follow a definite choice. To be able to make a decision one must risk a conclusion and avoid procrastination. Dr. Lloyd then discussed the ways of making the

Editor Gets Another Reprimand

1604 N. Fifteenth St.,
Philadelphia, Pa.,
February 9, 1931.

The Editor of the Highland Echo
College Station,
Maryville, Tenn.
My dear Madam:

It has been my pleasure to read in its entirety each issue of the Echo as it comes to me from week to week. In trying to keep informed of events on the Hill, I read carefully every line—even the 'ads.' It is not my purpose to appear unduly critical, but I feel that there must have been a mistake in the heading of an article which appeared on page four of the issue of February 2, 1931. The heading is "Class '30 Enjoys Periodic Pleasure."

Now the Class of '30 is widely scattered and I know that all its members did not participate in revels such as were described in your paper at Maryville, for I am a member of that class, and can testify that I was in this city on the date mentioned. Furthermore, it could not have been planned as a class function, for I was not notified. I know that our class officers were faithful in the performance of their duties, and the entire class has invariably been informed of any approaching class function.

Therefore, in the interests of truth and accuracy, I suggest humbly that you, Madam Editor endeavor to correct the above mentioned error, and, if possible, determine what member of the Staff was responsible for the error and chide him severely.

Respectfully yours,
A member of the Class of '30.

SUPERIOR SCOTTIES

Now that the February meetings are over for the year, this lowly scribe is faced with an entirely novel "sityashun", that of presenting real facts concerning the seniors instead of the otherwise that is sometimes used. Since the public demands facts, it uqtie naturally behooves us to choose sterling characters as objects of our palaverings. However, it again falls to our unhappy lot to have chosen another pair of geographical opposites, Leland Gilmore, a certain kind of Yankee, and Ed Shelley, an equally certain kind of rebel.

Considering the gentlemen in the order named, let us first cogitate the light of Mr. Gilmore. Leland as previously mentioned, is a native of the region north of the Mason and Dixon line in general and a citizen of West Chester, Pennsylvania in particular. During his sojourn at Maryville, he has amassed a staggering number of friends (note: the friends are not inebriates, the number is what staggers one). Although he has many masculine friends, it is a well known fact that a pleasing (very pleasing, in fact) percentage of his intimates are of decided femininity. In other words he is a ladies man, if you will pardon our seeming vulgarity. Naturally enough, a discussion of Le Gilmore would not be a discussion if we didn't consider his theatrical achievements. Ever since he entered this institution for the distribution of learning, he has been a recognized artist on the stage, his latest success being his lead role in "My Irish Cinderella". Leland is planning to enter the ministry, and we wish him the success and happiness which he is sure to gain if he keeps up the pace he has set at Maryville.

Shelley's space in the College Bull-etin of last spring is nearly filled with the legend, "Shelley, Edwin Adkisson. . . . . 405 Almon, Tuscumbia, Ala." Thus your one and only scribe deducted that our "friend and contemporary", Mr. Shelley, resides in some portion of Alabama, Tuscumbia by name. Ed to quote the Echo of a few months ago, is one of the most talented men on the Hill. Now don't take this statement from me, an unknown freshman and no authority on the subject; take it from the author of the other article and trust to luck that he, too, was not a freshman. Ed is manager of the Glee Club this year, has been newly elected as president of Athenian, and is a staunch Democrat; what more could flesh and blood stand? He is a firm believer in old maxims, especially the one which says that "best things always come in the smallest packages" (figure that out on your new roller skates). He is a member of the Law Club, so again we conclude that he is preparing to become a lawyer. Clever the way we reason tihngs out like that. Anyway, Ed, if we ever have another Republican president who favors committees as much as the present one, may you be the Congressman who proposes a bill against committees.

A successful person is one who molds human minds, rather than to reflect them.

When the outlook is not bright try the uplook. To aim high is to realize high ambitions.

Junior-Senior Women Humbled By Sophomores, Won Over Freshmen

Junior-Senior Team Is Defeated By Sophomores

The junior-senior's golden dreams of winning the interclass basketball tournament were smothered Friday night when the sophomore women's sextette battered dwn the attack of the junior-senior lassies and rode in to the limelight wih a 27 to 16 victory.

The game started with both teams playing on the defensive side and many shots were missed in the opening round. However, the sophs seemed a little over-confident and for the first half the junior-seniors clearly outplayed them. At the end of the half the sophs led 11-10.

The third quarter was filled with action and both teams took sudden spurts, playing on even terms. The quarter ended with the sophs still holding the big end of a 22-17 count. Again the sophomores blossomed out with a goal shooting attack to sink all hopes of the junior-senior team, and the game ended with the sophomores on the road to the class championship.

Hazel Hale, soph guard, was clearly the outstanding player of the game, being in on every play, passing and working the floor with a speed and accuracy that is hard to surpass. Virginia Crider and Cricket Foster were the highlights for the junior-senior team.

Junior-Senior Women Prove Superior To Frosh.

Playing accurately and swiftly, the junior-senior basketball team crashed through the defense offered by the freshmen representatives, and copped a hectic battle, by the 18-14 route, giving them one more chance for the inter-class championship.

Led by Heidel, speedy and accurate forward, the freshmen started the game with a flash, grabbing a lead while the game was still young. However, the junior-senior combination soon opened fire, and the lead was exchanged time and again, the half ending with the junior-senior team holding a one point advantage.

After the intermission both teams came back with the determination to win. A rally, started by the freshman proved to be too late, and they never once gained a lead. The final whistle found the junior-senior combination holding the large end of the score 18-14.

Mollie Little, freshman guard of no little ability, showed up best for the losers, while Crider and Cushman, junior-senior forwards, were the highlights for the winners.

SPORTOGRAPHY

By BOB WEST

Perhaps a man who is inebriated with the exuberance of his own verbacity, does play to a large extent with an egotistical imagination. At any cost I think it should be investigated as to just why it is printed in the Echo that we are to play King College on Friday night, February 13 and, low and behold, the Knoxville Y. is the victim instead.

—:—

This is indicative of one of two things either there is not enough correct information handed down from those in authority or else there is not enough enthusiasm by the student body in general. This latter is possible but can hardly be substantiated in view of the attendance at the game.

—:—

The game between the sophomores and the combined junior-senior classes proved beyond any doubt that there are some girls in school who turn athletic in the fullest sense of the word. "Nez" Hamrick the all-round sport in College Athletics seems to be the star in any game she goes into—you can almost feature "Nez" as saying that with her, sports are a religion—and why shouldn't they be? Anything you like to do ought to be religion with you.

—:—

The Knoxville 'Y.' failed to show the Maryville squad any real opposition, perhaps if the Highlanders could have played the University of Tennessee on Friday the 13th then that game would have been sung in a different key. Anyway seemingly the Waterloo day for some proves the day of achievement for others—is not everything much on this order? I shall always believe that success in anything whether business, or Athletics depends more on mental attitude than on mental capacity.

SCOTTIES SWAMP THE KNOXVILLE "Y"

Scots Click In Pleasing Form To Win 56-15.

Feb. 13—"Friday, the thirteenth" held no terrors for Coach Honaker's Highlanders tonight and they turned what was originally intended to be a perfectly respectable basketball game into a farce comedy and a woefully weak Knoxville Y.M.C.A. quintet succumbed under an avalanche of baskets by a score of 56 to 15.

Before the game was very many minutes old, the Highlanders started a scoring rampage that had the score keepers in a state of delirium and the students going plain nuts. They scored baskets faster than a country boy can shell corn and the score at the end of the first act was 34 to 10. Not in favor of the "Y".

It had been almost two long weeks since the Highlanders had strutted their stuff before the home folks and the tricks that they did in one little basketball game would make old man Houdini look like a dub.

Even though the Highlander machine clicked like an Ingersoll, it must be admitted that the "Y" team was little better than a high school outfit. They clearly showed the lack of training and practice but they couldn't have stopped those Highlanders Friday night if they had been Carson-Newman.

J. S. White again led Mister Honaker's team in scoring this time with 15 points. Easy flitted hither and yon, mostly yon, and shot baskets in plain and fancy fashion. In other words Jonathan Stone White played basketball like nobody's business, whatever that means.

Cooper and Woodard also helped out in the scoring. Joe scored 10 points and Coop ran a close second with nine, and the whole team, including the substitutes did their part of the damage.

Dempster, visiting center, was easily the outstanding man for his team. He scored eight points and was the backbone of his team on defense. Too bad he didn't have a little assistance.

MARYVILLE MATMEN TO MEET KNOXVILLE

Highland Grapplers Hoping To Down Champions

Plans for a wrestling match with the Knoxville Y. M. C. A. has been tentatively arranged. In the last match Maryville tied the Knoxville grapplers. Last Saturday night the Chattanooga Y. won over Knoxville and a few weeks ago Maryville won over the Chattanooga grapplers, so by law of chance Maryville ought to win over Knoxville. Let's back the fellows.

Highlanders Out For Revenge Game With Tepcos.

Feb. 16—After an overwhelming victory over the Knoxville Y. M. C. A. Friday night, Coach Honaker's Highlanders are preparing for their games with the Chattanooga Tepcos and the King College Tornadoes this week.

The Tepcos, Southern Independent Champions, come here Wednesday night for a return engagement and this should be the feature game of the season. The Tepcos defeated the Maryvillians earlier in the season by a narrow margin.

King College, boasting one of the best teams in the Smoky Conference will furnish the opposition Friday night and this should be another thriller as the Scots will be out to better their conference standing.

STUDENT GETS AN 'A' FOR WALKING OUT ON EXAM GIVEN BY ROBERT FROST

At Dartmouth, Robert Frost, the poet, was giving a course in poetry. The authorities insisted that he give a final examination.

Frost didn't care to, but, as he was under orders, he went to the blackboard, and wrote, "Do the thing that you think will please me most." Some students composed original poems; others wrote critical essays; some praised the professor. One student taking the professor at his word, simply got up and walked out.

One sure way of maintaining a winning streak is to keep the team in a winning mind, and in this each and everyone of us can play an important part.

Friday the 13th is a bad day to get married according to tradition. Some others are Saturdays, Sundays, Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

If you wait for your ship to come in perhaps it will be a fleet of hardships.

FEBRUARY MEETINGS

narrow a margin. It doesn't pay to live too near the border in health, school grades, finance, or morals. Or we may fail to finish because we become discouraged. Only a few brave people hold up the highest principles of the world. We may lack a workable plan and thus fail to finish. Only a genius can work without a plan; the rest of us waste time when we try to. Or a lack of adequate resources may cause our failure to finish. The three great resources are health, purpose, and God. Christ finished because He held so closely to God. To finish is the only way to salvation, but we don't have to finish alone.

Friday Morning, February 13

As the last essential of being loyal to the royal in oneself, Dr. Lloyd, this morning, discussed "Ddication". He took for the key phrase of his address, "Christ waits for you." In one sense Christ dos not wait for anyone because His work is always going on. Yet Christ does wait for you, first so that you may have your share in helping his enterprise. Christ waits for you secondly because you miss so much by not enlisting for his work. But if you enlist for Christ's work your dedication must be complete. If you want anything big out of your religion it will take a full dedication. Christ urges you to give your life to the things that are Christ-like in you. You cannot hope to become all Christ is, but you can never be all you are without Him. The third reason why Christ waits for you is because He wants YOU. Christ wants your personality. Christ wants personality that is true, big and fine. "We needs must love the highest when we see it."

decision for Christ: a sudden decision as did the jailer at Phillipi, a developed decision as was the case with Timothy, and a deliberate decision as Matthew made.

Reporter Records Observations of The Fall Of The Year

Julia Terry

Four Girls Have Their Ups And Downs on Friday Thirteenth

The fall of the year does not indicate the particular season of the year or any kind of time sequence in this weekly outburst of irrelevancies. The word fall is simply a noun used in a simple sense but under unsimple conditions. It has to do with the falling down or downfall of several apparent aspirants for membership on the women's tumbling team.

It seems that Friday the thirteenth was the cause of these various downfalls. Four such catastrophes have been recorded, specific recordings being made in variant hues of black and blue.

Taking the events in chronological order (an old Maryville custom) it seems that Garnet Price was the first to go so far as to lose her equilibrium, the loss of which occurred in front of the library door as she was tripping too merrily down the stairs. Tumbling aspirant, number two, was Conchita Bertran, who made her tryout down a flight of steps in Pearsons. Inquiries were made as to her condition and Conchita said that she was completely down but not quite out.

Mabel Dickerson lost her newly-acquired teaching ability as well as her equilibrium when she entertained the high school in her downfall as she came in close contact with the high school steps. It is interesting to note that her teaching has added considerably to her already sufficient attitude of unselfishness, for the first words that came to her were, "O, I hope none of my pupils saw me." Last but not least was the fall of Naomi. Naomi Willingham was demonstrating the newest fashion in regards to intricacies of skipping, but instead of skipping, she demonstrated slipping, thereby losing any amount of appetite she might have had for supper, Friday evening. Her downfall occurred in the lobby of Pearsons and great were the witnesses thereof.

The only requisites for membership on this newly-organized tumbling team is a fall of great proportions entailing personal experience.

FACULTY WRITINGS CLAIM ATTENTION OF ECHO REPORTER

the Presbyterian Advance.

Not only has Dr. Hunter written the Sysematic Manual used in this school, but the October issue of the 1930 English Journal contains his article, "Tendencies in Pronunciation"; and the Forensic Magazine has "The Judge's Score Sheet", also by him.

Miss Meiselwitz's Unit Course in Interior Decorating was published through the Wisconsin Department of Vocational Education, in 1927.

Dr. McMurray has written pamphlets in connection with administrative work while president of two colleges. These were published by the United Brethren Publishing Company. A number of monographs of Dr. McMurray's concerning research work for the United States Fish Commission were published by the Government. His treatise on the "Comparison of the Indians of the Northwest and Southwest" has been published by Harvard University.

Professor Queener has written an essay on William G. Brownlow, which is to be published by the East Tennessee Historical Society in 1931.

Professor Kiger's article on "Federal Propaganda in Great Britian During the Civil War" appeared in the Historical Outlook for May, 1928.

Most of these publications are not available to the students of Maryville College, but if placed in our library would probably be read with great interest by the entire College.

The college orchestra and band enjoyed a Valentine party in the basement of the chapel Saturday evening.

The scene of festivity was attractively decorated with red hearts, red balloons, and red and white festoons. The guests, who were dressed to represent songs, played games at tables lighted with red candles. Hazel Hale and Lee Merrick took high score prizes, and Joe Myers was awarded the consolation.

Urch Brothers Are Vagabond Students

That "Rolling Stones Gather No Moss", Cuts No Ice With Adventurers

John and Fred Urch, former members of Maryville's student body and originally members of the class of 1928 have come back to finish the college course at Maryville. Since leaving Maryville at the close of the 1927 year, these men have been travelers Deluxe. As John Urch said, in response to the question regarding the location of his home, "Our home is here, now; the place where we happen to stop is our home." Since leaving Maryville, the Urch brothers went to Groves City for a summer term. Then they traveled around the United States, working in Philadelphia, Topeka, St. Louis, and Chicago. About two years of this time has been spent working on Philco Radios. Immediately before coming to Maryville, the brothers were living in Philadelphia.

When asked how it seems to come back to the college again, Fred responded, "Well, it's about the same as it was for Rip Van Winkle after 20 years of sleep." With the exception of the faculty members all the faces on Maryville's campus are new. Occasionally the fellows will run across the sister or brother of some student with whom they went to school. Walter Buchanan, brother of Buck and Don Bucanan was in the same class as the Urch brothers.

John intends to go to an engineering school when he leaves Maryville, while Fred says that he has never committed himself yet. Both men are seniors, and will graduate in January '32.

THE ETERNAL WOMAN —EVEN AT TWELVE

Pat, ignoring the suggestion to prove or, more likely, disprove her ability to spell the bugaboo of today's spelling lesson, scowled.

"But mother, what have I got to come straight home after school for?"

"Because I said for you to." Her mother's reply ran true to form.

"I don't think that's a reason!" was Pat's answer—made after she was out of her mother's hearing.

Reaching the sidewalk, she tried the new whistle again. She repeated it but no Bill appeared. It was Pat's turn to sigh. Manlike, Bill did not include her in everything. There were times when even Pat was a bother, just because she was a girl. It wasn't manly to have some girl sharing every game. Pat at times felt deeply the injustice of such an attitude, but what else can a mere girl do than envy these men who are lords of the universe, even at thirteen.

So Pat, swinging her bookstrap with a why-should-I-care air, walked leisurely down the shady street alone. It was a bright warm day and the thought of school was hateful. Suddenly a thought struck her. Maybe the new brick school house had burned up last night, even while she was dreaming about that cross old Miss Ellis. A passing hay wagon made her close her eyes very tightly and wish with all her might that such a thing had happened. She would go fishing with Bill and Johnny she planned, forgetting her brief resentment toward Bill for not waiting for her. She had found just yesterday the best place for worms. But what would mother do when she got home? Maybe she might slip into the river and almost drown. Bill and Johnny would be heroes and save her life, and then mother would be so glad she hadn't drowned she'd forget to be mad. And then because they had saved her life mother would let her play with Bill and Johnny whenever she wanted to.

Disgust was written upon every line of her face as she turned the corner and saw the schoolhouse standing just as it had stood yesterday.

"That shows what good hay wagons are! I'll never wish on them again'," she vowed.

Just then her attention was distracted by the sight of Mary Ellen, the beauty of 7th A, walking demurely along beside Arnold Jackson, whose manners were nice enough to brand him as a "sissy" to most of the 7th A. He was carrying Mary Ellen's books and lunch. Pat scornfully tilted her nose (and the scorn of a Seventh grader is scorn.) Bill never carried her books when they went to school together. Her arm was nearly as strong as Bill's. She could chin any pole Bill could chin, and she was aways careful to avoid any such signs of feminine weakness as having her books carried. Tears were even taboo to Pat as yet, although years and growing wisdom would teach her the strength of such a weapon when directed toward the stronger sex.

The bell rang just as she went through the door, and she dropped her books on the desk and went into the large assembly room for chapel. Her seatmate in the assembly room was none other than Mary Ellen, the object of her ill-concealed scorn. Mary Ellen spent chapel hour patting her curls into place and going through the various other motions instinctive in even very young feminine minds. Pat, whose hair with proper care would have curled, but who refused to wear it any way but very short, usually spent chapel hour devising new schemes for mischief-making.

Mary Ellen wrote on a piece of paper, "There's a new boy in Seventh A. He lives just a block from my house and he's coming to my party Friday night."

Pat's open lack of interest stopped further notes. "Hateful old thing" thought Mary Ellen. "I don't see why mama made me invite her. I hope she don't come."

"She's about the silliest girl in school" thought Pat. "I wouldn't go to her party for anything. I bet they play silly old games like wink!"

Chapel over they filed back to their own room—quietly, as seventh grade children go. Pat settled herself for a last minute study of 'rithmetic. But before she opened her book she looked across the room at Bill's seat—empty again. Jimmy, just back of the empty seat, spelled out by means of their own deaf-and-dumb alphabet, perfected through much use,—"Gone fishing. I'm going at noon." Pat felt rebelliously that nothing was fair. Why couldn't she slip away from school and go fishing? But girls couldn't do anything. At Miss Ellis' "Patricia, get busy at something!" she noisily flipped over the pages of her 'rithmetic. But she couldn't study. The figures danced before her eyes in the shape of the million and one things denied her. She didn't want to be lady like. She wanted to climb trees, and whistle, and go fishing when she pleased; she didn't want to wear dresses with wide ruffles and big sashes, and take music lessons, and go away to boarding school when she grew up. How much more fun it would be to fly an airplane! Well, she would anyway, even if she wasn't a boy. This sent her off into day dreams—thrilling ones to be sure. But Miss Ellis' voice rising above even the clouds and the sound of the airplane motor necessitated, so to speak, a forced landing.

"Section One Arithmetic. Patricia, please take up the papers."

Pat came to earth. Not until then did she notice that the new boy's seat was across the aisle from hers. She looked at him with the interest always accorded a new pupil in any schoolroom. He didn't have on a tie so he wasn't a "sissy." She wondered what his name was. She noticed, too, that he wrote with his left hand. Even Bill couldn't do that—not so you could read it. They had tried one day. But interest in the new boy was short-lived. More interesting matters seized her attention. Mary Ellen sat in front of her and Mary Ellen's sash was untied and hanging below the seat. It was the work of only a few minutes for Pat, with unholy glee, to tie it fast to the seat. Mary Ellen thought she was so smart! Just wait till she tried to get up! Looking up she met the eyes of the new boy. He grinned and silently clapped his hands. Pat smiled her approval at finding such a kindred spirit and, assuming a look of complete innocence, began studying once more.

Some ten or fifteen minutes later a note laid stealthily on her desk, roused her. She opened it and read,

"What is your name?"

Pat thought note-writing was silly, but of course the new boy couldn't know their system of deaf-and-dumb speech. So she wrote, on a piece of paper, glanced at Miss Ellis' back and calmly flipped it across the aisle to the new boy's desk. Then she took up her geography again. Pat was always extremely studious just after a piece of mischief. A second note laid on her desk as the new boy went up to Miss Ellis' desk was a distinct surprise to her. She had certainly not hinted for him to write another note—hadn't even asked him his name. She didn't like note writing. That was the way Mary Ellen did—silly Mary Ellen who pretended she was afraid of bugs and mice, and who always got lots of lacy valentines on Valentine's day. But she opened the note which said,

"Pat Taylor."

"My name is Andrew Joseph Nelson, but everybody calls me Joe. I used to live in Daysville."

This note certainly did not call for any answer, much to Pat's relief. She again returned to her studying. Geography class came and went; likewise history. Pat found time dragging. She uusally did just before noon. She wondered if she dare eat a bite of her apple. But Miss Ellis' eagle eye caused her to think better of such an attempt. Anyway it couldn't be much longer till time for the bell. She put her books away and went up front to sharpen her pencil. When she came back a three-cornered note was lying on her desk. She darted a suspicious look at the new boy and decided not to even notice the note. She'd throw it in the wastebasket at noon. She took out a book and opened it. But woman's curiosity can overcome even the strongest determination and after perhaps five minutes Pat pretended to have just seen the note. She picked it up and slowly unfolded it.

That afternoon Mrs. Taylor, entering her living room after her Thursday afternoon Bridge Club, exclaimed to herself:

"I might have known Patricia would have to stay in! She ought to be here practicing this minute! I don't know what I'm going to do with her!"

As she went upstairs to her own room she glanced into Patricia's room. Why Patricia was home! There she was, sitting on the bed as usual, and turning through what seemed to be a fashion magazine. She rose as her mother came to the door.

"Patricia, how many times have I told you not to sit on the bed. That's what chairs are for."

"O, I forgot, mother. I was just going down to practice."

Her mother actually gasped. Never before had Patricia of her own free will gone downstairs for such a purpose.

"And mother," Pat called with elaborate unconcern, "I've decided I will go to Mary Ellen's birthday party. She might be mad if I don't come."

Her mother looked at her in astonishment. Surely the child couldn't be sick!

"And," went on Patricia, "maybe I ought to have a new dress. I guess all the other girls will. I think this one's pretty, don't you?"

Mrs. Taylor, still speechless, looked at the dress Pat pointed out. Pat slipped out of her sweater and went downstairs to practice.

As she threw her sweater across the back of the chair a small piece of paper fell from the pocket. Mrs. Taylor picked it up and, after a moment's hesitation, opened it and read, written in a childish scrawl with the age old hearts-and-arrow picture at one corner!—

"I think you are the nicest girl in this room. I'm going to a party at Mary Ellen's house Friday night. I hope you will be there, I want you to be my girl."

Mrs. Taylor, replacing the note, smiled with satisfaction. Will had been right for once, she'd have to admit.

LOGAN LEAVES SCHOOL

Feb. 16.—"I'm headed for the West Coast" says Sumpter Logan who withdrew from school last week, and left the Hill today. Sumpter is registered as a special student, and has been a popular manager of the Y.M.C.A. store. He was formerly in the Navy and when asked if he had felt the call of the sea again, he replied: "I'm going to try to get on a boat out from New Orleans." Some one suggested that New Orleans was nearer Arizona than is Maryville. Sumpter declined to talk about the matter any further except to say that he planned to start a cactus sitting contest as soon as he reached the western states.

A few days after a farmer had placed his two children in school, a book agent called on him and said: "Now that your children go to school, you ought to buy them an encyclopedia."

"Buy them an encyclopedia? I will not. Let them walk like I did."

"Say, nigger, you remind me of one ob dese air ships."

"How come dat nigger?"

"You is absolutely ob no use on earth."

Junior Class Has Novel Meeting On Tuesday, Feb 17

Hina Taking Office of Class President Seriously; Class Interested

COMMITTEES REPORT

Junior-Senior Banquet Plans In The Making; Four Committees Appointed

Feb. 17—The junior class held its first meeting under the Hina regime, Tuesday evening in the Y. W. C. A. auditorium. An introductory speech was made by the president after which the members of the cabinet of the class made reports on the activities of which they are in charge.

Chairmen of the various committees for the junior-senior banquet were appointed by the vice-president, Naomi Willingham. Lawrence Somers is in charge of the arrangement committee; Bill West has charge of getting up the program; Virginia Crider is chairman of the decoration committee; Margaret Auld is chairman of the souvenir and favor committee; and Weldon Hina, is the toast chairman.

Reports were given by Merle Beebe, a member of the financial committee; Homer McCann and Hadley Webb, editor and business manager of the Chilhowean; and by Betty Wilbar and Julia Terry, members of the class activity committee.

Following these reports the following program was given by members of the class: reading by Lavinia Jones; harmonica selections by Reno Smith; "An Annual Affair" by Laura Jean Workizer and Marjorie Gould; and two songs by Ann Smartt.

The class plans to hold frequent meetings and thereby keep up the spirit and cooperation of the members.

DR. LLOYD'S GIFT

Feb. 19—This morning, in chapel Dr. Lloyd gave to the students of the college little booklets entitled "The Fellowship of Prayer." They are to be used during the Lenten season for 1931. They are published by the Commission on Evangelism and Life Service Federal Council of the churches of Christ in America, at New York City. Dr. Lloyd has secured such booklets for the last six years, and has found them very helpful.

The booklets contain a Bible reading for each day up until Easter. Each year they take a certain subject. This year the lessons are drawn from Luke's Gospel. Dr. Lloyd gave the students an introduction to the work in chapel by reading aloud the first page.

"Beans By Mile" Next Week

We often hear of eating yards of Spaghetti or balls of sauer kraut but to reduce the consumption of beans to mere linear measurement is something new under the sun.

In next week's Echo methods will be brought forward showing how this is done and proofs that it is the logical way of determining goober capacity. Two renowned hashslingers, Prof. Carl Storey and Dr. Dave McArthur, will reveal to the impatient public the results of their life long researches in the field of Gustatorial Idiosyncracies and present statistics to prove their contention that man eats his way through life. Rabid bean fans though both professors are, they admit full and complete defeat in the marvelous munching ability of the assistant coach and accept his capacity for the life-sustaining fruit as a standard of comparison by which the other members of the college are measured. The exact figures of the consumption of hash (contents omitted), elephant dandruff and muscilage will also be given. Watch for it.

Student Volunteer Spring Conference Closed Yesterday

Eight Students Represent Maryville at Nashville's Conference

The Tennessee Union of the Student Volunteer Movement met during the past week-end at Scarritt College, Nashville for their annual Spring Conference. The theme of the conference was "Human Needs and World Christianity" and the purpose was to study the present day missionary enterprise, to discover the responsibilities of students toward it, and to co-ordinate the activities of the various Christian organizations in adequate Mission Education.

The Conference opened Friday night as Dr. Donald W. Richardson spoke on "The Foreign Field—Our Missionary Responsibility." Dr. Richardson is Professor of Christian Missions in Union Theological Seminary at Richmond, Virginia. Saturday morning Mr. J. B. Matthews, an ex-missionary in India, gave an address on "The World Situation Today in Its Bearing on Missions." Following this Mr. Raymond P. Currier, Educational Secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, spoke on "The Response of the Missionary Enterprise to this World Situation." Saturday afternoon was taken up with an address by Mr. Howard Thurman of Atlanta, and in the evening Miss Mabel K. Howell, of Scarritt College told

Alpha Sigma Presents "The Crisis" Tonight

Above is a scene from the Alpha Sigma play "The Crisis". This dramatization of Churchill's novel is the last Mid-winter production of the season, and will be presented in Voorhees Chapel tonight at 8 o'clock. Reading from left to right, the characters are: Quinn, Lovette, Landrum, Goyne, Somers, Bob West, Alexander, Lenore West, Bowles, James, MacKenzie, Waters, Kizer, Rogers, Hannah, and Charles West.

Tryouts For P. K. D. Convention To Be Held March Ninth

Four Students Will Be Chosen To Represent College

Feb. 21—This afternoon the entrants in the Pi Kappa Delta contests for oratory and extemporaneous speaking met in Professor Queener's room for information and instructions. The date for the tryouts has been changed to March the ninth, instead of March second, as was previously announced. This change will give the contestants more time to prepare themselves.

Those entering the oratory contest are: Richard Orr, A. P. Duff, Robert Beyer, Homer McCann, Donald Buchanan, Marshall Bertram, Roy A. Taylor, Alma Shoeller, Ruth Brocious, Lucille Swafford, Lucy Silcox, and Bernice McNutt. The entrants for the extemporaneous speaking contest are: Bob West, Wilbur Johnson, Robert Beyer, Robert Stevenson, Stuart James, Walter Russell, Louise Marley, and Hope Snider.

One man and one woman will be selected from each contest to represent Maryville at the provincial convention at Centre College, Kentucky. The four winners will also be awarded a Pi Kappa Delta medal and, in all probability, will have an opportunity to join the the fraternity.

Any other student interested in entering either one of these contests should see Professor Queener at once and start working for it.

College Maid Head To Exhibit Choir Robes In New York

Mrs. McMurray To Attend National Convention of Choir Leaders

Opportunity seems again to be knocking at the door of the College Maid Shop.

Dr. John Finley Williamson, director of the Westminster Choir, expressed great interest in the Maid Shop choir robes when he was in Maryville last week. He invited Mrs. Kathryn McMurray, director of the shop, to bring samples to New York for demonstration at a national convention of choir leaders to be held in June. In this meeting an effort will be made to standardize choir vestments as to color, construction, and material. It is desirable after this standardization is effected, that there shall be one approved shop which will supply the garments to all who desire them. Dr. Williamson is very eager to have this factory be the Maryville College Maid Shop.

A large order was recently received in the Shop for orchid "cloth of-gold" uniforms for the Vienheim Hosiery Mill, Blackwells, New Jersey. Because of the pressure of orders already received here, this work was sent to the College of the Ozarks, where Ruth Bailey, a Maryville College-Maid has charge of a shop similar in plan to the one here. There is, also, another shop affiliated with our Maid-Shop at Berea, Kentucky, to which Maryville Maids sometimes send work.

National Secretary For Southern States Visits Local Y. W.

Installation of Officers, Cabinet Sunday Night

The Y. W. C. A. was honored in two of its meetings last week by the presence of Miss Elizabeth Smith, the National Student Secretary for the Southern states. At the cabinet retreat on Saturday afternoon, after the customary exchange of duties between the old and new cabinets, Miss Smith made a short and very interesting talk on the purpose of the Y. W. Her thoughts were based around the few statements adopted several years ago as the stated purpose of the Y.W.C.A. At the close of the meeting she gave some very helpful advice on several questions. A fact that should be encouraging to all Y. members is that Miss Smith expressed surprise and gratification that Maryville organization is attempting to do so many different things on the campus, and is accomplishing them so well.

At the regular meeting of the Y. W. on Sunday afternoon Miss Smith was again the speaker.

Sunday night after vespers, during the candle-lighting service, the new officers were installed. About forty Y. members participated in the installation. The names of the new officers and the personnel of the new cabinet follows:

Expression Dept. To Hold First Recital Monday

Kiser, Crawford, Marley Will Appear In Graduate Recital

THREE GRADUATES

Varied and Delightful Program Promised; Readers Have Talent and Experience

The expression department will present in graduate recital next Monday evening at 8 o'clock Misses Katherine Kiser, Mildred Crawford, and Louise Marley.

Katherine Kiser will read "Grandma Pulls the String", a dainty piece of comedy in which everyone from the younger sister to Grandma herself tries to help the son of the house propose to the girl of his heart.

"Mirage", Mildred Crawford's reading, is a story of the Arizona Indians. It is intensely dramatic.

Louise Marley has chosen for her recital "Neighbors", by Zona Gale, a quiet picture of life and love in a country village.

All of these girls have already appeared before audiences in Maryville and have acquitted themselves most creditably.

Katherine played in "Green Stockings", the College Players' Y. W. C. A. benefit number.

Mildred took juvenile parts in the Players' other production, "The Swan" and in "Shavings", the Athenian midwinter.

Louise does excellent character work. She appeared in "The Swan", Theta midwinter, "The Big Pond", and in "Green Stockings."

Everyone is cordially invited to attend this, the first recital of the year. No admission is charged.

PRESIDENT'S TRIP

On Thursday Dr. Lloyd will leave for a two weeks trip in the interests of the college. His itinerary includes Washington, Philadelphia, Princeton, Atlantic City, and New York.

On Saturday evening, February 28, he is scheduled to speak at the annual reunion banquet of the "Atlantic Highlanders" (Maryville Alumni) which is to be held at Princeton, February 8 to March 1. Last year, Miss Clemmie Henry was the guest speaker at the reunion.

On Sunday morning, March 1, Dr. Lloyd will preach in the Princeton Theological Seminary Chapel.

Something to worry about; 5:30, and the supper bell clangs and clangeth and just then you're called on the phone by someone in town who wants you to come and talk with him for a few minutes.

Class Room Distractions—Terry

Besides the assignments and the instructors there are many classroom distractions that serve to take a person's mind off an interesting, personal, totally unacademic, silent soliloquy.

Distractions of the first sort are the students who come to class late and feel it their duty to make a public announcement of their arrival. Last semester a student added to the literary atmosphere of a class by stamping into the room ten minutes late, attired in a flaming red sweater, and shouting, "Merry Christmas, everybody." There was no atmosphere when he finished, literary or otherwise— only an abundance of hot air.

A most unusual kind of classroom distraction are those double jointed wonders who take joy in cracking their joints on the least provocation, and usually on none at all. One student can crack fifty joints whenever she turns her head, crosses her knees, or bats an eye. Especially on the front row in Bible classes is she overly-successful.

And then there are those students who untiringly fall asleep in class. The students next to them have to be doubly alert in order to awaken the sleeping brutes if they are called on. Sleeping is excusable to some extent but any degree of snoring is absolutely nil. That form of entertainment is entirely too distracting for the classroom.

An entertaining distraction is one who says something really humorous whenever he opens his mouth, especially when this provoker of mirth is entirely unconscious of anything unsual he is saying. Anytime these students open their mouths everybody laughs at what comes out. They are, in fact, attractive distractions.

A classroom distraction capable of totally breaking up a recitation is a sneeze, particularly one of peculiar reverberations. These sneezes are especially successful when many of the students have not been initiated into their peculiarities and are wholly unsuspecting of the outcome. Some of these nasal hiccoughs are notorious.

Another distracting influence in a classroom occurs when the class next door expells quantities of laughter, the cause of which is known only to

MISS HERON ILL

On Wednesday Miss Heron was taken ill with a kind of toxic poisoning caused primarily by overwork and too little rest.

She hopes to meet her classes tomorrow but it depends on the amount of strength she will have. She has been in bed since Thursday and is not able to do much walking yet because of excessive dizziness. She says that her "vacation" is marred by the fact that she can't even read. It is hoped that she will be able to resume her work, if not on Tuesday, at least early in the week.

Feb. 22—This morning Dr. Lloyd preached at the Second Presbyterian Church in Chattanooga. Dr. E. A. Elmore who was a Director of Maryville, and who led the February Meetings nine times, was pastor of this church for some time.

This is Dr. Lloyd's second trip to Chattanooga since Christmas time. On his last visit there he spoke three times at the Northside Presbyterian Church.

HOSPITAL VISITORS

During the past week a number of students have been sojourning in the hospital. Influenza claimed the largest number, while chicken pox and a nervous disorder had two enthusiasts.

Tom Cash, Gordon Lyle, and Charles Beale were released Saturday. Today, Lois Cupler, Billy Crawford, and Beulah Duggan made their escape.

Marjorie Jones and her chicken pox will remain in the hospital for a few more days. Dorothy Strickland was taken to the hospital Saturday because of a nervous disorder and it is hoped that the quiet and rest will enable her to make a rapid recovery.

The advance showing of spring styles is making its appearance on the Hill—this time by men from "Fashion Park" (College Woods?). Knickers, embryonic trousers, overgrown knee pants, or any other distinctive designation of such attire, are fast becoming the solution of the burning problem. "What the well-dressed man should wear."

Mares Mariavillensis—Hina

It is entirely fitting that we of Maryville College should strive to emulate the illustrious race whose name we have so aptly chosen, and utilize to the best advantage those assets that we have. Nature has been indeed generous in furnishing us one such asset that we at present have not taken advantage of fully.

On that long long trail from the Postoffice to Pearsons the concrete has gone tempermental and in shrinking from the degrading tramp of common feet has formed depressions of varying depths. Into these natural reservoirs the gentle Maryville rains have descended and left their substance for ages past until we have today that great system of lakes known as Mares Mariavillensis. The first of these, appropriately named Postoffice Puddle, is a beautiful body of placid water about this long and that broad. On account of its unexpected presence it is often come upon rather suddenly and the marshy shores bear many heel marks of both men and women. The second lake of the system has received the intriguing appellation of Sea of Suckers because of its supply of the fishy freaks of nature and it is on its marshy banks that the much hunted snipe rears its young just to furnish autumnal sport to the barbaric and blood-thirsty freshman. The third number of the chain is the Waters of Woe and receives its name from the fact that each evening as the male portion of the student body retreats in complete rout from Pearsons the middle member of each party carefully but firmly places his foot in the exact center of the pool thereby spraying the newly pressed pants of the other two. This body of frog fluid is longer by a certain amount than either of the other two and only so much broader, and possesses, at its lower end, a magnificent falls where the rushing water drops perpendicularly to the depths below.

In the years past many schemes and suggestions for the utilization of this great natural resource have been brought forward but to date nothing has been done about it. Shall we permit such opportunities as these mighty waters present to

Must We Practice What We Preach?

We have stoutly defended the youth of Maryville College. We have maintained that their standard of morals was up to par and even surpassing it, and that on the whole, their intellects were sound. But our optimism is fading. We have decided that something must be lacking or else they would read our editorials. Our vanity and intellectual pride are wounded. We are about to give utterance to the now universal lament of all literary attempters—"Nobody appreciates us in this machine age."

Of course there are the students who have thoughts of the very excellent come-back of, "why don't you practice what you preach" We can answer that one. If preachers had to practice every thing they preached, then there would be too few preachers. If editors had to live up to every editorial they write, then editors and newspapers would have a much better reputation than they do.

Preachers and editors although they may attempt to reach the heights, are only mortal. After all, our readers are mature enough to realize that we are not trying to set ourselves up as examples, and that they should do—not as we do—but as we advise.

Misuse of Hymnals

For at least three mornings in chapel some five minutes have been taken up with instructions concerning the proper resting positions of the hymn books. At last, the matter and the books are to be let rest. From our observations last Sunday night a few members of the student body have conceived of a new use for hymnals. They have assumed that the few blank white pages in each book are Heaven-sent gifts to moonshiners. Probably they were meant for mash notes, clever cartoons, or sketches of the profile of what ever person who happens to be sitting at the side of the artist. But we don't believe that the pages which are not stained by printer's ink were meant to be embellished by the poet, lover or artist.

Perhaps we need more chapel instructions.

Our Junior League

There's no substitute for brains—not even politics. We believe that that statement is original with us. At least part of it is, and we'll appropriate the rest.

For once since our coming to Maryville College we have seen a class that is not ruled by politics; a class that is getting a true class spirit; a class whose members are resolved to pay their dues lest they be ostracized.

We feel it not only a duty but a privilege to be able in this way to take off our hats and give credit to the enterprising juniors. If they keep up the good work who knows but that some day a great change will take place on the Hill. People will be elected to offices who are capable and who deserve the election; "rating" will be a matter of merit and not of pull; motives will be unselfish and perhaps— students will get that elusive Maryville Spirit that we have heard about for four years.

The juniors are to be commended. They even think up original and interesting chapel announcements.

FRANCOIS VILLON

Down in a dirty tavern a crowd is huddling.
They draw their heads together,
and are silent,
Raptly listening to the wild songs of the rogue who is their chief.
He holds them, draws them, leads them,
With the power of a magnet.
He shows them how to love, to fight, to laugh—
Laugh at any fate.

Ah, Villon! Your lot, to me, is more enviable
Than that of any fine clad gentleman in lace cuffs.
You are yourself—free, happy, burdened with no philosophy
save this:
"Nothing matters."
You have a realm, a loyal realm, though it be
In a musty tavern.
You are a monarch, a prince—
a King—albeit
A king of vagabonds.

Ace Of Clubs

MUSIC CLUB ORGANIZED

A music club has been organized in Maryville. At its first meeting, held late last week, Miss Laura Hale, head of the music department of Maryville College, was elected president.

The other officers are:
Mrs. George Burchfield, vice president
Mrs. Lon Leith, secretary
Mrs. Arthur Ruble, treasurer
Mrs. Raymond Smith, program chairman
Mrs. Hugh Norton, legislation chairman

The members are women of Maryville and Alcoa who are interested in stimulating interest in and demand for good music in Maryville. They hope from time to time to bring in artists from the outside as well as encourage local talent.

Meetings will be held the first Monday evening in each month at seven-thirty.

CHEMISTRY CLUB ELECTS

Feb. 18—The Chemistry Club met tonight and elected the following officers:

President—J. W. Hina
Vice President—Rachel Frost
Secretary—Calvin Bass
Program Secretary—Hope Snyder
Treasurer—Sherrill Hatcher
Editor—Alice Renegar

Lucy Lee Silcox gave a report on insulin. This constituted the program. The regular meeting will be held on Tuesday night of the first and third week of each month unless otherwise announced.

SPANISH CLUB ORGANIZES

On Wednesday, February 25, in the Y.W.C.A. auditorium, there will be a meeting to discuss the reorganization of the Spanish Club. If you are not taking Spanish this year, but are interested, come. The meeting will be immediately after supper.

EDUCATION GOES MODERN

How President Robert Maynard Hutchins has modernized education by his latest innovation at the University of Chicago is the subject of the editorial by Patricia Reilly Foster in the March issue of College Humor. Mrs. Foster calls attention to the fact that:

"The playgrounds of America—the colleges and universities reserved for the pleasures of youth in this country, wherein they may dwell in luxury for four years, become expert drinkers and dancers and cilettantes in the grand manner—these country clubsa of the educational world are about to be done over so that any fellow with the strange hallucination that he would like to go to school to learn something may now be permitted to do so.

"One of the most forward steps in education in this country has just been taken. . . . the studious person who wishes to apply himself to research or a perusal of the arts will now be permitted to go ahead as fast as possible and even be given a degree at the end of a year if he can do the four year's work in that time.

"President Hutchins has brought freedom to education ,and if your little loafing game has been spoiled you can blame him."

THE GREAT AMERICAN MYTH

"A myth that declares it is honorable, profitable and even advisable to battle for a degree and a living at the same time," has, according to Henry Morton Robinson in March College Humor, caused numerous students to make the traditional gesture and become needless martyrs on this sacrificial altar.

"Scholastic hitch-hikers" working their way or their professor, are, says Mr. Robinson, "represented by more than two million of the nearly five million persons in the United States attending educational institutions."

"They drive cabs and wait on table; they clerk, tutor and jerk sodas; they peddle spark plugs, scented soaps and subscriptions to magazines; they beg, they borrow, and a few of them inevitably steal.

"Two thirds of their waking hours are spent in feeding and housing their bodies; with what is left of their time and energy they go through the motions of studying for a degree."

"To be sure, only a small percentage of them ever get the degree because the mortality among academic parasites is fearfully high. high.

"A few of the stubborn diehards play the exhausting game to the last whistle, but they are so burned out by the effort that they rarely amount to anything in later life.

"A high class of scholarship or intelligent interest is not to be expected from a student who comes to class dulled and sodden with fatigue.

"When a chap drives a taxi cab all night, he is not likely to bring a shining new edge of originality or interest to the discussion of Swinburne's poetic dramas. And when he totes mail sacks for eight hours every day, he is scarcely in prime shape for the rigors of a math exam.

"Everything would be all right if the student were willing to take the academic consequences. But he isn't. He expects favors, leniencies, extensions—or else he falls hopelessly behind.

"Every college teacher with a corpuscle of humanity in his blood stream has "passed" hundreds of fellows who deserved, on the basis of scholastic accomplishment, to be flunked outright."

EXCHANGES

For the first time in sixteen years a real "ole time minstrel" was produced at N. C. State Agricultural College. This event occurred on the evening of February 19, 1931.

Clemson College is under quarantine. This is not for influenza, but for a more serious disease—spinal meningitis.

Rollins College is offering a new course which is novel to say the least. The course allows five credits toward a diploma and is titled, "The Art of Making Love."

C. G. Lawrence of N. C. State College of Agriculture has done well during his course at the College. In addition to carrying on his regular college work he has earned $3,065 by his own efforts.

Two hundred Methodist students representing various colleges and prep schools of South Carolina held their second student conference at U. S. C. during the latter part of week of February 16.

The belief on the part of most college women that:

1. Raisins are a better source of iron than eggs;
2. The potato is the most fattening of foods;
3. Fat is more likely to result from drinking water with meals than from eating potatoes;
4. The toe-out method of walking is the best, and
5. The turkish bath is the best method of exercise, are examples of "amazing ignorance" among freshmen at Smith College, according to Dr. Frances Scott and Dr. Anna Richardson, of the Smith faculty. The two health specialists called the beliefs "popular misconceptions and superstitions among college women."

Orr's Musings

By Richard Orr

The Highland Echo staff is encouraging a change in the general classification of Maryville's students. It is their aim that we should endeavor to call the students men and women rather than boys and girls, as we've been accustomed to doing. Freshmen apprentices, writing in the Echo, find it difficult to become accustomed to this change. The casual observer, looking on from an unprejudiced viewpoint, might conclude that the Echo staff is a bit hasty in the decision to call us men and women. He probably would favor a few alterations that would be to the good of the college, as well as to the individual before the change should be universal.

The first change would be to dispose, once and for all, of the proverbial gum chewer, who is not an asset to any college. In high school we were asked not to chew gum, but after we get to college we shouldn't have to be asked this favor. It is so apart from what is expected of the average college student that it is not necessary in a code of rules. Chewing gum is not exactly a menace; nor is it morally wrong; but to see a girl or boy entertaining himself, chewing gum is a very unsightly thing. Perhaps it sharpens the appetite of a few onlookers, but as a rule the appetite will take excellent care of itself. Then too, a person's stomach, when he chews gum, is constantly in use. It doesn't get the much needed rest that it has coming after three meals a day. Therefore, it is plain to see that as a whole, or any part of a whole, the gum chewing habit should be done away with, for the good of all concerned.

To break rapidly to a far different matter, but one that applies to our students as well, we would mention the students' attitude at basketball games. In each game there are a few times when decisions rest absolutely on the will of the referee. In a case of this kind, the referee acts upon his best judgment and the game proceeds; no attention is paid to the jeers coming from the sidelines. The sad part of jeering is not in the fact that the students, as a whole, dislike the type of refereeing. Instead it means that two or three fellows with an extra supply of vocal power, think they see something wrong—they yell—and in a moment, the whole gang, like a bunch of scared sheep, join in, each one trying to make a little more noise than the next one. The majority of those yelling the loudest have no idea of what it is all about. They think they don't like the refereeing; the fact is, they razz the referee in support of two or three rabid fans who feel free to think aloud. As a result visitors form opinions of Maryville students, that are not very desirable; they hear only those who crab. It must be remembered that first impressions are the most lasting ones.

People who wish to be honorable, loyal students, should not allow themselves to be guilty of either of the shortcomings that have been mentioned. It would prove more of an incentive for outsiders, as well as the Echo staff, to call students of Maryville men and women!

Viola Lightfoot: "If I had $50. now, I'd hire somebody to write me a theme."

Jerry Smith: (jumping at the chance): "I'd sit up all night for the next three days for that."

MARES MARIAVILLENSIS

pass unutilized? In Postoffice Puddle our miniature urge could be satisfied by holding races of boats with peanut shells for hulls, toothpicks for masts and small penwipers for sails. A match between the faculty and the seniors, each side squatting in tense excitement upon the plashy banks, would furnish a spirit on the campus that is be gotten only by keen rivalry. Or again is it impossible to vision luxurious iron benches dotted along the banks where nocturnal moonshiners could conveniently observe Beautiful Luna across the gently undulating surface of this inland sea if perchance the created atmosphere was not too conducive to foolish irrationalities? Why not stock the Sea of Suckers with fish for the relief of the incurable Waltonite, provided we do not have an over-supply of the finny family on the hill now, or perhaps stock it with frogs for harmony's sake if the powers that be will sanction further froggish frivolities on the campus? The energy now going to waste in the beautiful falls of the Waters of Woe should operate gigantic generators which alone would furnish ample power for driving an electrical stamp licker for the postoffice or an automatic tear wiper for the onion peelers of Pearsons.

The possibilities are unlimited and if we are true "wearers of the plaid" we will harken to the call of Economy and stop immediately this shameful waste of potential beauty and energy of the Mares Mariavillensis.

SPORTS

MARYVILLE MATMEN STATE CLAIM FOR STATE CHAMPIONSHIP

SPORTOGRAPHY

By BOB WEST

The Highlanders opened up Friday night against the King Tornadoes and appeared to be burning paths to the promised land. It seems good to have the Scotties perform for us like that.

—:—

Tomorrow night we will witness the last home game of the season. This is a chance for a revenge game against the Eagles from Carson-Newman. This is a chance also to raise our percentage in backing as well as playing.

—:—

With the season of track near at hand the M. C. Cinder Path Artists are donning their respective togs, with daily work outs being held. No call as yet has been issued but the initial call will be sounded in the near future.

—:—

Spring football practice is under way now. The gridiron sport is becoming almost the same as another course of study in some institutions. I notice that at the University of North Carolina, out of nine months practically six are devoted to Football.

—:—

It seems to the writer, that Maryville is going to have to institute boxing in self defense. Practically every other large school has this sport. It is more or less a co-partner with wrestling and we know how popular wrestling is becoming—not only upon this campus but upon practically every campus throughout the South.

"Farmer" Watkins' refereeing in the preliminary game was a model which any referee might do anything he wanted to (about).

Can you imagine Naomi Willingham saying this: "When I was young, I was so sensitive."

SCOTS SWAMP KING TORNADOES, 56-38

Bristol Artists Fail To Cope With Honakerites

Feb. 20—Coach Honaker's Highlanders went on a scoring spree tonight to trample the King College Tornado by a 56 to 33 score. The Maryvillians jumped into the lead from the opening whistle and not one time during the entire game did the visitors threaten this advantage.

The Highlanders were playing basketball with a revenge tonight. It will be remembered that the King outfit eliminated the Maryville boys from the conference tournament at Kingsport last year; tonight was the first time that the Scotties have had the opportunity to reap revenge and they certainly did it in pleasing fashion.

The Highlanders' offense clicked tonight with the most consistency that it has clicked this year. Time and again they worked the ball in for close shots and as a general rule, two points resulted. White and Woodard registered several points from around the foul circle and the greater part of Cooper's points came from following up and slapping the ball in.

In the second half Coach Honaker sent in a team of reserves, and the boys who have been spending a large part of their time warming the bench gave a very good exhibition of basketball. Lewis, Kiser, Frye, Wilson and Benn saw service and they more than held their own with the best that King had to offer. Things certainly look bright for next year's team.

Cooper with 17 points, Woodard with 13 and White with 12 led the Highlanders in the scoring department while Capt. Davis and Nee stood out on the defense. Townley and Donzalski, with 12 and 8 points respectively were best for the visitors.

Line-up follows:

Maryville (58)	Pos.	King (33)
Davis (6)	f.	Bricker (1)
White (12	f.	Donzalski (8)
Cooper (17)	c.	Newlin (7)
Woodard (13)	g.	Townley (12)
Nee (1)	g.	Greenhoe (4)

Subs: Maryville—Lewis (4), Wilson (3), Kiser (2), and Benn. For King—Barnette (1).

Coach Watkins Flings Challenge After Trouncing Southern Champs.

PROVE THEIR SUPERIORIT Y BY WINNING OVER BOTH CHATTANOOGA AND K NOXVILLE Y. M. C. A.'S

Feb. 21—What is probably the last and best wrestling team that "Farmer" Watkins will ever coach at Maryville, tonight, won the Wrestling Championship of Tennessee when they defeated Knoxville Y.M.C.A. 18-16 in the Alumni Gym. As may be seen by the score the match was hotly contested and not until Capt. Sam Hatcher, after giving away thirty pounds to Wayland, Knoxville's 175 pounder, stayed with him for the complete time without allowing a fall, was the match cinched for Maryville.

Other highlights of the match came when Tope, in his first start, gained a time advantage over Maher, Champion of the South at 145 pounds. It looked to the fans as though Tope got a fall at one time but referee Cash said that one shoulder was just off the mat. Boretsky gained two falls over DeLozier, Knoxville's 135 pounder. It was Boretsky's first start and also the first fall that Delozier has ever received.

Two men were hurt during the match. Maher suffered a bump on the head when he went off the mat underneath and McKinney, also of Knoxville, was hurt when Teffeteller used a slam on him once.

As a whole, the match was very interesting and well worth seeing. Dixon of Maryville won the 115 pound division by a forfeit. Erwin, of Knoxville, won the 125 pound division over Marston by time advantage. Dick couldn't seem to get started until too late in the match. Boretsky gained two falls over DeLozier to win the 135 pound division. Tope gained a time advantage over Maher to win the 145 pound division in what was probably the prettiest match of the evening. Taffeteller walked all over the building with McKinney, of Knoxville, on his back and finally got a fall in the extra period to win the 155 pound division. In the 165 pound division Loy, of Knoxville, pinned Burns in about three minutes to win. In the 175 pound division Wayland, of Knoxville, could do no better than a time advantage over Capt. Hatcher, who usually wrestles in the 145 pound division. The result of this match kept Knoxville from a probable tie. In the unlimited division Overly and Kelley wrestled for ten minutes after which the match was awarded to Kelley on a forfeit because of lack of time to finish the bout. Immediately after this match Coach Watkins announced that Maryville would claim the Wrestling Championship of the state as a result of victories over both Knoxville and Chattanooga Y. M. C. A. teams.

LATEST ACTIVITY IS A CRAZE ON WHEELS

A new extra curricular activity has been added to the already extensive list of such endeavors—this time roller skating is striving to obtain a seat of honor in the activities of the college. The seat has been gained; in fact, several seats, but one would not call them honored positions. They are almost unavoidable at times.

As soon as the activity gets on its feet permanently, more devotees may appear. However, the sole organizer who is the only soul as yet, is Ruth Boyd from Missouri who transposes the slogan of her native state and says, "I'm from Missouri; I'll show you how."

LAST HOME GAME OF SEASON TUES. NIGHT

Fighting Eagles To Invade Scot's Camp

Feb. 23—There will be action aplenty tomorrow night when Carson-Newman's Fighting Eagles furnish the opposition for the Highlanders in what promises to be the best game of the seasn. The Maryvillians will be out to avenge a one point defeat suffered at the hands of the Eagles earlier in the season.

The Eagles will present one of the best teams in the Conference and the Maryville team will find them plenty hard to beat. They have one of the tallest men in the Conference in Wood, elongated center, who has been responsible for many of his team's victories this year.

TEPCO SIDE-LIGHTS

The preliminary game, which was won by the Football Men, was a thing wonderful to behold. Everything from a forward pass, of the football variety, to a left-hook to the jaw was used while it was in progress. Tolliver was high scorer with seven points. The final score was 16-11.

The climax of this affray came when Louie Reed stuck a foot in front of Tolliver as he was making for the basket at full steam ahead.

It was surprising to learn that the Tepco.'s mascot, Tommie Humphries, Jr., is sixteen years old.

The cheering, which accompanied Jack Nee's foul (the first score of the game) was the best I have heard in two years at Maryville, as far as Basketball is concerned.

Kemp's "Don't hurt 'em", which he called out every time the Tepco's started through our defense, may not have been exactly appropriate but it was good psychology.

While watching Kemp tear around over the floor the Tepco. manager made the remark that it takes fight to make a basketball player.

Incidently "K" was high scorer with 10 points. He got three field goals and four fouls.

Kiser's lone field goal came on what was probably the prettiest play of the game—two short passes and a crip shot—and it was plenty fast too. The Tepco guard was clear out of the play.

The large amount of fouling may be attributed to the fact that the Tepco.'s have probably not had the closest of refereeing in many of their games.

SCOTTIES NO MATCH FOR TEPCO INDEP'S

Scots Led at End of Half But Lose 50-29

Feb. 18—The Maryville College Highlanders battled on even terms with the Chattanooga Tepcos, Southern Independent Champions, for almost three quarters here tonight, but the more experienced Tepcos drew away in the final stages of the game and came out with a 50 to 29 victory over Coach Honaker's men.

The first half saw the Highlanders take advantage of the Tepcos' errors and grab a lead which they held throughout the first period, but in the latter part of the game the Chattanoogans settled down to real business and the Scotties were hopelessly outclassed. Led by Judie Baseman and Babe Mitchell, the Tepcos scored point after point and the Highlanders' offensive attack completely collapsed.

Shortly after the second half started the Tepcos clearly showed that they had no intentions of staying behind, and immediately opened up the most bewildering offensive attack that has ever been displayed on the Maryville court. They whipped the ball around with much the same speed that one would throw a baseball and it was simply too much for the inexperienced Highlanders.

The Highlanders held a three point lead at the rest period but shortly after play was resumed in the last half, Baseman and Mitchell knotted the count. Capt. Kemp Davis regained it for the Highlanders by sinking a free throw but Bill Redd came back with another foul toss to tie the score again. Kiser worked in for a crip shot to give the Highlanders a two point lead and this was the last time during the game that the Maryvillians were ahead. Baseman and Mitchell cut loose and went on a scoring spree that broke the Highlanders' hearts and the scorekeeper's pencil. They never let up and at the end of the game were going stronger than ever.

Mitchell and Baseman with 18 and 14 points respectively, led the scoring attack for the visitors, while Kemp Davis and Russ Cooper were best for the home forces. Holland was outstanding on the defense for the Tepcos and Easy White was best for Maryville.

Line-ups follow:

Maryville	pos.	Tepcos.
Davis (10)	f.	Redd (10)
White (6)	f.	Phillips (2)
Cooper (9)	c.	Basemann (14)
Woodard (1)	g.	Mitchell (18)
Nee (1)	g.	Holland (6)

Subs: Maryville— Kiser (2); Lewis, Benn and Wilson.

Engraver Publisher Judge Chilhowean A Superior Year Book

The latest reports from the Chilhowean are unusually favorable. Work has been done on the annual intensively for the past month and the year book is shaping into something of a reality.

The engraver says that the 1931 Chilhowean will be the best annual that has ever been published by Maryville College. The printer says that the Chilhowean will be the first to come off his press, and is the best book that he is putting out this year. The annual will make its appearance on May 1 at the latest.

For those students who desire to make a deposit on their annuals or wish to reserve them, the opportunity is open for at least a month.

The annual is really a treasure that no Maryville student should do without, and payments can be made on "an easy payment plan."

The 1931 Chilhowean is different; it is distinctive. You've never seen anything like it; and as Hadley Webb, business manager says, "There will be things in this annual that will never appear in another Maryville annual." Don't fail to reserve yours now.

ONIONS COMPLICATE SENIOR OPEN PARTY

For the benefit of the seniors and all other students who rate, the kitchen force cooperated with the party committee, in its endeavor to make the senior party a success, by providing bermuda onions for the evening meal preceding the party.

Couples would either eat onions by agreement, or desist, also by agreement. At any rate the underclassmen reveled in this indelicate delicacy and both Y. stores were completely sold out of Listerine and those famous mints that "take your breath away."

WESTMINSTER CHOIR WELL RECEIVED

Feb. 20—The Westminster Choir Concert this afternoon was superb. Without instrumental accompaniment, Dr. Williamson played upon his voices as on an organ. With such perfect technique, such wide voice-range and such masterly direction, it is no wonder that this choir has received most cordial acclaim both here and abroad.

The audience sat spell-bound as one after another great religious themes were sung. It is not often that such choral effects are heard or are solo parts so perfectly blended.

Maryville may well be proud of having an alumnus in this choir. Those who knew Robert Jensen were happy to meet Mrs. Jensen.

SPRING FOOTBALL BEGINS

On Monday, February 16, Coach Honaker issued the call for Spring football practice and on that day about twenty-five men were present for practice. At this time the number of candidates has increased to forty.

The first few days of practice have consisted mainly in calisthenics and setting up exercises. Coach Bob Thrower and Captain-elect Lea Calloway have been taking charge of the squad. Coach Honaker will probably spend a few days with them when the basketball season is over.

There is some promising new material out this spring and the squad is working into fine shape. There will probably be some practice games during the last week of practice.

Among the veterans who are out helping with the practice are Ferguson, Overly, Chandler, Calloway, and McDonald. There will probably be several more out when the basketball and wrestling seasons are over.

Today, Memorial received from the energetic volunteers such a thorough transformation that even the boards in the steps have ceased to complain. Woodwork was scrubbed, windows were cleaned, curtains were washed, and floors were mopped. Collections of useless articles were discarded.

Pearson's scrubbers have proceeded in an orderly way, cleaning one floor at a time, and making it gleam. Baldwin is calmly and quietly waiting until the calendar shows that winter has in reality gone.

Gertrude Huggins and Lois Blessing assisted in the cleaning of Theta Hall Saturday afternoon.

Westminster Choir Director Hears Student Tryouts

Willingham and Briggs Get Honorable Mention

According to Dr. John Finley Williamson, there are several uncommonly good voices in Maryville College.

Dr. Williamson heard thirteen students tryout for the Westminster Choir while he was on the campus last Thursday. Most of the voices were very promising, he said. Naomi Willingham was one of the most outstanding of the entire group. Hers was the strongest and lovliest voice; she has the personality and physique to support it. He was also very impressed with Donald Briggs' potential leadership qualities.

In every case, Dr. Williamson insisted that the student finish his college work before attempting to enter the Choir School of the Ithaca Conservatory.

The demand for graduates of this school is much greater than the supply. Dr. Williamson has calls for fifty more ministers of music than he can fill in the next year. Choir leading is not a field without a future—a long and promising future.

Maryville Debaters Lose To Tusculum

Maryville's high geared debaters, represented by Bob West and Winn Barr, lost a thrilling debate to Tusculum College in the Y.W.C.A. auditorium Friday night. Maryville was representing the negative side of the Free Trade question.

The debaters seemed to be about on a par, and as the critic judge said, the decision could have been fairly given by a toss of a coin. Winn Barr insisted that the spice of life is variety and Bob West helped to present a large variety of arguments for the negative side. In the end, it appeared that the Tusculum debaters had presented a more convincing and diversified set of arguments. West, in displaying some of his ingenious humor, kept the crowd in an uproar, although all those present could not quite agree with some of his well intended remarks.

It was a landslide for Maryville debaters, for while the Maryville negative team was losing to Tusculum, the affirmative team represented by William Graham and Jesse James, lost to King College at Bristol.

AFTER LIGHTS OUT

By "Lady Macbeth"

"Fifi!

"Fifi!

"Fifi!" Fifi's roommate called in a stage-whisper. Fifi's leaden eyes blinked into the glaring rays of a flashlight.

"What?" very sleepily.

"Sh-h-h. Be quiet. Come on down to Given's room. We're having the most fun. Judy's hypnotizing people.

Fifi was awake instantly. She dismounted from the top deck as nearly quietly as is possible when the lights are out, and tiptoed down the speaking floor of the hall.

Given's room was lighted by a single candle, which threw weird shadows of the assembled hypnotists on the wall. As Fifi entered some one giggled out the story of her own antics while she had thought she was a rabbit.

Judy seated Fifi in the center of a more or less distinct circle and instructed her to close her eyes.

"Everyone in this room is concentrating on you," she explained, "and you must concentrate on yourself while I bathe your face in water from this cup."

To the accompaniment of light strokes and an occasional snicker, Fifi heard a droning monotone, "You're gonna be hypnotized—you're gonna be hypnotized—you're gonna be hypnotized."

And then, "Do you feel hypnotized?"

"No."

"Then here's a mirror. Do you look hypnotized?"

The victim opened her eyes and stared at the reflection of a face smeared all over with lampblack. Instantly she began to laugh hilariously.

"Sh-h-h! Be quiet. I can't afford to be moonshined."

Education used to be a hard old grind for four years, but now they've done away with that—They have colleges.

The Messiah

By Margaret Auld

Snow falls on the steps of the church, on the broad marble steps which we are ascending. Snow grows deeper and deeper on the roof, and birds fly under the eaves for warmth.

A chorus of a hundred singers is seated beneath the shining arches of the church. Their vestments are white. A light shines down on their faces and on the dark, intent head of the organist in their midst.

In the audience the seats are all filled. There are women in furs with their faces smooth and unlined by poverty and worry. There are men who look contented and prosperous. And among these there are people in shabby clothes to whom the music will mean a great deal more. It will mean release from the gnawing knowledge of little cold hands and too thin faces at home. It will mean warmth and vivid life for a few hours.

The singers hold their gilt-edged music books in their hands. The tenor soloist arises, and the organ fills the church with its notes. The tenor is young and strong in his long white robe. He sings this song from The Messiah—"Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God."

It is a beautiful prayer. "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people." Comfort the frail little woman who sits beside me. She has nearly forgotten her happy days and the meaning that holidays should have. Bring Christmas peace to her heart and take away the sad look from her eyes. She is as small as a faded thought and when she goes out into the night a sudden gust of wind may blow her away. She doesn't believe what you sing, fair-haired boy with the clear voice; she thinks no one can ever comfort her! Her little knarled hands are clasping and unclasping as if your voice is bringing memories that disturb her. Sing, sing, choir boy, and let her know it is comfort for her you are asking! Tell her with your gentle voice that you want the Christmas Child to speak peace to her.

Sing, choir boy, for a man with startled eyes and nervous hands is listening. He needs the peace of your voice. He is afraid of something; Christmas is bringing no joy to him. "Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people."

Look down as you sing to the little dark-haired girl who has slipped in among the crowd that is standing. She doesn't often see a place as lovely as this church. She rarely hears an organ or a golden voice, or words as sweet as you are singing. She has no gloves and there are snow flakes in her hair.

Sing for the two across the aisle! They are happy now and the memory of your kind voice may help to keep them that way always. Romance flames about them. Her face is like a flower lifted to you and one of her hands is hidden in the hand of her tall young lover. "Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people." Oh, Christ-child, guard their dreams and may they all be realized! Take away the bitter look from the woman who is watching them. Something in her face tells me that she has never known the joy they own this Christmas time.

The boy tenor has finished and a succession of airs and magnificent choruses have been sung "His name shall be called Wonderful, Counseller, the Mighty God, the Prince of Peace!" The mighty voice of the chorus is raised in praise of Christ.

And now it is almost over. The little German director turns to us and motions for us to stand. There is a hush, then the grandeur of The Hallelujah Chorus fills the church, fills our hearts, makes us stand silent and shaken because of its power. The organ is like the beating of a joyous heart. It brings tears to my eyes. Through the tears I look at the little old woman beside me. She is smiling faintly and holding tight to the back of the seat in front of us. The music is so magnificent it scarcely belongs around such a tiny woman. The man with the startled eyes has closed them and is standing very still. He seems remote and untouched by the sound of the chorus. The little girl is listening with her eyes wide and her mouth like an "o". I have seen little girls look the same way at the sight of a Christmas tree. Her wonder is caused by a majestic song. The two across the aisle are standing entranced by the voices. The music is running through them like wild wine. I see the harsh lines around the older woman's face relax a moment as she looks at the boy and girl again.

I say in my heart to the tenor singer and to the whole white-robed chorus, "Your singing has been a prayer and the prayer is granted."

Reporter Views Our College Cemetery

Finds Monuments To Memory Of Many Notables

Many of the students do not know of the old cemetery on the edge of the College Woods, or if they know of its existence, they know very little about it.

The cemetery behind the house the field attached to the house now occupied by Mr. Proffitt, the college treasurer is separated from it by a large field. It is on a grassy knoll and lies barely within the inclosure of the Woods. The lot is about a quarter of an acre in area, but has not been used since 1921. Monuments mark the graves of thirteen people, all of whose names are in some way associated with Maryville College.

Rev. J. T. Lamar, for thirty years a professor in the college, and more than that—the indomitable spirit which recreated and revived the college after the Civil War—is buried here. Here are the graves of his wife and their infant son, Ralph Max Lamar, in whose memory the hospital was established.

Rev. Alexander Bartlett, who for sixteen years after the close of the war was a professor in the college and one of Prof. Lamar's ablest co-laborers, is also buried here.

Names on the other grave-stones include Rev. G. S. W. Crawford, who was one of "the original thirteen" who entered in 1866, and who later served as a teacher, Mrs. Alexander Bartlett, Mrs. Mason P. Bartlett, Professor Gaines S. Robertson, and a few more recent graduates.

PROFESSOR TURNS NURSE

Professor Ogg of U.S.C. surprised his students recently by bringing his little girl to class because his wife was ill. Shortly after the professor had begun his lecture on chemistry, the sound of a sleeping child was heard.

When questioned about the matter the professor answered:

"That goes to show that only little children are supposed to go to sleep in my classes."

Professor: "This examination will be conducted on the honor system. Please take seats three apart and in alternate rows."

Maryville was represented by Alvin McCann, who was president of the Tennessee Union for the past year; Sara Bagley, president of the local Student Volunteer Band; Alma Schoeller, John Hendry, Andrew Newcomer, Michael Testa, Joseph Hacker, and William L. Dobbie. The latter two went to Nashville via the "thumb route", while the rest of the delegates travelled in Mr. Newcomer's "Red Dragon."

that fortunate group. It is indeed disturbing not to know what has brought forth this unusual merriment, and curiosity henceforth sets in only to be satisfied at the end of the period when the evidence is made known by a member of that distinctive class.

However, distractions are necessities in any classroom; they aid digestion, both mental and physical; they break the monotony; and they add tone color to drab recitations.

Spring Concert of Women's Glee Club Scheduled Mar. 6

Classics and Novelties Will Feature Well-Planned Program

MISS HENRY DIRECTS

Proceeds of Concert Will Be Given to Vesper Choir For New Robes

On Friday night, March 6, at 8:00 o'clock in Voorhees Chapel, the Women's Glee Club under the direction of Miss Frances Henry, will present a concert composed of classical and novelty songs.

An outstanding number of the program is "Un Giorno In Venezia" (A Day in Venice). The music is written by Ethelbert Nevin, and the verse by Frederick H. Martens. It is a cycle of four love songs and has been arranged by Charles Gilbert Ross for three-part women's chorus.

"Posed Poems", including the Minuet, a Greecian Frieze, and Pierrot and Pierette, will be made very effective by appropriate costuming and lighting.

The selection of songs is remarkable, including "The Dance of the Pine Tree Fairies", by Foreman; "Sleepy Time", by Collins; "Two Marionettes", by Cooke; and "In The Carpenter's Shop", by Teasdale. The last number was a prize winner at the National Federation of Women's Clubs in 1917, and it is probably the outstanding number of the concert.

This is the first year the Women's Glee Club has attempted to present a concert of this type. It

COLLEGE DEBATORS WIN TWO VICTORIES

Women Defeat Carson-Newman And Teachers Friday

Last Friday night the women's debating teams carried off all honors by defeating both Carson-Newman and East Tennessee Teachers College. The free trade question was again discussed.

The affirmative team, Elizabeth Duncan and Hope Snider, went up to Carson-Newman College at Jefferson City and decisively defeated Teachers College by a unanimous decision of the five judges. At the same time the negative team, Ann Deal and Mary John Metcalfe, went up to Teachers College at Johnson City and met Carson-Newman. The vote of the judges was three to two in favor of the negative.

While Maryville was thus comporting herself so favorably away from home, the Teachers' affirmative team and the Carson-Newman negative team were fighting it out in our Y. W. auditorium before a large crowd of Maryville listeners and moonshiners. The judges voted three to two in favor of the affirmative. Ruby Johnson, a former Maryville student, was one of the Carson-Newman debaters.

Next Friday night the men's negative team, Richard Strain and Jesse James, will meet the University of Chattanooga down at Chattanooga.

PRESIDENT'S WEEK

March 2, Monday—Visit College Directors in Philadelphia

March 3, Tuesday—Visit College Directors in Philadelphia

March 4-8—New York

The word sophomore is composed of two Greek words: "sophos", meaning wise, and "moros" meaning foolish.

Readers of our Superior Scotties column should not fail to read at least the first paragraph of this week's effusions. The writer of the said column made a disparaging statement about one of the Scotties, some time ago and has had to retract his assertion. He 'eats his words' in a spirited fashion. He admitted to us that he meant no offense the first time. Another staff member says it all depends on the way you look at things.

Three Reports Of Students' Grades to Be Made In Semester

Change In Plan of Reporting Standings To Benefit Students

A change has been instituted in the matter of reports of students who are falling below standard in class-room work. Instead of a mid-semester report as has been the practice, three monthly reports will be made to the Dean's office the second of which will, as a matter of fact, be at mid-semester.

The students thus reported will be called to the Dean's office for conference and counsel. It will not be the Dean's practice, however, to tell the student which of his teachers has reported him, the principal purpose on the part of the Dean's office being to deal with matters of general inquiry regarding the student's use of his time, habits of study, and purpose in college. It will be the Dean's practice to write to the parents of students thus reported, giving not only a statement of the reported deficiency but also a report of his conference with the student.

The purpose of this system is, from the point of view of the office, three fold, (1) To attempt a general toning up of scholarship, (2) To ascertain earlier than mid-semester the facts about a student's standing and so to be able to give earlier attention to cases of developing deficiency, and, (3) finally, to manifest to students and their parents the interest not only of the four or five teachers who happen to be teaching him at the time, but of the whole administration of the college in the scholastic effort and interests of the student.

Saturday witnessed open defiance of a time-honored custom at Maryville. It is believed that the drastic change in menu at lunch marked the beginning of a new era in the history of the college. The well known porcelain pans in Pearsons dining hall were filled with oranges instead of bananas.

The girls in this picture are wearing some of the new dresses made by the College Maid Shop.

The Shop is making linen, pique, and basket-weave sport dresses to sell at prices ranging from five dollars to eight dollars, and voile and organdie afternoon frocks to twelve dollars. Slips are made to match these dresses.

The newest addition to the Shop is the dressmaking department now being established. Every dress is made-to-measure for the individual in authentically good style. The prices are unusually reasonable.

THETA ALPPA PHI TO INITIATE FOUR STUDENTS THIS WEEK

Duke, Marley, Marshall, Briggs Honored

The Maryville Chapter of Theta Alpha Phi, national honorary dramatic fraternity, will this week initiate four new members. The new thespians are Jane Duke, Louise Marley, Dorothy Marshall, and Donald Briggs.

Jane will be remembered for her work in "The Swan", a College Players' production, and "My Irish Cinderella", Bainonian mid-winter.

Louise, who appears tonight in graduate recital, has played character roles in "The Big Pond", Theta mid-winter, and the College Players' productions "The Swan" and "Green Stockings."

Dorothy does excellent work in juvenile roles. She did some very successful work last year, and is remembered as one of the unruly younger brothers in "The Swan."

Donald is to be commended for receiving this unusual honor in his sophomore year. On only rare occasions is an actor invited to join the fraternity before he is a junior. This peculiarly successful young man has appeared this year in "The Big Pond" and "Green Stockings."

The Theta Alpha Phi play this year will be a senior class benefit number given April twentieth.

PRESIDENT SENDS LETTER TO PARENTS OF HONOR STUDENTS

Fifty-five Congratulatory Messages Sent From Office.

Last week fifty-three copies of the following letter were sent to the Honor Students of the school and to their parents. The term honor student in this case applies to those who have made the mark of B and above, and not to those who have made a B average. Of the fifty-three honored ones, 17 were seniors, 8 sophomores, 12 juniors, and 16 freshmen.

This letter has not only encouraged the students but it has also given much pleasure to Dr. Lloyd because, after all, teachers do get tired of scolding.

February 25, 1931.

My dear Friend:

Maryville College is glad to honor those who attain a place of high scholarship, for such attainment is generally the result both of faithful work and good ability.

I wish to say a word of commendation and congratulation because of the excellent scholastic record made by your during the semester recently closed. A student who maintains an average of B throughout the course is graduated with cum laude honors. Such an average for any semester deserves notice.

Cordially yours,
Ralph Waldo Lloyd,
President.

Love is the delusion that one girl differs from another.

All poetry lovers will be interested in finishing the two fragments of poems that appear this week on page two in the Highland Bard column. Those who supply endings are asked to hand their contributions to some member of the staff before Friday afternoon. The best specimens will be published; every one who contributes will receive Honorable Mention.

Candidates for English 11C, here's your chance to see your names in print.

TREASURER INJURED WHEN MACHINE AND STREET CAR CRASH

Mr. Proffitt Cut by Broken Glass; Dr. Lloyd Escapes Injury

Feb. 27—The first note worthy incident of Dr. Lloyd's eastern tour occurred last night at 8:30, just outside Knoxville, when the automobile that he was in collided with a street car. The automobile was driven by Mr. F. L. Proffitt, the college treasurer.

The students who are familiar with the Knoxville highway will remember that at Vestal the road is narrow, and the street car line is on the side of the street, rather than in the middle. It was there that the accident happened.

An automobile coming from Knoxville crowded Mr. Proffitt's car over toward the street car line. Just as Mr. Proffitt was attempting to pass the offending automobile, he encountered the street car which hit a corner of the car's body. Dr. Lloyd was sitting on the side that was struck and, although the window was shattered, he received no injuries. Mr. Proffitt was not so fortunate. He was cut on the head, hand, and knee. Both of them were rather badly shaken up by the wreck. Mr. Farmer, a Maryville business man, happened along in time to get Dr. Lloyd to his train. Dr. S. E. Crawford brought Mr. Proffitt back to Maryville.

The treasurer's injuries are not major ones, but his nerves are unsteady. He underwent an operation during the summer, and has not yet fully recovered from its effects. His daughter, Grace, says that her father has had every thing happen to him except being struck by a freight train.

The car which Mr. Proffitt was driving belongs to Mrs. L. P. Snodgrass, matron of Baldwin Hall.

President Will Visit Directors Who Live In East.

Dr. Lloyd To Observe Organization, Customs of Eastern Colleges.

RETURN TUESDAY

Philadelphia, New York, Boston Included in Executive's Itinerary

March 2—Dr. Lloyd is away on an extended tour in the East. He plans to visit the Maryville College Directors who live in that section of the country, and also to observe conditions in some of the well known eastern schools. The plans for the tour seemingly grew out of an appointment which he had to preach at Princeton Seminary.

The President left Maryville Thursday night. Friday he visited Dr. Newton Wadsworth Cadwell in Atlantic City. Saturday night he spoke at the Atlantic Highlander's Banquet in Princeton, and yesterday he preached at Princeton.

He will probably spend today and Tuesday in Philadelphia. There, he will meet Dr. Clinton H. Gillingham, former Registrar of the College. He will also arrange to meet the Directors who live in the city. They are: J. Willison Smith, Esq., William Love McCormick, D. D., and John Grant Newman, D. D., LL.D., Litt. D. From Wednesday through Sunday, Dr. Lloyd will be in New York, and he hopes to get up to Boston. The Director living in New York is David Gourley Wylie, D. D., LL.D.,

EXPRESSION GRADS TO RECITE TONIGHT

Four Talented Readers Appear In Graduate Program

Tonight at 8:00 o'clock the expression department will present in the first graduate recital of the year Kathryn Kizer, Mildred Crawford, and Louise Marley.

Kathryn Kizer, who will read "Grandma Pulls the String", appeared last year in Theta's mid-winter, "Tilly of Bloomsbury"; several weeks ago in "Green Stockings"; and last Monday evening in "The Crisis."

Mildred Crawford will read "Mirage". She has appeared this year in the plays "The Swan", and "Shavings."

Louise Marley's reading is "Neighbors". Louise was in Theta's midwinter, "The Big Pond" last December; "The Swan"; and "Green Stockings."

Ushers for the performance will be members of the expression department.

Monday night, March 16, Dorothy Marshall, and Mildred MacKenzie, will appear in the second recital.

MONDAY SCHEDULES

For nearly every Monday from today till the end of the semester there is scheduled some debate, or recital, or festivity.

March 2—Expression Recital

A WEIGHTY SUBJECT—JULIA TERRY

A person of abnormal avoirdupois has only one asset, perhaps one and a half. He is supposed to be good-natured. This quality of good-naturedness however, is an act of self-preservation; and yet it is a learned activity for who of the weighty part of humanity is not forced to be good-natured in order to withstand and at the same time accept, the various proddings, insults, cryptic remarks, that are received day after day.

I can think of another partially advantageous asset usually belonging to a person of unusual proportions, namely— formidableness. Many a delightfully small girl has come to me and said, "Oh, you look as if you could make anybody do anything you wanted. You're so nice and bi-i-i-g!" Oh my, what a mistake, fallacy, or any other form of illusion, optical and otherwise. Our apparent formidableness if it can be termed such, is probably a bluff, exhibited in order to hide a well developed state of self-consciousness.

And then we good-natured, formidable creatures are always accused of being healthy. Exclaims one of my envious small satellites, "If I were as healthy as you, I surely would be happy." Of course, health is a condition not to be slighted and yet, size does not always indicate health.

A most disagreeable result of being fat is that in crowded condition anywhere a fat person sits on the bottom while the slender, thin, and skinny assemblage flounder about on top, entirely above board. The fat person is unable to breath satisfactorily, if at all, and must content himself by breathing deep draughts of a wool coat or a silk dress, depending on whichever season of the year may be prevailing.

An especial handicap endured by the fat feminine collegian (if fat girls are collegiate) is the inability to borrow clothes. If a dress is lent the lender usually admonishes the borrower with many different derogatory directions. "Well, I guess you can have it, if you're sure you won't burst out the seams. Be careful when you sit down." And so the inoffensive fat bit of femininity strides forth, none too joyously, in her borrowed apparel and is worried and overly-cautious until the dress is returned absolutely unharmed. One of the hardest statements to is, grin and bear results when a compliment is given a small girl on how well she looks in her petite frock, and the following answer comes forth. "Thank you, you must wear it sometime." A mental picture thus ensues and is followed by mental anguish, all this occurring while repartee of apparent good humor is hurled from the unconscious offender to the self conscious complimenter.

Never can a fat person star in a dramatic production, for always he is a policeman or she is a washwoman. Of course an unappreciated, unprominent part in a play is better than none at all, although the person is usually more prominent than the characterization.

One more handicap—food. Calories becomes the password, byword, swear-word, of the stylish stout. When one sits down at a meal she is the magnet for all kinds of metallic gleams and she expressionlessly absorbs the caustic remarks that are emitted by the cruel onlookers as she helps herself to a teaspoonful of potatoes, and a thimbleful of gravy. Butter and bread must be ignored and pastry entirely omitted. She must get a lime phosphate while her unadmiring friends buy chocolate sodas and butterscotch sundaes.

Many are the hardships endured, handicaps un-overcome, and ambitions never realized by these pleasingly plump, stylishly stout, ravishingly round group of creatures whose only values are to make the fortunate gazelles appreciate their physique, and to provide humanity opportunities for quips and questions.

We Solve Two Problems

Every night supper is over by six o'clock. Every night between six and seven o'clock, the dormitories are scenes of confusion. Study hour does not begin until seven o'clock and the library does not open until seven. It is just the time for a bull session, or aimless tearing around from one room to another. It matters not that some of us have probably done nothing since the three o'clock bell released us from the classroom. Other people are making so much noise that we cannot study, write or read without constant interruption. Or if we do settle down to work we have visitors. Of course we realize that we should not over work, that we need all the recreation possible, and that if we think too hard or study too long we shall become cranks or—what is worse—bookworms. However, it does seem that the time after supper before study hour begins might be employed more profitably.

Almost every student who has attained his junior year is signed up for at least one course that requires library reading. We believe we may safely say that the average student has more than one such course. About half of the students are working all or part of their way through school. Many of them work all day on Monday, and during all their vacant periods. Consequently they have only the evening hours for study. Our library is an excellent one, but it has its limitations. A whole class is often required to read a book of which there are no more than two copies in the library. Result—much hurried skimming, and many late reports.

We have presented two problems. For both, we would suggest one thing that would serve as a partial solution. Should the library be opened at six o'clock, the student who really desires to study or read might do so in the library. Then those who insist on having their daily rest period might take it at the expense of no one else. If the evening hours, during which the library is open, were increased from two to three and one half, the student worker would be more likely to get all required reading done, and would also have more opportunity to read the daily paper, a periodical, or a book.

Our solution may be all wrong, but even the most conservative will admit that the two evils discussed do exist.

Past and Present In Basketball

Where are the basket ball games of yesteryear? Didn't the cheer leaders assure us that our basket ball team was one of the best? Didn't they urge us to give those old fight yells, to fill up the bleachers, and to show the boys that we were behind them? But didn't we sometimes feel that the cheerleaders themselves were rather half hearted about it all? And well they might be, because this year's basket ball schedule certainly left much to be desired.

Our team played teams that had such fear engendering names as Kansas Tornadoes, and Southern Independent Champions. They also met the powerful Hack and Mack coterie. But why? The Carson-Newman game was much more interesting. It was college pitted against college, amateurs against amateurs and youth against youth.

We confess our inadequate knowledge of the how and why of basketball schedules; we realize that all of us are prone to look back with regret to the 'good old days'. It would seem to even the least observant of us, however, that the wide spread dissatisfaction among people who really know basketball, concerning the schedule, would indicate that something was not as it should have been. In the words of a prominent Maryvillian, the "schedule leaked".

SUPERIOR SCOTTIES

For the benefit of the faithful few who read every thing in the home paper we wish to correct a statement made in the last of this series of wanderings. The impression was unintentionally given out that our popular head cheer-leader was overly fond of the company of the weaker(?) sex. While this is not wholly and entirely an untruth, it is also not wholly and entirely a veritability. Hence the correction, of which you have probably read only the first line or two.

If the jump does not tax our brains too much, let us now turn our thoughts toward another illustrious duo of four-year men, none other than our "Jesse" James and Roy Arthur Taylor.

We have always been curious to know whether or not Jesse's first initial really represents the cognomen of that famous outlaw of times past, or not, but we must confess that we are still in complete darkness where knowledge of his primary monicker is concerned. All we know about his pre-Maryville career is that he hails from Maple Hill, N. C. where men are men and women try to disprove that theory. When Jesse first came to Maryville, he intended to remain only a couple of years and then return to his native state to finish his education. The old Maryville spirit gained a hold on him, however, and next June, he will be among those present at the graduation exercises. His ability, coupled with his popularity, is shown in the fact that he has recently been elected president of Alpha Sigma and that he is also president of the Y.M.C.A. and the Law Club. As he enters law school in the not-so-distant future, he will carry good wishes from his many friends, who includes all who know him.

It seems that the class of '31 is doing it's part in relieving the physical and criminal sickness of the country. We have another promising law aspirant in Roy Taylor. (Note: sometimes he keeps his promises, strange thing for a lawyer though it is!- He is also from the state of North Carolina, a city by the name of Candler if that means anything to you. It must be a pretty fast place, however, because the way Roy led those cross-country runners last fall was nothing short of ultra-speedy. He is also a highly efficient member of the track team.

Besides being an athlete, Taylor has that quality which is so necessary to a lawyer's success, that quality sometimes called the gift of gab. In other words, he knows how to work wonders with words without taking a correspondence course. He is an orator and debater extraordinary. This is sure to help him go a long way up the legal ladder, probably almost as far as the historical character of the same name, who knows? Anyway all the fellows at Maryville and most of the opposite sex wish him the high rungs of success.

The Highland Bard

I have the strangest feelings
when I go into my classes;
I want to yell, and howl and scream
And tell my teachers ——

A half-moon, like a golden bowl
Tip tilted to spill dreams on me,
Just as you pour your liquid light
On every river, every tree—
You cover me with drowsy thought
You make me lift my face and say
This loveliness ——

HEEL PRINTS

To a certain class I go,
And see around the wall a row
Of soiled heel-prints upside down, fall
Blemishes on pure white walls.
I know I shouldn't sit and look
With mind on wall instead of book,
But such mute monuments look
a mess,
Put there through absent-mindedness.

Lives of great men all remind us,
We can make our lives so bright,
'Tho some teacher leaves behind him,
Heel-prints on the walls of white.

"What have you been trying to do?"
"Pass exams."

Does any one remember when "neck" was a noun?

The absent minded Professor: "Twenty-five years! You should have reminded me before, dear, it's certainly time we got married."

"Ah, the pause that refreshes", said the English professor when he saw the comma in an advanced composition theme.

One student declares that Dr. Hussey is so absent minded that he kissed his class goodbye and gave Mrs. Hussey a zero.

BAINONIAN OFFICERS INSTALLED

At a called meeting of the literary society last Thursday night, the new officers of Bainonian were installed. The ceremony was simple, but different from the ordinary because of the wearing of green by the incoming officers and white by the retiring officers. All the will and testament speeches were clever, the abilities and disabilities of the various modest officers being bequeathed to the new office holders.

The program on Saturday night was taken care of by the old program secretaries, Louise Avery and Barbara Lyle. There were only two numbers on account of the inter-society basketball game following the meeting. The excellence of the vocal solo, "The Little Things in Life", by Amanda Clark, as well as the superlatively amusing "Leapless Year" by Irish Terry, made up for length of the program.

THETA'S NEW OFFICERS ASSUME DUTIES

Saturday evening, the new officers of Theta Epsilon Literary Society were installed with the candlelight service. The new officers are already at work, and the first meeting promises to be an interesting one. Efforts are being made to secure outside entertainment for the first meeting after installation. No Theta can possibly afford to miss the first program of the new term.

CAMPUS TALKIE

They say that Mr. Proffitt is all cut up over his wreck.

It has been said that poets see beauty in the common place. Burns proved it long ago. Margaret Auld and Kitty Hodges are keeping up the tradition. Kitty recently wrote an ode, (or maybe 'was a lyric) to her note book. Margaret composed a sonnet to a sneeze.

Miss Basset: "Who was Hiero?"
No answer.
"He was a very marvelous person—in Roman History."

Student: "Dr. Stevenson quotes Amos n' Andy about as often as the classics."

Bess Mitchell: "The only time I like to kiss anybody is 'good-bye' and 'hello'."

Dollenmayer (in Bible Class)—"Doctor, what is the difference between the spiritual and the mental?"
Dr. Orr—"Are you asking for my opinion?"
Dollenmayer—"No, sir, I want to know."

"I'm on to the ropes in this," said the condemed slayer, as they slipped the noose over his head.

Bainonian's Win Court Game Over Theta Epsilon Literary Society

Alpha Sigma-Athenian Game Being Debated

Saturday night in one of the most thrilling cage contests this year, the Bainonian lassies broke through the defense of the fighting Thetas to win by the count of 25-21. Inability to get started probably proved the downfall of the Theta team.

The game started with both teams playing on the defensive and many shots were missed. However, Theta started with a one point advantage. Then the Bainonian combination opened fire with some teamwork that was hard to surpass and the lead was exchanged time and again. The whistle at the half found the Thetas lagging behind one point.

The rally, started in the final period proved to be too late and the Theta sextette never once overcame the lead set by the Bainonian team. As the last half ended the score stood 25-21 in favor of Bainonian.

Cushman and Little, stellar forward and guard, were the best for the winners, while Foster and Crider showed up best for the losers.

SPORTS EDITOR'S NOTE ALPHA SIGMA

There is too much debating over the Alpha Sigma-Athenian game at the present time to warrant a statement as to who won. If you are interested ask someone who is not interested in either society.

SPORTOGRAPHY

By BOB WEST

The Swan song has been sung, and what a tune! Every word a pearl. Every action brought results, and another thing which glorifies this season. The Freshmen couldn't learn to play Basketball? It must be admitted they played a large part of the Highlanders' games this year physically.

—:—

And while I am throwing the proverbial moribund Hen eggs, crack one of these on your pan; or if you prefer throw your treasurer's receipt away, but in either case Maryville has had an exceptionally good team this year. They have won every home conference game and are in line for another victorious year at the meet.

—:—

In reading over the "Post Mortems" we are sad to note that Kemp Davis is on the list of leavers. Kemp has been a faithful forward and courageous captain—we know his success awaits around the corner.

—:—

Spring Football is having its effects upon several young aspirants. Grunts issue from several rooms, warnings of "don't step on my foot." But it is true a real team cannot be magically produced. It takes grit, nerve, and stick-to-it-iveness. These are prerequisites of anything worth attaining. So we're betting on the Highlanders for the season of 1931-'32.

The early bird may not always get the worm, but he surely gets all the hot water around a dormitory.

KNOXVILLE Y. M. C. A. EKES OUT ON SCOTS

Highlanders Beat In Final Game, 41 To 40

In the last game on the Highlander's schedule this year they were defeated by Knoxville Y. 41-40 a team which the Highlanders took into camp by lopsided score a couple of weeks ago. Maryville did not ever get started, it seems, for the Y. team, the same which played here, jumped into an 11-3 lead in the first few minutes and they were never headed, although the Highlanders at most drew even with them at several times.

Probably one of the biggest reasons for the Highlander defeat was the fact that they had played Carson-Newman the night before and that game was a hard one to win.

White was again high score man but all of the team was off which is easily surmised when we think of the kind of a team Knoxville Y. has.

UNUSUALLY GOOD TRIP PROMISED TENNIS STARS

The weather of the past two weeks has kept Maryville's tennis stars off the courts, practically all the time. During this time William Landrum, the manager, has been keeping himself busy, preparing for what looks to be a successful season on the clay courts. The manager has been making an attempt to get several games in North Carolina in hopes of securing a schedule which will be complete enough to make possible a week's trip in that section. Eight colleges have been written, but no definite arrangements have been made yet with any of them. If the proposed trip can be arranged for, the team will start Monday, playing Tusculum, or State Teachers College, then going on south as far as Durham, to play Duke, and then to the University of North Carolina. Only one car load of players will be taken on the trip. Maryville will play Tennessee Wesleyan, and Tennessee, as usual, and a match may be scheduled with Chattanooga. For three successive years, Maryville has been hoped that the weather man will allow the two teams to play this year if a match is arranged for.

HIGHLANDERS SWAMP OLD RIVALS, 40-28

Carson-Newman Falls Before Maryville Attack

Feb. 24—In the last home game of the season the Highlanders tonight outplayed and outshot the Carson-Newman Eagles to win by a 40-28 score. After the first quarter the game was never in doubt although it was interesting and fairly close all the way through. The Highlanders flashed the best basketball they have shown this season, and the game was said by many to be the best seen here in a long time.

A record crowd attended and the cheering section which the Eagles brought with them helped to keep the rooting spirit at a high pitch. With cheering such as both teams got all evening they couldn't help but give us a good game.

Carson-Newman brought with them a center, Wood, who is probably the tallest player in the Conference and they used him to advantage all evening. With him as the pivot of their offense, the Eagles got off to a slight lead and it looked pretty bad for the Highlanders cause until "EZ" White commenced hitting them. Maybe it was a mistake to take Wood out of the pivot postion, and put him under the basket, as Coach "Frosty" Holt did in the last half. At least Maryville stopped the Eagles' offense more easily after that.

Prof. Griffitts to Freshman class: "If NH3 is ammonia, then what would you call PH3?"

Voice from the rear: "Pneumonia".

Track, Court, and Diamond Are Next On Program To Bring M. C. Honors

KEMP'S LAST GAME

And how he played it. Easily the best floor man of either team, Kemp was in the midst of every play fighting all the time. Leaving the scoring to other members of the team he spent his time getting tipoffs and breaking up Carson-Newman's offensive. And if you think back over the game I'll venture that you'll be surprised at the number of scoring plays he engineered.

Blundon Ferguson took the fat out of the fire in the last half of the first game and enabled the Football Men to come out on top by a 25-18 margin. The game was considerably better than their last week's engagement, from a basketball standpoint.

Carson-Newman's passing formation, which they used when they first came out on the floor, was a rather weird one. I guess it had its good points but they were pretty hard to find.

Wood, C-N center, is about the tallest man to appear on this floor this season. He is six feet six inches tall. At times, when they used him in the pivot position near the foul line, they worked a mighty neat offense around him.

Carson-Newman brought a fine cheering section along with them and it seemed to put quite a bit of added pep into our own gang of rooters. I believe there was a bigger crowd at this game than at the Tepco game.

There was some mighty fast playing in the first few minutes of the game and for awhile it looked pretty bad for the Highlander cause. It took a while for the gang to get the passing offense to clicking right.

Little Ross Honaker showed the fans some powerful floorwork and scoring during the intermission at the half.

At the end of a yell, just before the second half began, Mr. Edris gave us a good imitation of an "organ-grinder's colleague."

I don't think this column would be complete this time without the following: "To the gamest and fightin'est little man that ever put on a basketball suit (or any other kind of a suit for that matter)—'K' Davis."

Brilliant Prospects Due To Former Stars

Spring, the season of cheer, promise, and anticipation, is here, and with it comes the lure of the track, court, and diamond. In the past, Maryville has more than held her own in all three of these sports, there being very few even professional teams which could give the Scotties much competition in these fields.

The track contests, while being limited in number, are always of interest. Usually the University of Tennessee, University of Chattanooga, and Emory and Henry College, are included in the victim list. The outlook for this year is extremely bright, since Taylor, Bratschie, Woodard, and many of the old men are back. Also the new material seen working out looks very promising.

On the court, Strain, Buchanan, Fischbach and other promising helpers ought to continue our past record. The trip through North Carolina ought to prove that Maryville can hold her own from a cosmopolitan standpoint.

Baseball, the major spring sport, although as a rule not taken so very seriously by colleges in this section of the country due to professional competition, still affords much interest and entertainment to the student body. West, Woodard, White, Watkins, Benn, Smith, Hurst, Tolliver, Teffeteller, Bowman and many new aspirants, ought to be able to put the Highland string on many of the teams this year. A strong schedule is under arrangement at the present time.

The world is only a stage upon which a lot of people want to be the whole show when they would only be in the finale.

Three International Celebrities Visit Knoxville Last Week

Knoxville and East Tennessee were honored last week by the visit of three international celebrities. Tuesday night, February 24, at 8:15, in the Lyric Theatre, the Tuesday Morning Musical Club presented Roxy and His Gang and Madame Ernestine Shumann-Heink, on the second Southern stop of their first tour of the United States. The performance was divided into two parts with a short intermission. The program was featured by selections of the orchestra, by several Metropolitan singers and representatives of the chorus of the Roxy Theatre, and by Roxy himself, whose personality and ability as a director and as a member of the Gang is even more pleasing on the stage than over the radio.

During the second half Madame Shumann-Heink was on the stage with the other singers and choral members. When she came on the stage Madame Shumann-Heink's personality seemed at once to compass the entire audience and to rise far above in its richness. Had she not sung once, her presence and the power of her personality would have preserved for her audience the memory of a great soul. As she sang her two short selections she was again the world's finest and best-loved contralto; but she was also one, chosen several months ago among America's twelve greatest women. And it was this last impression, that of a great woman and a great mother that seemed best to describe the beloved singer as she stood with Roxy just before the curtain went down and wished her audience a "Good night and God bless you."

Wednesday night in Jefferson Hall at 8:00 George W. Russell, famous Irish poet and philosopher addressed the citizens, and particularly the farmers of Knoxville on the creating and the building up of a rural civilization. The prevalent American opinion that a poet is no authority on economics of necessity ran its course long before Mr. Russell, or "A. E." as he is otherwise known, finished speaking. After pointing out the inevitable bad results of a civilization concentrated in the cities, he described the working of the rural movement in Ireland, so that his listeners had a tangible conception of his idea. In Ireland the problem of too much city civilization has been practically solved by the rural plan, put into practice by patriotic farmers, statesmen, and, surprising perhaps to Americans, also by poets. And Mr. Russell believes that every great enterprise must have with and in it the vision and inspiration of a poet. Mr. Russell knows that his plan is for several generations to carry out, not for one to accomplish and enjoy; but he urges immediate thought and experiment on it in the hope that it may be used or perfected for use for the advancement of ideal civilizations.

At the conclusion of the address, at the request of President Morgan of U. T., Mr. Russell recited one of his poems, "Carrowmore", which he called "The Gates of The Mountain". The poem was inspired by an Irish farmer whom Mr. Russell met and whose vision was that of the Irish poet. And indeed Mr. Russell himself is a man and a poet with a vision worthy of and big enough for the gigantic ideal which he fosters.

HOMER'S HAPPY DAYS

It seems that at a recent meeting of the Carolina Club, the Editor of the Chilhowean was called upon to make an impromptu speech, the subject of which was to be "The Happiest Moment I Ever Spent". To the surprise of all present, it was not when he was elected to any of the many coveted positions which he now fills on the Hill. It was not when the biologists threw their much talked of betrothal bee. In fact—it is yet to be realized. "But boys", exalts he, "I don't mind telling you that it won't be long now." Homer attributes his present successes, and his prospects of future happiness to his inspiration who is too diminutive to qualify as a

First Recording Of Bean Research Made By Noted Scientist

Palatability of Lowly Legume Shown in Report

Realizing the meager amount of information existing concerning the consumption of the palatable proteids offered by the college delicatessen we have taken upon ourselves the problem of research in this virgin field and are pleased to submit herewith the findings of our agonizing years of toil to the student body of the college. Because of the variety and changeableness of the menu from week to week we have been forced to confine our work to the more or less standard of articles of diet and, with an eye to furnishing the layman with a correct conception of the magnitude of this consumption, we have reduced all statistics to linear, circular or elliptical measurements. We wish to acknowledge our appreciation to the various members of the school for their splendid cooperation in furnishing themselves as subjects upon which our calculations are based and especially do we thank the second faculty table, as they have permitted us to make continuous, highly scientific, though at times perhaps, a bit hilarious, observations for longer periods than the usual four years.

Perhaps the most frequently called-for article of food is that little leguminous marvel of nature, the bean, combining as it does, unusual qualities of food value and energy. No football team is prepared for the grind of its game without its cannisters of beans on the sidelines handy to the players for laconic and introspective munching. Considering 30 beans to the average spoon twenty spoons to the dish and two dishes to the table of fourteen students, each person consumes 21,596.4 beans per college year. It is altogether possible that each student does not get his exact fraction of a bean as the kitchen force has not learned the technique of separating the bean into its two and a half parts as yet. To get the length of this number of beans we first attempted to string them but our needle obstinately refused to pass through such an adamant object at various times, so this plan was abandoned after one month. But within this time we had the walls and the lighting fixtures of the dining hall heavy with our strands and due to the variety of colors a rather unusual brilliantly decorative effect was obtained. Our next move was to assume our assistant coach a standard of bean-consuming excellence and we conscienously counted each of the roly-poly nodules that went to grace his plate, and, eventually, to render more secure the frictional grip of his suspended clothing, but due to the almost certain snitching of his beans by the boy friend at the end of the table the method had to be altered. He was therefore asked to first eat a bean then place one in his pocket which method proved much more successful. Each day we would take these carefully preserved beans and lay them end to end across the campus until we reached the college woods where the squirrels were so obnoxious a change of direction was necessitated; this time drifting toward Knoxville. In the ten years of the experiment our friend has eaten his way almost to the city limits and bids fair to romp gaily right through the town during this year if the police do not interfere. It is indeed interesting to know that the student body consumes 2.45 miles of beans each week or 89.20 miles of the elliptical legume per school year. This distance, coupled with 9600 feet of hot dogs cruelly murdered on Saturday nights, would reach to the homes of many of us. Should we utilize our bread for road-making, cementing it lavishly with the never diminishing stream of "old lady", within the short space of ten years, we could have a nice hard surfaced road leading deep into the Smokies. Enough tomato catsup flows across our festive boards to paint the center traffic line for this highway and an ample supply of breakfast "goo" is at hand to creosote all posts along the road.

While other delicacies are frequently requested by the student body and seem to be rather staple articles in the dining hall, we must omit statistics on them, daring not to mention the hash, and, again, tearfully admitting that the onions were too much for us.

TERRY DISCOVERS SNAP SUBSTITUTE

By Terry

At last! A substitute for snap has been invented; and has proved itself invaluable in attracting enwrapt onlookers. Two noted and notorious seniors are the cause, and they performed before an admiring group of censors, third floor Pearsons Hall, Friday night, at ten o'clock. They were attired in evening clothes which added greatly to the performance. The title of this social reform is "Shake, Shake, Shake" with an annexation entitled, "London Bridge is Falling Down"—the same London Bridge that was falling years ago when we all were young.

After the performance a collection was taken but nothing was given these illustrious reformers who are endeavoring to have their names inscribed in the annals of their Alma Mater. Demonstrations will be given at prescribed times by making appointment with the original originators, Hessie Keeton, and Louise Marley. Our indebtedness to them can not be over emphasized.

SPANISH CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

An organization meeting of the Spanish Club was held last Wednesday night. The attendance of nineteen as well as the spirit of all during the meeting were indications of great enthusiasm. After an informal discussion of the need and benefits of a Spanish club on the Hill, the following officers were elected: President, Dorothy Casseres; Vice President, Mex Horton; Secretary and Treasurer, Michael Testa; Editor, Louise Cline, and Program Secretaries, Eloise Garret and Laura Jean Workizer.

A name and motto for the club are to be decided upon at the next meeting, which will take place on Thursday, March 5th. Regular meetings are to be held on the first and third Thursdays of each month at 6 o'clock. A committee was appointed to draw up a constitution based on that of El Foro Espanol. Membership is still open, and those interested in joining are invited to attend the next meeting of the club. Having the combination of the leaders of last year's club and two new Spanish speaking members, the members of the club look forward to some good programs and "fiestas espanolas", which will provide excellent opportunities for practice in conversation.

The concert this year is of an entirely different type, and promises to be one of the outstanding programs of the year. Lloyd plans to visit are Vassar, Haverford, Hamilton, and Swathmore. Mrs. Lloyd quotes her husband as saying that he has no set time to spend at any place, but will plan his trip according to the time he feels it worth while to give to each place.

Dr. Lloyd plans to be home by Tuesday of next week.

John Sale Here Tomorrow Night In Last Lyceum

The Life of The Plantation Negro Is Subject of Entertainment.

UNPOLISHED STYLE

Different Type of Folklore Program By Noted Interpreter

The last lyceum number of the season will be given tomorrow night, March 9, in Voorhees Chapel at 8:00 o'clock. At this time John B. Sale, noted interpreter of plantation negro life, will entertain with sketches, stories, superstitions and folklore of the often mentioned but little understood "Mississippi Nigger."

This program promises to be entirely different from the usual entertainment of this type as it is to be given by the one person who, though of our own race, knows the negro of the deep South as we know the friends of our own home. Until Mr. Sale was twelve years of age he had never played with any but negro children and since then has spent much time in the observation and interpretation of "pickaninny" life. Refusing expressional training for fear of removing the real and true atmosphere from his talks, he brings an unpolished, truly realistic account of the life, the humor, and at times the pathos of the old slave negro.

"John Sale can think black and make others see the fascinating side of negro life of a generation ago, which is now a thing of tradition" says the Boston Transcript speaking of his book of memoirs "The Tree Named John." In speaking of the same book, which Mr. Sale presents in lecture form tomorrow night, the Jackson Daily News (Miss.) says "A thorough reputation of Henry Mencken's assertion that the South has no author worthy of consideration."

Snyder, James First In Extemp. Contest

Hope Snyder and J. Stuart James won first places in the Pi Kappa Delta extemporaneous speaking contest which was held this morning at ten o'clock in Dr. Hunter's classroom.

The subject for women was "Higher Education", and for men was "The Present Economic Depression."

The contestants were Edith McDuffie, who spoke on "Changes in Higher Education in the Last Decade", Hope Snyder, whose subject was "Contributions of Women to Higher Education", Louise Marley, with "Does Higher Education Promote Political Efficiency?", and Ella Shields, who spoke on "The Problems of Religious Teaching in Higher Education."

Hope Snyder won first place, and Ella Shields took second place.

The men who spoke were, Robert West, on "Causes of the Present Depression", Walter Russell, whose subject was "International Indications of the Business Depression", Robert Beyer, on "The Role of Machinery in the Present Depression", Wilbur Johnson, on "The Part of Humanitarian Organizations in the Depression", and Stuart James, whose subject was "The Psychological Aspects of the Depression."

Stuart James took first place, and Walter Russell followed closely. The decisions of the judges were unanimous.

The Pi Kappa Delta oratorical contest was held this afternoon, but results were not ready when the paper went to press.

THETA ALPHA PHI AWARDS MIDWINTER CUP TO ATHENIAN

Bainonian Relinquishes Hold After Winning Two Years.

March 5—Today the committee for the awardng of the Theta Alpha Phi Cup met to decide upon the winning midwinter of the seas, on 1930-31. The decision of the judges was unanimous in favor of "Shavings".

And so Bainonian relinquishes the cup which she has successfully held for two years to the keeping of Athenian—her brother society.

The committee this year was composed of Mrs. Morton, Mrs. Trailer and Dr. Hunter.

In judging the plays several points are considered: the selection of the play—whether it is of high literary merit; the characterization—whether the minor parts support the major actors and how well the major characters portray their roles; and last, but not least, the stage-management of the play.

In 1929 Bainonian captured the cup with the presentation of "Graustark" a play dealing with the various political troubles of the mythical kingdom of Graustark and its princess. Sarah Moore, now Mrs. Trailer took the part of the princess while Jesse Pierce was her ardent American admirer.

In 1930 Bainonian again carried off the cup, this time with the production of "East is West" starring Jane Duke. The plot of this play had for its heroine an American missionary's daughter who was separated from her parents in China when but a child and brought up in a Chinese home. Her rescuer and subsequent lover was Bob Crothers.

Orators To Compete For Bates Prize

James, Graham, Taylor To Speak In Chapel, Friday Night

Next Friday night in the chapel one of the most interesting contests of the year will be held—the Bates Oratorical Contest. J. Stuart James, William Graham and Roy A. Taylor are the contestants.

The contest is open alternately to men and women of the senior and junior classes. Last year the women contested; this year the men have their chance. A prize of $45.00 is awarded to the winner.

Since last year's contest, a new list of subjects was prepared and statements of the new topics were sent to the men of the junior and senior classes during the summer. The subject, "Religion and the Colleges", will be spoken on by Jesse James and William Graham. "The Illusion of Progress" is Roy Taylor's topic.

It is interesting to note that all three of these orators are varsity debaters.

He: "My brother is working with five thousand men under him."

Second He: "Where?"

He: "Mowing lawns in a cemetery."

Long Awaited Golf Course Becomes Reality On Campus

Lloyd Brothers Share Interest In Corporation

The long awaited golf course has at last been realized, and the final turf preparations are being made. The course is to be called "The Campus Course" and is owned by Hal Lloyd, Esquire, with his brother, the Honorable Vernon Lloyd acting as the necessary pro. Instruction will be given at prescribed hours under Vernon's experienced tutelage. According to the owner, the course will be open every day except Sunday, from two-thirty to five o'clock.

The equipment was purchased in Pittsburgh from a large sporting goods company before the removal of the owner to Maryville. At present the utensils consist of ten balls and no clubs but that is a small difficulty which the members of the Lloyd Corporation intend to remedy within a short time.

The cost for playing the nine holes is placed at the popular price of two cents; cash only will be accepted; no stamps will be taken unless the course develops into a correspondence course. Sand tees are being prepared from red clay through a process of pulverization—the secret of the process being known only to Hal, Esquire and the Honorable Vernon. The owner wishes it mentioned that the course will not be opened on rainy days because of the lack of irrigation and the consequential probability of floods.

Watch for annoucements of a tournament, the date of which will be posted later.

Bertha Russell '24 Writes Her Third Successful Pageant

Talented Alumna Was Promising Student.

Word has recently been received concerning the splendid work being done by Miss Bertha Mae Russell who graduated from Maryville in '24. Miss Russell has been for two years Instructor in the English Language and Literature and Biblical Drama at the Philadelphia School for Christian Workers of which Dr. Clinton H. Gillingham is President.

Miss Russell was a very promising student while here in college. She won the T. T. Alexander Prize in '23 and the Bates Oratorical Prize in '24. During the time she was in school she worked against heavy handicaps but she worked so steadily that she overcame them. After her graduation from Maryville she went to the Powers School of the Spoken Word in Boston and was awarded her diploma on completion of the course. In addition to this she has also received her Master's degree from Boston University. Her work along dramatic lines has been particularly successful. Recently she wrote her third pageant. The first two pageants which she wrote were well accepted.

Special commendation has been received concerning the third pageant which is entitled, "The Message of the Ages". The pageant met a most favorable reception when it was presented in the Chambers-Wylie Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, on February 18, of this year. Dr. Newman, pas-

WOMEN TO DEBATE TUSCULUM, MILLIGAN COLLEGES TONIGHT

Strain, James Win At Chattanooga; Centre College Here Next Friday Night

The Maryville College "Queenerites" have gotten into the full swing of the debate season. They have already taken part in four debates—two of which they won, and one of which they won by decision of a Maryville audience—and this week they enter two more.

Tonight Maryville meets Tusculum and Milligan in a triangle debate for women. Elizabeth Duncan and Mildred Crawford go to Tusculum where they debate against Milligan's negative team, while Anne Deal and Mary John Metcalfe go to Milligan to meet Tusculum's affirmative team. Here at Maryville Tusculum and Milligan will engage in debate at 7:30 o'clock in the Y. W. Auditorium.

Next Friday night at 7 o'clock Centre College will debate Maryville here in a non-decision, open forum debate. The two men from Centre will probably be Mr. Swain and Mr. Neikirk who have debated here before. Dick Strain and Homer Ellis will represent Maryville.

Last Friday night at Chattanooga a Maryville negative team composed of Dick Strain and Jesse James won a unanimous decision over the University of Chattanooga. Jesse on being questioned as to whether anything unusual happened during the debate, replied, "Nothing funny happened except that we nearly fell over when all three judges gave us the decision."

Four New Freshmen Added To Echo Staff

Harmon, Parnell, Hicks, and Kirchner Chosen

March 6—As a result of the election today of four freshmen apprentices, all vacancies on the Highland Echo Staff have been filled.

At a meeting of the Committee on Selection for the Highland Echo, Mary Harmon, Margaret Parnell, Dan Hicks and Fred Kirchner were chosen as the four freshmen apprentices needed to complete the list of the required twelve. At a meeting just before Christmas, eight apprentices were chosen, but since freshmen have hardly time in one semester to show what they can do, it was thought wise to wait about selecting the other four.

In making their choices of the respective apprentices, the Committee took into consideration the person's scholarship, special aptitudes and personality. Whether or not he had manifested any interest in newspaper writing was also a determining factor.

The Committee on Selection is ccmposed of four Faculty members, four representatives from the Student Council, and four members of the Highland Echo Staff.

Student Body Will Be Divided Into Two Sections For Convenience

What is it? It's not snap. It's not in the gym. You should wear sport clothes but you do not have to play tag or leap frog for entertainment. A date is not a prerequisite.

It is in Thaw Hall at eight o'clock next Saturday night. The name for this social evening and general get together has been in waiting for just such an opportunity as this for more than three centuries. It implies freedom of action and thought, and is therefore a suitable title. The illustrious Shakespeare has given it the name of "As You Like It". Come to "As You Like It" and do "What You Will" Patent pending.

The cause and explanation of this social evening is a committee of twelve members, appointed by the student council. Harry Mathias assumes the leading role as chairman and after much deliberation on divers suggestions offered in prolonged meditations of the committee as a whole, this scheme came to the light.

Two varieties of tickets will be given to the students as they enter Thaw Hall. The students with the white tickets will go directly into the library where they will find games of all sorts. They will show their tickets at the door but keep them to present when they go upstairs. In the library there will be tables for ping-pong; sets for checkers and chess; cards for rook, bridge, bunco, and flinch; and a variety of other forms of participant entertainment. You are at liberty to be an interested onlooker

Expression Recital Next Monday Night

Monday, March 16, the expression department will give their second recital of the year with Dorothy Marshall, Betty Wilbar, Lavinia Jones, and Mildred MacKenzie taking part.

Dorothy Marshall's reading, "Polly of the Circus" by Mayo, is a story of life under the "big tent". Dorothy played in "The Swan", the College Players production last fall.

Betty Wilbar will read "The Melting Pot" by Zangwill. This story is about the United States as the great "crucible" of the world. Betty appeared before the Maryville audience in "My Irish Cinderella", the Bainonian midwinter, and "The Swan".

Lavinia Jones will give a humorous reading, "The Ghost Story" by Booth Tarkington. Lavinia has become very well known to Maryville through her parts in "Shavings" the Athenian mid-winter, and "Green Stockings" the College Players' Y. W. benefit number.

Mildred MacKenzie will read "The Piper" by Peabody, a rather dainty, spiritual story. Mildred played in the recent Alpha Sigma mid-winter, "The Crisis."

LELAND GILMORE ILL

The friends of Leland Gilmore will be sorry to learn of his continued confinement at the home of his brother, on Goddard Street. He is suffering what seems to be a relapse from a serious cold contracted some time ago, and it is hoped that nothing worse will develop.

A College Spinster—By Julia Terry

I am a college spinster. Every time I enter the chapel voluntarily I pay thirty-five cents to pass between the grasping ticket collectors who are usually subdued and enwrapt moonshiners, but on occasion produce powers of pecuniary prowess. Only once has my way been paid and then it was for a glee club concert.

Freshmanlike I escorted myself on the fall and spring mountain hikes during my first year of blissful ignorance. During this same year I attended three snaps but I escaped, unharmed, untouched, and consequently stay home on Saturday nights, wash clothes and pretend I like it.

At noon I hurry out of the dining room and seek consolation in the library behind a psychology book and try to psychoanalyzise my idiosyncrasies in terms of Woodworth and Gates but the analysis proves fruitless. On Mondays from one to three I stay in my little room on the fourth floor or go to town, if I journey townwards, I endeavor to keep my eyes straight ahead as if I were a horse wearing blinders. Never do I return to the Hill before three o'clock. My eyes have a habit, if not controlled by a great determination, of observing the little things in life and it is unsafe for the observer and the observed if I walk up the Corduroy about two-fifty-five.

On Sundays I rush home from Church in order to avoid assuming the moonshining pace. For some reason or other I am full of just enough conceit to believe that the moonshiners are discussing my inabilities to attract the opposite sex, whereas in reality, they are so deeply engrossed in themselves that a college spinster is the last thought that comes to their overtaxed minds.

My main contention, however, or rather, bewailment, is that I have to pay wherever I go. I have now become a gold digger. I'm out to save money. I'm tired of escorting myself places. Soon I shall metamorphose into a one-eyed Connolly, rush the doors and break down barriers in a vain attempt to get what I want and get it for nothing. From an Irish Methodist I have become a Scotch Presbyterian.

Slaves To An Urge

There was a time in the infancy of the motion picture industry when the slapstick comedy had an effective appeal. The spectacle of a dignified man getting his face smeared by a pie which was thrown by the jovial and rotund comedian would bring down the house. The bakery scenes where the victim always fell into the mixing vat never failed to produce guffaws. They tell us that taste is improving. We don't know about the public's appreciation, or lack of appreciation, of that sort of thing. But we do know that the urge is still present.

Along with the food-getting urge, the protective urge, and other dominant human cravings, should be listed the urge to throw food. It is decidedly inherent because it is manifest in early stages before any opportunity has been had to learn it. It is universal. Even the most highly educated persons have it. I refer to the youth found in our colleges. Educators tell us that to get through college one must have an I. Q. of above 100. College men and women are called the Leaders of Tomorrow, the Hope of the Nation, the Limited Minority Who Will Rule, and the Enlightened Intellects. Yet even some of them are still slaves to their urges. Does it not seem distressing to think how little we are able to do about correcting our heredity?

—O—

Even Grown-Ups Ask 'Why'

The idea was once in vogue that children should obey their parents without questioning authority. When a father made a command it was supposed to be carried out. The child who dared ask 'why' was given the answer, 'because I told you to, and I am your father'. If he persisted in his attempt to get more explicit reasons, he was usually caned. Children in those days were seen and not heard. Their cardinal virtues were meekness, docility, reverence, obedience, and respect for gray hairs. Adults, too, were obedient. They accepted the authority of the church, and heretics were burned. Even the press was not so openly partisan.

But times have indeed changed. Children are encouraged to ask questions. No parent issues an order, makes a rule, or administers a punishment without explaining why. In school, every teacher attempts to justify the subject that he teaches. People question every thing from the truth about George Washington to the divinity of Jesus. What we are trying to say is that this questioning propensity is inherent. Formerly it was suppressed by fear of authority; now it is encouraged.

With the above generalizations in mind, we should proceed to our own problems. We maintain that we should not be looked upon as having the wrong attitude when we question rules and regulations to which we are subject. We do not like to be regarded as rank heretics because we are unable to swallow (or understand, as the case may be) all the religious dogma that has been handed down for years. We resent being termed red radicals because we sometimes hold a tradition lightly. We, too, want to know why. We admit that we're a bit more ready to criticize conditions than to inquire into their causes. We also realize that the just must be punished with the unjust. It looks to us, however, as if the just get all the penalties. The unjust have learned how to get by.

Perhaps if we could be made to understand the real 'whys' of many existing conditions, we would not grow so restive and resentful.

Getting out a paper is no picnic.
If we print jokes, folks say we are silly.
If we don't, they say we are serious.
If we publish original matter they say we lack variety.
If we publish things from other papers, we are too lazy to write.
If we stay on the job, we ought to be out rustling news.
If we are out rustling news, we are not attending to business in our departments.

ABOUT THOSE ORANGES

In response to the article relating to the change in tradition of having oranges instead of bananas on Saturday it might be well to state that a follow-up instruction course will be given on the proper disposition of orange peels for those who don't know what to do with them on Saturday. Instead of carelessly scattering the peelings on the campus in hopes that young orchards will forthwith spring up, it is advisable that these hulls be deposited, dropped, or thrown into the conveniently-placed metal can in front of Pearsons. How discouraging it is to realize that college students do not know the correlation between conveniently-placed metal cans and offensive orange rinds.

The modernist says: There ain't no hell.
The fundamentalist says: The hell there ain't.

SUPERIOR SCOTTIES

In our search for really superior scotties, the hardest duty is, not to find a pair of superior ones, but to select a couple of what might be called super-superior scotties. This week we present to the public eye no less personages than Carl Storey, our ex-captain of football, and Sammie Broughton, Carl's erstwhile room-mate and Maryville's newly acquired fireman.

Carl came to Maryville from the Tennessee town of Culleoka. Coach Thrower says that Storey's work last year showed unbelievable progress from his work when he was first out for the grid sport. We, as a lowly freshman (purely a figure of speech, you may rest assured), have no first hand knowledge of his initial year of football but we have exceedingly fond recollections of the way Carl surreptously tore through opposing lines to remove any ideas of advancing the ball from the mind of the enemy runner. He was a game leader, a dependable guard, and, as the old darky said of a football player once, he was a "nachal scrapper." During his tarrying at Maryville, Carl gained for himself a host of friends. As pleasant to associate with off the gridiron as he is to watch while on it, he is one of the most popular figures on the Hill. It is with regret, as well as good wishes, that we shall see him quit the campus for the world at large.

As far as we know, "Thammie" Broughton is the only college man to ever escape the name of Sad Sam. If anyone ever took the liberty to nick-name him anything but "Thammie from Arkanthaw", he should immediately be judged as inapt by Miss Heron, as "leaky" by Tom Cooper, and as "nuts" by Speck Moore. Anything else just doesn't fit. His southern lisp, quick wit, and quicker smile are well-known to every true Maryvillian. Thammie is said to be able to argue more with a professor without creating an antagonistic atmosphere than any student of times past or present. He has a quality (or affliction) to which all Maryville males aspire, but few attain. That is, he is an ardent and efficient moonshiner. Sam will become a lieutenant in the army of unemployed next June, but says that he doesn't think that he will serve very long in it. Anyway, no matter what he does, he has the good wishes of a host of friends that he has made in the past four years.

THE BOY WHO MADE GOOD

Tiny Waters, the self-appointed publicity agent for the "Boy Who Made Good" has reported progress in his campaign.

"The Boy Who Made Good" is a member of the Class of '33, and is a native of Pennsylvania, the state containing a great deal of brotherly love. Through the untiring efforts of the publicity manager an unusual kind of brotherly love has been exhibited between the "Boy Who Made Good" and the manager.

The article and the picture of the prodigy have been pasted on the Carnegie bulletin board, the article as it appeared in the home town gazette. Replicas will be printed and filed, sandpapered, cut out, smoothed down, varnished, garnished, and tarnished for use wherever the publicity manager sees a necessity for example of good boys.

March 7—Athenian officers for the third term were installed at the regular meeting tonight. After an address by the retiring President Roy Taylor, the incoming officers took the installation pledge, and assumed their duties. A short speech was then made by the incoming President, Ed Shelley, and the program was concluded with a few numbers by the Phrantic Phour.

Last Saturday night was held the first meeting of Theta under her new officers. It is urged that all members start this session with new enthusiasm for their society and its programs, and with renewed cooperation with their leaders. The Society depends upon its members, you know.

CAMPUS TALKIE

Naomi Willingham: "If four prunes a day will keep the doctor away what will eight prunes do?"

There are some students who lament that there's nothing new to do. We suggest that they study a lesson.

Our latest information is that Zelma is majoring in Greek, especially Homer.

Kitty Hodges: "Why are you plowing up the ground there below Baldwin?"
Brownie: "We're going to plant potatoes there and let the moonshiners pick the bugs off them."

Naomi Willingham: "I wonder what they'd do if I fainted in class?"
Don Briggs: "Send for a derrick."

Dr. Hunter: "That sounds like a matter for the Dean of the College. I'll take it up with him."

Dr. McMurray: "It is possible that a great surgeon could be a ditch digger, but a ditch digger probably wouldn't even make a good butcher."

ABOUT THE SENIOR ANNOUNCEMENTS

Ray Dollenmayer who is taking orders for senior announcements says that the proposition is not a losing one. The maximum price for an invitation is thirty-seven cents which Ray says will bring in at least a dollar present. Either Ray has presence of mind or presents in mind, when he makes this statement. So for each thirty-seven cents you put out you receive, according to Dollenmayeric calculations a dollar present—a gain of sixty-three cents. Subtracting the thirty-seven cents paid out, you have a clear gain of twenty-six cents, two bits with one to go. A losing game —No! Send out an invitation and clear twenty-six cents.

THE DREAMER OF DREAMS

I have the strangest feelings
when I go into my classes;
I want to yell and howl and
scream
And tell my teachers that, outside the window of the classroom,
The sun and the wind are hounding Spring,
That th e skies are blue and flecked about with soft white clouds,
Whiter than the pussy willows
Beside the door of Pearsons.

I want to tell my teachers in an almost angry voice
To let me go outside the room
And dance an Irish jig and turn a S
To wake myself and rest from thought.
I want to tell them not to give a lesson for tomorrow,
That tonight there is a ball game
And tonight a full moon.

But then I remember that they like fun and wind
And Spring and stars as well as I,
So I sit down and think with them,
And refrain from being a dreamer of dreams.

—Lynette Johnson.

A freshman chemistry student was awed when she approached the storeroom the other day and found Georgia Burk in pursuit of her co-assistant with a loudly snapping piece of rubber tubing in her hand. When asked to explain her actions she merely gave the tubing another shake and said, "We've found a substitute for snap!"

SPORTS

ANNUAL Y. CIRCUS TO BE PRESENTED ON MARCH 23

Annual Event Offers Variety Of Entertainment

"Ladie-ee-es and Gentlemen. That marvelous, monstrous, magnificent, gorgeous awe-inspiring combine of fearless performers is again in your town to thrill, chill, and fill you with its daring feats of skills, spills, and fancy quadrilles. Aerial acrobats, wire walkers, comical clowns, blaring bands, popcorn and pink lemonade all combine to make this world renowned aggregation of attractions the most splendid, brilliant, sparkling, scintillating stupendous show under canvas in all the known habitation of man."

And so the "Y" circus is on with a bang. Plans have been carefully checked and everything that will lend charm, enchantment and breath-taking entertainment has been included. On March 23, in the Alumni Gymnasium, this noted group of performers will appear in person to furnish joy, amusement, mirth and an atmosphere of general deliriousness to the grind-weary habitues of this institution. It is assured that the circus has grown bigger and better than when it appeared last year, losing none of its old attractions and gaining many new ones from all parts of the world.

Due to a certain secrecy surrounding the plans, information, regarding specific attractions could be obtained, but from a consideration of the general type of program offered it is likely to prove one of the outstanding events of the year. It is not known at this time what ame the trocyse will assume but it is thought that they will retain the jingling and expressive title of last year.

The admission to this entertainment will probably be ten or fifteen cents and the proceeds will be used to purchase athletic equipment for the two "Y" organizations.

Baseball Games Hard To Book For Scots

Prospects Brightest In Years But Interest Lags.

According to latest reports a schedule for the present baseball season is going to be rather hard to get. At the present writing a couple of teams have been signed for games and others will probably be forthcoming although right now the outlook is rather dark.

The Colleges and Universities of this section seem to have "shut up shop" with regard to baseball, something that has been threatening for the past two or three years. Early this year U. T. announced that it would have no baseball team this year due to lack of interest and this seems to be the attitude of many of the schools not only here but throughout other sections also.

Baseball is a sport in which the Big Legaues and Maryville College can be mentioned almost in the same breath without causing any excitement. It is a well known fact that Maryville has sent several players to the leagues and when we consider that last year's team won twenty-one out of twenty-five games it's logic to suspect that we have a couple of Big League prospects in that squad.

Some of the reasons that Maryville went so far during last season are the following: Woodard, West, Parks, Stidham, Bowman, White, Benn, Watkins, Teffeteller, Hurst, Smith.

"Now", said the college man to his dad at the football game, "You will see more excitement for two dollars than you ever saw before."

"I don't know," replied the old gent, "That's what my marriage license cost me."

SPORTOGRAPHY

By BOB WEST

The time has come, according to the Walrus, to talk of other things, but not carrots and emperors. The season for a very diversified sports calender has opened. Track men are appearing everywhere. The grass in front of Carnegie is suffering in spots due to the "warming up" exercise which has been conducted for a week or so. Tennis racquets have been repolished and tightened in preparation for a Season of Service.

—:—

Coach Thrower has been giving some very valuable instructions to the cinder aspirants. He is looking for some weightier men for the shot put and javelin throw; I suggest Don Wilson, Josh Proffitt, or McDonald. They ought to be able to "lose" the ball or stick.

—:—

Spring, the occasion of hope, and anticipation, also brings us new feelings of accomplishment. On Friday morning I strolled out to play a few holes of golf on the campus course. I teed off from the first hole and found I had driven into a threesome composed of Dr. Lloyd, Dr. Stevenson, and Dr. Hunter. I humbly apologized and only after some difficulty was able to assure them I would be glad to finish the game with them.

—:—

To begin with I feared to match these Doctors in following the homeopathic pill, due to a sense of unworthiness and lack of accomplishment. I could imagine Dr. Hunter quoting famous writers whom I could never understand; Dr. Stevenson using adjectives that even Dr. Lloyd would have to analize in terms absolutely foreign to my ability of comprehension. So with shaking hands and knees I stepped up and knocked my ball into the tall grass or clover which ended in an "Easter Egg hunt" after a proverbial "needle in a hay stack."

—:—

But imagine my surprise upon approaching the second green to find Dr. Lloyd on his knees sighting his putter for accuracy. And to find Dr. Hunter wiping his soiled hands on a pair of perfectly clean knickers. And to hear Dr. Stevenson say in plain English, "even a blind pig will get an acorn once in awhile." This scene gave me a new sense of appreciation of all three of these men. They were Human.

—:—

As the game proceeded I became more at ease and actually dared to speak, once in awhile. Some how to see these men play a game that I understood, somewhat, made me appreciate their manly qualities more. To see Dr. Lloyd address the ball as if performing some solemn rite, and then see the ball portray the story of the Biblical Ox. And even in face of this fact, not become exasperated to the point of outspoken criticism, or unfavorable comment, I was made to appreciate the strength of character and calmness of our President.

—:—

It seems that golf is not only a cure for business troubles and domestic cares but it is also a test of moral character, to really get something beneficial from a person we must understand them somewhat. And one of the best ways of understanding the deeper things in anyone's life is to know him while he is carefree. I thought as we played, if every Maryville College student could only play one game of golf with those men just how much they would rise above the petty things in our campus existence.

—:—

Just then I heard a creak and was conscious of a voice inquiring in a most commercial manner, "Any pressing, cleaning, repairing, heeling or vulcanizing", and the dream was over. Not only was it not true but also it could not come to pass as we do not have a golf course. And there stops the idea which if properly applied could lift many of us higher than we will, perpaps, otherwise attain.

HIGHLANDERS LOSE TO EAGLES IN CONFERENCE TOURNAMENT

Milligan College Buffaloes Win In Finals

Flashing the same brilliant type of play, that has earned for them the title of the fastest College team in Tennessee, the Milligan College Buffaloes routed the fighting Eagles of Carson-Newman by a score of 34-24 to win the Cage Championship of the Smoky Mountain Conference at Kingsport Saturday night. Milligan earned the right to go to the finals by defeating King College 44-25 and by whipping Lincoln Memorial University, pre-tourney favorites, in the semi-finals.

Our own Highlanders were nosed out in the quarter-finals by the runners-up, 37-35 in one of the big games of the tournament. The Highlanders lead at the half 23-16 but a last period rally of the Eagles could not be stopped and they pulled ahead at the end.

Milligan went into the Tournament as the defending Champion but not the favorite to repeat. Strange as it may seem L. M. U. with seventeen wins and ten losses was the outstanding favorite with Milligan and Maryville close seconds.

In the quarter-finals Carson-Newman eliminated Maryville and Milligan eliminated King. East Tennessee Teachers downed Tusculum in the other game of the first day. In the semi-finals on Friday night Carson-Newman eliminated the Teachers and Milligan pulled an upset by defeating L. M. U. in a game that wasn't even close. The Buffaloes then romped off with their second straight Conference Championship by their defeat of Carson-Newman Saturday night. Milligan clearly proved their superiority in the final. The first half was fairly close but toward the end the Buffaloes forged ahead to lead 18-13 at the intermission. The last half was merely a matter of increasing their lead to ten points with the 34-24 result.

Track Squad Starts Work For '31 Season

Loss of Veteran Performers Must Be Repaired

On Monday, March 2, Coach Bob Thrower issued the first call for track candidates for the 1931 season and about twenty men answered the call. As we go to press the number has probably been increased due to the fact that the basketball season is over and spring football has come to a close. Several track candidates have been out for spring football practice for the purpose of limbering up for the track season.

As the 1931 season begins we find that several of last year's veterans have been lost through graduation. Capt. Taggart of last year's squad and Maurice Carper will be sorely missed this year. Captain-Elect Abshear left school at the end of last semester. More men are needed for dashes, weights, middle distance events while some of the other events have but a few men competing for positions. Freshmen, if you know anything about track at all come out for Bob Thrower will make something out of you in four years if you know anything at all.

The season has its bright side however. A canvas of the squad shows that we have veterans in long distance, hurdles, dashes, pole vaults and high jump. Letter men who will be back from last year's squad are Taylor, Felknor, Richardson, Moore, Woodard and Bowman. These men are expected to form the backbone of the 1931 squad.

Several of the new men are showing that they are going to be right in the fight for positions. Those who have come to our attention are Truesdale, Boretsky, Willis, and Byar. In fact they have the long and the short of it as we noted while watching "Dinty" Moore and "Mosquito" Dixon run around the track together.

Practice House Now Being Operated By Home Ec. Department

The Practice House is in full operation under the management of the second pair of Home Economics students who have been there this year. Rachel Frost and Wilhelmina Gruchy are there now, succeeding Jane Glascock and Dorothy Bassel.

For ten days of the twenty spent in the Practice House each girl is head cook and housekeeper, and for the other ten she is maid. The duties of these offices are what the names imply; and together the head cook and the maid take care of all problems that may arise in practical housekeeping, from answering the telephone and doorbell to keeping the rooms straight and presiding at the table.

The girls in the Practice House use fourteen dollars a month, the same amount that a Pearsons' board requires, but the two girls plan and cook their own menus. All the marketing is done by them.

One day out of the twenty the menu must require as little money as possible. Another day the budget is expanded to care for extensive entertaining. Usually, it is on this day that the formal dinner is served. The program also calls for one afternoon tea; including fifty people; one buffet supper, for at least ten guests; and one picnic meal.

Life in the Practice House is primarily the same as that in the dormitory, but living for three weeks in the atmosphere of a real home and real housekeeping, with the opportunity to manage both, is an experience which every Home Ec student anticipates with pleasure.

Another Alumnus Brings Honor To Maryville College

Another Maryville College alumnus, having gone from her halls, has made a name of integrity and efficiency for himself, and is reflecting honor on his alma mater. The Birmingham News for Sunday, February 15, carries an account of Lloyd E. Foster, the new general manager of Birmingham's Chamber of Commerce, who, with his wife and two children, has recently come from Jackson, Mississippi to Birmingham. Mr. Foster is a native North Carolinian. He graduated from Maryville College in 1907, and did post-graduate work in the University of Tennessee and Northwestern University.

For seven years he has served the Chamber of Commerce of Jackson. Some of the splendid things he accomplished for Jackson are in themselves indicative of Mr. Foster's ability and character. He was the instigator and local manager of the Chicago Civic Opera Company in Jackson, which is the smallest town that the Chicago Civic Opera ever visited; he fostered Jackson's new airport and handled the bond issue which financed that port; he also handled a bond issue for $3,000,000 for state concrete highways; he brought to the city 100 new sales and distributing agencies, 25 new central agencies, four hotels, five large office buildings, more than 900 salesmen who made Jackson headquarters, and between 80 and 90 conventions a year.

And Birmingham has reason to believe that Mr. Foster can do the same things for her. For, to quote the new manager, "Certain cities have seemed destined to become great metropolises—Birmingham is one of those cities." It is richly endowed with minerals as well as natural beauties; its commercial and industrial activities are growing; it is convenient for transportation by water and rail. "But", Mr. Foster says, "greater than the mountains of minerals are its men." And it is with the men that Mr. Foster is to work and build up, through the Chamber of Commerce, the Birmingham of tomorrow —the Birmingham "destined to become a great city—the great wholesale and retail market of the Southeastern area."

New Cedars Planted To Beautify Campus

In order that the Hill might ever be green with cedars,—in keeping with the second stanza of the Alma Mater, and in accordance with this traditional type of the permanent memories of Maryville—the campus gardeners last Monday set out a dozen young cedar trees at various spots on the campus. There are still more young trees which will be planted today or sometime this week.

Brownie, in commenting on the young trees, glanced significantly at the ancient cedars near the power-house and ventured, "You know, I'm not so very fond of cedars. They're hard on the soil. But I guess these young cedars will be all right if they're trimmed back and kept from becoming too large."

In the light of following events, these cedars are being planted none too soon; on Thursday afternoon one of the old cedars between Memorial Hall and Court Street caught fire and was lost. The remaining timbers were still smouldering Friday evening. Brownie did his best to save the tree, but it was a hopeless task. The tree was so old and dry that it burned very easily.

There are two rumors as to the cause of the fire. In either case it was the tall weeds which first caught fire and in turn set the tree on fire. Some say that a careless smoker flipped a lighted cigarette stub into the dry grass. Others hold that the grass around the tennis court behind Memorial was being burned off, and that the fire, having gotten out of control, spread to the fated tree.

Women's Glee Club To Broadcast Over W. N. O. X.

On Thursday, March 12, the Women's Glee Club will broadcast a program over station W.N.O.X. in Knoxville. The program will consist of selections from the concert given last Friday night and perhaps some additional numbers. It will be a half-hour broadcast, from seven-thirty to eight o'clock.

This will be the first time that the glee club has ever broadcast, but no doubt it will be the beginning of a series of programs. The excellence of the recent concert warrants any additional concerts or programs that the club may be called upon to give.

ABOUT HEEL PRINTS

If only the "heel prints" that appeared in last week's Echo could be transplanted to the dormitories where silence is desired at times in place of loud metal taps, mule heels, horse shoes, and similar noise-producing vehicles, the lives of many great people would be eased and comforted. Those "mute monuments" on white walls are much to be desired to the mutinous moments caused by clacking, tramping down the halls of Pearsons. Why not let the soul soften the heel.

LOUISE TAKES WALK

Last Thursday morning, about eleven o'clock, Miss Louise Lloyd (aged 2 years) felt herself experienced enough in the ways of the world to go strolling unaccompanied over the campus. She thus related that reason for her brave and daring conduct. She went nonchalantly on her way, gaily hailing each student with a "Howdy" or a "Hello" scattering sunny smiles about her. She had reached the Post Office and was engaging a student in pleasant conversation when someone decided her journey had ended.

We hope Miss Louise was favorably impressed with the appearance of our campus.

Mrs. McMurray Gets Chattanooga Orders

Inexpensive Coats Are Latest Product of Shop

Mrs. Kathryn McMurray returned Thursday from a sales trip to Chattanooga. She sold the new spring uniforms to twelve firms in and around that city. Two of the customers are new.

The latest samples include one-piece "sunback" dresses of printed materials in a variety of colors. These are already proving popular with buyers, and are sold to students for a dollar and twenty-five cents each.

A new enterprise of the dress-making department of the shop is soon to be undertaken in the making of spring coats. The coats will be available in a wide selection of colors and styles at about ten dollars each.

Mr. Lewis, supervisor of the department, is now giving full time to the Shop and will help to design the coats.

An additional shipment of attractively printed material for summer dresses has just been received from Stoffel, importer of dress goods. These lovely afternoon frocks will be sold to college girls for ten dollars apiece.

STUDENT VOLUNTEERS HEAR MISSIONARY

March 7—This afternoon the Student Volunteers had the privilege of hearing Reverend and Mrs. Newt, missionaries to Turkey, speak. Both of them are at present in the United States on furlough. Mr. Newt spoke of the mission work in Turkey, particularly the medical side, and Mrs. Newt spoke of the general conditions, mentioning the various changes which had taken place since the war.

Mr. Newt came to the College with the additional purpose of gaining data for a survey he is making of the conditions in various colleges regarding Student Volunteer work. He asked the group several questions concerning the work being done on the campus by the Maryville Student Volunteer Band.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB WELL RECEIVED

Last Friday night the Women's Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Frances Henry, presented their spring concert. The program was opened by Nevin's "A Day in Venice". The four love songs of this cycle included the familiar numbers, "Morning in Saint Marc's Square", and "In the Condola".

An unusual feature of the concert was the three tableaux, representing "Ode On a Grecian Urn", "The Birth of Pierrot", and "The Minuet". Besides appropriate costumes, the presentation of these "Posed Poems" was made further effective by colored lighting. These were the first tableaux presented on the Hill in a long while, and we believe they were successful enough to warrant many others.

One of the most outstanding numbers of the concert was "In The Carpenter's Shop". There was a persuasive quality of deep tones throughout the whole composition and this effect was heightened by the dim lighting.

Another number which was well received by the audience was "The Grandfather's Clock". With "The Dance of the Pine Tree Fairies" the program was concluded.

The concert was the most unusual presented by the Women's Glee Club in several years, and, from its reception, one of the loveliest and most highly successful.

or a player at any or eventually all of the games provided.

On the other hand, those receiving colored tickets at the door will go upstairs to the Y. W. C. A. lecture room. Here they will be entertained by a program which will be suited to the taste of all concerned. Short movie reels will be shown. Snappy skits will be presented and a free-for-all "sing" of popular songs will be led by Chilly Bowles.

When the program upstairs is completed the audience will wend their winding way downstairs to take the place of those already there. The ones who have the white tickets will now go upstairs to get their share of the program. This arrangement is necessary in order to accommodate the "great masses".

At the end of the second program the social evening will be completed. Then you are expected to go straight back to your respective dormitories, sit down at your table and write home about the new social event—"As You Like It" or "As We All Like It."

Fashion's Foibles—Terry

Being Terry's comments on the well dressed man's wardrobe.

Maryville men will receive with sorrow the news that the derby is passe. No more will the Easter promenade be featured by the formerly stylish, all-popular derby, the insignia of the Maryville elite, and the football team.

Men, buy a black felt hat, today, tomorrow, or day after tomorrow. Four out of every five will have them; they satisfy. The brim will either be the time-honored snap brim, or a Hamburg, having the same ingredients, however, as the Saturday night weiner.

Is your waistline subdued, If not, be sure to quiet it and make certain that the dinner coat follows it in every turn. No longer will the figure be hugged; it will only be caressed by this new style coat. Now, men, do you have a roommate? Get one immediately because the shirts this year open in the back, thereby necessitating a van guard. Don't get a soft shirt; stiff shirts are the thing; they are much more economical because they also serve as a strait-jacket thus enabling you to have two garments for the price of one.

Boldness is in order—the wing collars are bolder this year and must be worn with a black bow tie, resembling a butterfly, a horse fly, or even a house fly, which is in reality, a glorified flea. Brace yourself for this next consignment—I shall not keep you in suspension. Throw away your leather belt and harness yourself in braces, suspenders, of outsize supporters.

In black silk hose with white clocks, Baby Ben variety, you will make your appointment on time, yes, within time. If ankle watches are preferred to clocks, you will have to watch your step.

For further information concerning collegiate styles, address Mart, Haffner, and Sharx in care of this paper, or in care of the station to which you are listening.

Mrs. Worley has been confined to her room for over a week with a badly sprained ankle. The injury was received a week ago last Thursday when on her way to Memorial from Pearsons. Mrs. Worley says that everyone has been very kind to her during her period of forced rest. We are all glad to know that she is recovering rapidly, and hope to see her out again soon.

VOL. 16 MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE MONDAY, TUESDAY, MARCH 17, 1931 NO. TWENTY-ONE

President Meets Famous People On Eastern Trip

Presidents of Carnegie and Rockefeller Foundations, College Presidents, Prominent Alumni Are Interviewed.

Dr. Lloyd returned last Tuesday morning from his two weeks trip through the northeast. Among his interesting experiences were meetings with different alumni associations, visit to a number of leading eastern colleges, and interviews with the officers and directors of several famous Foundations.

On Saturday night, February 28, the Atlantic Highlanders, composed of sixty Maryville graduates from Philadelphia, Princeton, and the surrounding territory, held a banquet at the Peacock Inn in Princeton. Dr. Lloyd addressed the alumni on the subject, "Questions We Are Asking At Maryville."

The Sunday morning service in the Princeton Seminary Chapel, at which Dr. Lloyd spoke, was attended by parents of present Maryville students as well as by alumni.

The following Saturday night, March 7, Dr. Lloyd was guest at a meeting held in the Harland Ash New York Presbyterian Church of the Maryville group of alumni in New York. The evening was concerned with questions about Maryville, and informal discussion.

While in the New England states Dr. Lloyd met all but one of the directors of the College who live in that territory. One of them, Dr. N. W. Cadwell, of Atlantic City, has been ill for two months, and is still unable to see anyone.

While in Philadelphia, Dr. Lloyd visited Swarthmore College. This co-educational college of 500 students has become widely known through its program of outside reading whereby upper classmen are given an opportunity to read for honors. The authorities at Swarthmore turn away many times more students than they accept. Two requirements for entrance are that the applicant be in the highest 25 per cent of his high school class; and that he meet the deans of Swarthmore in private interview to be sure of his being able to accomplish the required work.

Dr. Lloyd also visited Amherst College, the alma mater of Calvin Coolidge, located seven miles from Northampton, Massachusetts, where her distinguished graduate now lives. Amherst is a boys' school with an enrolment of 700. The college advocates no wide variety of subjects, but is offering as few studies possible with the view in mind of treating them well.

In Northampton Dr. Lloyd visited the home of Calvin Collidge. The house of the ex-president is not pretentious, Dr. Lloyd said, and his office in that town is that of any other

Juniors May Not Wear Sweaters, Say Seniors

Wearing of Class Sweaters Claimed Senior Privilege.

Seniors do not approve of the juniors wearing '32 sweaters this year, according to a vote taken this morning during a meeting of the senior class.

The juniors had decided upon the color and general design of the '32 sweater, and would be ready to begin wearing them by April 1. Out of courtesy, they asked the opinion of the seniors. Dick Strain, President of the Student Council, and prominent member of the senior class expressed himself as a believer in keeping the wearing of sweaters a distinctly senior privilege. Jessie James, president of the local Y. M. C. A. suggested that if juniors began wearing their sweaters now, soon the sophomores and freshmen would be clamoring for the same privilege. Ed Shelly put in a word for the juniors. The girls were inclined to be more democratic. Donald Benn, senior class president, admitted that he had thought of it as a senior privilege.

When the matter was put to a vote the results were 38-34 against

IRISH EDITION NEXT WEEK

Next week's Echo will be edited by our junior staff editor, Julia Terry. It is customary for each candidate for editor-in-chief to put out a paper. Julia is starting the ball rolling. West and Hina have not yet decided just when they will boss an issue, but it won't be long. Julia, Bob, and Weldon have been getting a lot of training on Monday mornings in newspaper make-up, head line writing, article revision and proof reading. Watch for this issue next week.

EXPRESSION DEPT. HOLDS ITS SECOND GRADUATE RECITAL

Marshall, Wilbor, Jones, MacKenzie To Appear On Program.

Last night at 8 o'clock in the chapel the Expression Department held its second graduate recital of the year, presenting Dorothy Marshall, Betty Wilbar, Lavina Jones, and Mildred McKenzie. all of whom have appeared in plays during the year.

The program consisted of an unusually good selection of readings. Narrative, humor, and drama were all well represented during the course of the evening.

Since good works come from good authors, one may well expect that a quartet of prominent authors was also represented—and such was the case, according to Mrs. West, the Head of the Expression Department. She summed up their virtues by remarking, "We are proud of our authors," who are Mayo, Zangwill, Tarkington and Peabody. Peabody's "The Piper," which was read by Mildred McKenzie, is a winner of the Pulitzer Prize.

Music Dept. To Hold First Recital, Monday

On Monday evening, March thirtieth, Margaret Melody will be presented in the first graduate recital of the music deparments.

Outstanding examples of her talent were heard in her performance on Hallowe'en and her very excellent work in the Fall Festival of Music. Those who have heard her play, therefore, know something of the high order of her musicianship and are looking forward to the event. In the program will be offered numbers covering a wide range of interest.

Mildred McKenzie and Mildred McMurray will appear in joint recital on April 27.

Junior Men Plan Bull Banquet For Thursday Night

Class Talent To Provide Entertainment for New Junior Activity.

The much-heralded Junior Bull Banquet for men only will take place on Wednesday evening, March 18 at Reagan's bakery. Extensive preparations have been made, although the details have not been divulged by the secretive members of the committee.

The stags, rather bulls, will be entertained by a program consisting only of talent from the class. There will be probably six or seven numbers on the program.

They will be fed with fried chicken and all the accessories as well as necessities. No doubt some impromptu and unpremeditated entertainment will occur and will add much hilarity to the occasion. The purpose of the banquet is just a case of "Hail, hail, the gang's all here!" It's some more of the junior spirit asserting itself.

When the stags at eve have drunk their fill as dances the moon on College Hill, they will return to their respective places of habitation full of spirits, good food, and excellent entertainment.

The "New Arrival" Honored At Atlantic Highlander Banquet

Alumni 'Get Together' Held at Peacock Inn, Princeton.

On Feb. 28th the Atlantic Highlanders met in Princeton for their third annual reunion. Maryvillians began to arrive at noon and continued to come all through the afternoon. At 4 o'clock the group went to the home of the Seminary President and were there entertained at tea by Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson.

At 7:30 o'clock a banquet was served to the Highlanders in the Peacock Inn. There were fifty-nine persons present representing classes from 1894 to 1930. Following the meal there was a short business meeting presided over by Dr. Vincent Shipley of Philadelphia.

With Dr. Shipley as Toastmaster the program was then given:

Former Executive Expresses Gratitude In Letter To President.

Sidon, Syria, February 18, 1931

President Ralph Waldo Lloyd,
Maryville College,
Maryville, Tenn., U. S. A.

My Dear President Lloyd:

I got into the birthday habit here in Syria a long time ago, and it seems that it seems impossible for me to shake the habit off even now, when I have returned to the land where I first contracted the habit.

I recently visited the ancient city of Emesa, now called Homs, and also visited therein the house that the Wilsons, the only foreigners then resident in the big city, occupied from 1955-1860, and the same house whose oriental calm my arrival disturbed on February 17, 1858.

My first and second birthday celebrations took place in 1859 and 1860 in that same house in Homs, close by the wall; and my third birthday celebration occurred in Tripoli; and now, after some few birthdays spent in America, I have just celebrated a fourth birthday in Syria, in, this old city of Sidon, founded, they say, by the great-grandson of Noah and itself so encumbered by many thousands of

Chorus, Concerto Are Features Of Coming Orchestra Concert

Rehearsals In Progress for April Program.

Orchestra rehearsals are now in progress for a concert to be given early in April. The program includes some unusual features of interest to be brought for the first time before a Maryville audience.

Those most deeply interested in developing and expanding the musical possibilities of the college have for a long time entertained the hope of sometime having a large chorus with orchestral accompaniment to sing some of the beautiful music written for voices and orchestra. This hope is to be realized for the first time this year when, at the coming concert, a newly-organized chorus of fifty voices will sing with the orchestra.

Another ambition has been to have a concerto rendered with orchestral accompaniment, and this hope is also to be realized this year, when Miss Garnet Manges of the piano department will play a concerto by Mendelssohn.

This is considered a test of such unusual skill both for soloist and orchestra that it is seldom attempted outside professional circles. The fact that it is to be done this year is evidence of the progress made in the college among musical lines.

The announcement of this concert gives us reason to believe that we may expect in this program one of the best musical treats of the year.

A telephone was installed last Friday in the President's new office; the number is 14. Telephone 79 is still connected with the old office, and through it both the Dean and Registrar may be reached.

"As You Like It" Proves Popular With Students

400 Students Crowd Thaw Hall Saturday Night for Entertainment and Refreshments; Committee Feels Repaid for Effort; Students Enthusiastic; Faculty Satisfied.

The time-honored, age-honored game of snap is gone forever. From now on we play rook, checkers, dominoes, ping-pong, flinch, touring and spoof and any other additions that prove themselves worthy of consideration. It was indeed a delight and a joy to see four hundred students enter wholeheartedly in the playing of these games last Saturday night.

The program began in Thaw at eight o'clock half the group going to the auditorium where a most unusual and enjoyable entertainment was presented, and the other half remaining in the library where the above-mentioned games were played. Eight of the library tables were placed in the west end of the library for use in playing ping-pong. There were stag tables, mixed tables, and all-girl tables. The tables for the games were so arranged that two games were played at each table. When the crowd became too large to be accommodated games were improvised from scarps of paper. Tit-tat-toe was indulged in and became popular in an instant.

Every twenty minutes the groups would change so that everyone had the opportunity of playing all the games. At about nine o'clock the group downstairs went to the auditorium while their places were taken by the ones who had been entertained. The program consisted of Marley and Mize, supreme negro imitators Reno Smith, a reader of eminence, Hannah and Wood, entertainers unsurpassable; Duke and Willingham, the Maryville song-birds; the inimitable "Womanless Wedding; and a moving-picture comedy.

Refreshments donated by the girls in Pearsons were enjoyed after the entertainment in the auditorium. At ten-thirty "As You Like It" was over and was deemed a success by all the faculty members who were present, Dr. Orr, Dr. Rogers, Professor Howell, Dr. and Mrs. Stevennson and Dr. Lloyd, all made favorable comments as to the planning, carying out and acceptance of the snap institute.

The committee headed by Harry Mathias is indeed to be congratulated for their ideas and carrying out of them. Harry was aided by Sara Bagley, Nez Hamrick, Andy Newcomer, Alf Duff, Louise Avery, Betty Wilbar, Elizabeth Duncan, Ed Buchanan and Irish Terry. We know their efforts proved succesful for everyone realizes now that snap is indeed dispensable by providing a more than satisfying substitute.

An "As You Like It" will be held some Saturday in April and another in May. The committee will be glad to receive any suggestions in order to make it as you like it.

College President Installed In New Suite Of Offices

Old Office Now Occupied By Dean Hunter.

After many weeks of planning, preparation, and anticipation the new administrative offices have been completed. The art room has been artistically transformed into two offices, one for Dr. Lloyd, and one for his secretary, Merle Beebe. The walls and the ceiling have been replastered, hardwood floors have been laid, and new light oak office equipment has been purchased. Merle's typewriter appears and disappears within her desk at the mere press of a button, a phenomenon which interests her greatly.

The president of the college is not the only fortunate new office holder, for Dr. Hunter has rejuvenated the president's former office by means of new office equipment, redecorated walls, and a clean floor. Another interesting feature of his office is the insertion of a pane of glass in the door leading from his office to the office of the registrar. He can signal to his secretary,

Silcox-Taylor Win Oratorical Contest

Lucy Lee Silcox and Roy Taylor won the Pi Kappa Delta oratorical contest held last Monday afternoon in the Y. W. auditorium.

"The Loneliness of Genius" was the subject of Lucy Lee Silcox's oration, and Roy Taylor's was on "The Illusion of Progress."

Winning this contest entitles Lucy Lee to membership in Pi Kappa Delta, and gives Roy another stone for his key. The orators will represent Maryville at the regional convention of the forensic fraternity at Centre College beginning March thirtieth.

Seniors Given Class Visiting Privilege

There are frequently advanced students who wish the privilege of attending class sessions of a course which they do not enroll for because their schedules are already full or beause they do not have time to do the assigned work outside of class. In order to meet this sort of situation the Executive Council of the Faculty has provided for visiting privileges for students under the following conditions: The privilege is for seniors only. The student wishing this privilege will first secure the consent of the teacher of the course, then he will secure the permission of the Dean. After securing these permissions he will obtain a Visiting Privilege Card from the Registrar's office which he will present to the teacher. Only one such privilege card is to be issued to any student in any one semester.

PROF. WALKER'S GIFT

The Sunday dinner was made even more enjoyable by the flowers on the tables. They were given by Professor Walker for use in the dining room and were indeed appreciated. This is not the first time that he has given flowers for the dining room because he enjoys them just as much as any of us do.

By a recent ruling of the Executive Council of the Faculty the rule for examinations for the purpose of attempting to remove conditions has been modified so as to permit the giving of these examinations any time between the middle and end of the semester immediately following the imposing of the "E" grade. It is hoped that this will be of help to students who might find it confusing to have an additional examination crowded into the midst of their regular examination schedule.

SIGNS OF SPRING— Terry

According to present day tendencies as well as historical data, coming events seem to cast their shadows. And so now signs of spring are prevalent everywhere. The first day of spring occurs next Saturday, March 21, which season will continue for several days hence, at least until the first day of summer.

A prevalent sign indicative of the spring of the year is the increasing number of shorn heads. The lambs have been led forth to the slaughter. A number of our fair frosh in particular have patronized the neighborhood barber and consequently have been relieved of many locks, locks without keys. Thus, the secret of the annual spring hair cutting propaganda will be locked up forever.

The return of the natives to the courts of tennis is also a sure sign of spring. The fervor that arises in pursuit of this game as well as of the tennis ball) is likened unto a fever at time, just a frequent form of spring fever, however.

This disease is indeed an undebatable sign of the coming, if not the presence of this delectable season. The disease affects many apparently immune survivors of winter, and there are many different kinds of affectations exhibited. Spring fever may take the form of day dreaming; especially is this true on warm days with birds, flowers, and sunshine without, and the impatient but helpless victim within attending a class. The disease may also take the form of inattentiveness, the bane of the professor, and the inevitable condition of the normal student. Spring fever may also direct itself in the paths of moonshining. Fever and fervor being closely allied. Already new couples, that is, newly-arranged couples, have appeared—the same old ingredients in new combinations; revisions might be a more appropriate term to use.

Clothes are being rejuvenated for the annual spring parade; all the dry cleaners, wet wash, and non-partisans are having pressing engagements and a general clean-up.

The spring of the year is a great season. Even Naomi Willingham says, "Spring sure does make me giddy." Such a condition will indeed bear close observation.

The Lyceum Tradition

Traditions command our respect. After all, there must be something to them or they would have been abolished long ago. However, there come times when we question even the oldest ones.

We hesitated to attack the Lyceum tradition. The newest psychology holds that to effectively get rid of an unpleasant habit or reaction pattern, one must substitute a pleasant, or so called good one. We believe that criticism should not all be negative. Anybody can say that things ought to be changed, but only a few are able to suggest satisfactory changes. That is our problem.

Having investigated the history of the Lyceums in Maryville College, we learned that they were first booked by Fred Hope as a private enterprise. The fact also comes to light that at that time, there were practically no amateur programs of any kind. Naturally since there were no student entertainments there was a need for such programs as the Lyceum Bureaus promised. It must have been easy for the numbers to become well established in popular favor. The Lyceum became a tradition.

We would maintain that they are no longer indispensable. We even dare to hint that they are no longer necessary. In the words of one of the instructors, it is difficult to book a number that surpasses to a very great extent, some of our amateur performances. In our four years here, we have observed that excellent Lyceum offerings are exceptions rather than the rule. The Lyceum committee say that students do not want good programs—that attendance dwindled when a series of educational numbers were given. We dislike to feel that the student body ask for inferior programs. Did we read the statement somewhere that if a thing was good, almost everyone recognized it? Maybe that's a product of our own brain.

As we have said before, we should have a satisfactory substitute to offer. We had boldly suggested that we have no substitute, and the ready reply was that we should have artists to visit here, or else we would become more narrow and isolated than ever. We asked if it would be possible to have such men as E. A. Russell, speak to us, and were told that it would be entirely too expensive. We proposed that students be allowed to attend worthwhile concerts, lectures, plays in Knoxville. The objection to this proposal was that such performances were too expensive for the student. We raised the question of doing away with the arbitrary fee, and of letting the student decide for himself whether or no he would attend a Lyceum number. We were easily convinced of the impracticality of such a move, because all "entertainers" must be guaranteed a certain sum of money.

Having no other scheme in mind, we give up. The fact remains that the Lyceum bookings cost over twelve hundred dollars this year, and two of the numbers were not worth the price of a reserved seat ticket.

SUPERIOR SCOTTIES

From the very first moment that we heard of the idea for this column, we felt that, for one reason or another, someone was going to get peeved from time to time. Our mental predictions have already surpassed our fondest expectations, for various members of the class of '31 have been making earnest inquiries concerning the name and address of the would-be perpetrator of this obnoxious column. At the present writing we remain unscathed, but we wonder each morning whether or not the end will come on that particular day or be postponed until further evidence could be gathered. At any rate, we assure the offended members that, no matter what the statements, we hereby retract them and offer one and all a merry apology and a happy hope for forgiveness.

It has been with a feeling of regret that we have refrained from presenting to the campus at large a discussion of the Maryville Damos and Pythias, Morris Underwood and Ed Shepard. However, it required much arguing to convince these two veterans that they owed it to the student body to have their names brought before the public eye. So here's how!

It seems that Morris is from the University City of the neighboring state of Georgia. Instead of attending the university, however, Morris chose to receive his higher learning at Maryville, a decision he has never changed. Morris has achieved the happy combination of being a man's man, a professor's man and a lady's man. Elucidating, he is an athlete, a scholar, and "one of the boys"; as an athlete, he is captain of the tumbling team; as a scholar, he labors as a chemistry assistant; as for the third quality, choose your own interpretation.

Dandridge, Tennessee, is the proud possessor of the home of Ed Shepard. This difference in the matter of homes is the only fundamental difference between our Damon and Pythias a la As You Like It. Along the same line that we approached Morris, athletically, Ed plays a fast game of tennis; scholastically, he is an efficient chemist; and if you will add Ed's position as treasurer of the senior class to this list, you will have also a list of the primary likenesses and differences of this duo of the class of '31. Ed and Morris will become part of industrial America next June and they are firm in their adamations that 'it can't be long".

CHEMISTRY CLUB

Come to the Chemistry Club meeting Tuesday night, March 17, at 6:30 and find out how Professor Griffitts got his Master's Degree. He will read and explain his Thesis entitled "New Uses and Properties of Vanaduem Orychloride."

This is the first of a series of interesting readings and discussions which the Chemistry Club is planning to have in the future. The idea now is to have the various members of the club do extensive research work on different subjects and submit papers on these subjects to the club for criticism, and discussion.

We believe that in this way we shall have both interesting and enlightening meetings. Don't forget the first meeting Tuesday night with Prof. Griffitts leading the discussion.

"CERCLE FRANCAIS" REORGANIZES

March 11—This evening an effort was made to put the "Cercle Francais" on a firm footing once more. Due to the fact that the club did not start until the middle of last semester and to the evident lack of interest on the part of many who attended, it was decided that what the club needed was a complete reorganization.

Therefore at the advice of the three French instructors a meeting was called of all the A students above Freshman work. These students will constitute the membership of the club for the remainder of the year. The reason for restricting the club to only A students was in order that work of a more intensive nature could be carried on.

Arthur Courtenay was elected president of the club and Geraldine Smith, secretary. The meetings of the club will be held on the second and fourth Thursdays of the month. One of the chief aims of the club is to carry on as much of the routine as possible in French.

Professor Griffitts: Most of us are old enough to know that it is customary to have decisions rendered at debates.

Fashion's Foibles—Terry

Being a few pithy remarks about Marley's headgear

Louise Marley, entertainer extraordinary, and the latest exponent of what headgear the well dressed coed will wear, appeared in the dining room Thursday evening in a beautiful, pink, basket-weave head piece which fluttered all about her in the sausage and prune tinted breeze. It should properly be called the flowerpot fancy because of its former use as covering for a flower pot.

This new basket weave is so disarranged that it can be formed into any shape desired and the fiber can assume an individuality peculiar to its own whims. Louise's hat was representative of the compass, for its ingredients strayed in all directions. She explained that Baum's was the producer of the unusual sample of spring millinery, and that orders would be filled immediately if anyone cared to disown one. They're the last word, last but by no means the least.

An audience unusual and distinctive gathered in Mrs. Butcher's room Thursday evening to hear the glee club broadcast. The latest radio lounging robes and evening clothes were displayed. These clothes, especially for evening, were short, long, and intermediate in length, and consisted of stripes, dots, squares, and the other fifty-seven varieties. The style in evening footwear copied after the new Grecian ventilated footwear somehow represented more the old familiar flatboat, plenty of ventilation but not much Grecian architecture.

The style of headdress calls for combs for evening wear. The latest beauty patches are white dabs instead of black spots, resembling an advanced case of leprosy.

The Senior Class extends its deepest sympathy to Conchita Bertrand in the loss of her father who died Wednesday evening, March 11.

Dr. Wilson Replies to Birthday Cable Sent By College

birthdays that no one pretends to know their number.

The only criticism that I could make of these frequently recurring birthdays of late years has been the large and unnecessary amount of trouble to which they have put my friends. I have been really embarrassed from year to year by the annoyance to which these kindhearted friends have subjected themselves in order that I might know of their kindly thoughts for me. This year I had the satisfaction of being confident that my absence would remove from you that annoyance of other days.

But yesterday, to serve as a delightful climax to all the kind messages that had come by mail and from Syrian friends, I found myself very fully resigned, after all, to the annoyance that my recurring birthday had caused you people on College Hill, when I realized how very comfortable it had made my heart feel to receive your heartwarm cablegram: "Happy birthday. Maryville Faculty and Students." Please accept my very hearty thanks for this most gracious greeting, which came to hand just at noon of the Seventeenth, and which has rendered yet more bright a very happy birthday.

An Arab poet has said of Jobel Sunnin, one of the heights of Mount Lebanon, that

"He bears winter upon his head,
Spring upon his shoulders,
Autumn on his bosom,
While summer lies sleeping at his feet."

And I spent my seventy-third birthday and I am writing you this note while basking in this "summer" of semi-tropical Sidon that lies sleeping at the foot of Mt. Lebanon, and that, only a mile away, is painting the Mediterranean with all kinds of glory.

Again I thank you most heartily for your message.

Cordially yours,
SAMUEL TYNDALE WILSON.

Bingling Brothers, Darnum Daily Circus At College Gym Sat. Night

Fun Frolic For Everyone Promised By Officials.

The Bingling Brothers-Darnum and Daily combined shows are scheduled to appear with their thrilling one big ring circus at the College Gymnasium Saturday night, March 28.

Amidst a blare of trumpets, beating of drums, the tang of the age-old sawdust, and the braying of a silk topped ballyhoo artist, the ninth annual circus will officially open its doors at seven o'clock.

Every one in charge of the program assures us that it will necessitate your patronage, unless you wish to be sorry and gloomy all spring. There will be fun and frolic for everyone, young ones, old ones and moonshiners.

Iva Babcock, Nez Hamrick, and Jack Coughlin are directing the personnel anl are ably assisted by numerous committees. Fred Dolinsek is chairman of the property committee. Refreshments will be taken care of by Virginia Crider, and decorations by "Mex" Horton.

Many new acts have been added this year, and those that are being repeated are so improved that they will be hardly recognizable. Nothing has been spared in the way of labor, and expense to make this the biggest, best, most exciting circus ever to be given on College Hill.

The tumblers, men and women, will cause you to gasp with wonder and amazement at their thrilling exhibitions on the mat. The clowns will be there to engender spontaneous laughter and heighten the hilarity of the atmosphere. There will be—but come and see for yourself! Don't miss this opportunity to enjoy a night of fun and frivolity.

The doors will be open at seven o'clock for the side-show, with the door to the main show opening at seven forty-five. The small sum of ten cents will be charged—one dime—one-tenth of a dollar. In fact the price is so insignificant you can't afford to stay at home. Remember, Saturday night, March 26, at 7:00. Come early to avoid the rush.

(Proceeds go to the Physical Education Department.)

Mrs. Queener: Are you sure that was a clean middy when you put it on this morning?

WOMENS VOLLEY BALL TOURNEY PLANNED

Women's athletics have taken a turn toward volley ball. More than the usual amount of interest is shown and the tournament games which are to start soon promise to be better than those of previous seasons.

The junior-senior team has probably made the best start by electing a captain and manager at the very out-set of the season. Carol Cushman was unanimously elected captain, while Iva Babcock was chosen as manager. The sophs and freshmen will probably elect their captains and managers this week.

Everything is being made ready in order to make the season a success. The lines, marking off the volley-ball court have been gone over, and a new line added in order to make two courts. New balls have also been purchased.

There always seems to be the same women out for every sport and we wish more would give a little time to sports in order to build up a better physical education department at Maryville.

SPORTOGRAPHY

By BOB WEST

A true sport, according to our old reliable and often misquoted Webster, is: "One who amuses or diverts." But how unsportsmanlike most of us are. Dreamers are beginning to envision a new golden age, when sarcasm and distrust will be known only as relics of the dark ages, and when the superman shall have abolished the struggle for his very existence, and all organisms from the microbe to mammay may be indefinitely sustained on a synthetic elixir of life.

—:—

No doubt, by that time, the superman can solve the problem of the congestion of living things that will then exist in a better way than that chosen by the creator.

—:—

Humanity has been crawfishing towards a higher civilization with amazing rapidity these thousands of years, but the goal of an ideal and consistent existence is a long, long way up the road yet. At present our strivings for an Utopian condition of society are filled with contradictions and inconsistencies. Perhaps this emphasizes the fact that we are on our way. However, it might be well to strive for consistency in our progress and more forward by eradicating some of these petty, personal, permiscuous practices.

—:—

Here are ten points which should be prerequisites to a truly titled "Sport."

1—He not only knows the right, but rigidly follows this in practice.

2—He knows others must live, so he keeps himself in proper frame of mind for others' happiness.

3—He knows well the enemies of daily happiness—the cynic—the sarcastic—the kill joy—etc., and he takes of his time to adjust his personal tendencies towards these.

4—He loaths the human "megalomaniac", and vigilantly brings to bay this robber.

5—He is tortured by that ghastly practice, the pollution of the mind, and fights everlastingly to keep clear, clean, thoughts.

6—He is a student of life, therefore he knows the better things to conserve.

7—He obeys laws, not out of fear, but because he understands they are necessary for preservation of himself, his associates and posterity.

8—He has found the too much artificial stimulation is a hindrance to culture, and to be guarded against.

9—He believes that a "compleat sport" is a result of wholesome development, and is much interested in helping others gain this desirable end.

10—He is a dynamic part of the Spirit of American Democracy and therefore holds as invoilatile the administration of justice to all people. Happiness to all and not to a few at expense of all.

—:—

Perhaps there are others which you can think of, but if even these are followed closely it is reasonable to believe that we may bear the dim sound and echo of Menalca's song and the faint pipes of Corydon.

MATHIAS KEEPS OFF GRASS

The purpose of the "Please" and "Keep off the Grass" signs is being realized. The other evening Harry Mathias was trespassing on the tender new shoots of grass when one of these inoffensive two-by-fours obstructed Mr. Mathias in his journey, causing him to lie down on the job. Although he realized that he was not following the straight and narrow path, he couldn't help feeling that the sign should be placed in a less dangerous position. We suggest the top of the chapel or the basement of Thaw. No one will be in danger of stumbling then and the signs will be of no earthly use.

Twelve Games Have Been Arranged With Many More Promised To Fans

TRACK TEAM WORKING FOR COMING SEASON

Coach Robert C. Thrower is sending his track candidates through daily workouts in an effort to gain a fair estimate of his material for this year's team and the boys are responding in a manner that has been unequalled in former years. Following the example of the old men, the new material is falling in line and working like Trojans and it is a safe wager that this year's track team will not be easy picking for any man's team.

Coach Thrower does not have a great number of lettermen on hand for his team but the men that he does have are capable of taking part in more than one event and he should have little trouble in finding capable performers for every event. Dip Felknor, Smilie Richardson, Roy Taylor, Speck Moore, Joe Woodard are the lettermen that are back for this season's team.

Big Don Wilson, Lee Merrick and Lee Calloway are waging a merry battle for the honor of putting the shot and at present it seems that either one of these men is as good as the other. Dip Felknor will probably do the pole vaulting, the hurdles, and possibly throw the discus and Smilie Richardson seems to have the inside track on the dashes. Speck Moore will hold down his old job of high jumping, Roy Taylor will take care of the distance running and Joe Woodard will throw the javelin out of sight.

A number of new men will try to land berths on the team and it seems that some of them will develop into valuable men.. Their names are too numerous to mention, but as the season grows older and Coach Thrower gains a better knowledge of his material, they will certainly be heard from.

Manager Pee Wee Overby Working Hard.

Although their activities have have been confined to work in the Gymnasium by the slow approach of spring, the Maryville College baseballers are working out daily in an effort to get in condition for their early season games. The Highlanders play here April 10-11 when they meet the East Tennessee Teachers.

It was thought at first that the baseball schedule would be difficult to arrange due to the fact that several of the Smoky Mountain Conference schools have dropped baseball from their prgoram of athletics but Coach Hnoaker has about twelve games scheduled already and can easily book several more. Games scheduled with T. P. I., Bowdin College, Bethel College, East Tennesee Teachers and Hiawassee College. These games will be played on the home and home basis and the majority of these teams will show here in two day series.

It was rumored some time ago that Maryville might not have a baseball team this year, but these rumors have been proven to be plain gossip. Manager "Pee Wee" Overly has worked untiringly on the baseball schedule and it is evident that his efforts have not been wasted. One of the best home schedule that any Maryville College team has had in years is in store for the diamond enthusiasts.

Prospects for this year's team are the brighest in several years. Practically the entire last year's team returns this year and Coach Hnaker will have little trouble in whipping a formidable machine together. Almost every position on the team has a veteran performer ready to step into it but you can rest assured that none of the old men will be able to land their positions without a merry battle.

Formality To Characterize Wednesday's Supper Hour

Beginning Wednesday evening men and women of the College will dress for supper in informal evening attire. The need for a change in the conduct of the evening meal has long been recognized. But no one knew just how the change should be made.

From now on however, each Wednesday evening is to be different from the other evening meals in that an attempt will be made to make it more of a social and cultural affair.

It is rumored, too, that something is to be done to add to the attractiveness of the meal in the line of choses, a manger.

College President Installed In New Suite Of Offices

The registrar's office has also undergone some radical changes. Miss Jones' desk is now over by the window where she will not be asked unimportant questions by self-important students who have always pounced on her the minute they opened the door to the office. New shades have been bought and the floors have also been cleaned.

We don't know whether or not there wil be a general housewarming and initiation of the new offices but we shall accept the invitation when it presents itself. Students with low grades have already been entertained by the Dean in his office so the best advice seems to be, "Make low grades and be a guest of the Dean." Let's just make unpremeditated, unexpected calls on the President and Registrar.

New England lawyer.

Dr. Lloyd met and talked with several officers and directors of various foundations. In New York he met the president of a Rockefeller foundation known as the General Education Board, which in recent years has given Maryville $125,000 in endowment. The organization has a definite interest in assisting outstanding educational efforts.

Dr. Lloyd also met the president and officers of the Carnegie Foundation, which, several years ago, gave Maryville $50,000. This foundation has an interest in specialists who are helping to promote special experiments in public education and welfare.

While away Dr. Lloyd talked with the general secretary of the Association of American Colleges and other prominent persons concerning arrangements to be announced later for his inauguration as president of Maryville College.

Women Debators Defeat Tusculum, Millican Colleges

Women Seemingly Undefeatable; Strain-Jones Meet Centre Debaters.

The undefeated women's debating teams continued their winning ways last Monday night when they decisively defeated both Tusculm and Milligan in a triangular debate between these schools and Maryville. The affirmative team, Elizabeth Duncan and Mildred Crawford, went up to Tusculum where they met and defeated Milligan College, receiving the decision of four of the five judges. At the same time the negative team, Anne Deal and Mary John Metcalfe, overcame Tusculum at Milligan, also by a four to one vote of the judges.

The two remaining teams of Milligan and Tusculum met here in the Y. W. auditorium where Tusculum, upholding the negative, received the decision by another four-to-one vote.

Last Friday night Jesse James and Dick Strain, representing the negative side, met Centre Colege in a non-decision debate. Mr. Clark and Mr. Neikirk, the Centre debaters, besides advancing the case of the affirmative, expressed a longing for some Maryville moonshine. Following the debate, the speakers answered several questions which the audience propounded to them.

On this coming Thursday night, March nintenth, the men's affirmative team will meet McKendree College from Illinois. The new Oregon plan of debate will be used and the Maryville speakers will be Walter Russell, Roy Taylor and Bill Graham.

On Saturday night there will be a four-cornered debate between Maryvile, Tusculum, Carson-Newman and East Tennessee Teachers College. Both the Maryville teams will be away from home while Tusculum and Teachers College will meet here.

Knoxville Y.W.C.A. To Sell College Maid Products This Week

March 12—According to an announcement made this afternoon by Mrs. McMurray, director of the College Maid Shop, the Y. W. C. A. at Knoxville will hold a week's sale of College Made products, beginning Monday, March 23.

Every spring the Knoxville "Y" has a sale featuring some such establishment as the Maryville Maid Shop, and we very glad to be the favored organization this year.

Among orders received recently was one for uniforms to be used in the mills of Church and Dwight Company, the largest soda manufacturers in the United States.

Another order was for chair vestments to be sent to a church in Wilkes-Barre, Penn.

JACK COTTON HERE

In the spring a young man's fancy turns to his Alma Mater and because of this we are able to welcome back an illustrious graduate of the College, Mr. Jack Cotton.

Though Mr. Cotton left our protectorate in 1929, he has been a more or less frequent and entirely welcome guest on the Hill since. He is now pursuing his studies at the University of Ohio, working toward his Ph. D. with a major in physics. It will be remembered by the older students that he was a member of the well-known Dixie Vagabonds and a man of unusual musical talent.

FOREMAN ON HILL

Last week Allen Foreman, former Maryville student, and a future West Point cadet, visited his friends on the hill for a few days.

Foreman attended a West Point prep school at Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Georgia, from the first of last October to March seventh. He is on a furlough of three months before he enters West Point in July.

STUDENT VOLUNTEERS

Now you may join the Student Volunteer Union even if you are not planning to go to the foreign field. The Tennessee Student Volunteer Union now admits you as a member if you are planning to work in the home field or if you are definitely interested in missions as a whole. Those who become members under this new regulation may not join the National Union, but they may participate in all local and state activities and offices. If you are interested, see some member of the Union for further information. The Maryville College division is eager to increase its membership at this time.

Alumnus Awarded General Fellowship From McCormick

Maryville College alumni seem to have no trouble in making a name for themselves if we can judge from the information concerning various graduates which has been received recently.

Our latest news is the Edward Conrad, class of '28, and at present a student in McCormick Theological Seminary has been awarded the General Fellowship for this year. The Fellowship is awarded for high scholastic standing and excellence during the three years a student attends the Seminary. As yet Mr. Conrad does not know where he will spend the year of graduate study to which the scholarship entitles him.

While a student at Maryville Mr. Conrad took part in various student activities, was an assistant in philosophy and a member of the Writers Workshop.

The Fellowship which was awarded Conrad was made possible through the generosity of Colonel Dudley Smith who also founded the Gernardine Orme Smith Fellowship. It will be remembered that Dr. Lloyd was awarded the last mentioned scholarship when he graduated from the Seminary.

MARYVILLE WOMEN HEAR HAROWITZ

On last Wednesday evening Miss Hale, Mrs. McCall, Mrs. Burchfield, and Mrs. Hugh Norton attended a concert given in Bristol by the young Russian painist, Horowitz.

All of these women are enthusiastic in their praise of the man of twenty-six who is acclaimed by musicians and well-informed critics to be Paderewski's successor. He is being received as was that great artist when he came to America many years ago, becoming the greatest pianist of our time.

While she was in Bristol, Miss Hale was a guest at Sullins College. She and Mrs. McCall were guests of honor at a reception given by the Bristol Music Club.

the juniors wearing sweaters this year. However, in the words of Donald Benn, only tradition can enforce this decision. Whether or not the juniors will show a disregard for tradition will be seen.

We wonder if that Infantile Paralysis that Bob Jones '30 gave at the Atlantic Highlanders' Banquet was another rendering of the "Charge of the Light Brigade."

HOSPITAL INMATES

March 11—Unless another epidemic of the flu develops, or unless some other germ decides to locate and multiply on our campus, we may now feel free for a time.

Today Mary Elizabeth Dyer who has been suffering from an attack of measles left the Hospital. Yesterday Dorothy Strickland went home to regain the strength which she had lost during her illness here. Ellen McCuloch has recovered from the Flu. Thus at present the only inmate of the hospital is Merritt Slosson who is suffering with sinus trouble.

Henry Harrison To Issue Anthology Of Ameri. College Verse

Because of the splendid proportions to which American college and university poetry has grown, Henry Harrison, the New York publisher, will issue an anthology called American College Verse.

All students who write poetry are urged to communicate promptly with this publishing house, so that they may be sent full details. The anthology will be edited by Mr. Harrison himself, and illustrated by Charles Cullen.

Prizes of $25, $15 and $10 will be awarded to the authors of the three best poems in this anthology, to be selected by a distinguished board of judges.

Henry Harrison is the author of Myself Limited, a book of poems that has earned wide critical praise. His work has appeared in over 100 publications in the U. S., Canada, England and France. He has been a poetry critic for years, and is the editor of the annual Grub Street Book of Verse, as well as several other anthologies.

Dear Mary:

You remember that we were talking during "lights out" Saturday night of the depleted condition of our pocket books and of how we absolutely had to have a dress for the next Senior party? Well, darling, I've found mine, and it's perfectly stunning! And what's more, I've found you one, also.

Both are Sunday night dresses, darling, with fitted hiplines and full, long skirts and everything ritzy. Yours is a new blue shade called "Aqua" and it has cut-out embroidery about the neck and short cape sleeves. It would just suit your fatal blonde beauty.

My selection is just right for my ravishing brunette type—powder blue crepe with cowl neckline and double cape sleeves lined with gray and a bow that ties in back.

But the most amazing thing is the price—only $14.95!

After looking at the dresses—Oh, they're in Proffitt's, of course—I found just the hose and shoes to go with them—Kayser's Desta in hose, and those aristocratic Regent pumps in black satin for only $5.00!

What's more, darling, I have just the date to go with my dress! Exciting? I'll tell the world!

Yours ever,
SALLY ANN

Roy A. Taylor Wins Bates Oratory Prize On Tuesday Evening

VERSATILE SENIOR ADDS FORENSIC LAURELS TO ATTAINMENTS

Bates Prize of Forty-five Dollars Goes to Popular Member of Class '31.—Taylor Equally Outstanding in Forensics and Track.—Includes Debating in Repertoire.

Last Tuesday night in the Y. W. auditorium Roy A. Taylor won the Bates Oratorical contest and a prize of forty-five dollars. The other contestants were J. Stuart James and William Graham. Mr. Taylor's subject was "The Illusion of Progress". Mr. James and Mr. Graham both spoke on "Religion in the College."

Mr. Taylor is a member of Class of '31 and since coming to Maryville has been continually adding honors to his own name as well as increasing the prestige of his alma mater on the field and platform. A tireless distance runner, winning easily the five mile cross-country race this year, he stands as one of the mainstays of our track organization. With equal mastery he turns to debating or oratory and is easily an outstanding figure in the forensic accomplishments of the college. He won the school oratorical contest sponsored by the local Pi Kappa Delta Chapter and holds an important place on the varsity debating team.

"As You Like It" Gets Interesting Comments

Novel Entertainment Appeals To Students, Faculty

"As You Like It," which a week ago last Saturday night assumed proportions that Shakespeare would never have wildly imagined, is proving an interesting topic when presented to certain students and professors for consideration and discussion.

Sammie Broughton "liked it fine. Hope we'll have another." He suggested one or two changes in the games, but on the whole seemed to like the idea.

Carol Cushman said she was impressed by the sound of the entertainment. "It sounded like nothing we had ever had before," she said, but rather like a "big amusement." "The program upstairs was wonderful. Some of the talent I didn't even know of." Carol advocates more ping-pong, with caddies to chase the balls.

Aften ten minutes consultation, Merle Bebee and Georga Burk agreed that "As You Like It" was a "huge success." Georgia murmured something about liking the "gun wedding", but when pressed for explanation she emphatically refused.

Roy Taylor said the entertainment was "pretty much as I liked it." When asked whether he thought the success would be lasting, he refused to commit himself.

Donald Benn agreed with others that "it was fine." His suggestion was "more ping-pong. Have a tournament with mixed doubles. Tell them that Lois and I will challenge anybody."

Jack Cotton, class '29, enjoyed the program very much, although he does not think "As You Like It" will prove an adequate substitute for snap.

Dr. Stevenson said, "I was highly entertained." When asked for suggestions, he said he knew of none, since the program was in such competent hands.

Dr. Orr liked the new substitute. "I thought that every one enjoyed himself. The program, of course, presents more difficulties for keeping it popular than the games."

We are sure that other impressions and suggestions are prevalent on the campus—enough of them to make the next "As You Like It" even better than the last. So bring in your ideas.

STAFF BURNS MIDNIGHT OIL AS WORK ON 1931 ANNUAL IS COMPLETED

Dr. Hunter Well Pleased With Work by Editor McCann And Associates

Marche 23—Today about one-third of the Chilhowean was taken to Knoxville to be published. This includes the views of the college, the faculty section, dedication, forward, and senior section. The rest of the annual will be taken over Monday, and the distribution of the book on May 1 is thus assured.

The staff has been working night and day and it feels that the annual will be a book entirely novel to anything that has appeared on the Maryville campus. A great many new features have been added and what has been retained is appearing in a different form.

The cover was received yesterday and it surpasses all expectations of the staff. A selection was made from three covers submitted and it will undoubtedly make the book even additionally attractive.

Dr. Hunter is well pleased with the CHILHOWEAN and says that he will have to get one for himself. He expressed approval of the new features and additions and made a favorable comment on all that he has seen thus far.

Hadley Webb, business manager, is receiving either full or partial payment on the yearbook.

Maryville Women Meet Asheville In Final Debate Tonight At Seven-Thirty

Men Close Season With Berea Friday. P. K. D. Convention Meets At Centre College.

The Women's debating team, as yet undefeated, will meet the negative team of Asheville Normal tonight at 7:30 in the Y. W. auditorium. The free trade question will be discussed. The Maryville debaters are Mildred Crawford, Ann Deal, and Mary John Metcalfe.

Last Thursday evening the men's team met McKendree College of Lebanon, Illinois in an Oregon debate. The Maryville speakers, upholding the affirmative, were Walter Russell, Roy Taylor, and William Graham. The McKendree debators were Messrs. Head, Moore, and Allen. It was a non-decision debate but the audience voted in favor of the affirmative.

Friday night both the men's teams were away from home. The affirmative team, Roy Taylor and Walter Russell, defeated Carson-Newman at Tusculum. The decision was four to one. The negative team, Winn Barr and Ben Groves, were defeated by Teachers' College at Carson-Newman by a three to two vote.

At the same time the Teachers' negative team defeated Tusculum here at Maryville by a unanimous decision.

The Pi Kappa Delta district convention will meet at Centre College, Danville, Kentucky next Monday, March 30, and will last through Wednesday, April 1. Maryville will send eight delegates. The debaters will stop off at Berea, Kentucky on the way up and meet Berea College Saturday night. Saturday afternoon the Maryville negative team will meet the Berea affirmative team here.

REVISION IN SENIOR ANNOUNCEMENTS

This year, the seniors have their choice of either red leather or white cardboard for the announcement of their commencement exercises.

At the top center of the front cover is found an embossment of Thaw Hall; below this, Maryville; in the lower left-hand corner, the college seal, and in the lower right-hand corner, 1931.

Enclosed in these covers will be: An invitation to the exercises, the Commencement Week program, the classs roll, and at the end, a copy of the Alma Mater.

Juniors, Seniors Given New Library Privilege

MAY INSPECT BOOKS BEHIND DESK

Beginning next week there will be a slight change in the present library system. Although these new rulings are now open to upperclassmen only, it is hoped that freshmen and sophomores will be admitted to them soon.

The requirements for entrance and regulations for observance of this new system is as follows:

1.—The stacks of the library are open to juniors and seniors holding properly signed permit cards on school days from 3 p. m. to supper time, and on Mondays and holidays from 8:30 a. m. to supper time.

2.—Students using the stacks are not to return books to the shelves. Books taken from the shelves are to be left at the librarian's desk for replacement by a library attendant.

3.—Students may not take books from the reserve shelves for use in the Reading Room. Such withdrawals are to be made in the usual manner prescribed for all students.

4.—The stack privilege does not apply to the periodical stack room.

5.—Students using the stacks will not take advantage of the privilege as an opportunity for social meetings.

DR. KNAPP CONDUCTS DEDICATION SERVICE TO FORMER STUDENT

Candler Gymnasimu Honored By Name of Skilled Mathematician

March 20—Dr. Knapp left the Hill for a day to take part in a dedication ceremony at Candler, North Carolina, in memory of Edgar Candler, a Maryville alumnus who was accidentally killed while deer-hunting last Christmas. Dr. Knapp delivered the speech dedicating the new gymnasium of the Sand Hill High School to the memory of his young friend.

Edgar Candler was one of the best students of mathematics that had ever attended Maryville College. He was also a close friend of Professor Knapp. After Ed graduated from college, he served in the Sand Hill High School as professor of mathematics and as coach of athletics. The new high school gymnasium was in process of construction when Ed was killed. Nothing could be more fitting than to name the building in honor of the promising young instructor, and to have his former teacher of his favorite subject officiate at the service.

Mabrye Candler, Edgar's sister, is a member of the debating team from Asheville Normal which will meet the Maryville women's team tonight.

DR. JAMES E. DETWEILER

FIRST INFORMAL DINNER IS GALA OCCASION FOR DEVOTEES OF PEARSONS

Dr. Lloyd Is Present As Cultural Program Is Introduced

Though ironical smiles and even grimaces of disapproval greeted the announcement that informal evening clothes were to be worn to the Wednesday evening meal, those who came to scoff agreed that the venture proved successful.

The candles and the flowers that decorated the tables, the more subdued tone of conversation, and the music at the close of dinner, transformed the "hash house" into a dining hall and made a pleasant social function of the meal.

The constraint resulting from our "dressed-up" feeling was relieved when one youth, in an effort to reach his chair, before grace, slid a considerable distance and landed in a heap against the wall. A valiant effort to restrain our laughter may have been the cause for some of the apparently unwarranted gaiety that occurred later, but for the most part the formality was worn with noble grace.

The general opinion seemed to be that it might be feasible to observe more decorum every evening. "Doc" Duff observed that he'd "just as soon dress up every night for meals like that". While Tiny Waters declared emphatically, "It was a heck of a good party."

MRS. OLIN'S PARTY

Mrs. Olin entertained sixteen feminine members of the faculty at a three-course dinner at her home in Alcoa, Tuesday evening, March 17. St. Patrick's color was harmoniously combined with yellow, producing a pleasing efect. The games of hearts and rook followed the dinner. We wonder if these faculty members are practicing for the next "As You Like It."

THE GRINDS—Hina

"Gee, I gotta cram tonight."

"Why Gotta exam tomorrow?"

"Naw, just gettin' cultured."

"Yeah?"

"Yeah. You ought to try it sometime."

"Nope. Studying might interfere with my college education."

"Say, it says here that Henry VIII was some king."

"Yeah, but he was a dismal failure."

"Failure."

"Sure. Mark Antony didn't even have the advantages of being a king and beat him five ways for St. Patrick at his own game. Anyway, the story is told ——— well, the knob is on the outside. Turn it, stagger in and quit disturbing the peace—. Oh, howdy, Mr. Mac."

"What are you fellows doing?"

"Applying ourselves. Glad you came in. Must come back some time."

"Why didn't you tell him we were pickin' pansies?"

"'Fraid he'd stay for a bouquet."

"Well, I've studied history enough. Gimme that psych. Say, did you notice my new weakness today?"

"Yeah, it's in your head."

"Aw, I mean my new girl. Interesting, and how."

"Yeah, interesting if true. What are the earmarks and dimensions?"

"Eyes like pools, teeth like pearls, hair like silk, size about right, contour absolutely perfect and temperament uncertain."

"Aw, you're crazy. This is a new one. Have you seen my Spanish book?"

"Well, anyway it's the same description. What happened to that one there—your last flame?"

"Oh, her? Well she listened to the cunning words of a bad boy. But, sure 'nuf, you ought to see this one. Boy, she is the best advertisement for youthful marriage out."

"Sort of Venus, eh?"

"Oh, no, she's got two perfectly good arms. Besides, she's freckled. What's our German lesson?"

"Search me."

"I'm hungry."

"Good. Let's go to town and get some coffee."

"O. K. Gee, don't it feel good to do a full night's studying?"

"Yeah."

SCOTTIES HOLD JOINT BANQUET WITH VOL'S Y TUESDAY IN KNOXVILLE

Culver, Hicks Feature Varied Program Presented By Highlanders

March 22—This afternoon at the weekly devotional meeting of the Y. M. C. A., Jesse James announced the joint banquet at Knoxville with the Y. M. of the University of Tennessee. Tomorrow at 5:45 p. m. the bus will leave Bartlett Hall for Knoxville.

It has been requested that those who intend to go notify either Jesse James or Ed Shelley as soon as possible. The only charge will be $0.25 a person for bus fare.

For five years this series of two banquets a year have been held with great success and benefit to both associations. As custom has it, at Knoxville the Maryville Association presents the program and the association of U. T. provides the food; whereas, a little later at Maryville the U. T. association gives the entertainment and the Maryville association provides the food.

Tomorrow evening the Maryville fellows will stage a novel program featuring Dan "Kicks", Overly's ivory instinct, the agile Wesley Culver, and Ed Buck's dream saw.

Orr, Kirchner Comment On Declining Interest In Literary Societies

Good Programs Are Presented But Students Show Indifference

At the first of this year things seemed very active in the societies, students came and got acquainted and a good time was had by every one. Now another situation presents itself. Our societies are attended only by the officers and a few others. Occasionally an old grad comes back and tells how much it still means to him.

Why should it mean so much to a student, I wonder, to be a member of one of our literary societies. Having paid close attention to the function of our societies during this year I have become nearly convinced that they exist only to carry on the spirit of rivalry. It is true that rivalry is necessary! If we have one society we must have two to give the student a choice. However, I haven't yet been able to feel convinced that we're in need of any literary societies, meaning of course the societies as they exist now with a meeting each week and a program to justify the meeting. Whether I am mistaken in my assumptions, I don't know. I do know, however, that judging from the attendance at the meetings and from the general sentiments of the experienced students everything is not just as it should be with our literary societies.

We can not expect better programs and we can not expect better attendance with the same programs, so something should be done. Perhaps we could make our meetings a bit farther apart, or take other means of increasing interest. If we have literary societies we should try to make them worthy of their name that we might, when we have graduated, look back on them with actual pride and without prejudice.

At present the economic world is facing a depression. Causes and solutions are filling volumes. The literary societies are also facing a depression. poor attendance on meeting nights. What is the cause? Is it that the programs are uninteresting because talent is lacking? A brief survey would give a negative answer. If the programs have been poor, it is that good entertainers are not willing to perform before a score of empty seats. Interest in one's society is not developed by staying away from the meetings. Failure to become interested shows a lack of society spirit. The lack is, perhaps, the

Mildred Crawford Wins T. T. Alexander Oratorical Contest

POPULAR MEMBER OF '31 BRINGS HONOR TO CLASS

March 18—This morning the finals in the T. T. Alexander Prize Contest took place and Miss Mildred Crawford won the prize of one hundred dollars in gold which will be given to her during Commencement Week. Miss Crawford's subject was "The Atonement" and she delivered her address in a beautiful, forceful, effective manner. Miss Mildred MacKenzie was the other contestant who spoke on "The Resurrection". Both speakers did credit to themselves and to the college, and it was a difficult problem to decide which speaker was the better. The judges were Dr. Roy Deal, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Maryville, Rev. W. H. Ragan, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Maryville, and Superintendent V. F. Goddard of the Alcoa Schools.

Mildred Crawford has been an outstanding member of her class and has held many important positions of responsibility and authority. She was the editor of the Chilhowean last year; she is a member of the Maryville chapter of Pi Kappa Delta; a member of Theta Alpha

Rev. H. S. Lyle Succumbs Following Week's Illness

Former Maryville Professor Passes Away Friday

Rev. Hubert Samuel Lyle, father of Barbara and Gordon Lyle, both members of the junior class, died last Friday night at his home in Washington College, Tennessee, after a week's illness.

Dr. Lyle was born in 1873 in Dandridge, Tennessee. He graduated from Maryville College, and later from Auburn Seminary. He came to Maryville in 1907 as professor of New Testament History and Literature in the newly established Bible Department. In 1911 he resigned his positon on the College faculty to assume the pastorate of the Maryville New Providence Presbyterian Church. During his six years as pastor there the present Sunday School Annex was built.

In 1917 Dr. Lyle left Maryville to become president of the College of the Ozarks in Clarksville, Arkansas. From 1922 until his death he was president of Washington College, Tennessee.

As professor in Maryville College and as pastor in the New Providence Church Dr. Lyle left a fine impress of his character on the citizens of Maryville.

PRACTICE HOUSE HAS NEW OCCUPANTS

March 16: This morning the reign of Rachel Frost and Wilhelmina Gruchy over the establishment known as the Practice House ended. They surrendered the reins of control to the care of Dorothy Kellar and Lillian Howard who will cook, clean and scrub in the House for the next twenty days. Dot and Lillian are already well into the routine of their stay. One of the formal dinners has been held. Mr. and Mrs. Howard were the guests at this function. We have heard of no accidents yet as burnt biscuits or tough pie-crust, and our best wishes for success are with the present occupants of the Practice House.

"Why are you late for chapel?"

"Well, you see, the alarm clock was set for seven, and there are eight of us in the house.

THE INFLUENTIAL MINORITY

History has repeated itself time and again with regard to the influence of a few big-talking, high-sounding, self-satisfied men over the howling, misrepresented mob that doesn't get a chance to express ideas, even if ideas are forthcoming.

The recent decision rendered by a few representatives of a men's organization on the Hill in refusing to support the women of the College in the worthy cause of helping purchase new robes for the Vesper choir needs a little more attention. There has already been much criticism of the Christian organizations on the Hill because of their existing as organizations of the kind in name only, and not in action.

So when a worthy cause is brought forth in which much good can be done by co-operation between the men and women, the men do not support the women and the cause is lost. There is no other group that does so much consistent and well-producing work on the Hill as the Vesper Choir and yet when we have an opportunity to show our appreciation and our pride in the Choir we are frustrated because of selfishness and personal prejudice of the ruling minority. What a pity that their braggadocio is so seemingly influential and at least impressive.

It is said that words are given to man to hide his thought—what a revelation these thoughts might be, if only they were divulged.

The women eagerly assented to the idea of aiding the Choir in getting new robes on condition that the men would display the same unselfish, gracious spirit, but no such spirit was forthcoming. The spirit of chivalry and generosity has given way to rivalry and selfishness, and consequently the college as a whole suffers through the action of a few. We should call it a lost opportunity to show ourselves true Christians.

OUR TAKING WAYS

Some of us seem to have the Midas touch of turning everything into gold while a greater number seem to have the miser touch of taking everything we put our hands on.

The "As You Like It" innovation proved a success a week ago Saturday until the committee started to clean up. Games were found missing, parts of games were lost, others parts mutilated, and others simply destroyed. Most of the games were borrowed on condition that they be returned whole—a promise faithfully made by the borrower.

However, when the time came to return these games very few were found in their entirety, and so with due apologies and promises of replacements the humble borrower made her embarrassing return trip from door to door. It is indeed discouraging to plan an entertainment for students who feel it their duty to carry away, either consciously or unconsciously, souvenirs of the occasion. If there are any of these individuals who have gone so far as to recover consciousness let us suggest that they return their prized objects to the distracted committee and disgusted owners.

Highland Flings

And here is an explanation of spontaneous generation: Spontaneous generation is when a new life is created without any future ancestors.

The art of love-making hasn't changed since ancient times. We've just read about a Greek maiden who listened for hours to a lyre.

"What are pauses?"
"They grow on cats."

Absence makes the marks grow rounder.

Lawyer: "Then you say this man was drunk?"
Witness: "I do not. I merely say that he sat in his car for three hours in front of an excavation waiting for the light to turn green.

CAMPUS TALKIE

Kitty Hodge: I don't like these new spring hats. They don't do me justice.

Kitty Hodges (after washing her hair): My hair is getting so long and stringy.

Naomi Willingham (absent mindedly): Is there going to be a circus Saturday night?

Georga Burk is proudly repeating the latest definition of a laugh. Georga takes much pleasure in stupefying her listeners when she says without hesitating:

"A laugh is a contraction of the face resulting in jelly-like convulsions of the body."

Louise Avery says that caffein is the stimulus in coffee.

Naomi Willingham (after seeing another joke in the Echo): I'm getting to be the biggest joke on the campus.

Miss Gamble (In Education class)—Of course, they have reduced the death rate of babies enormously since they have been sterilizing them.

Dr. Rogers—Two weeks from today we will finish the study of Job—that will be the thirty-third (of March) won't it?

Margaret Melody: "What do you think of folks who ask the librarian not only to find the book they want but to tell them the page?"

Miss Jewel: "I know a teacher once who always had pupils write their names and the date at the top of their examination papers, because they liked to write something they knew.

SUPERIOR SCOTTIES

Of course, we realize that no perfect gentleman would prove himself so unsportsmanlike as to talk about anyone when that person has no power of bodily retaliation. But since we have long since given up the aspiration to become a perfect gentleman, and since we shall endeavor to make our remarks of a complimentary nature, we are taking advantage of the absence of our respected, yea revered, editor and are removing the bushels from the respective lights of Editor Keeton and Mildred Crawford.

Now we confess that we are at sea as to how the members of the fairer sex react to slander, etc. The men thus far disclosed have stood the test bravely and unflinchingly as true men should. But, as we have said before, we would not be at all surprised should we wake up suddenly some fine day and discover ourselves in the infirmary, fairly well but decidedly unhappy. Truly, we shall be careful as we continue our wanderings thusly:

The pilot of the Echo's destinies is said to be a native of the immediate vicinity of Waynesboro, Tennessee. Granted this we are sure that Waynesboro has provided Maryville with one of her best editors in recent years. We are equally sure that the Waynesboroans point with as much pride to "that little Keeton girl's paper" as to the news periodical published in Wayne County, and they have a reason to do so! After reading fully school papers from other institutions, we have been firmly convinced that Maryville is in possession of a first class editor. We have never been able to muster up our courage to the extent of inquiring of Hessie her intentions for the immediate future after she leaves Maryville. Howbeit, we rest assured that, should she tackle her work as she has tackled it here on the Echo, she well deserves the good wishes that each and every one of us extend to her.

The Highland Bard

YOUTH TURNING THE PAGES OF HISTORY

Eagerly his clear eyes scan the records of his fathers.
Anxiously he turns the pages.
Each time hoping to find the answer to his eternal question.
"They, too, were questing, even as I am.
Surely, after all these ages of explorers
Someone must have found the invisible magnet which leads us on,
And so been able to satisfy the others, and myself,
Who are still asking.
'What is it?'"

The pages are silent.
They are often thus perused.
Perhaps, if they could speak—
"Ah, lad, but if you could know for what you are hunting,
There would be no quest."

But pages never speak.

All of us are guilty, at some time or another, of adding what we consider funny remarks on the linguistic qualities of women in general. Even though these so-called talkative women are supposed to prattle away hour after hour and say nothing at all, Mildred Crawford turned traitor to the sex last Tuesday morning and said enough in fifteen minutes to warrant her being the winner of the T. T. Alexander oratorical prize. She is also on the debate team and can argue like the proverbial Philadelphia lawyer. Mildred is one of those chosen (?) few who are done the honor of receiving sheepskins in June after that, good luck go with you, "Billy".

THE OPEN FORUM

Dear Mr. Echo Man Jr.:

I aint much on writin things you see i jes got to be a senior in my schoolin and who cares about that any more an im jes a plannin on sellin senior sweaters to underclassmen enyhow.

Once when I was a settin on my pops nee he used to tell me stories of good ole times when he went to collidge. he tole me of somethin there was in collidge that you couldnt put in so many words, but meant a lot and was called tradition or class spirit or somethin like that. he said too that he wanted me to go to Maryville cause it represented a lot of things. I did that but it seems that it aint what she used to be cause theres something I aint gittin.

Guess its cause maybe i never did git in the rite junior class thats just everything. Maybe they got modernistic idears. Enyhow im going to try hard and flunk out so's maybe if I put in my reservashun soon enuf i kin be one of them there Junior Persons and get to wear a bran new senior sweater when it gets hot in May and use it for a sweat shirt or somethin where I kin show it off and not be laffed at afore the kerrect time to wear em does cum long.

Yours truly,

MR. ANDY NOMUS, Sr.

P. S. Don't never tell your boy that if he studies hard he might grow up and be president some day cause if its inspirashun u want tell him to study and work hard and grow up to be a big strong handsome junior at is somebody and gets to wear things.

Thrilling Nine Act Circus To Be In Big Tent, March 28

Circus Atmosphere To Be Created By Hot-Dog Stands and Side Shows

Tumblers Prepare Special Act For Big Event

DARING LEAP-FOR-LIFE

Reckless Chariot Race Will Close Evening Show

"Oh Skin-nay! The circus is coming to town." Saturday evening, March 28, is the time of reception for this stupenduous, magnificent, awe-inspiring conglomeration of dare-devil acts, unusual scenes, and unbelievably grotesque animals. Bingling Bros.-Darnum and Daily presents for our entertainment the most dazzling, sparkling, scintillating show to be seen anywhere in the world. We have it, from authoratative sources, that this year's show surpasses in splendor all previous exhibitions in Maryville.

The versatile and long-winded Don Briggs will have charge of the rings and furnish the constant stream of bally-hoo so essential to the performance. The graceful and inimitable Tiny Waters will have charge of the clowning and promises to be at his hilarious best. Songs by the Men's and the Women's Choruses will add much to the gaity of the occasion and the marvelous work of the two tumbling teams will aid "goose-pimpling" for the spectators. Of course the Chariot Race is a necessary adjunct to any circus and this year's presentation will undoubtably furnish an entirely new thrill. But speaking of thrills, watch for that dare-devil leap for life. This one act is guaranteed to cure any weak heart that has ever missed a beat. A well-known and popular student of the college, with reckless abandon and perfect contempt for all laws of gravity, casts himself from a high platform near the top of the tent to fall through giddy space to—but wait until Saturday night.

The typically circus atmosphere will be created by multi-colored balloons, the tang of real sawdust, steaming hot dog stands and innumerable side show attractions.

Taken all together, this year's show promises to be the most unusual, the most dazzling and the most entertaining that has ever been presented on College Hill, and all for the unsignficant sum of ten cents.

WOMEN START PRACTICE FOR TENNIS TOURNEY

Tennis time is here! Officially spring came the twenty-first of this month, but according to tennis enthusiasts, (especially the men) it has been here for almost a month. The women have not rushed the season, but have patiently waited for warmer weather and for the courts to be rolled and lined.

However, now that all the requirements have been met, it is time to get tennis racquets and balls and start practicing for the annual women's spring tennis tournament. According to Iva Babcock, athletic chairman of the Y. W. C. A., the tournament will start not later than April fifteenth and must be completed by the first of May.

In the spring tournament, points are given towards Maryville awards. All those reaching the second round receive twenty points, and those reaching the quarter finals fifty points. Those wishing to enter are asked to sign their names on the papers posted in Pearson's lobby, and Memorial and Baldwin halls not later than April first.

CINDER PATH CREW EAGER FOR FIRST MEET AGAINST U.T.

New Men Trying Hard To Gain Positions; Letter Men Back

March 23— Maryville College's aspiring and perspiring cinder path candidates have been going through their daily workouts for the past two weeks and they are slowly rounding into shape. Coach Thrower hopes that he can have a well balanced machine whipped into shape in time for the opening meet with Coach Bill Britton's University of Tennessee team on April 6.

For the first time in several years, Coach Bob admits that prospects for a winning team are not so bright. Some of the best cinder path artists that were ever developed at Maryville were lost through graduation last year and it will be a difficult task to fill their shoes although there are quite a number of new men out this year.

The lettermen, Taylor, Felknor, Richardson, and Moore are showing their old time form, although they have been taking things rather easy, and several freshmen are making a strong bid for varsity positions. Byar, Truesdale and Merrick are showing pleasing form.

EXHIBITION PLANNED BY WOMEN TUMBLERS

March 23—Although there has not been a great deal said about the women's tumbling team for some time, it is still in existence; and for the past three months it has been undergoing strenuous practice, in order to put on an exhibition at the circus Saturday night. Last year the exhibition by the women tumblers was a complete success, and this year their act promises to be even greater.

The team is made up of twelve members and is coached by Bratchie and Underwood of the men's team. Many new feats have been accomplished this year, and the women are now getting into what is known as real tumbling. Later in the spring an exhibition is to be given at the Maryville High School.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT PROGRESSES TO SEMI-FINALS

Loss of Pete Parks Hurts Scots' Chances

Honaker's Only Left Handed Pitcher Won't Play

March 23—The loss of Pete "Lefty" Parks, Coach Honaker's only left handed pitcher, has considerably lessened Maryville's prospects for a winning baseball team this year but Coach Honaker has quite a bit of faith in his Freshman material and hopes that Parks' loss can be at least partly repaired.

Parks had hopes of being able to come out for baseall this year but he is unable to leave his work at the Alcoa Sheet Mill and retain his position so he has decided that his outside work and the Maryville work is the more important of the two and the little Left Hander's baseball career seems to be closed.

Coach Honaker let his cohorts outside two days last week but the weather is still a little too cold for Mentor will keep the diamonders in the gymnasium until it gets warm enough to insure him that the players' arms will not be in danger. It will be quite a little while before the baseballers will start hitting practice although the first game is less than three weeks away.

Manager Pee Wee Overly announced that sixteen college games had been arranged for the Scotties and several more can easily be scheduled if they are desired. This year's home schedule will be one of the most interesting that has ever been afforded to Maryville fans due to the fact that several teams that have never been played in any branch of athletics will appear here. The students are urged to support the baseball team and talk up the coming season in every way possible and let the players know that they are behind them. Let's show the wise ones that baseball is not losing its place in the program of athletics at Maryville.

Ten Men Left In Running For Championship Rapid Progress Made as Weather Remains Good

SPORTOGRAPHY

By BOB WEST

There is a strange allurement in the changes of nature. No one knows the symbol of beauty abroad the landscape, the unwritten chronicles of the truth of things, the high points, the shadows. Imagine the stir of somnolent lilies of a gray dawn, the whirr of wings of night moths, the glow and scent and phantasy when the change of seasons are an eternal lure to man.

The sap oozes it, the wild rain chants it in a monotouos way, the wind, lifting a melodious wail among the bare limbs of trees, takes up the song and repeats it with courage. As constant as the wash of tidal rivers is the call and whisper and the soft, itinerant, half-awakened suggestion that was old as granite and hills. The season has changed. The musicians have arrived who will play for the tile of spring and summer.

As a rule the physical minds of most normal young men turn to thoughts of baseball, track, tennis, swimming, golf, and even to such an uncollegiate thing as fishing at the command of the hypnotist. This is the answer to so much commotion on the athletic field. The lure of seasonable activities is corollary with the change of nature.

After all, isn't this in keeping with the general run of things? Why shouldn't man's mind be run somewhat by nature. They have always been as man to man, as brother to brother—protectors in time of helpfulness. counselors in spiritual distress. One has to be reminded often of the old saying—you have made yourself from worm to man, and much of you is still worm." If a tree could speak, no doubt it would speak in this manner. The brooding trees were murmuring a sweet, orchestral, undernote when man was a grain of sand.

Heflin Displays Top Form To Defeat D. Buchanan

The tennis tournament progressed rapidly during the mild weather of last week and as a result there are only ten players left in the running from the thirty-two who started a few weeks ago. In the upper bracket there are seven survivors, each man wining one game with the exception of Dick Strain who has won two games and advanced to the quarter finals. Things have moved faster in the lower bracket where there are only three men left to compete. John Talmage and Ed Buchanan will battle to see who plays James Heflin in a semi-final match. Heflin was the only one to upset the dope bucket when he defeated Don Buchanan in straight sets 6-4, 6-1. Don was expected by the Carnegie dopesters to get to the finale.

By next week the tournament will be nearly over. The upper bracket will be held back some because of the sicknes of John Phay. It is probable that it will be necessary for Phay to forfeit and try later to make the team by coming up the tennis ladder.

The results of the tournament games were about as were expected and it will soon be possible for the manager to determine the personnel of the squad for the first of the season. Opportunity to make the team will be given to any "gem in the rough" who feels he has developed enough to be fit for that kind of competition.

Prosecuting Attorney Indicted By Thumb Print

Action against the Misses Virginia Rexrode, Margaret Brabson, Inez Edmonson and Ruth Carver was instigated in the court of Judge Evelyn Rion, before an impartial jury of Baldwin girls, last Friday night by the Misses Fannie Maloney and Judy Foster on the charge of "stacking" the room. As prosecuting attorney, Miss Ella Shields opened the trial by introducing to the witness stand Miss Rexrode. The process of administering the oath to the witnesses, officiated over by Clerk Grace Carswell, consisid of swearing on a dictionary to speak the truth, "so help me Hannah". The prosecution based its argument on the fact that none of the plaintiffs could produce satisfactory alibis except Ruth Carver, for whom two girls furnished evidence that she was in her room at the time the crime was committed. This defendant also asserted that she had been attacked by the plaintiff, whose motive was to secure confession. The star witness, Carol Booth, disclosed under cross-examination by the attorney for defense, Miss Mary Harmon, that no unusual noises had been heard in the adjoining room since it was ordinarily in a state of uproar. At this point court was adjourned for study hour and was resumed at nine-thirty. At the return, Lawyer Harmon produced a fingerprint found at the scene of the crime by Miss Booth, which, upon examination, proved to be that of the prosecuting attorney. This incriminating evidence was, however, decided to be irregular in the case of the four accused. Witnesses were brought forth who testified to the integrity of the defendants, but under cross-examination by the attorney for the defense Miss Fannie Maloney admitted herself to be of questionable character. At this point the court adjorned for the night. It is evident that Lawyer Harmon intends to bring counter-charges against Maloney and Foster of assault and battery upon the person of Ruth Carver and, also an accusation of committing the crime against Miss Ella Shields, based upon the incriminating thumbprint. The case is to be continued.

Toms "Discovers" Tunnel Under President's Office

You would probably not believe it, but our very observant young student, electrician, physicist, and Fisk advertiser, Robert H. Toms, found something on this campus, or rather under the campus, that will doubtless prove quite new to some of the upper classmen. While working under Anderson Hall on the wiring of Dr. Lloyd's office, Robert noticed something a bit peculiar. It turned out to be a tunnel which leads from the power house to Baldwin via Anderson Hall. It was proved that this was large enough for a man to walk through. Our discoverer tried it to be sure. Because of his extreme height Robert had to stoop his shoulders to successfully guide himself through.

It was learned by the explorer that there are two such tunnels. The other one goes to Science hall. Time has not yet allowed that one to be explored. These tunnels are used for the purpose of working on the pipe line without having to dig down to them in case of trouble. There are pipe lines running to each of the buildings on the campus but the two mentioned above are the only ones that can be explored.

MILDRED CRAWFORD WINS T. T. ALEXANDER ORATORICAL CONTEST

Phi, president of Bainonian Literary Society, member of the women's debating team, vice-president of the senior class, and has held other positions of distinction.

The T. T. Alexander Prize of one hundred dollars in gold is made possible each year by a fund provided for that purpose by a generous friend of the college who prefers to remain anonymous and to have the prize named in honor of another—one of Maryville's foreign missionaries. The prize is awarded to the winner of an oratorical contest conducted under the supervision of the department of Bible and Religious Education, men and women participating in alternate years.

College Printing Office In Room 10 Anderson

To most students going to classes in Anderson Hall, Room 10 is just another class room in which they do not happen to have a class. To a few, this room means more than that; it is the college printing office.

Here four girls speak in terms unintelligible to the laity about "three by fives", "Monarch size", "Uncle Sam bond", "Number 10's", "drums", "platens", "ribbons", "pressure", and other phrases common to printing.

If you find your name or the title of the reading you give in your expression recital misspelled blame these girls. If you make a "B" average, or if you fall behind in your studies, the letter that goes home to your parents and the one that you receive are both printed here. If Miss Jones, Dean Hunter, or Mr. Proffitt want to see you, the yellow slip summoning your presence was printed in Room 10. The honor reports that you sign every Tuesday and the withdrawal slips used in the library are forms made here that are familiar to all.

Letter heads for nearly every department have been printed here; thus, if you get the most private kind of a letter from some officer of the college, you may rest assured that, nine chances out of ten, one of the printers saw that sheet before you.

Then there are forms that are used for records. The yellow card the registrar consults when you are signing for courses at the beginning of the semester, and the large card on which Miss Clemmie Henry keeps record of the earnings of the students are examples of these.

The machine used for all this work is not a printing press, but a multigraph with a printing ink attachment. The type for each form is set up piece by piece by hand, and the machine is fed by hand. Since over one hundred thousand impressions are made each year, it is easy to see how much work these four printers are responsible for.

—o—

President Lloyd contributes the following to the Highland Echo. It is an extract from a letter recently received by him from a member of the faculty at a well known college. It will speak for itself.

"On December 30th, last, our minister and some of our students climbed Mt. LeConte, spending the night on the summit. While there we met some of your Maryville students in the same shack. I just want to say what splendid chaps they were and courteousness itself. It was a pleasure to find such college men. If they are a sample, you've got a great institution."

Baldwin Hall Exhibits Pre-Easter Style Show

Fashion Foibles have nothing on the girls of third floor Baldwin. Last Tuesday night an Easter showing of spring models was given for the benefit of the girls on third floor. Green, according to this display, will be the main color for the summer, however, it is our personal opinion that this color was more in evidence because the showing was made on March 17th. There seems to be a tendency toward contrasting colors in costumes. Some of the combinations of colors were rather striking and glaring, to say the least. Plaids and checks and stripes and dots, figured designs, geometric and otherwise were to be seen. Corsages and mesh bags, gloves and hats accompanied each costume. The showing lasted for about ten minutes, with individual appearances in the various rooms, and ended rather abruptly with the appearance of someone in search of the great disturbance.

Are the members of the respective societies willing to let their society be merely a name? Perhaps it is just as well that this be the last year for the existence of the societies. The solution to this problem of poor attendance should interest and challenge every loyal society member. May the "S. R. O." sign be hung out at every society meeting this Saturday!

Dean Of College To Read Paper At Nashville Meet

Annual Meeting of College Association To Be At Vanderbilt

LEAVES TUESDAY

To Discuss Freshman English Courses of Various Colleges

Dean E. R. Hunter will represent Maryville at the Twelfth Annual Meeting of the Tennessee College Association to be held at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Wednesday and Thursday, April 1-2. Dr. Hunter will leave Maryville Tuesday night in order to be present when the Association convenes at 10:00 o'clock Wednesday morning. Throughout the day addresses dealing with many phases of college work will be heard and at 7:30 in the evening the Association will dine as guests of the University. During this dinner the president of the Association, President, E. L. Atwood, Tennessee College, Murfreesboro, will make his annual address.

On Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock Dr. Hunter will speak to the meeting on the subject "Tendencies in Freshman Composition", dealing with the variety of courses in English offered the freshman in different parts of the country.

Theta Alpha Phi To Present "The Escape"

April 20 Chosen Date; Harry Gauding To Have Lead

John Galsworthy's play, "The Escape", will be presented by the Maryville Chapter of Theta Alpha Phi on April 20. Mr. Harry Gauding is the leading man.

An extraordinary feature of the play is that it is divided into episodes. Instead of the usual development of the plot in three acts, the story unfolds through a series of episodes, in which are shown the effects of different characters on the hero.

Mr. Gauding is the only character who appears throughout the play; the others come on in only one episode each.

The Theta Alphi Phi plays are expected to be the best given on the Hill, and the fraternity has established an enviable reputation for producing dramas worthy of their fame. This year's play will be of unusually great interest because of its form and structure.

Theta Alpha Phi is a national honorary dramatic fraternity, with strict requirements for membership. The cast for "The Escape" is composed of members of the fraternity, assisted by three "barbs".

Mrs. Veech is coaching the play, and Mrs. Morton is stage manager.

Easter Vesper Service To Be "The Pageant Of The Resurrection

Pageant To Be Presented Under Auspices of Expression Department

The annual Easter pageant will be presented Easter Sunday at the regular Vesper time, 7:00 p. m. Because of the elaborate preparations and the necessity of beginning on time, everyone is urged to be in his seat ten minutes before the pageant begins, by 6:50 p. m.

During the first twenty-five minutes a prelude of sacred and Easter music will be given by the choir, and organ music will be played by Frank Neff. Virginia Carter will be at the piano and will accompany the choir. Following the prelude of instrumental and vocal music the pageant, "Pageant of the Resurrection", will be presented. It is written by William V. Dickson.

The pageantry class of the expression department is in full charge of the presentation, rehearsal, costuming and necessary arrangements. Betty Wilbar, assisted by Lois Cupler is at the head and has a committee helping her in carrying out the details. The leading roles are being taken by George Osborne, as Pilate; Mildred MacKenzie, as Mary; Betty Wilbar, Mary Magdalene; Wesley Culver and Harry Wood, guards of the tomb; Tiny Waters, Joseph of Arimathaea. There are various other minor parts which are taken by able interpreters.

The Easter pageant is always a beautiful, impressive service, and this year the pageant and the accompanying music by the Vesper Choir, the organ and the piano, are certain to bring out the true meaning of Easter, in all its vividness and beauty.

There will be no issue of the Highland Echo next week. Only thirty issues are published each year. Spring is here and the staff has declared a holiday to go fishing.

New Ruling Demands That Future Frosh Must Have Brains

Scholarship To Be Made Basis For Choosing Next Year's Freshmen

A more selective method of dealing with applicants for admission to the freshman class will be employed this year than has been used heretofore. It is planned that the members of the class will be chosen from the upper two-thirds of the high-school classes with which they graduate.

Although most of the students entering Maryville College are of excellent type, it is believed that when selection is made on the basis of scholastic achievement as well as on that of character and general promise, the possibilies are very much increased so that those who enter are adequately prepared to succeed in work of college grade.

For several years the number of applicants for admission to the freshman class has been limited to three hundred in order that the college may render the most effective service possible on behalf of the students. Many applications have already been received for admittance into the class of 1935.

Louisville Seminary President Visits Here

March 24— Dr. Cunningham, President of Louisville Theological Seminary was on the Hill today. He gave a short forceful address in chapel this morning, met with the Ministerial Association in Athenian Hall at 12:40, and held private conferences with many of the students during the morning.

Dr. Cunningham's chapel talk was taken from Mark first chapter, verse 16: "Come ye after me and I will make ye fishers of men." However, the theme of his speech was 'Come ye after me and I will make you." He brought out the idea that nothing guarantees a perfect life, yet Christ offers it. Pleasure, ambition, money,— all have alluring voices, yet they are empty things.

He brought greetings from Dr. John Vander Meulen who conducted February Meetings two years ago, and was at that time president of the Seminary. Dr. Vander Meulen was recently in an automobile accident, and both of his legs were broken below the knees.

Stevensons Entertain

March 26—Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson were hosts this evening at dinner to the Council of Faculty Women.

This was the annual meeting at which officers for the ensuing year were elected. Mrs. Lloyd was invited to become a member of the organization.

The invited guests were President and Mrs. Lloyd and Dr. McMurray.

The new officers are: Miss Clemmie Henry, President; Miss Heron, Secretary; Miss Jewel, Treasurer.

Music Department Presents Melody In Recital Tonight

Talented Music Graduate To Render Saint Saens Concerto

The first music recital of the year will take place tonight at 8:00 o'clock in Voorhees Chapel. The musician to be presented is one of outstanding ability—Margaret Melody.

One of the best known modern concerts for piano, the Second Saint Saens Concerto in G Minor will be rendered. This selection is one of the most musical of piano concertos. Its composer has given us some of the best music of the present time. There is no doubt that the full value of this concerto will be brought out by Miss Melody.

The program follows:

Arabesque I
Arabesque II ---------- Dubussy
Sonata Pathetique ------ Beethoven
Pastorale ---------- Scarlatti
Bird as Prophet ------ Schurmann
Dancing Doll ---------- Poldini
Barcarole No. 5 -------- Rubinstein
Sonetto 104 ---------- Listz
Second Concert in G Minor ---------- Saint Saens
(Orchestral part on second piano by Miss Garnet Manges)

Irene Bewley Home From Eastern Tour

Miss Irene Bewley, well known interpreter of mountain characters—and former student of Maryville College—has just returned from New York to her home in Greeneville, Tennessee after an extensive tour through the eastern states.

During this tour Miss Bewley presented her group of original character sketches—the scenes of which are laid in the Tennessee mountains.

Many students will remember with pleasure Miss Bewley's appearances here. Her latest performance here was last year in a dramatic arrangement of Lucy Furman's novel of the Kentucky mountains, "The Quare Women". This performance was given as a Y. M. C. A. benefit number.

May Queen's Bouquet

March 27—The fortunate young man whom the Queen of May will choose as her King for the annual May Day festival need no longer worry about the cost of flowers. At a meeting of the senior class yesterday, it was voted that the money expended for the Queen's bouquet be taken from the class treasury.

May Day, like a wedding day, is the woman's show—her escort coming in for little attention unless perchance he should make some embarrassing blunder. Formerly, it has seemed that he paid too much for value received. But now, any personable youth even though he has a slender pocket book, will have no feelings other than those of elation that the peer of beauties has chosen him as King.

Allen Voted Queen Of May in Hotly Contested Election

Snyder Gives Allen Close Race; Brunettes Preferred By Class of '31

March 26—Sarah Allen is to be Queen of May this year. At the senior party tonight, Donald Benn made the announcement which was simply a statement of the results of a fiercely contested election held today in Anderson Hall.

Are blondes preferred? It would not seem so because Sarah is a decided brunette and Hope Snyder, who gave her a close race, is also a dusky beauty. The other candidates were Mabel Dickerson, Dorothy Kellar, Ernestine Hedden, Alice Renegar and Mary McArthur. None of the other candidates were blondes with the exception of Alice and the titian haired Ernestine. It will be remembered that last year's May Queen, Elizabeth Myers, was also a brunette.

This election aroused no little interest and even antagonism. The men and women were sharply divided in their opinions as to the qualities desirable in the Queen of May. Three ballots were necessary before a majority vote was obtained.

Sarah was not present when the announcement was made, and therefore her classmates were denied the privilege of proposing a toast to their newly elected sovereign.

VEECHES TO EUROPE

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Veech will sail for Europe early in June. They will spend some time in England, visiting Mrs. Veech's relatives.

They do not have a definite itinerary, but they plan to travel in Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, France, and Italy.

Mr. Veech, a member of the class of 1926, is the physical education director at Maryville High School. Mrs. Veech is one of the teachers in the college expression department.

Pi Kappa Delta Convention Opens Today At Centre

Maryville Sends Eight Students To Annual District Convention

SIX FIELDS OPEN

Seven Colleges Represented; Convention Closes Tomorrow

March 30—

The Pi Kappa Delta district convention opened today at Centre College, Danville, Kentucky, with seven schools sending delegates for the different events. The convention will close tomorrow afternoon. The schools represented are: Centre, Maryville, Franklin, Georgetown, Transylvania, Tusculum, and Southwestern of Memphis. There are six fields open to the contestants; men and women's debating, men and women's oratory, and extemporaneous speaking for men and women. Maryville has sent eight delegates, all tried and true for these events.

Bill Graham and Dick Strain are entered in the men's debate. These two men have won many debates for Maryville in the years gone by and are expected to come out at the top in this their last forensic attempt for their Alma Mater.

Mildred Crawford and Mary John Metcalfe are the women debaters.

Third Expression Recital Next Monday

Horton, Avery, Lovette, Renegar on Program

Next Monday, April 6, the Expression Department will hold its third graduate recital of the year. Esther Horton, Louise Avery, Mary Lovette, and Alice Renegar are the four women who will appear.

Esther Horton will read "A Son of the Gods". Esther has appeared this year in "The Swan" and in "The Big Pond".

Louise Avery will give "Mary Magdalene". Louise has also been very successful on the Maryville stage this year in "The Swan" and in "My Irish Cinderella."

Mary Lovette's reading is "Prunella". This year Mary was in "Green Stockings" and "The Crisis."

Alice Renegar, who took part in "The Swan" and "Shavings", will read "Two Crooks and a Lady."

On Tuesday, March 24, at the First Baptist Church of Knoxville, "Requiem" by Verdi was presented by the Tuesday Morning Music Club and assisting artists.

The concert was attended by the Faculty of Music of Maryville College and also a number of students. It is said to have been one of the finest concerts given in Knoxville for many years,

Love Locations For Love Lorn—Terry

One of the most burning questions on the Hill at the present time is, "Where shall we moonshine?" On cold days or rainy days the problem is simply stupendous for Thaw Hall first floor will not accommodate the four out of every five who indulge in this half hour of sport at noon.

After due consideration and investigation had been made there were only a few solutions or suggestions for the solving of this problem. The alumni gymnasium, alias, the barn, would make an excellent place in which to have a good time, especially if the couples would perch up among, in, and on the rafters. Rope ladders could be atached and be let down and taken up for the favored few. No doubt the addition of some hay would make the place seem more like the old barn on the farm and the old hay mow, and the couples could play jack straws at the same time with this same hay. To make the atmosphere more so, some couples might stay down below and stalk around to give a cow-like attractiveness peculiar to a barn.

If the gym became too full of farmers those interested in sailing on the sea of matrimony could spend their time on the college fish pond in front of science, in improved rowboats, gondolas, or anything seaworthy or worthy of being seen. If the line didn't work with the doubting Thomas or contrary Mary there would be plenty of other fish near at hand who would swallow the unaccepted, ineffectual hook, line and sinker.

Tree houses could be built in the cedars that crown the hilltop and they could be rented out from day to day at a nominal fee, the proceeds being placed in a fund for parachutes and elevators to modify the difficulties in ascending and descending. Anderson Hall could accommodate several bats in its

All Fools' Day—Hina

Just why April first is chosen as the day when we can all act perfectly natural and get by with it is not known, but it is truly a godsend to most of us. For a whole three hundred and sixty-four days we have been pretending to possess brains and reason and the assumed character is rather difficult to maintain, so difficult in fact that many lapses to type are noted throughout the year. However, on the glorious first of April, we can cast aside hampering conventions and blossom forth in true individuality.

The exact form these expressions of individual eccentricity will assume is, of course, dependent upon the mental accomplishments of the perpetrator. It may perhaps be the antique though effective gag of the untied shoe or some equally senseless prank. These childish tricks are usually committed by the Simple or Just Plain Fool and owe their effectiveness solely to their utter simplicity. But we must not condemn these youthful persons too severely as this is the first step toward a higher education and we are all seeking this higher plane. Or, if you should be called to the telephone and after much lusty yelling into the transmitter receive as a reward a demur "Number, please" and a great guffaw of hilarious laughter from a heretofore concealed audience, you may be sure it is the work of a Complex Fool. These strange creatures infest every campus and owe their inherent ability for originating an intricate situation and a large audience for the roguish expressions of their comedy complex. But by far the most knavish and utterly undesirable slave of incongruity is the Compound Fool, he that combines indiscretion and complexity in his creations of the ludicrous situation to such an extent that it results in the girl friend receiving the wrong note. However, it is just possible that this individual has his uses too, since April first comes just before Easter.

Six Wednesdays In A Week

Poe once wrote a story about three Sundays in a week. With characteristic cleverness he convinced the reader that at one time three Sundays did come within a drastic week. Maryville College has the power to make more drastic and startling changes in the calendar—the making of six Wednesday nights in a week.

With the instituting two weeks ago of the more formal Wednesday evening supper hour, another Maryville custom has been started. Hereafter, Wednesday evening will mean better food, informal evening clothes, and soft music. Future alumni will think of Wednesday night apart from other nights. That is all very well and good, but it should not be allowed to become a tradition. It should be changed before it becomes an almost sacred custom. Wednesday night should come every night.

There is certainly no reason why college students should make their dining hall the butt of poor jokes, and the inspiration of poorer songs. Most of us have had a decent bringing up. At least, our parents did the best that they could by us. The very fact that we are here might be a rather safe indication that we had a glimpse of something a little beyond our ordinary range. Therefore, just because we eat in Pearsons we should not feel that the demands made by society are lessened. Our recent attempts at etiquette are admirable. To us they are favorable signs of emerging to a higher state of civilization. They are also a bit pathetic. We wear our new manners in much the same way that the farmer lad wears his first store bought suit of clothes. We had the idea that culture was that something which made one feel at ease. Many students openly (and others secretly) admit that the atmosphere of the Wednesday evening meal is more in keeping with the social graces that we would acquire.

Why not a Wednesday evening tomorrow evening and every evening?

THETA EPSILON

At Theta Epsilon Saturday night Misses Fancher Smart and Evelyn Boring, teachers of Farragut High, Concord, entertained with musical readings. Miss Smart, alumna of Maryville College, played the piano, and Miss Boring read. The program was very much enjoyed.

Next Saturday night, April 4, there will be a miscellaneous program.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

On Tuesday evening, March 31, at 6:30, the Chemistry Club will hear read, and will discuss the second of a series of papers which are being presented to the club by the senior and faculty members of that organization. At the last meeting Professor Griffitts gave us an interesting resume of his Masters thesis. The next paper will be read this Tuesday night by Yervant Topalian. His subject is "Photo Chemistry". As Yervant has been connected with the work and study of photography for sometime, we feel that he will have something of interest for us.

Eggs are abundant in Pearsons—and, consequently, are generously strewn over the campus.

THE OPEN FORUM

For the first two months of this year we spent our spare time anticipating the arrival of our new president; then we looked forward to the Christmas season. Now, that that's all over, all we have to do is to fight back and forth until school closes. At present it appears that the two chief issues are whether or not our seniors should share their sweater wearing privilege with the juniors, and whether our Y. M. C. A. men are Christians or not, the doubt coming from their failure to help buy robes for the Vesper Choir.

The way some of the young women see it, the men, making up the Y. M. C. A. should spend $50.00 cold cash to help buy robes. The chief reason for this lies in the fact that the Y. W. C. A. organization is willing to help the cause to the extent of $50.00. At the present time the Y.M.C.A. is head over heels in debts—or at least proposed debts. They have come to realize that if we have a "Y" it should function as "Y's" do elsewhere. Efforts are being made at the present time to fix the building up in several ways to resemble other Y. M. C. A. buildings. Those who are back of this movement are making an honest effort to improve the building and to make it attractive enough for the young men of the college to really enjoy. This need is one of the greatest on the Campus and should come before other things regardless of what some others may think who do not really know the present condition of the Y. M. C. A.

It is quite probable that the Y. can remain as much a Young Men's Christian Association if it continues to look after its own interests as it would to turn into a charity organization as the Y. W. seems to have done. Perhaps we could start in now to condemn the Vesper Choir as an organization for not devising a money making plan of its own to buy robes.

Richard Orr.

TREE

There is a certain tree on the campus which I am certain is humanly alive.
I often sit in my window and watch it.
Its hands are easily discernible. They have slender, appealing fingers.
There is one dark recess which I think must be the Soul.
Last Good Friday I could but notice how sad the tree was.
Its head was bowed in sorrow.
Its hands hung lifeless in despair.
And the Soul drew a veil before its face.
Long I wondered.
Then I remembered:
"'Twas on a tree they slew Him—last
When out of the woods He came."

Requirements For Athletic Fraternity Are Issued

Baseball Team Works Hard as Season Nears

First Infield Practice Taken; Team Shows Form

March 30—Hampered by inclement weather, the Maryville College baseballers have been unable to make very little progress during the past week. The major part of their time has been given over to sliding while during the earlier part of the week they took infield practice, and brother, you can't imagine how good it sounded to hear the crack of the old bats against the horsehide and the constant chatter of Coach Honaker's brilliant infield.

From the present outlook, it seems that one of the merriest battles for positions that Coach Honaker has ever experienced at Maryville will take place on the diamond this year. There are several of last year's varsity men back this year but their positions are no more secure than worm in a chicken coop. There are several freshmen who will have a word or two to say before the varsity berths are assigned and it wouldn't be a great surprise to see one or more of these Frosh with his name in the select group.

Interest in baseball continues to grow as the season approaches. Every afternoon that Coach Honaker lets his proteges outside, a large number of students are to be seen lined up the side of the field watching the activities of the diamonders in silent admiration and wondering just how long it will be before they can come galloping out to watch Capt. Watkins and his mates belt the cover off the old ball against some college foe. Have patience, fellow sufferers, it won't be long now.

SPORTOGRAPHY

By BOB WEST

The Who's Who in Maryville Sports is fast becoming revealed each afternoon on the Athletic field.

—:—

The baseball squad, one of the largest in years, is a likely looking bunch. Many former letter men are back showing forth their wares for the enlightening of the newcomers. You can tell they are just itching to put the "bet" on some visiting squad.

—:—

Some excellent hitting has been echoing from the trees and perhaps there are some who would say that Divine Providence placed those trees back where they are for the sake of our slab aces, especially Joe Woodard.

—:—

Coach Bob Thrower, last Friday and Saturday, held preliminary tryouts in various track events for the first time, and according to unofficial timing and predictions Maryville is due to have an excellent winning team.

SOPHOMORES WIN VOLLEY BALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Friday night the sophomores won the volley ball championship by defeating the junior-senior team in a one-sided contest 47-14.

The first game of the tournament was played earlier in the week between the sophomores and the junior-seniors, and did not prove any more exciting than the final. The score was 44-14 in favor of the sophs. On Wednesday the junior-seniors defeated the freshmen by the close score of 27-25. Then on Friday night the finals were played between the sophs and junior-seniors. The victory for the sophomores was an easy one, due to their excellent teamwork.

DR. McMURRY SPONSORING TRY-OUTS FOR ENTRANCE IN SIGMA DELTA PSI

ALL ATHLETES ARE URGED TO START CONCENTRATING UPON GAINING ENTRANCE INTO FRATERNITY

March 30—In the year 1912 at Indiana University, a group of athletic minded individuals met and organized a National Honor Athletic Society which was to be called Sigma Delta Psi which means "the body is the servant of the mind". It was decided by this group that the insignia for this society should be a gold key for full members and the same with blue background for honorary members.

Ever since this eventful meeting, the Sigma Delta Psi key has been the supreme desire of all college athletes, and students from numerous colleges all over the United States have earned the honor of wearing this coveted symbol. The athlete who wins this honor is looked upon by everyone as one of the institution's most remarkable students.

Since the organization of this Society, only one Maryville College athlete has met the requirements for admission. He is John Taggart, a member of last year's graduating class. Taggart was one of the most brilliant athletes ever produced at Maryville and it was a great pleasure to Taggart's host of friends when he gained entrance into this famous society.

This year's requirements have been received by Dr. McMurray, who is sponsoring the try-outs for entrance to the society and it is hoped that many Maryville athletes will start working on the tests now, even though it might be several years before they are able to finish the complete tests. The College held under the supervision of any posed of Coach Honaker, Coach Thrower, Dean Howell, Prof. Smith and Dr. McMurray. Tryouts may be held under the supervision of any of these members.

The society is not only open to college students but to any alumnus of a college that has a national chapter installed. Candidates may also attempt to qualify while enrolled as a summer school student. There are fifteen requirements for entrance to the society and if a student has won a varsity letter, he may substitute this letter for any one of these requirements except swimming. Also any student that has won an intramural championship may take this substitution. The privilege of substituting varsity letters is limited to two official varsity sports and one intramural championship.

All athletes who possess all round ability are urged to start immediately and concentrate upon gaining entrance to this Society and the Committee on certification will always be ready to cooperate with them in passing any requirement of the fifteen.

The requirements follow:

1.—100-yard dash—11 3-5 seconds
2.—120-yard low hurdles—16 sec.
3.—Running high jump—5 feet
4.—Running broad jump—17 feet
5.—16 Pounds Shot Put—30 feet
6.—20-foot rope climb—12 seconds
7.—Baseball throw 250 feet, or javelin throw—130 feet.
8.—Football punt—120 feet
9.—100-yard swim—1 min. 45 sec.
10.—1 mile run—6 minutes
11.—Front hand spring, landing
12.—Hand stand—10 seconds
13.—Fence vault—Chin high
14.—Good Posture Standard B (H. B. M.)
15.—Scholarship—Eligible for Varsity Competition

TAYLOR CHOSEN TO CAPTAIN TRACK TEAM

On Saturday afternoon, March 20 Roy Taylor was elected to captain Maryville's track team for the coming season. Leighton Abshear, who was elected last year did not return this semester, so, according to the regulations, the Athletic Board of Control voted on the captain. Taylor, a senior, and second year man in track, was unanimously chosen. His work last year was enough to merit the honor.

Carnegie Courts In Need Of Repair

Strange as it may seem, it is a fact that there are quite a few fellows who, around this time of the year, do not spend their afternoons down town but stay on the campus and play tennis. In regard to these students the following facts have been mentioned to me.

The playing facilities for Carnegie men are, to say the least, rather bad. The two tennis courts behind the hall are very much in ned of new wire for the backstops. A set of tennis on these courts involves more running down to Court street and the railroad track than running on the court.

The courts need to be marked off with more regard to specifications. At present even halves of the same court are not of the same specifications. Although the ground is uneven at present this condition will probably be remedied later when they have been used more.

Now for the men who play on them: No court can be kept up very well when those who play on it do so in any kind of shoes. Sneaks should be used always. At present a large percent of those using the courts wear leather shoes and these cut the court to pieces.

First Track Trials Show New Talent

March 27—For the first time this season Coach Bob Thrower today put his trackmen through their paces in regular trials. These trials had been postponed for two weeks previous to this and so it was imperative that the trials be held today even though the track was somewhat heavy.

The mile run was the first event on the card and "Speck" Moore won it rather handily from Truesdale. The actual margin was about a third of a lap.

The century was hotly contested and "Smilie" Richardson barely spurted ahead at the finish to beat Byar by about six inches. "Red" Wood was a close third.

In the half-mile Bob Stevenson led all the way until Hitch sprinted and drew and "Preacher" Young came in close behind.

The 220 was the reverse of the 100 for this time it was Byar who spurted at the finish and broke the tape about six inches ahead of Richardson. Harry Wood was again a close third.

Capt. Roy Taylor set a pace in the two mile that Bud Mattingly was unable to sustain and Taylor won handily by about three-fourths of a lap.

The 440 was the last event of the day. Byar led all the way and broke the tape about three yards ahead of Otis Paul. Harry Wood came third.

Queenerites Defeat Asheville Normal, Berea College Teams

Co-eds Win Fifth Consecutive Victory; Men Down Bereans

WOMEN'S DEBATE

The women's debating team closed a highly successful season last Monday night when they defeated the Asheville Normal negative team by a unanimous vote of the judges. This was the fifth consecutive victory for the co-eds.

In the first debate of the year the affirmative team met Miami University February seventh. This was an Oregon debate and consequently there was no official decision. However, a vote of the audience showed that the Maryville girls had persuaded more of the audience to believe in their side than the negative had.

The next two debates were with Teachers College and Carson-Newman. The Maryville affirmative team defeated Teachers by a unanimous decision and the negative team beat Carson-Newman three to two. Following this the girls met Milligan and Tusculum. Again the Queenerites were victorious; the affirmative team winning over Milligan and the negative over Tusculum.

The final debate with Asheville was another victory for Maryville.

MEN'S DEBATE

Maryville's affirmative debating team defeated Berea College in the Y. W. Auditorium last Friday night in the final debate of the year here. Professor Moyers of the University of Tennessee acted as critic judge. In rendering the decision in favor of Maryville he said that both teams met the arguments of their opponents very well but that the affirmative had a slight edge.

The Maryville debaters were Walter Russell, Ben Groves, and Winn Barr, all new men on the team this year.

The debate was interspersed at more or less regular intervals with bits of humor that kept the audience in a very pleasant frame of mind. One of the Berea debaters mentioned the profitableness and productivity of moonshining, innocently unaware of the Maryville connotation of the word moonshining.

PI KAPPA DELTA CONVENTION OPENS TODAY AT CENTRE

These two women are on the undefeated women's debating team which made such an enviable record the past season. Mildred is the third senior who will debate her last debate for Maryville at this convention.

In the oratorical field the Queenerites are again very ably represented. Roy Taylor and Lucy Lee Silcox are both endowed with that fluency of tongue necessary for a good orator. Roy won the recent Bates oratorical contest.

Two more seniors, Jesse James and Hope Snider, are entered in the extemporaneous speaking contests. Jesse is a debater and public speaker extraordinary and Hope is one of the invincible co-ed debaters.

Maryville is anxiously awaiting the outcome of the convention and is expecting her tried and true delegates to bring glory and honor to their Alma Mater.

belfrey. The most high-powered moonshiners could roost on the smoke stack and absorb everything.

The lights on the football field would prove excellent protection in case of rain, fire, or flood. The hoods over the lights afford privacy, protection, and other desirable luxuries and necessities of moonshining. An elevated extension of the Calderwood Limited could be placed around the field to aid the moonshiners in getting to and from their new positions on high.

No doubt there are other available places for moonshining but the above suggestions might prove valuable to relieve the present congestion when Thaw Hall is overcrowded and when all the old familiar places have been usurped.

Miss Kellar (looking over the empty chairs in psychology class): "The people upon whom I intended to call aren't here today. They must have found out my intentions."

Juniors To Wear Class Sweaters

Although the seniors voted to disapprove the plan for allowing the juniors to wear their senior sweaters while they are still juniors, the junior class has voted to purchase the sweaters and proceed with their own class program. They will wear their sweaters this spring.

The main purpose of the plan is that more use may be made of the sweaters, and that the fact that the juniors are graduating to the senior class as the seniors graduate from the college may be better realized. Opponents of the plan pointed out that very little wear could be gotten out of the sweaters during the hot days of spring, and that such a course would remove part of the distinction of being a senior.

The sweaters will not be made, strictly speaking, of regular sweater material, but will rather be on the same general order as a blazer, both as to material and cut. They will be black with the usual college seal and class number.

M. C. ALUMNUS DIES

With less than six months intervening before he would have been given a medical diploma, Merle B. Marshall, 7, senior student at the College of Medicine, University of Tennessee, yesterday succumbed to the effects of a major operation at Baptist Hospital. He had just completed three years and three months as a student at the University of Tennessee Medical College at Memphis and would have been graduated this summer.

Stricken about a week ago, Mr. Marshall was removed to Baptist Hosiptal and died following an internal hemorrhage. He lived at 144 North Bellevue. No funeral services will be held in Memphis but the body will be forwarded this morning via Frisco Lines to Orlando, Florida for funeral services and burial.

He was a graduate of Maryville College, with an A. B. degree, a member of the Presbyterian Church and of Phi Rho Sigma fraternity.

Y.W.C.A. Chooses New Advisory Board

The Y. W. C. A. Advisory Board has been chosen for the year. Mrs. Lloyd, Miss Bassett, Dr. Knapp and Dr. McMurray, have been selected to fill the places of the retiring members. The members, heretofor, have been women, but Dr. Knapp and Dr. McMurray have been selected on the new Board for the purpose of giving new viewpoints to problems. It has also been the custom of the Advisory Board to hold regular meetings to discuss the problems and plans of the Y. W. C. A. The new plan is to have each member work individually. The girls will take their problems to one member to discuss them. This plan does away with unnecessary meetings. The members to stay on the Advisory Board are: Miss Hudson, Mrs. Worley, and Mrs. McMurray.

ATHENIANS TO HOLD FRENCH ORATORICAL CONTEST

On a date, to be decided in the near future, which will probably be the last week of May or the first week in April, Athenian Literary Society will hold the annual French Oratorical Contest. As there was no meeting last Saturday night this announcement is made so that all who intend to become contestants may begin preparation upon their orations. This contest is one of the highlights of the year's program in Athenian and the winning orator is presented with a very beautiful twenty-five dollar medal. It was won last year by Roy Taylor.

Seniors Go Places Again; See "Kismet"

March 27—Theatre parties seem particularly in favor with the august body of seniors this year. Last night found them throwing another Palace party. At 7:00 o'clock, the members of the class of '31 left the Hill. At 11:15 they were back. In the mean time, they had lived. They had seen Otis Skinner in "Kismet", a laugh provoking comedy, an instructive news reel, and coming from the show, they viewed with unaccustomed eyes the streets of Maryville by night.

The gay comedians gathered at Byrne Drug Co. for food and entertainment. Overly, Bowles, Shelley and Briggs diverted the crowd. An announcement of the results of the May Queen election was made at this time, and the class gave a round of applause for Sarah Allen who was the honored favorite.

The flower beds on the campus have been cultivated and edged.

THETA ALPHA PHI TO PRESENT "THE ESCAPE," MONDAY

Senior Benefit Number; Best Talent on Hill To Be Represented

ONE MAN PLAY

Harry Gauding To Appear as Lead In Galsworthy's Drama

April 13—Theta Alpha Phi is mustering all its talent for what promises to be the best play of the year. The Maryville chapter of this national dramatic society will present "The Escape" as a senior benefit on April 20 in Voorhees Chapel. Harry Gauding, one of the best actors that Maryville College ever sent before her footlights, will appear as the lead in this drama by John Galsworthy.

"The Escape" is a one-man play. Gauding, as the leading character, is the only one who goes through the whole play. All the other characters are minor; however, the efforts of the best players on the Hill are being concentrated on even these minor parts. The stellar cast consists of members of Theta Alpha Phi who have graduated from Maryville or who are still studying in the college, assisted by talented members of the Expression Department who have not yet gained admission into the society.

Harry Gauding graduated from Maryville several years ago. He is, at present, a teacher in the Maryville High School. He has starred in many plays on the Hill, including last year's Theta Alpha Phi play, "Arms and The Man", in which he took the part of the Chocolate Soldier.

Mrs. Morton, who is coaching the play, announced that little attempt would be made to secure elaborate scenery. She feels sure that the play itself will be enough to carry the interest of the house.

U. T.-Maryville Frosh To Debate, April 17

Board of Education Is Subject To Be Discussed At Annual Meet.

The freshman men's debating team will engage in their first debate of the season when they meet the University of Tennessee freshmen this coming Friday night, April seventeenth. The question for debate is: Resolved: That a Department of Education be Created with a Secretary in the President's cabinet. The negative team will go to Knoxville and the affirmative team will remain at home. The negative speakers are Walter Pippert, Harry Mathias and Don Buchanan. The affirmative men are R. K. Orr, Randolph Shields, and Fred Kirchner. The new Oregon plan of debate will be used.

This question of creating a federal department of education has been of much interest to the public in the past several years and is becoming more and more important as education advances.

Since this is not only the first but the only debate for the freshmen this year, they would like to see a capacity crowd present Friday night to witness their forensic endeavors.

Lloyds Entertain

Last Wednesday evening from six thirty to ten-thirty Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd entertained at their home about forty members of the senior faculty.

At six-forty-five a four course dinner was served. Maids who helped serve were Alice Renegar, Lillian Howard, and Dorothy Bassel. Afterwards, Dr. Lloyd, assisted by the two little Lloyds, showed magic lantern pictures of his European trip.

FIFTY-TWO HONOR ROLL MEMBERS ARE STUDENT WORKERS

Seniors Lead; Interesting Statistics Compiled by Miss Clemmie Henry

Miss Clemmie Henry has compiled some rather interesting statistics concerning the students who made the Honor Roll last semester. She found that fifty-two of the eighty-nine students did work for the college.

The largest amount was earned by a senior who made $166. This student was carrying seventeen hours and made thirty-four quality credits.

A total of $1,086 was paid to the senior honor students, $750 to the juniors, $194 to the sophomores and $506 to the freshmen. The grand total paid to Honor Roll members was $2,536.

Statistics of this sort help somewhat to disprove the opinion commonly held that one cannot work and do justice to his studies while in college.

Miss Henry's comment on these statistics was that some of the students did more work than they should do, she felt, more than their strength was equal to.

Quarantine Lifted From Hospital, Thurs.

Eight Patients Released After Three Weeks Stay

April 9—The quarantine on the College Hospital was lifted today, and the eight patients who had been confined there attended classes this afternoon for the first time in three weeks.

On March 24 Cora Houk was taken to the hospital with a malady which was pronounced scarlet fever on March 26. Within forty-eight hours of her arrival John Phay, Lynnette Johnson, Reno Smith, and Irving Barris were taken ill and transferred to the hospital.

Annabelle Anderson, Ruth Norlin and Conrad Quinelle were in the hospital with colds or "flu" when the scarlet fever patients arrived. Having once been exposed, they were forced to remain under quarantine until the others were permitted to leave.

Since the departure of the former invalids, the hospital has been thoroughly cleaned and fumigated to prevent future contagion.

According to Cora Houk, "A monotonous time was had by all."

Dr. Montgomery Here

April 6—Dr. R. Ames Montgomery of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of Chicago arrived today on a brief visit to the college. His chief purpose in coming was to represent the Chicago Seminary to those who plan to enter the ministry, and to give general advice to any student about choosing a life work. President Lloyd was pleased to have the seminary from which he graduated so well represented.

Frosh Mortality To Be Reduced By New Chem. Course

College Will Offer Two Courses To Satisfy Chemistry Requirement

Next year two courses will be offered which will satisfy the chemistry requirement. One of these will be the usual beginning course, and the other will be chemistry for liberal arts students.

The percent of students who take advanced work in chemistry is too small to warrant the present system of teaching five sections of the elementary course, so under the new plan there will be two classes of general inorganic chemistry and three of chemistry for liberal arts students. The new course is designed for those who want to know the methods of chemistry and the places where it plays an important part in modern civilization, but who do not want to study the more technical side. There is it primarily an effort to put chemistry on the basis of a cultural subject.

The tentative plans for the course call for the study of a new text book, lectures, and reference work in the library, with a reduction of laboratory practice. The text will be The Spirit of Chemistry, by Prof. Findlay, of the University of Aberdeen, and is a book for liberal arts students.

The work in this course will not

May Day In "Mother Goose Land" Planned For May Day Festival

Many Children To Take Part In Pageant.

The annual May Day festivities are being planned and intensive practices are held every day for the event.

Alma Schoeller and Mildred MacKenzie are in charge of the presentation which is called "May Day in Mother Goose Land". Tiny Waters as Old King Cole, Mary Katherine Mize as Old Mother Goose, and Louise Marley as the Old Woman in the Shoe, have the leading roles and their talent promises entertainment. Many different kinds of dances will be given to which Mrs. Queener is devoting much of her time and advice. Jane Duke will give a solo dance.

Many small children will take part in the pageant. Bobby Hunter will be the crown bearer; Hal and Vernon Lloyd, pages; Ruth Lloyd, flower girl; and other children will help in the pageant.

These are only the preliminary plans and more detailed annoucements will be made when the plans have been completely formulated.

Mt. Hike Wed. May 6; Bus Trips Planned

The annual spring mountain hike will be held on Wednesday, May 6 if plans being formulated by the Student Council are carried out. There will be several places from which to make a choice as to the place of the hike, different groups going different places if so desired. The probable choices are: Indian Gap, Cherokee Forest, Cades Cove, and Abrams Falls. By going in busses and trucks more real mountains can be reached and the trip will be of greater enjoyment.

Students will divide into groups, either going in couples, or individually, and will choose their chaperone and the particular trip they want to make.

A definite announcement will be made later concerning the price of the ticket, time of leaving, and different trips to be made.

Ben Greet Plays Attended By Many College Students

Maryville Representatives Well Pleased With Both Interpretations

Maryville College was well-represented in Knoxville, Tuesday, April 7, at the two presentations of the Ben Greet Shakespearian players. Four busses were chartered and all were filled. Over one hundred tickets were sold on the Hill and more were purchased at the ticket office on the University of Tennessee campus.

"Twelfth Night" was presented in the afternoon with Sir Phillip Ben Greet taking the part of Malvolio. The duel scene, and the laughing scene that takes place after the false letter is found by Malvolio were hilariously comical with Sir Toby Belch, Sir Andrew Aguecheek, and Fabian the outstanding characters.

"Hamlet" was the superior presentation, the character of Hamlet artistically, effectively and forcefully portrayed by Russell Thorndike who played the role of Sir Toby Belch in 'Twelfth Night". The character of Corambis was played by Sir Phillip Ben Greet who also took the part of one of the gravediggers. His acting in both plays can receive only favorable criticism.

Both plays were presented in true Shakespearian, sixteenth-century manner with as little scenery

Flames From Ignited Tar Barrels Disrupt Baseball Game, Fri.

Sammie Broughton Hastens To Answer Alarm

The process of re-tarring the roof of Thaw Hall almost resulted in a disaster when the barrels of tar ignited causing flames to shoot upward as high as Thaw Hall itself. It was during the baseball game Friday afternoon that the fire occurred, disrupting the game for a few minutes until the danger was passed. The Maryville Fire Department and Sammy Broughton answered the alarm that was sent in. Sammy hastily leaving the game in order to claim two dollars. He appeared a short time later dancing up and down on the back of the fire truck, though all danger of the fire's spreading had passed.

Pickaxes, shovels, and fire extinguishers kept the fire from spreading. The fire was intense while it lasted, huge clouds of black smoke enveloping the east end of Thaw.

Fortunately the barrels had been placed a reasonably safe distance from the building although there were several minutes of anxiety because of the spread and breadth of the flames. In spite of the near catastrophe the re-tarring of the roof will be continued.

Twilight Concert Wed. Afternoon In Chapel

Next Wednesday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock the Chilhowee Club of Maryville will entertain the other organizations of Maryville, some of the clubs of Knoxville, and other invited guests at a Twilight Concert in Voorhees Chapel.

At this affair, one of the outstanding social events in club circles of the city, Miss Hale each year presents an interesting musical program by her pupils, giving explanatory remarks regarding the numbers, which adds much to the enjoyment of the program.

This year a part of the program will be devoted to Ibsen's drama, Peer Gynt, with the musical setting by the Norwegian composer, Edward Grieg.

Those who have been invited to this concert are looking forward to the event with genuine interest.

Western Issue Next Week

Bob West, junior associate editor of the Highland Echo, will have charge of next week's issue (April 20). Bob has been sports editor almost all the year. He has had no little experience in page planning, headline writing and in mentally swearing when the staff fails to get the news in before Monday. Such experience is invaluable to the editor-in-chief. Since next week's issue is a Western one it should be a thriller. We anticipate breezy editorials. and a round-up of lively news.

The Hina edition follows—coming April 27. Watch for some expressive "hûhs".

MARYVILLE TAKES SECOND PLACE IN P.K.D. CONVENTION

Queenerites Again Bring Honor To School In Forensic Activities

Contrary to all Maryville hopes and expectations, her delegates to the Pi Kappa Delta provincial convention had to be content with second place. The convention was held at Danville, Kentucky during the last two days of March. Centre College, hosts to the convention, took first place with a total of five hundred points. Maryville was next with four hundred and Transylvania third with two hundred and twenty-five.

The Queenerites took first place in two events and Centre took the four other firsts. Mildred Crawford and Mary John Metcalfe won in women's debating. The men's debating team, Strain and Graham, took second. During the past season the men and women's teams took part in a total of twenty-three decision debates. They won eighteen of these, which gives them a "batting average" of .782. Incidentally, the women's team did not lose a single debate. Lucy Lee Silcox won first place in women's oratory. Jesse James took second in extemporaneous speaking and Hope Snider took third in the same event for women.

Second "As You Like It" Saturday Night

Committee Plans To Make Function Bigger and Better

A second presentation of "As You Like It" will be given next Saturday evening in Thaw Hall. Since the previous showing the student body has been waiting expectantly and somewhat eagerly another chance at the ping-pong tables and other games provided by the committee.

The program given will be similar to the last in featuring movies and group singing to words thrown on the screen. In the library new games will be offered as well as those popularized by the previous function. A sum of money was provided the committee with which they purchased these new games and additional sets of the old games, more numerous ping-pong sets being assured by this. Those persons interested in this form of amusement will do well to polish up their game as a tournament is being arranged for the last "As You Like It".

Realism On Stage

"And for fear of (the angel) the watchers did quake, and became as dead men." Literally.

At least, one of the "watchers" in the pageant on Easter evening fainted; the other one quaked and screamed! When this earthquake occurred and the stone was rolled away from the door of the sepulchre, it really frightened the men who were guarding it. Harry Wood fainted and had to be carried off the stage and Wesley Culver screamed.

DR. LLOYD DEFIES PARKING LAWS; FACES JUDGE

President's Car Found Parked On Wrong Side of Street

"NOT GUILTY"

"Where I Come From We Park On Any Side of Street", Says Dr. Lloyd.

It is indeed gratifying to learn from time to time that mistakes are made by those whom we esteem, admire, and follow as examples.

It so happened one day last week that a grey Chevrolet coach was discovered on the main street of the Blount County metropolis, parked on the wrong side of the street and furthermore facing the wrong direction. No amount of questioning, pondering, guessing, or any other form of mental effort could reveal the identity of the car and its owner.

The law-abiding policeman calmly tagged the automobile, whether doubly for the double misdemeanor or not. is unknown. The crowd upon this indication of authority did not abate but gained in numbers awaiting the arrival of the delinquent driver.

The owner of the car appeared a few minutes later and proved to be none other than our president, Dr. Lloyd. The judge next entertained Dr. Lloyd, who upon being asked the cause of the double error in parking remarked, "Where I came from we can park on any side of the street." And the judge asked, "Well do you see people in Knoxville parking on both sides of the street?" To which replies the president, "No, I guess the only difference is that there are more rules to obey in the South than in the North."

Dr. Lloyd won the case and presented the judge with the white tag. The misdemeanor is excusable because the semblance of Maryville's Broadway is very close to that of Pittsburgh's one-way thoroughfares.

MacKenzie-McMurry In Recital, April 27

Complete Program To Appear In Later Issue

On April 27 Mildred McKenzie and Mildred McMurray will be presented by the Music Department in a joint recital. This will be the second graduate recital to be given by Maryville students this year. Margaret Melody appeared in a recital March 30th.

Miss McKenzie and Miss McMurray are very accomplished artists. They have been heard on a number of occasions in joint numbers and their ensemble work has earned many favorable comments. A special feature of their program will be a very interesting two-piano selection.

A complete program will appear in a later issue of the Echo.

Conference Of Deans

The deans of men in colleges and universities from Maine to California will attend the annual meeting of the Association of Deans of Men at Gatlinburg Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. Dean Howell will represent Maryville.

Pertinent discussions on problems of student life and personel work will be led by the representatives of various schools.

Some of the institutions whose deans will attend are Perdue, Pitt, Ohio Wesleyan, University of Michigan, and Georgia Tech.

An interesting and inspiring program will be presented, and elaborate plans are being made for the entertainment of the deans' wives.

Among the many alumni who came and lingered during Easter time were J. Brent Stearns and Wilbar Franklin. Clara Dalton is on the Hill this week.

The Club Movement

To be a student of Maryville College is to have the unparalleled advantage of becoming a prominent club member. Maryville's multiplicity of clubs is almost as famous as its moonshine, and the average brand of each has about the same value in so far as permanent and lasting effects are concerned.

If we live in Tennessee—or any other state—and there are others here from the same garden spot of the world we get together and form a club. We elect officers—the more the better because then we'll have more honors to place after our names in the Chilhowean. We pay club dues and throw carefully, cleverly planned parties in the college woods. That is, we eat half cooked hot dogs, come in contact with poison oak, listen to a reading or to a song accompanied by the plankety plank of a ukelele, and call it a day.

If we take Spanish, French, Home Economics or any other subject in the curriculum we too, declare a mutual brotherhood. We go to meetings and listen to programs that are usually hastily and poorly prepared. We're just one big happy family.

If we have hair that is not mouse colored; if we are the offspring of preachers; or if we are planning to enter the ministry, we join forces and prove again the famous utterances "In Union there is strength" and "United we stand; divided we fall."

We shudder to think of the day which seems not too far distant when there will be clubs of those who use Life Buoy soap, of people who use no soap, of students who sing in showers, and of those who play victrolas incessantly. Now that the club movement is so popular there is grave danger that in the words of one eminent senior, "we will turn Maryville into a country club."

Those Peels Again

Some time ago we wrote an editorial about the lowly banana peel. In the words of Dean Hunter, we don't flatter ourselves that any one remembers it. In fact, we have concrete evidence that the student body did not entertain seriously the mild suggestion that perhaps it would be better if banana peels were not left lying about on the campus.

We would add another paragraph to the forgotten editorial. It would be concerned with food coverings in general. If we have no bananas, then eggs and oranges will do as well. They, too, have coats. Egg shells, orange peels, banana peels,—all are eye sores. We should like to say something withering about the scatterers of the above named offensive objects, but we feel that it would be giving too much space to what should be a minor matter were it not for the fact that as the piles of peels increase, it assumes mammoth proportions.

SUPERIOR SCOTTIES

In the rambling comment heretofore allowed to cavort at random in this would-be society column, the names of Tom Cash, "Farmer" Watkins, and "Mac" MacDonald have somehow escaped the semi-final reckoning for their former deeds and misdeeds. Since Ye Scribe tips the scales at 135 pounds and the combined avoirdupois of these three gridsters totals some 450 pounds, no great amount of intellect is required to ascertain the underlying motive for allowing their misdeeds to remain discreetly in the background and for mentioning only their illustrious deeds.

Both Tom and Farmer are leaving via the diploma route next June and, as they are made conspicous by their absence at football practice next fall, many rabid Maryville fans will recollect the capers of these two in past days. Tom has been a Maryvillian for only two years, but during these years he has performed creditably, yea, spectacularly, in the Highlanders forward wall. He was hampered considerably this year by illness but turned in some splendid games, nevertheless. Farmer hails from the same North Carolina city in which Tom makes his abode, said and aforesaid city being Winston-Salem. Farmer, whose maiden name is Robert, has made himself conspicously obnoxious to visiting football teams by determination to keep them from advancing through the center of the line. He is also an accomplished baseballer, in fact, accomplished enough to merit the position as cpatain of the team this year. He was this year to Maryville's wrestlers what the late Knute Rockne was to Notre Dame's footballers. Both men produced winning teams in their respective lines.

Lowell MacDonald, as the bulletin reads, is a native son of Harrisburg, Illinois. Lowell achieved in his junior year an honor coveted by seniors and, in fact, generally given to seniors; but in spite of this fact, he was made captain of the grid team last year and showed everyone that no mistake had been made in putting him there. He has been a power to the home team and highly concentrated TNT to the visiters. Mac is president of the Athletic Board of Control this year, a position longed for by many but attained by few.

An Arkansas golfer broke a leg while swinging at a golfball. Many players have broken more than a leg.

Professor: "Who was it that said: 'He who steals my purse steals trash?"

Student: "It must have been a college boy."

Professor Griffitts during Chemistry lecture: "Did you ever hear of the freshman who came to the store room for a burning splint? Or the one who came for dry hydrogen ions? Or the freshman who in performing an experiment was told to add 5c.c. of silver nitrate and agitate; and on going to the side shelf could not find the agitate?" Now I ask you, did you?!

Prof.: "What kind of leather makes the best shoes?"

Student: "I don't know, but banana peelings make the best slippers."

"Well, old man, I must be off".
"I thought so the first time I saw you."

"I had an uncle who died from hard drink."
"Really?"
"Yes, a cake of ice fell on his head."

Young wife (to husband who has been cranking his car unsuccessfully for several minutes): "Henry, dear, maybe it's your stance"——

CAMPUS TALKIE

Dr. Orr: "Don't be afraid that you'll exhaust the field of religious education. In all these years I've hardly touched the fringes of it."
Roy Taylor: "That's quite true."

Irish Terry (entering work-shop): "Somebody talk so that you can't hear my shoes squeaking."

Dr. Orr: "Why not follow your nose in college?"

We hear that Edna Hampton called for "Whither Mankind" at the librarian's desk recently. However, the librarians assure us that they have been asked more baffling questions than that.

Mex: "What rose was born to blush unseen?"
Kitty: "Tell me."
Mex: "The negroes."

Did you ever hear of the boy who, like Ivory Soap, was only 99 44-100 percent pure because he whistled a dirty song?

Prof. Ellis: It makes absolutely no difference to me how much you young people moonshine, but the library is not the place to do it. You may sit at the same table but you may not study off of the same book.

CHAPEL SPEAKER

(To be sung to the air of "My Bonny Lies Over The Ocean")

The speaker stands back of the pulpit,
The speaker stands straight on the stage;
His voice is as dry as his sermon,
He doesn't belong in this age.
Take back, take back,
Oh take back this man to his own home town,
Take back, take back,
And tell him to let us alone.

He hasn't said anything funny,
He hasn't impressed me a bit,
I'm bored, I'm tired, I'm sleepy;
I'm tired of having to sit.
Take back, take back—
Oh gag this old fogy and cramp his style—
Take back, take back
And let us all rest for awhile.
—M. I. A.

THE "STACKS"

"Counting of commas—world without end,"
Sighs the professor at dusk as he looks
Up from his study of leather bound books,
Wearily murmurs, "Heaven defend!"

Morning will bring what evening lacks,
Makes then our scholar a hope-gladdened youth,
Willing to drudge in his search for the truth
—Toil in his temple—the library stacks.
—Charles Nicholas Webb.

We question the significance of the signs that appear in the following chronological order on the door of 42 Pearsons, belonging to Ruth Boyd and Katherine Smith: "The two orphans—we're through with love—a girl can't be too careful—no matter how grown-up she may be."

Poets have written of nightingales and the parts they have played in world romances, but Maryville claims another feathered match maker, one with a sense of humor and a love for practical jokes—a mocking bird.

While Ruth Norlin was ill in the hospital, Steve Bretsky whistled under her window every day. The mocking bird mimicked his whistle so perfectly that Ruth was unable to distinguish between them!

General Electric Contributions to Health

at College

at Play

Sunlamps are a popular feature of the swimming pool at Hotel St. George, Brooklyn, N. Y.

COLLEGE-TRAINED electrical engineers cooperated with the medical profession in developing G-E products that safeguard health. Notable among these are the x-ray tube, the G-E refrigerator, and the G-E Sunlamp. Of these three, the Sunlamp is the latest development, but it has already been acclaimed for its service in helping build that vitality which maintains the happiness of good health.

At Cornell University, members of "cold-prevention classes" (under daily, brief, ultra-violet-ray lamp treatments) reported 40 per cent less colds than were reported by classmates in a group without this treatment. Beyond home and college, the use of Sunlamps has extended to swimming pools and indoor golf courses. In the future, you may enjoy the Sunlamp as a standard fixture in offices, trains, clubs, and many other places where people gather.

And you may continue to expect new, unusual, and useful developments from G-E engineering and research. Among such products, there will doubtless be further contributions to personal health, comfort, and convenience, as well as to the promotion of industrial efficiency.

HIGHLANDERS WIN OPENER, 6-2

Hiwassee Falls Before Brilliant Attack Of The Honaker Machine

Opening Game Shows Room For Improvement

April 11—Coach Honaker's Highlanders opened the 1931 baseball season this afternoon by defeating the Hiwassee College nine by a score of 6 to 2. Coach Honaker used three pitchers during the course of the game and all of them were effective.

Stidham, veteran hurler was on the mound for the Honakerites at the start of the fray and retired in the fourth inning in favor of Bob Chandler, a freshman, and Chandler made his College debut by striking out four consecutive batters. Chandler worked four innings also and gave way to Boretsky, another new man who worked the last inning and put the final touch on the Highlanders' victory.

Woodard scored first for Maryville. Joe crashed a single through the box, took second on White's roller to first and scored when Benn slashed a one timer to center field. The Highlanders scored three in the fifth and one in the sixth and one in the seventh. The visitors scored their runs in the fourth and ninth.

Coach Honaker's outfit showed plenty of room for improvement. Teffeteller worked behind the plate and did a fairly good job of it with the exception of a passed ball or two, none of which did any harm, but Teffey is the hustling type of ball player and you can wager the family drinking cup that he will be grabbing them here, there, and everywhere before the season is many games old.

Stidham, Chandler, and Boretsky the three moundsmen, showed both good and bad form of the hillock and they too have plenty of improving to do. Thirteen batters took three healthies and retired to the bench as a result of their combined efforts and this is nothing to be play at first base was of a high type even though Easy did lose track of the ball once and allow a We're counting on you fellows for several victories this year. White's sneezed at in any man's ball game. man to score on a weak infield roller, but his faults were very few and Coach Honaker will not be likely to lose any sleep over the first base position.

West and Benn formed a stiff barrier around the keystone that will be plenty hard for the opposing teams to crash through this year. Benn is serving his first year on the varsity and his work at second was all that could be asked, to say nothing of that screeching single that he lashed to center field to score the first run of the game. What does it matter if he did fall for that old short throw trick once, he will never do it again, I hope.

West was his same old reliable self at short but was sadly off in his batting. He grabbed everything that came in his direction but for some reason or other couldn't get connected up with the southpaw slants of Witton, visiting hurler. Let's see you get mad at that apple against T. P. I., Tom, and bring that old batting average up.

With the exception of a low throw to first, Woodard played a fine game at third base. He fielded brilliantly and played his position like a major leaguer, but his hitting was rather disappointing. Somehow or other the fans just naturally expect to see Joe slap one out of the park when he comes to the plate and if Joe doesn't knock the cover off the horsehide, they are not satisfied. But Joe will be slapping them hither and yon before long and when he starts clouting them he's hard to stop.

Capt. Watkins, Smith, and Hurst formed the outer defense and their plays in the outfield were everything that could be asked for. Smitty and Hurst shared heavily in the batting honors and although Farmer failed to connect, he showed signs of improvement in his batting. Several new men saw service and all of them looked promising.

SPORTOGRAPHY

By BOB WEST

Things have been happening this last week. In the first place the cinder artists have painted a canvas in the Shields-Watkins field. It was not such colorful affair. Seemingly Orange and White predominates. Although Orange and Garnet gleams forth in all its respendant glory in a few parts of the picture.

Dinty "Speck" Moore, in spite of a crippled ankle led the field for a mile at the rate of a little better than thirteen and one half miles per hour, considering his lame ankle. I wonder what will happen against L. M. U. Saturday.

—:—

Roy Taylor, captain, scholar, debater, and philosopher, seemed to use all of his talents to advantage, in displaying one of the most sensational two mile exhibitions witnessed in a long time. Taylor allowed his opponents to lead for about six laps, or one mile and a half, and then with apparent ease stepped around and left all of his fellow contenders by an eighth of a mile. He hardly showed fatigue in any way. It's certainly a tough break for Coach Thrower that Taylor is a Senior.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT REACHES SEMI-FINALS

Dick Strain Meets Fischback. Heflin Defeats Talmage.

After being held at a standstill for two weeks because of unruly weather the tennis tournament swung into action rapidly last week and as a result there are only four survivors of the ten who were left before. Those still in the running are Talmage, Heflin, Strain and Fishbach. Talmage will play Heflin and Strain will play Fishbach as soon as weather conditions permit.

Several interesting games were played the latter part of last week. Kemp Davis, after winning handily from Ed Cooper and being forfeited to by Phay met more than his match in Fishbach. Fishback won 6-2, 6-2. Collins had previously defaulted to Fishbach. Strain continued to defeat everything in his path by taking Don Benn into camp in an interesting match. Benn could not tame Strain's furious drives. He lost 6-2, 6-3. The only game in the lower bracket was the most interesting one of all. Ed Buck after winning from Talmage 6-2 in the first set dropped the two remaining sets 6-4, 6-3. Talmage and Heflin, both yearlings, have shown top form through the tournament and a tournament match well worth seeing is anicipated when these men meet with the racquets. This is true also of the match between Strain and Fishbach. In the final game of the fall tennis tournament Strain narrowly defeated Fishbach in a real battle.

April 13—Jim Heflin defeated Talmage late Saturday afternoon by the score of 6-3, 6-1. The Talmage-Heflin match, which Heflin won rather easily, proved to be a game of skill against straight tennis. Heflin, a player who depends almost entirely on accurate placing, consistent returning and his "stuff" on the ball displayed remarkable and unexpected ability in giving Talmage his first defeat. As a result of this victory Heflin will play the winner of the Strain-Fishbach match some time thig week for the championship. Talmage will play Strain or Fishbach for third place.

Because of the late season and the need for varsity practice the tennis coach has asked that the two varsity courts be reserved for the tennis team after three o'clock each afternoon. The courts may be used by anyone else at other times.

U. T. WINS ANNUAL TRACK MEET

Captain Taylor and "Spec" Moore Are Shining "Cinderites" For Scots

Orange and White Handily Wins 81-31.

Shields-Watkins Field, April 8, 1931—Led by Captain Roy Taylor, who completely lost his opponents in the two mile run, and "Speck" Moore, who won a close decision in the mile event, the Highlander track team put up a game but losing fight and lost the meet with U. T. by an 81-31 score, here today. Captain Maurice Corbitt, with four firsts, and Ernie Clark, with three wins, led the Volunteers.

The Highlanders were unable to get more than two firsts during the meet, these coming in the distance runs. They broke fairly even in the rest of the runs but were unable to cope with U. T.'s stars in the field events. The results of all events follow:

Clark, of U. T. displayed unexpected form to win all three dashes. In the century he broke the tape at 10:2 to best Byar by a couple of yards. In the two-twenty he beat Byar again. The time was 23:2. In the four-forty he finished first with Paul a close second. Time was 54:1.

In one of the closest finishes ever seen around here "Speck" Moore nosed out Haun in the mile run by a matter of inches. The time was 4:43:6. Captain Roy Taylor toyed with his opponents for six laps of theo tw mile and then stepped out to beat them by a third of a lap. His time was 10:31:2. In the half-mile run Crane nosed out Hitch to win with a time of 2:02:9.

In the high hurdles Corbitt spurted ahead of Felknor at the finish to win in 16:6. He also beat "Dip' in the low hurdles with a time of 27:2.

Tennessee made her sweeps in the field events. In the shot put Hickman was first and Franklin second. The distance was 42 feet 2 inches. Kohlhase threw the discus 107 feet 9 inches to win that event while Greenblatt was second. In the javelin throw Rayburn came first with a throw of 162 feet 8 1-2 inches. Mayer was second. In the high jump Hamlett was first with a jump of 5 feet 8 inches and Greenblatt and Bratchie tied for second place. In the pole vault Corbitt took first and Felknor and Brown were tied for second place. The height was 10 feet 9 inches. In the broad jump Corbitt took a first with a leap of 21 feet 2 3-4 inches. Crittenden was second. Final score: U. T. 81, Maryville 31.

The new pitching staff proves to be far better than expected. Our old reliable Stidham kept the visitors guessing for five innings and then brought trouble to the enemy's camp. Steve Boretsky's slow ball was very effective during the last inning.

New Thespians Find Road To Membership Rough and Tortuous

Comedy Marks Initiation Of Neophytes

"Worthy member of Theta Alpha Phi, I am only a worm." Thus confessed Louise Marley to a fellow student. We could hardly believe our ears until a similar admission was made by the vivacious Dot Marshall. Surely the first of April had permanently effected these two co-eds. But, fortunately, this was not the case for after cautious and considate investigation we found that these questionable antics were merely the results of the whims of the initiating committee of the Theta Alpha Phi, honorary dramatic society.

These, however, were not the only humorous scenes enacted upon the campus last week by the unfortunate initiatees. Donald Briggs kept company with an umbrella Saturday which was raised when no rain was falling and religiously and conscientiously lowered when the heavens began to weep. Monday Louise made a business call to each house on Court Street(to ascertain the number, style, color, size and disposition of the family tabbies.

The boys on the Hill got a real break Tuesday as Jane Duke was refused the pleasure of all masculine conversation. and Wednesday the moonshiners received quite a jolt when the ordinarily unself-assertive Dot Marshall began an active and belligerent sales campaign to sell her picture to each couple.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB TO HAVE BANQUET

April 13—The Women's Glee Club will hold their banquet on Friday, April 17 in Science Hall. Dr. Knapp will preside as toastmaster and toasts will be given by Jane Duke, Naomi Willingham, Weldon Hina, and Wesley Culver. Miss Meiselwitz is arranging the meal and Eloise Garrett, program chairman, promises an interesting evening of entertainment for the club members and guests.

The Women's Glee Club will appear in concert at Maryville High School on Wednesday evening, April 22 at 8:15. This concert is sponsored by the Parent-Teachers Associations of Maryville schools and the proceeds will be used in their drive for a municipal park.

In addition to the program of the Glee Club, a reading by Lavinia Jones and a violin duet by Mildred Purviance and Eleanor Henry will be offered.

MRS. VEECH ILL

April 8— Jennie Edwards Veech who underwent an operation for appendicitis last Saturday evening, is resting comfortably at Fort Sanders Hospital in Knoxville.

Mrs. Veech was taken ill very suddenly on Saturday morning and her serious condition necessitated the operation.

Highlights-Sidelights Of Knoxville Trip

The trip taken to Knoxville last Tuesday by the Shakespearean devotees is one that will be remembered primarily for the presentation of "Twelfth Night", and "Hamlet", and secondarily for numerous unexpected features and side-lights that always accompany an expedition of this kind.

Roy Taylor so far forgot his senior dignity as to break his chair and spent thirty minutes tearing down a wire fence with which to make repairs. At the eleventh hour he returned in time to see "Twelfth Night". Porter French had difficulty in adjusting his length to the small space to which his ticket admitted him and even after this adjustment was made his head rose above the common level and his feet were two rows in front of him.

Mildred MacKenzie and Mex Horton took pride in announcing that they ate with the Ben Greet players. It so happened that Fate or hunger brought the players to the same eating establishment in which Mac and Mex were satisfying their needs, and on leaving, these two admirers made numerous, unnecessary trips back and forth to their table in order to view the players—no introductions were asked for, however.

The evening performance was flavored by candy and peanuts. In fact, Dr. Hunter asked if there were a circus nearby. To entertain themselves and to while away the time before "Hamlet" was presented, Maryville students and faculty members indulged in guessing games and conundrums. Two representatives of the English faculty vied back and forth for honors but were adjudged to be of equal ability by the admiring, though inferior participants.

The four busses of Maryville students left Knoxville at eleven o'clock although the refreshing atmosphere of a corner drug store enticed Professor Kiger to allow his bus-load to partake of the delicacies therein.

The trip was made famous through more incidents than the above-named ones, but one insignificant reporter can not see everything that goes on.

FROSH MORTALITY TO BE REDUCED BY NEW CHEMISTRY COURSE

serve as a foundation for advance work, but it will be more interesting to other students, and it will be accepted for graduation. Three hours' credit may be earned each semester.

Similar courses are now being offered in a number of liberal arts colleges and in the liberal arts schools of several universities. Among them are Howard College, Birmingham-Southern College, Yale, the University of Long Island, and Columbia.

Requirements for admission will be announced in the new catalogue.

"We hope", says Professor Griffitts, "to reduce freshman mortality under the new plan."

College Registrar Gets Request For Cotton Boll

Some rather amusing letters find their way into the Registrar's Office—and they are not all about applications for entrance to the college. Last week Miss Jones received an interesting letter from a high school girl in Iowa. The letter stated that one of the geography classes of which the girl was a member was making a study of cotton and wanted a cotton boll to see what it looked like. Some one had suggested that they might be able to obtain it by writing to Maryville College. So she had written and hoped that Miss Jones would send her a cotton boll if it would not be too much trouble. She enclosed ten cents in stamps to cover the cost of mailing.

Cleveland Firm Seeks Bid From Maid Shop

Early last week the College Maid Shop received from the Industrial Rayon Corporation in Cleveland a telegram for a bid on 700 dozen Hoover aprons. If the shop gets the bid it will mean a huge order for "Hoovers" every year.

The offer for the bid came through Mrs. Edward Howard, of Cleveland, who interviewed the officials of the corporation on the first day that she attempted to sell for College Maid. Mrs. Howard is a daughter of Mrs. Kathryn McMurray, director of the shop.

Two hundred smocks will be shipped to the Dixie Mercerizing Company, in Chattanooga, at an early date. The smocks are of green Indian head with white trimming and are distinguished by a white "DMC" monogram.

Classes Elect May Day Attendants

Kizer, Morrow, Allis Honored By Classmates

The attendants for the Queen of the May have been elected, and despite the fact that the class of '31 seems to prefer brunettes, the feminine royalty of the coming May Day festival will be equally divided between two blonds and two brunettes.

The freshman representative is Alma Allis. The two other candidates were Bernice McNutt and Fay Blackburn.

The sophomore attendant is Marian Morrow. Her opponents were Mary Ellen Anderson, Ruth Myers, and Dorothea Thomsen.

The juniors elected Kathryn Kizer. The other candidates were. Ruby Miller, Elizabeth Ledford, Ann Smartt, and Margaret Auld.

DR. McMURRAY'S SISTER DIES

April 3.—Mrs. James Taylor, sister of Dr. J. H. McMurray, died today after an illness of a month.

Mrs. Taylor had been spending the winter with her sister-in-law and brother. She had been in poor health for some time preceding her illness and was taken sick as a culmination of her ill health.

as possible, and with the accompanying music indicative of the time of Shakespeare. The players are English and speak with the customary English accent. The costumes and wigs were designed in London; thus all the features of the presentations have a distinctly English note.

The Ben Greet Players are the foremost, present-day, Shakespearian interpreters and those who were able to attend the plays, took advantage of an undeniable opportunity.

VOL. 16 | MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE MONDAY, APRIL 20, 1931 | NO. TWENTY-FIVE

Large Collection Antiques, Curios In Thaw Museum

Reporter Finds A Collection of Articles From All Parts of World

OF INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Washington has its Smithsonian Institute; New York has its American Museum of Natural History; Pittsburgh has its Carnegie Museum; and Maryville College, in keeping with these great centers of art and learning, maintians its own museum. Four out of five Maryville students do not know this but it is a fact.

This museum is situated in the library on the first floor of Thaw Hall in a room behind the fiction shelves. In this room there are cases along three sides and several tables which contain a wide variety of curios and antiques, and various and sundry collections from all parts of the world.

To begin at home, there is a small model of the Union Academy building. This Academy was established by Dr. Isaac Anderson in 1802 in Grassy Valley, Tennessee, and was known as "Dr. Anderson's Log College." The model is made of wood from the original building. There is also the original diploma of William Minnis, of the class of 1825, the first class to graduate from Maryville. The diploma was not issued until 1846 as the college was not authorized by charter to issue diplomas until then.

Another case contains many old books published back in 1825 or thereabouts. Relics of pioneer days are found in another collection. Then there is a small but interesting array of Indian relics such as beads, stone implements, and arrow heads.

From Japan there are beads, vases, bowls, trays, swords, pipes, books, and such curios.

There is a rather extensive collection from Syria and Palestine. Quite a few of these articles were gathered by Dr. Wilson. Native costumes, pottery, brassware, ornaments, and trinkets comprise this collection.

From the Philippine Islands there is an assortment of native basketware, bows, arrows and knives.

As a souvenir of the Boxer Rebellion in China there is a gigantic rifle ten feet long with a bore one inch in diameter.

There is more to the museum besides this and anyone wishing to see for himself has only to see the librarian, who will gladly let him in.

PROF. GETS KICK FROM NEWLY BOUND HIGHLAND ECHOES

Friday afternoon the writer discovered Prof. Queener in the library looking over the newly bound copies of the Highland Echo for 1915-1930. Seeing the professor chuckling to himself, ye scribe moved over to the side of Prof. Queener, and ventured:

"They look nice, don't they?"

"Yes," he laughed, "but some awful things went into them."

"By the way weren't you editor-in chief at one time?"

"Yes, it's my paper that I'm looking at. I'm ashamed of it."

Prof. Verton Queener, debate coach and history instructor edited the Echo during his senior year here, 1923-24. He said that he ran a streamer head line every week.

"Do you still think that streamers should be run every week, now?"

"No, but I once did."

He refused to claim the editorials saying that in his day, the staff took time about at editorial writing. After looking over a few issues of Prof. Queener's paper, the reporter left the ex-editor still chuckling over his student publication.

LOQUACIOUS FROSH PROVE CAPABILITY IN FORENSIC CIRCLES

First Year Men Debate Like Veterans In Contest Friday Evening

Last Friday night the freshman debating team opened and closed a highly successful season when they defeated both the University of Tennessee freshman teams in a dual debate. The question for debate was: Resolved: that a Federal Department of Education should be created with a Secretary in the President's Cabinet. The Oregon plan of debate was used.

The negative team, Pippert, Mathias, and Buchanan went over to Knoxville where they defeated the Tennessee team by a two to one vote of the judges.

The affirmative team, Shields, Orr, and Kirchner, stayed at home and won by a decision of a critic judge, Professor Barr Miller of Knoxville College. The affirmative team, in upholding their side, pointed out the weaknesses of the present system and showed how the new department would correct these faults. The negative debaters contended that a federal department would foster federal control, which they did not hold to be a good thing.

This debate was the final debate on the Hill for this year.

Gilmore Brothers Presents YMCA Benefit Number

Sleight of Hand Feats, Mental Telepathy Are Features of Program

Dr. Fu Manchu and his Chinese craft, sleight of hand feats, mental telepathy, and spirit medium exposes are the features of the mystery program which the Gilmore Troupe of magicians is planning for the evening of April 24. Russell Gilmore, with his wife and brother, Anna and Leland, as assistants, will present "One Mysterious Night" in Voorhees Chapel as a Y. M. C. A. benefit.

Russell Gilmore, a prominent member of the senior class, is by no means a mere amateur in the magician's art. Since he is a member of the Society of American Magicians, of which Houdini was so long president, he has associated with some of the most eminent students of magic. His experience ranges from old home-attic performances before his school mates, to appearances on the Chautauqua platform and a successful run on Broadway in New York. He has entertained in many big cities of the North.

The entertainment on Friday evening will be divided into three parts. First, there will be an impersonation of the weird Dr. Fu Manchu of Sax Rohmer fame with all he dialect, lanterns, costumes, and 'pigtails" to go with it. Russell, it will be remembered made a very realistic Chinaman in the winning midwinter of last year, "East is West."

In part two the Gilmores will demonstrate telepathy in a background of Indian mysticism. They will also reveal some of the fraudulent tricks employed by spirit mediums.

Part three will be the conventional sleight of hand act, in which Russell's comparatively elaborate costumes of the preceding acts will be replaced by the usual sleeveless shirt, in order to more completely baffle the audience. He explained with a knowing twinkle in his eye, 'Every fellow can tell his girl how I' the tricks are done right off the bat, you know." That is his reason for wanting his audience to know that he has nothing up his sleeve.

TWILIGHT CONCERT GIVEN BY MISS HALE

April 15—This afternoon at four o'clock the Chilhowee Club entertained the Tuesday Morning Music Club, of Knoxville, the Tuesday Club, and the Maryville Music Club at a twilight concert in Voorhees Chapel.

The auditorium was beautifully decorated for this, the most important afternoon function of the year, wih huge bouquets of lovely spring blossoms.

The program was of varied interest and displayed unusually good taste in arrangement. It consisted of five groups.

The first group was from the Peer Gynt suite, by Greig, and was played by Miss Margaret Melody and Miss Garnet Manges:

Morning Mood
In the Hall of the Mountain King
Ase's Death
Anitra's Dance
Solvejg's Song

The second group was of an entirely different nature. It consisted of "The Irish Jaunting Car" and "The Cat and the Mouse", played by Miss Manges.

Miss Mildred McKenzie played Frimel's "Chinese Love Song".

The fourth group consisted of the two most popular compositions of Listz: Liebestraum III, played by Mrs. Martha Henry Burchfield, and

Prof. Lagerstedt Reveals Student Life In Germany

Many Facts of Interest Given On Customs and Habits

To enter into the true spirit of rivalry, it would only be fitting that this column, were it to be a column, should be called "Superdeal with the history or deeds of any of our illustrious seniors, but instead it deals with the experiences and immediate history of our accomplished German and French Professor, Herr or Monsieur Lagerstedt.

Prof. Lagerstedt graduated from the Brockton, Massachusetts High School with the class of '23. After staying out of school a year he entered Duke University and graduated from that institution in 1928 with his B. A. and M. A. degrees. He was a member of Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity and Phi Beta Kappa Society in Duke.

The school year 1929-30 Professor Lagerstedt spent in Europe. He was in Germany most of this time. In Germany he went to the University of Tubingen, attending lectures and studying student life from a personal viewpoint. Tubingen is one of the finest and one of the oldest Universities in Germany. Many of the early Germans who have figured in Germany's history attended this school in its early days.

Professor Lagerstedt found in observing the student life in Germany, that the fraternities play a big part in school life. To figure in university life is to be a member of a fraternity, in Germany.

The university life is much different from our university life, Professor Lagerstedt says. Their universities rate about the same as our graduate schools. Every student has at least fourteen and sometimes sixteen years of prep school before entering a university. The primary concern of the German student is not to get a Ph. D. degree. Instead, he works his entire four years to learn his subjects well enough to pass a state's examination which is given when the course is finished. If the student passes, he can then be a teacher in a German school. It is

TEFFETELLER CHOSEN Y. M. C. A. PRESIDENT

Amid the shouts and din hurled against the roof of the Y. auditorium by avid supporters of the various candidates for offices, the Maryville Y.M.C.A. elected a group of men to pilot its destinies for the 1931-32 college year. From the melee in which twelve men participated, four emerged victorious as the honored ones who will fill positions as officers of next year's cabinet. These men are: Ralph Teffeteller, president; A. P. Duff, vice-president; Robert Overly, secretary, and William Peacock, treasurer.

Although enthusiasm was manifested in copious amounts, the usual boistrous babel evoked at these elections was pleasantly absent. That the spirit of Tammany Hall, so evident on the campus in years past, is slowly passing from the Y. was noted by many upperclassmen. This a highly commendable forward step for Maryville's Y. and it is to be hoped that the new administration will keep up the good work started by Jesse James and his trusty men.

A new cabinet will probably be selected before the year is over and wil prepare to start the next year's work in a highly efficient manner.

The Junior members of the faculty were entertained by Dr. Lloyd last Thursday evening.

STUDENTS WITNESS CAPTURE OF ESCAPED CONVICT, SATURDAY

April 18—The students of Maryville College witnessed the chase and capture of an escaped convict this morning. As the student body poured out of chapel they saw an emaciated young man clad in prison stripes fleeing from a wrathful cop who shouted "Hey, hey, hey!"

Students joined in the hue and cry. Co-eds wrung their hands helplessly. The prisoner fled down the walk leading from Anderson to Baldwin, and circled around in the front of the chapel. The cop was very agile and gave the sprinter a run for his money. The hunted man gained on his pursuer, however, and probably would have escaped had not an elderly plain clothes man seized the convict just as he was about to elude his captor. The prisoner made no further resistance to arrest, and even held out his hands for the manacles of the law. On his face was a look of helpless resignation.

The captive was Don Briggs, the jaunty cop, Bill Graham. The identity of the plain clothes man was not disclosed. The entire thing had been a farce. Theta Alpha Phi was advertising "Escape."

REGISTRAR ISSUES NOTICE OF CHANGE IN OLD REQUIREMENTS

Advance Payment of $15. Now Required of Applicants For Admission

The major change in the requirements for admission is of a financial nature. Accepted applicants for the freshman class and transfer students must send an advance payment of $15 to the Registrar at least one week before the opening day. This payment will include the regular $5.00 room deposit required of students who plan to room in the dormitories and will be credited by the Treasurer on the payment of the student's first semester bills. A refund of $10.00 will be made in case of a withdrawal, provided that the notice of withdrawal is received by August 9. After that date no refund will be made.

Another change will affect transfer students from other colleges. Heretofore the transfer student was required to complete sixty semester hours before receiving his degree. No specifications were made as to the subjects he was to pursue. Under the new ruling the transfer student must take 12 semester hours

Dr. Wilson Writes He Will Sail For America, May 10

Dr. Lloyd Gives Decision of Ex-President Along With Other Official News

HAS HEAVY SCHEDULE

In a letter received by Dr. Lloyd last week, Dr. Wilson said that he and Mrs. Wilson would sail for America from Beirut, Syria on May 10, on the steamship, "The Edison".

Dr. Wilson has been spending some time in Sidon, Syria, the land where he was born. His announcement to return at this early date comes somewhat as a surprise. Dr. Lloyd states that the President Emeritus expects to arrive in Maryville about ten days after commencement.

In giving out the above statement to the Echo reporter Dr. Lloyd also gave his tentative schedule of duties for the remainder of the semester.

Dr. Lloyd is kept busy during his spare time these days by a rather large number of addresses and sermons delivered in various parts of East Tennessee. On Tuesday, April 7 he addressed the Tuesday Club of Maryville on "Present Day Trends in Education". Sunday, April 12, he preached at the Fourth Presbyterian Church in Knoxville. Wednesday, April 15 he delivered the annual sermon at the Presbytery.

Dr. Lloyd's engagements from now until school is out include Baccalaureate or Commencement addresses for the following high schools in East Tennessee: Spring City, Lanier, Friendsville, Porter, Dandridge, Everett, Clinton, White Pine, Cleveland, Alcoa, Maryville, Farragut, and Knoxville College.

Dr. Lloyd is also scheduled to deliver the installation sermon for the pastor of Spring City Presbyterian Church, at which church Dr. Wilson's father was at one time pastor, and where both Dr. Wilson's mother and father are buried.

Dr. Lloyd's further engagements include decoration addresses at Big Springs, and Unitia.

He has also promised to speak at the First Methodist Church of Maryville on the 26th of April; at Park City Church in Knoxville; and at Kirkwood Church, also in Knoxville.

Dr. Lloyd is also to speak to the Rotary Club of Lenoir City; to make two addresses at the Smoky Mountain Christian Endeavor Conference at Knoxville; and to deliver two other addresses at the General Assembly to be held in Pittsburg the last part of May.

WE ELECT "Y" OFFICERS—By Hina

Those students that have never had the questionable pleasure of visiting a Y.M. election can hardly conceive the noisy, clamorous, disorganized and chaotic situation that prevails in these annual outbursts of patriotism aln partisanship. It must be experienced to be appreciated. Howls, hoots, catcalls, irresponsible mud-slinging and general disorder are entirely in vogue.

About thirty minutes before the meeting convenes the accepted politicians begin to mill about in the crowd. A word here or a promise there serves admirably to increase the lead of one candidate. "Gerrymandering" and "lobbying" constitute an important asset to the electioneering methods of the candidates. Then, as the meeting is about to be called, the latest and most approved methods of Tammany Hall are employed. A complete segragation of each faction is automatically made; those upholding one man will congregate in one corner of the room and those in sympathy with another gravitate to another corner. It is now that the howls and noise really begin in earnest. Jeers follow cheers, remarks that attain a downright personal nature dart back and forth between the warring sides and everyhing either candidate has ever done or said becomes an open page to the disinterested onlooker.

A long and thunderous series of raps by the chairman fails dismally to bring any semblance of order to this chaotic congregation. Again he will try but with little more success, but, eventually, due to a commendable perserverance and a strong right arm, a modicum of order is obtained. By exercising his lungs and vocal chords to the limit, he is able to be heard occassionally and states in a manner as dignified as possible under the circumstances the business of the meeting. As the name of each candidate is mentioned the audience is forced to listen to a prolonged and thunderous howl. Again the painful process of restoring relative quiet must be endured.

At last the ballot is taken—the tellers begin their count while the Secretary marks the tally on the board; cries of 'Crook', 'Thief' and many other appellations of like nature greet almost instantaneously any little mistake or hesitancy of the long suffering Secretary. Finally all is counted, the marks are totaled—and a new "Y" president is howled into office.

FACULTY MOONSHINERS—By Hina

In the ordinary course of events one is apt to think that the acquisition of correct moonshining technique is left purely to chance here in Maryville College. But a far seeing power has provided that such an important phase of our education shall have expert, though perhaps unassuming tutelage. This power has provided men and women, ostensibly engaged solely in imparting wisdom of a purely academic strain, but in truth highly specialized in the art of moonshining.

Classes are conducted by these avid and conscientious pedagogs of proper poise at every available and conceivable opportunity and if, perchance, some student passes through four years of this campus contact without a full and complete possession of himself in any situation, the fault cannot be laid to incompetancy or insincerity of instruction. Any day at least one of these object lesson classes may be observed somewhere about the campus and the students presence is always welcomed. However there seems to be a slight tendency on the part of the two better known instructors, due no doubt to their inherent unassuming natures, to conduct these classes in the most inconspicious and inaccessible places readily obtainable, but this can probably be remedied in the near future by prevailing upon the professors to use the chapel platform or the theism class room at 12:40.

The college is working under quite a handicap, due to the very nature of the course, in keeping a supply of competant moonshine mentors. A few years ago one of the professors became ineligible for further teaching in the field due to his having successully debated his way past all the usual obstacles. But we feel secure in our present staff for at least two more years. Then too, it is not as easy to obtain that submissive attitude by matching chemical reactions and test tube results against feminine antagonism as with the persuasiveness of the debate.

That these classes are effecting the campus life is amply shown by the number of students devotedly engaged in this pastime. At every turn two, and ordinarily only two, people are seen languidly lounging upon the grass or sitting stolidly on one of the numerous benches steeped in that peculiar lethargy so characteristic of this euphoric condition.

—Undergraduates—

What do, we, the undergraduates, want most from our sojourn in college or what do any of the would-be searchers of knowledge in America want from college? Primarily, we want intellectual training for life's work. We want our reasoning facilities educated away from stereotyped, rationalized, prejudiced thinking. These questions and answers have not been culled from the pleasantries of a college bulletin. They are not the pedantic truisms of any college president's inaugural obeisance to the goddess of learning. To be sure as words they are just academic utterances. Their significance lies in their source. Their simplicity is genuine, and so is the impression that they convey, for they are the opinions of undergraduates.

Since our aim in coming to college is for mental advancement chiefly, then let us consider some of the methods being used to fulfill this requirement. Speaking of the colleges in the country in general, would the modernization of the curriculum or the loosening of the formalities of instruction aid in any way? Of course there are many cynical professors who when they hear such questions, conclude that students with such opinions are purely inefficient; that a certain course is their purgatory and therefore they miss no chance to cry for a reduction of their servitude and a mitigation of the rigor of its imposition. But this is not the reasoning of us students at all, we do not ask for formation of character by more football, the polishing of the rough edges by fraternities, we are not seeking activities with which to idle away the hours as of a plastic age. We want the existing academic routine modified for the good of our own intellects.

Our chief courses should consist of workable knowledge on the world about us. The information provided by the college should be such as to make us a contemporary of every age—but neither a retrospective refugee of the past nor a dreamy wanderer in the future. We cannot tolerate the "standard" thought as laid down by our best minds. There are several millstones which need to be removed from our necks, dead formalism in religion and narrow thinking in social relation stand out most promiscuously blatant Fourth-of-July patriotism and inherited class bias-all should be changed. We cannot venture into the morass of speculation upon what knowledge is of most worth. We have no custom built or ready made curriculum. As subjects of the process we cannot be expected to discourse learnedly upon learning.

We are discussing from a standpoint of discipline. We are thoroughly disillusioned about going to school. We respect our studies upon the whole, and our faculty as scholars. What else can we do? But our classes and their examintions—one cannot help but exclaim one of the chief courses of failure as a teacher is the professional conception of manufacturing, or giving a course, as a machine like mass method attempt at education, as distinct from concern with the needs and interests of the individual. Seemingly the method advances the theory that, we neither want an education nor possess the intelligence and initiative to go about acquiring it in a non-paternalistic manner.

What is wrong with turning us loose into the world of books, ideas guided thinking? Perhaps student apathy needs to be compensated by Professional activity. But this is no phenomenon. Those who know the present generation of undergraduates know the yeast is working everywhere. It is not an uncommon thing to find coteries of students of marked ability wilfully flunk, rather than to bend a knee to what they regard as childish routine; to such high grades are marks of servile mind. They desire more humanitarian methods in teaching and are often justified in trying to gain them. Of course, perhaps we do not know what we want, or perhaps the environment counts more than is accredited to it. A grove, a portico, even a market place suffered for what many called the best teaching the world has yet attained. The systems of some of our schools have become so huge, so labyrinthine that both student and teacher forget their intellectual concerns trying to get about in it. The libraries often become so well organized that they could be called the world's most successful experiment in making books inaccessible. How can our education be advanced by these conditions.

This is the way many undergraduates feel. They come asking for bread and are given stone facades.

—O—

—On The Stage—

Tonight we are to enjoy one of the really worth while dramatic presentations of the year. This is due chiefly because "The Escape" is by John Galsworthy. It has often, and rightly, been said of Galsworthy that he is one of the most popular of living English writers, his books are widely read even though decent. He never says anything foolish in his writings, and on the contrary he says many true and interesting things, his reputation is one of restraint and judgment.

One characteristic which makes him stand out in the minds of literary men and women of today is his position in regard to sex in writing. He never uses sex as a strong factor in his works, he thinks or assumes the attitude that people who read his books and plays feel the same way as he. Undoubtedly they do, and undoubtedly this fact is begining to [illegible] great public which has followed the story of the Forsythes that their creator seems both modest and wise.

SUPERIOR SCOTTIES

Still practically unscathed, either by indignant seniors or by disturbed dormitory neighbors, we return once more to risk our neck in comment upon another brace of fourth year students. We have chosen what we hope to be two specific subjects in the persons of Ed Buchanan and Russell Gilmore. Neither of these men could well afford to start home with an honest face and fourteen dollars. They would be at a decided disadvantage because neither is at a close enough proximity to his natal land to be able to use his pedal extremities as a means of locomotion thence. In plain and simple words, they are a "far piece" from home.

Ed Buchanan has as a "be it ever so humble" the Japanese town of Nagoya. We have never been able to ascertain anything concerning this community, primarily because of Ed's unwillingness to vouchsafe information coupled with our extreme ignorance as to manners and methods by which to procure this geographical erudition. However, it must be a town of no mean dimentions because Ed has not surely gleaned all his knowledge at Maryville. But, butting no buts about his place of education, let us consider for a moment the education itself. He (Ed) is a member in fairly good standing of the senior class. He is an accomplished singer in the Vesper choir, an agile member of the boy's tumbling team, and a letter man in tennis and wrestling. Add to this list the fact that he is a staff editor of this periodic periodical and you will have quite an astounding array of activities.

We have long hesitated to place Russell Gilmore's name in print, for the plain and simple reason that, since he is a benedict, we feared to run the risk of causing marital warfare through any truth or fable that we might uncover. Assured, however, that the good ship is sailing with no fear of strife, we have decided to take a chance. Like all normal brothers, Russ resides in the same town that Leland does, this town going under the name of West Chester, Pa. He has been nominated for divers offices on the Hill but, for reasons which we have agreed not to divulge, has reluctantly declined to run for the office. Russ is Maryville's Houdini, a magician who is able to "magish" with the best in his line. He can produce rabbits from hats, pigeons from handkerchiefs, or any of the seemingly impossible things with which mecians are want to baffle us (we defy him, however, to produce cream from Pearsons milk). Russ is studying for the ministry, a calling in which we are sure he will succeed. When he receives his sheepskin in June, Maryville will suffer a loss, but we are confident that his seminary mates will face a gain great enough to compensate for our loss.

Miss Clemmie Henry announced hat at present, 413 students are on the college pay-roll. She said that his number does not include those who work in town at such businesses as cleaning and pressing and iring furnaces. These facts show hat both Maryville College and the eidents of Maryville are offering nany the advantages of self-help.

STUDENT SELF-HELP

Practically every college in the United States has a Student Self-help Department. For instance, the University of Southern California places $2,000,000 at the disposal of this department, and Yale University supplies work for more than half of its student body.

We at Maryville College have no reason to be envious of the other colleges. Maryville has a 275 acre farm, the College Maid Shop, and a large campus, all of which afford work for those who need it.

SONG OF THE OPEN SEA

There's a mystical lure to the open sea,
There's a thrill in a vessel's lurch,
There's a nearness to God in the things that be,
A religion not found in church.
There's a pulsing of life as the boom swings 'round
With the gaff to the other tack
And the sails leap out with a cannon's sound
And the jib snaps to with a crack.

A man can feel his pulses swing,
And his blood is mounting high,
And his very manhood seems to sing
Under the naked sky.
He laughs to scorn the tempest's ire
As he hears his vessels creak,
And his very soul seems stirred with fire
As the salt wind whips his cheek

So here's, my friends, to the open sea,
To the tossing billow's foam,
Where a man's a man and his soul is free,
Where the wild tempests roam;
Where life is real and the heart beats high
As the storm roars on through the night,
Where a soul mounts up to the swirling sky,
Where life is a glorious fight.

Paul M. Edris.

WHICH?

Have April blossoms given me this gladness
Or has the sight of me caused them to sing?
I'd like to know which one of us is gayest—
I in pink gingham, or this tree in spring.

I BRING A GIFT

I'm bringing you crisp water cress
For sandwiches for tea.
It's very fresh and cool and green
And very long since I have been
To tea. Won't you invite me?

BEYOND

Life is a thing of the moment,
A paragraph on the scroll,
And after it all is over
What is left for the soul?
Is there nothing left but destruction,
A flicker and then—the end?
Does all of it live but to perish,
Faith, hope, the love of a friend?

Is there nothing in life that's eternal?
Is the grave the ultimate goal?
What of the waiting and longing,
The upward reach of the soul?
Is the strength of a heart's devotion
To die with this miserable frame?
Is life just a silly delusion,
A short and unwinable game?

Ah no, the soul is a traveler
Who lingers here for an hour
And death is only the portal
Releasing its splendor and power.
We feel an urge to the higher
As over the pathway we plod,
The call of an undying nature
Reaching upward to God.

The thrill of life is upon us,
The gates of Heaven are wide,
For lo, the risen Christ Jesus
Awaits on the other side.
Our faith and hope and devotion
Die not with our life's last breath
But live to their consumation
Beyond the valley of death.

L. M. U. Noses-Out Highlanders In Thrilling Meet, 59-58

Highlander Diamond Artists Put Three More Games In Win Column

Take Two From T. P. I. And One From Hiwassee

Coach Honaker's Highlanders showed both good form and bad in defeating the Tennessee Polytechnic Institute baseballers in both games of a two-game series by scores of 7 to 4 and 12 to 0 respectively. These victories gave the Maryvillians three consecutive wins in as many starts.

In the first game against T. P. I. the Scots turned in the most miserable exhibition of baseball that any Maryville College team has shown in many years, but try as they might, they absolutely could not give the game to the visitors. They just wouldn't take it under any circumstances.

The boys from Cookeville came here with but three days of practice behind them and their play was everything but college calibre. They were hardly better than a good high school team and probably their poor baseball had something to do with the way that the Maryville boys played.

The Maryville team scored first in the opening canto when Benn tripled down the first base line and scored when West, visiting backstop, let one of Carlen's wild pitches go through him. They scored again in the second inning when one of the most unusual incidents that has ever happened on the local diamond occurred. West, Watkins and Teffeteller were hit by the pitcher in succession. Teffy was the only man to score however as the rest of the team failed to come through with hits with men on the sacks.

They scored one run in the fourth, sixth and seventh and two in the eighth to complete the day's scoring. The visitors scored their runs in the second, sixth and eighth and not once during the entire game did they threaten the Highlanders' lead.

The Maryville team showed much better form in the second game than they did in the first. They collected eight hits to four for the visitors and committed only three errors and played heads up ball throughout. The game was featured by the air tight pitching of Bob Chandler, freshman right hander.

The Highlanders again started in the very first inning and jumped on Jobe, T. P. I. hurler, for two hits and three runs and added one in the second, three in the fifth and five in a big eighth which saw almost a complete freshman team on the field. The visitors never once threatened to score for the first four innings Chandler was not faced by an extra batter and did not give up a single hit. He was touch for a bingle in the fifth and two more in the seventh and this was all the damage that the visitors were able to do to his delivery.

The visiting team was greatly weakened by the loss of men and plainly showed the lack of practice. They played much better ball in the second game than they did in their first although they were defeated by a larger score.

HIWASSEE GAME

Madisonville, Tenn.— Maryville College's Highlanders batted out their fourth consecutive victory of the year here Friday afternoon by defeating the Hiwassee College team in a fast game by a score of 3 to 2. The Maryvillians outhit the Madisonville boys five to four but it was five costly errors that Hiwassee committed which cost them the victory.

Smith with two singles and a double led the batting attack for the Maryville team while Baker, the pitcher, with a home run was the chief offender with the bludgeon for the losing team. The Honakerites showed marked improvement in fielding, committing only one error.

SPORTOGRAPHY

A. S. Bradshaw

If T. P. I. is the best team in the state Maryville fans can get ready for some walkaways for the Highlanders this season. The Scotties are certainly playing mighty good ball for this early in the schedule. Outside of some trouble in finding their batting eyes the team is playing in mid-season form.

—:—

Some of Joe Woodard's thunder has been stolen from him this year. "EZ" White got the first home run of the season in the first game with Tech and Cooper hit the first one to the cinder track in the second game of the series.

—:—

"EZ's" home run was the first he has gotten at Maryville. In making the hit he connected with an easy, lob pitch and smacked it hard which is something that batters usually fail to do. As he crossed the plate someone next to me jokingly said, "Doesn't Coach Honaker say that you should never throw a slow ball to a weak hitter?"

—:—

T. P. I.'s pitchers must be used to throwing at squirrels for they certainly hit a crowd of Maryville batsmen during the series. On the first day it was three straight and on the second day it was two straight. To cap the climax both of the latter scored before the following batter had even connected.

—:—

Bob Chandler covered himself with glory by turning in a shutout in his first College game. He surely kept Tech's heavy hitters bottled up all day. It was a rare thing to see a ball get out of the infield during the whole time he was on the mound. He ought to solve a lot of Coach's pitching problem.

—:—

The Maryville type of "heads up" baseball has been clearly illustrated in every game this season, especially when T. P. I.'s men forgot the ball and commenced to argue. Maryville runners made the paths look like race tracks at those times. The gang is certainly doing some fine sliding too. We do need some bunters though.

WOMENS TENNIS GOES INTO SECOND ROUND

Hamrick Defeats Thomson To Be Aerial Dart Champ

On Tuesday morning, April 13, the women's aerial dart tournament was played off, with Nez Hamrick coming out the winner. Elizabeth Thompson, a freshman, was the runner-up.

Fifty women entered the tournament; some in order to get points towards a letter, and others just for the sport in the game. This is the second year an aerial dart tournament has been held, and as was shown by an increase of twenty entrants, its popularity is gaining. It has been spoken of by some as "glorified ping-pong", but there is a great deal of skill in the game, and it is rapidly gaining a place in all women's athletics.

It will be remembered that Inez won last year's tournament. Many attribute her skill in the game to her tennis ability. Miss Thompson is to be commended on her use of strategy in the game. The final score was 15-12.

The women's annual spring tennis tournament started on Monday, April 13, with all the first round matches being played off by Saturday. Several up-sets occurred but all the ceded players came through in true style. Due to the fact that the tournament has to be finished by the end of the month, it has been asked that the courts be given up for tournament matches. The second round matches must be played off by Thursday night, April 23.

Highlanders Unable to Overhaul Early Lead Gained By Visitors

Stage Big Comeback But Fail In Final Efforts

April 18—Lincoln Memorial University won her first track meet from the Maryville College Highanders here today by a margin of two inches and a difference of one point. The score was 69-58 and the meet was finally cinched when the Highlanders failed to get a second place in the running broad jump by a bare two inches. Things looked very bad for the Scotties at the first part of the meet as L. M. U. took all but one place in the first three events and continued strongly until well along in the meet. At one time they led 30-6 but Coach Bob Thrower's cinderites were not to be denied. Helped greatly when Felknor and Richardson gained sweeps in both hurdles, the Highlanders staged a great comeback and by the time the broad jump came up they were only trailing by an eight point margin. Harry Wood brought it to a three point margin but Moore, of L. M. U., took a second to put the meet beyond the Highlanders reach.

There were really some outstanding performances during the day's events. Shields, L. M. U., said that the 100 yard dash was a slow race after he had won it in 10 1-5 seconds. Kidney, L. M. U., is the best distance runner seen here in quite a while. His finish in the two mile was almost of the 440 variety. The two hurdle races were about as pretty ones as you see. Felknor and Richardson beat the opposition each

MENS TENNIS MEET WON BY FISCHBACH

Defeats Heflin In Final Round 3 Out of 4

Last Tuesday afternoon Fishbach defeated J. Heflin three sets out of four to win the spring tennis tournament. The score was 6-4, 6-3, 1-6, 6-2. Heflin, playing the slow game that characterizes his tennis, played a good, consistent, game as usual but could not keep up with the pace set by Fishbach.

In the semi-finals the afternoon before, Fishbach displayel amazing skill by severely trouncing Dick Strain 6-1, 6-0. After the first game, which Strain won, Fishbach won twelve straight games to take the two sets. Strain defeated Heflin 7-5, 10-8 Wednesday to take second place on the tennis ladder. The first four places on the ladder are now held by Fishbach, Strain, Heflin, and Talmage, in the order named.

A Scotchman asked the Western Union operator if there was any charge for the signature.

"No", replied the operator.

"Well, believe it or not, I'm an old Indian and my name is 'Chief Delayed, will arrive on Wednesday'."

THE THUNDERING HERD AND OTHER STORIES

By Terry

In rounding up news for the "Western" issue this week the occurrence that was more flavored of the West than any other incident was the usual morning cow stampede, undertaken by the College Cows and attended by (I think) Cowboy Calvin Bass Sans lasso. These auspicious animals have a new pasture next to Mr. Proffitt's and in the cool of the morning while all insignificant mortals are still abed they, these last living evidences of our former frontier, gracefully glide over the green grasses to the college pasture where they gratefully graze. To express their appreciation for the kindness done them and the care taken of them these expressive creatures donate a bit of milk now and then for the nourishment of the pale faces. Although the Indians have fled from this part of the country these cows still consider every one of white skin to be a pale face—even though some pale faces do bear a resemblance to their ancestral ancestors through the use of warless paint.

A second ocurrence that has recently occurred, and which is somewhat western in its nature is the Maryville Rodeo of last Saturday in which L. M. U. rounded up the greater number of points. The cowboy participants of both teams rode the hurdles which they conquered in a flying manner. These wooden horses were bucking broncos of agility, but our high-flying cowboys were the victors. The line was also bucked several times in the broad jump contest of the rodeo in which one team won. The necessary barbecue element was prvided by the "Y" store. The usual women participants were side-line onlookers and cheerers Saturday but they helped to round up the morale of the outfit.

The pines and cedars were also pervaded and rustled by a slight west wind during the week the degree of velocity or whatever it is that makes the wind move about from place to place was not enough to warrant even ode-writing. All I can say is that I hope the breezy Western issue will echo and re-echo through the highlands and that the breezy hits encountered therein will sweep you off your feet.

New Bible Courses To Be Offered Next Year

Two new Bible courses will be offered for the year of 1931-32. They are:

36: Historical Geography of Bible Lands. Study of location, topography, soil and climate of Bible lands; the manners, customs, and religion of the peoples of these lands; influence of these natural features on the social, political, literary and religious life of the Hebrews. Elective for students who have completed Course 1; 2 hours second semester.

37: The Bible as Religious Curriculum. A study of the theory and principles that underlie curriculum making is followed by a study of the Bible from the standpoint of the teaching value of its different parts as related to the needs, interests, and capacities of the different age groups. Practice in the selection and use of biblical material is a part of the requirement for the course. Elective for students who have had two three-hour Bible courses, three hours, first semester.

DEBATE

Maryville's varsity debaters, coached by Verton M. Queener, completed a very successful season at the Pi Kappa Delta Convention held a few weeks ago at Centre College. This year's team had a higher percentage in the won and lost column than any team Professor Queener has ever coached.

The women, by winning nine debates and losing none, closed the season with a thousand percent record. The boys won nine debates and lost five. Two debates were non-decision and two were Oregon plan.

Coach Queener loses seven of his best debaters by graduation this spring. D. Strain, James, Taylor, and William Graham will be lost to the men's team while Anne Deal, Hope Snider and Mildred Crawford will leave the women debaters.

The record set by this year's team deserves commendation. It, no doubt, will be a long time before a Maryville team will improve on the record set by this year's famed Queenerites.

Absence makes the marks grow rounder.

The Alpha Sigma-Theta Epsilon Joint Meeting to be held May 2.

SOPHOMORES TO RECEIVE MAJOR-MINOR CARDS

April 20.—On Tuesday the members of the sophomore class will be given their major-minor cards which they will fill in with their major and minor courses, thus indicating the courses of study which they expect to follow during their junior and senior years.

Beginning Wednesday afternoon Dr. Hunter will hold conferences for any sophomores who wish to talk over with him their problems with regard to course selection.

The cards will be signed by the head of the department in which the student is majoring; he will also suggest minor courses appropriate for the particular student and will give any other aid that is desired.

REBOUND BOOKS IN LIBRARY

The library has just received from the Weise Binding Company in Cincinnati a box of books that have been rebound. Two or three shipments are sent each year to this company and badly-used books may be competely rejuvenated and thereby put into circulation again.

Rebound books can usually be recognized from books with original binding by the absence of printing on the front cover. The covers are of a solid color and the printing appears on the back binding in gilt letters.

The plainness of these volumes makes them easily recognized. In this last shipment that was received books of all types have been rebound, English, history, science, and many others.

Professor Ellis is taking great pride in the assembling and binding of all the Highland Echos since the initial publications of this illustrious paper. The volumes are newspaper-size and are bound in three volumes each containing one hundred and fifty issues, or five years each.

L.M.U. TRACK MEET

time after the last hurdle had been crossed. In winning the half-mile Vaughn, L.M.U., broke the College record and Hitch, of Maryville, probably did also although he was not officialy clocked under it. Woodard heaved the javelin in old time form to take that event. The relay is always a pretty race and this one was especially so. Maryville won it by a good margin.

CHORUS PRACTICING FOR ORCHESTRA CONCERT

The newly organized chorus of fifty-five mixed voices is practicing every Tuesday evening for the coming orchestra concert. The chorus is composed of twenty sopranos, fifteen altos, ten tenors, and ten basses. Although many of the voices are untrained, they all harmonize, and they blend well with the orchestra. The repertoire of the chorus includes such varied numbers as "The Old Refrain", "Toreador Chorus" from "Carmen", and "Swing Along."

Under the capable leadership of Miss Butcher and Mrs. McCall, both trained for chorus work in the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, the chorus has made remarkable progress in the few weeks since its organization. Both Miss Butcher and Miss Hale are pleased with its success, and especially with the orchestra accompaniment to the chorus. This chorus is the first organization of its kind ever to have operated on College Hill, and judging from its excellent weekly practices, and from the enthusiastic remarks of Miss Hale, we may believe that its coming first concert will be highly successful.

of his major course and 6 semester hours of his prescribed minor courses at Maryville.

The only other change involves admission to the freshman class on a more selective basis. The applicant must be not only of good character but in the upper two-thirds of his high school class. By this method it is hoped that only students who show promise of success in college will be admitted.

Following Professor Lagerstedt's experiences in Germany he has been in Maryville teaching the Maryville students the fundamentals and peculiarities of the German and French languages. This summer, he plans to work for his Ph. D. degree at Harvard, Columbia, or at the Institute of Languages at Middlebury, Vermont.

College Proposes New Honor Rank System For Girls

Based On Scholastic Record And Moral Character Of Individual

EFFECTS SOCIAL LIFE

Privileges Dependent Upon Ranking Given By Committee

April 24—A system whereby girls may receive additional social privileges on presentation or exhibition of certain qualifications has been drawn up by a joint committee of the faculty and the administration. This plan is called an Honor Ranking System for Girls and has been proposed after deliberation, consultation, and correspondence with many different organizations and administrative bodies that have to do with college social regulations.

The system consists of five main divisions; namely, the system for ranking, the requirements for advancement in rank, the procedure for determining the advancement in rank, the honor rank committees, and the privileges. In September all freshmen girls are known as fourth rank girls; sophomores, third rank; juniors, second rank; and seniors, first rank. At the beginning of the second semester the girls who are qualified will advance to the next higher rank. An honor rank has been established for second semester seniors who are qualified.

In regard to the requirements for advancement in rank the two factors to be considered are of scholastic and moral import. Scholastically the girl must have an average grade of C in all her subjects; morally she must be qualified favorably as to loyalty, dependability, initiative, cooperation, character and conduct. Advancement will be made after the names have been approved by the Student-Honor Committee consisting of eight girls, and by the Faculty-Student Committee consisting of the Dean of the College, the Dean of Women, three teachers, one senior girls, and one junior girl; upon recommendations by the various matrons and the Dean of Women. The Student Honor Committee will have the most influence in the advancing of girls. Demotions will be made in the same manner in which promotions are made.

The organization of the privileges was made, upon ten main bases: Christian character of the college, the maturity of college students, the positive standpoint, the treatment of essential rather than non-essential, the making of a few rules which will be enforced, the treatment of general conditions rather than isolated situations, the normal relationships between the sexes, the idea of avoiding nagging, the trusting of

Seniors Brutally Assaulted

On Wednesday morning as the seniors emerged from the gaping doors of the chapel certain members of the dignified class were assaulted by the director of the College Maid Shop.

Vainly the victims struggled against her slendor weapon. Equally futile were attempts at walking absently mindedly past or pretended cases of near (very near) sightedness. Those seniors were marked men and were attacked on sight.

Mrs. McMurray's only instrument of offense was a tape-measure; her obliging accomplice was Miss Jones, who, armed with merely a pencil and piece of paper, ably abetted her ally by making note of her hasty measurements of thorax and head size.

The few seniors concerned who were warned of the attack and evaded were pursued to their hiding places in classrooms and there became the object of the tape's activities.

Ten seniors cannot be fitted with the graduation attire on hand and must have their caps and gowns made to order.

Gilmore's Program Acclaimed Success Pleases Audience

"One Mysterious Night" Proves To Be Novel, Mystifying Entertainment

Fu-fui-fuam—horseladish—'sparagas—turnip—one—two—three! With the aid of these mystic words and his magic dogrose wand Dr. Fu Man Chu out-houdinied Houdini in a "mysterious night" of Chinese magic craft, mental telepathy, muscle reading, sleight of hand tricks, and a hundred and one other feats of magic which kept the audience completely baffled for three hours last Friday night.

Russell Gilmore, Maryville's own Houdini, with the aid of his wife and his brother, presented "One Mysterious Night" in the chapel as a benefit number for the Y.M.C.A.

The program was divided into three parts. In part one Mr. Gilmore as Dr. Fu Man Chu, together with Lo Chang Kee and Ming Ting, produced goldfish from apparent thin air, emulated the silk worm, and performed the delicate operation of removing the water from Mr. Newcomer's brain.

In the second part Mr. Gilmore and his sympathetic control demonstrated mental telepathy to an uncanny degree. He also introduced the strange but scientific art of muscle reading.

In the third and final act, Russell performed the usual sleight of hand tricks which never seem to grow old. The climax of this part was the eggstraordinary eggsample of Russell's egg-producing powers.

Conference At Blue Ridge Opens June 6 For "Y" Delegates

Associations, Recreation, And Study Are Features of Session

"Magnificent scenery, delightful climate, comfortable quarters, enchanting forest, beautiful flowers, abundant food for body, soul and mind"—Blue Ridge.

This summer at Blue Ridge, North Carolina, near Asheville, there will be a Conference for College women from June 6 to June 15, and a Conference for college men lasting from June 15 to June 25.

Information regarding all-summer jobs may be obtained from Ralph Teffeteller—jobs such as waiters, waitresses, storekeepers, and others. In addition to earning all expenses, student workers have the privilege of attending conferences, and lectures for which Blue Ridge is especially noted. The courses of study are recognized in the Southern schools. If at the end of the semester a student has earned an average grade of B he is given ten dollars to help defray traveling expenses.

Recreation of all kind is enjoyed by the delegates and workers: tennis, swimming, hikes, trips and other means of entertainment.

Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. Cabinets are organized as soon as the workers arrive and these function during the summer thus giving practical experience in the working of the two organizations

If any Maryville students are interested either as delegates for the conventions or as all-summer workers, further information may be obtained from Merle Beebe and Ralph Teffeteller. Those who are particularly interested in a summer position should send immediately to Mr. D. W. Wetherford, Y.M.C.A. Graduate School, Nashville, Tennessee, for an application. Let's have a big delegation there from Maryville!

"The Escape" Topic Of Much Discussion

Attitude of Citizens Toward Fugitives Debated

April 20—This evening's presentation of "The Escape", a senior benefit, has caused much discussion and favorable comment. Many groups of students sat up late in an attempt to decide what should be the right attitude toward the law and its fugitives on the part of the citizens and the clergy.

As to the production of the play in the dialect of England, student opinion was fairly evenly divided. Some thought that it was effectively done. Others, several of whom have heard the real thing in the original place, thought that only a few players succeeded.

Many who saw Harry Gauding star last year in "Arms and the Man" confessed that they were somewhat disappointed in the evening's performance. However, there is no doubt that, as far as the audience as a whole is concerned, Gauding has upheld his reputation of being one of the best actors ever produced at Maryville.

Joint Meeting Sat.

On Saturday night, May 2, at 8:00 Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma Literary Societies will hold the second joint meeting of the year in the chapel.

The program committee, with Jacqulyn Odell as chairman, has been working diligently for the past two weeks, and the affair promises to be one of the most delightful social events of the season. Wilhelmina Grachy and Dorothy Kellar are in charge of decorations and refreshments.

The program will be divided into six proms, during which entertainment will be given. Some of the best talent of the two societies has been secured and a number of surprises are in store. One of the features of the program will be a one-act play entitled "Romeo and Juliet".

College Orchestra Appears In Concert Next Friday Night

Chorus of Fifty Voices Will Add Much To Program of Evening

On Friday evening, May 1, the College Orchestra will give its annual concert. This year the orchestra will be assisted by a chorus of fifty-five voices.

During the past few weeks both the orchestra and the chcorus have been practicing intensively and all reports promise that the program will be varied as well as excellent. With six first and second violins, three clarinets, two flutes, a bass horn and a cornet, it is well prepared to present an attrative program.

One of the outsanding numbers on the program will be the "Pilgrims Chorus" from Tannheuser. Miss Garnet Manges and Miss Beulah Duggan will be the accompanists at the piano. Mendelssohn's "Concerto" will be another feature. In this number Mrs. Earl McCall will play the organ while Garnet Manges and Margaret Melody will be the pianists.

Much has been said concerning the chorus which is to sing at the concert. An interesting fact is that the orchestra is to accompany the chorus in all the songs.

A review of the program shows that the numbers are varied and will appeal to all lovers of music because of the care with which they have been selected and prepared.

MUSIC CLASS RECITAL

April 21—Mrs. Earl McCall gave a class recital this afternoon in which several of her pupils participated. The program was divided into two parts. Those who took part in the first half were the younger pupils while the older students took part in the second part.

Famous Scientist Lectures Wednesday

Dr. Carver, Negro, Brought Here By Y. M. C. A.

Next Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock, in Voorhees Chapel, George Washington Carver, negro, one of America's foremost scientists, will lecture to Maryville students. The Y. M. C. A. is sponsoring this event, and feels very much privileged in having an opportunity to bring Mr. Carer to Maryville.

An interesting comment on Mr. Carver, and his work, comes from the Sucdess Magazine. It says: "America knows no more inspiring story than that of George Washington Carver, the homeless Negro boy who won his way to an education through the barriers of poverty and race feeling and became one of America's foremost scientists". Dr. Carver's life has been consecrated to the service of Christianity and science, which he knows are inseparable.

If as the psychologist tells us, there is no such thing as pain, what is it some people give us?

Librarians Meet

April 23—Prof. Ellis, the college librarian, and Miss Kenendy, the assistant librarian, were two of the two hundred delegates who attended the opening session of the Tennessee Library at Knoxville.

The series of meetings was opened with a luncheon at the university cafeteria. The university tendered the luncheon for the delegates, who came from all parts of the state representing three types of libraries: public libraries, school libraries, and college and university libraries. After the luncheon, addresses were delivered in the new library by President Morgan of the University of Tennessee, and by Jackson E. Toune, librarian of Peabody College and President of the Tennessee Library Association. The Association adjourned to Gatlinburg for the rest of its meetings.

Mountain Hike Plans

On Wednesday, April 29, at 12:40 and again at 3:00 p. m. a representative of the Student Council Committee on Arrangements will be in the lobby of Thaw Hall to get the names of those people who are going on the Spring Mountain Hike. At this time the group leaders are to present to the committee the names of those in their group, their chaperon, and the place that they wish to go. There is a choice between Cades Cove, Indian Gap, and nine miles beybnd Calderwood.

By Saturday, May 2, the group leaders must again see a member of this committee and hand in their share of the expense money so that the truck drivers can be guaranteed payment. Payment may be made in the lobby of Thaw Hall on Saturday. This must be the deadline for payment, as any time later would hold up the hike. The committee is made up of Elizabeth Duncan, Elizabeth Ayres, John Springer, William Peacock, Aubrey Bradshaw.

McMurray-MacKenzie Appear In Graduate Recital Tonight

Talented Musicians Present Program of Unusual Attraction

April 27—This evening the Music Department presents in a joint graduate recital Miss Mildred MacKenzie and Miss Mildred McMurray. These two young women are talented musicians and have appeared before Maryville audiences frequently. Both of them played in the undergraduate recital given by Miss Hale last spring.

Miss McMurray is a sophomore and deserves to be commended for the splendid work she has done in successfully meeting the graduation requirements of the department in two years.

Miss McKenzie is a junior and has already made her debut this year as graduate in expression. The program of the recital follows:

Valse ---------- Arensky
Miss MacKenzie - Miss McMurray
Chinese Love Song ---------- Friml
Du Bist Die Ruh' ---- Schubert-Liszt
Prelude in C minor ---- Rachmaninoff
Miss MacKenzie
The Eagle ---------- MacDowell
Winter ---------- MacDowell
Polonaise ---------- MacDowell
Miss McMurray
Dance of the Gnomes -------- Liszt
Miss MacKenzie
Rhapsodie ---------- Brahms
Miss McMurray
Capriccio Brillante ---- Mendelssohn
Miss MacKenzie-Miss McMurray

It is interesting to know that the last number on the program lacks just one year of being one hundred years old, for it was composed by Menlelssohn in 1832.

May Day Program To Be Presented Friday Afternoon

Entirely New Entertainment Being Planned For This Year

QUEEN ALLEN TO PRESIDE

"May Day In Mother Goose Land" Is Theme of New Arrangement

"May Day in Mother Goose Land", a charmingly fanciful springtime program, will be presented in the College Woods Friday afternoon at two o'clock.

The program will be not only different from the conventional May Day exercises, but also the loveliest and most entertaining ever attempted at Maryville. Characters will actually walk out of the Mother Goose book.

The whole afternoon, except the appearance of the queen and her attendants, will be unlike any previous May-Day. Old King Cole, with a pipe and bowl, will have a troupe of real fiddlers to perform at his pleasure. Black-birds will emerge from a mammoth pie, and if they don't sing, they will go the pie-filling of tradition one better and dance for the entertainment of the court. It is rumored that novel numbers, such as an elves' dance and an interpretation of the Spirit of Mother Goose by Miss Jane Duke will be rhythmic features of the program.

The College Woods make an especially effective scene for the festivities. Against a lovely background of evergreens will be built an elaborate throne, from which Miss Sarah Jo Allen, Queen of May, will reign her fairy realm. Donald Benn, as King, will share the royal fealty. Miss Lillian Howard will act as maid-of-honor. Attendants and courtiers will be Miss Kathryn Kizer and Darrel Eagleton, Miss Marion Morrow and Donald Briggs, Miss Alma Allis and Joe Quinland.

The music for the program will be furnished by the violin ensemble. The members of the ensemble are all skillful musicians in their own rights, and with capable leadership do exceedingly well. The Girls' Glee Club will sing. Their preparation is good, and a praiseworthy piece of work is anticipated. Much credit for the performance will be due Miss Butcher and Miss Henry for their painstaking efforts in the perfection of the music.

The cast of the production includes not only a large number of children, as has been mentioned in an earlier announcement, but also a great many college students who will be used in dances and choruses. The afternoon's performance is under the capable supervision of Miss Alma Schoeler and Miss Mildred MacKenzie.

Men And Womem—West

Shout the news Ye flat footed criers, Toll the bells Ye back robed Priests, for lo the darkness has been lighted, the original hard times have been discovered, an age when turtles whizzed is unearthed and now Love is the delusion that one girl differs from another.

Like turkish cigarettes they are all made from the same material, biet on practically the same bait, and have two hands and feet, these coupled with the original sin, that they marry men, spells women.

Generally speaking men may be divided into three classes; husbands, bachelors, and widowers. An eligible bachelor is a mass of obstinary completely surrounded by suspicion. He may be regarded in three lights, either as a prize, a surprise, or a consolation prize.

It is a psychological marvel that a soft, fluffy, tender, violet-scented sweet-like woman should enjoy kissing a big awkward, stubby chinned cigarette scented thing like a man. Women are hard to understand.

Men are somewhat peculiar also. If you flatter a man it frightens him; if you don't it bores him. If you permit him to make love he gets tired of you in the end; and if you don't he gets tired in the beginning. If you believe him you cease to interest him. If you argue you cease to charm. If you "soak up" everything he says, he thinks you are a fool and if you don't you are a cynic.

If you join him in his gaieties and approve of his smoking, etc., he swears you are driving him to the devil; and if you don't approve and urge him to stop his gaieties, he vows you are driving him to the devil.

And further if you are the clinging vine type he doubts whether you have a heart.

If you are silly he wants a bright girl; if you are brilliant he wants a playmate; if you are popular he is jealous; and if you are not, he hesitates to go with a wall flower.

Thus it seems men and women must have something in common, that is that their actions are such that they are equally misunderstood by both parties involved, and as no doubt the custom will continue—Men are what women marry.

A Rank System—Terry

Now that the privileges of the girls have been definitely set forth it seems only fair and just that an honor rank system be suggested for the men of the college.

In chronological order let us consider these phenomena. First rank men, the rankest of all, are known as freshmen. They are all to live in the cellar of arnegie and be known by the distinguishing, complimentary, applicable name of "Cellar Rats." They may go on the mountain hikes but may be the escort of only one fair damzel. On St. Patrick's Day they may shoot off lady crackers—feminine fire crackers—if they are accompanied by a chaperon. They may spend not less than one dollar ($1.00) on the girl of their choice. They may go to town once a week providing they are in by breakfast.

Second rank men or sophomores have all the privileges of the above-mentioned menials with the following noteworthy additions: second rank men may shoot one-inch fire crackers on the night of any full moon but they must sign up ahead of time because the moon is already over-burdened by attention; second rank men may go riding in Austins but any smaller denomination of sample car is prohibited.

Third rank men, or juniors have all the above-named privileges with the following additions: third rank men may attend two classes a day by signing out in the usual way. These classes must not interfere with the, afternoon nap or beauty sleep, as some addicts are wont to call it. One week-end during a semester third rank men may take a camping trip to Alcoa providing they take their Saturday cleansing in the fishing ponds in which Teefie predominated as head instructor last summer. Third rank men may go to town twice a week providing they monshine both times and sing a song on the Post Office steps.

Fourth rank men are seniors who are well up in years and consequently know very little. Their especial privilege in addition to the Thirty Issues per School Year by the Student Body of Maryvile College. Subscription Rates $1.25 per annum

Entered at the Post Office, Maryville, Tenn., as Second Class Matter, November 11, 1915

Monday, April 27, 1931

As the scholastic year draws to a close we begin to contemplate in retrospection the things that we have accomplished and the things that we have left undone. With these experiences in mind we turn our attention to the future and lay our plans for the coming days. This same contemplation may well be applied to the various organizations of the campus and particularly, by virtue of its influence on the student body, to our Y. M. C. A.

The administration just finishing its term has much to be proud of and much for which they should feel regret. Mr. James, the president, has directed the organization for two years and, while much criticism of the administration has been heard, he has evidently been sincere in his desire for the advancement of the Association. There has been, it is true, a great number of unpleasant remarks concerning the policies and practices of the officials which were perhaps roundly deserved, but a college group is apt to be unduly critical and to condemn without full knowledge of the conditions.

The greater amount of criticism is apparently due to the failure of the "Y" to provide for the spiritual and physical needs of the student. The facilities for physical exercise for those not actively engaged in college sports are indeed poor and the charge has been made that the spiritual program is decidedly under par. These things are necessarily included in the functions of the Y. M. C. A., and should be the subject of much attention each year for the officers. But praise is due Mr. James as well as censure for originating and putting into effect a social program for those students visiting Bartlett Hall. He has maintained a good reading room and made it a pleasant place to go for entertainment. He has aided materially in cleaning up the Hall and making it a habitable place. So in looking backward let us get the whole picture and hold up for commendation the praiseworthy aspects rather than condemn the many and evident flaws.

Just how much the incoming president, Mr. Teffeteller, will profit by the experiences of the past is as yet an undeterminable quantity. There has been a standard of excellency set by Mr. James that he must first meet and then he is honor bound to create a new level if he is to be worthy of the position his classmates have entrusted to him. There are evidently many things that need attention and, though these things may not be written into the constitution as a part of his duty, they automatically become his duty if they are for the betterment of the student.

Many impossible things have been proposed as duties of the Y. M. C. A. and many utterly ridiculous activities shouted about as functions of the organization, but these may be discounted as the creations of those trying to tear down a constructive policy. There are, however, many extremely appropriate and timely acts the "Y" may and should take under advisement. The freshman problem could undoubtedly be bettered by a consciencious study of the ends to be gained and a contemplation of the best means of gaining those ends. An application of the principles of unselfish cooperation with worthwhile activities in progress on the Hill would materially increase the value of the organization to the college. The origination of programs designed to carry out the three fold purpose of the Y. M. C. A. is deserving of the most sincere study. In short, though many things have been done in the past, a multitude remain to be accomplished.

It is with a feeling of confidence in Mr. Teffeteller that the student body has so honored him. If he fails in his duty he must blame only himself, but if he succeeds in reinstating respect for the organization among the students; if he produces a period of progress for the Association; if he makes the campus better by his efforts, we will gladly enscribe a glorious "Finis" to his incumbency twelve months from now.

NEW SCHEDULE FOR ORGANIC COURSES

Beginning next year those students taking Organic Chemistry, courses 7 and 8, will receive four hours credit each semester instead of three as they do now. Under the present course the student spends four hours in the laboratory and one in the lecture room. Under the new plan the student will have two one-hour lectures and six hours laboratory practice every week.

Tuesday afternoon there will be a one-hour lecture and three hours of laboratory work. Wednesday afternoon there will be three hours of laboratory work and on Thursday another one-hour lecture.

This plan of having a four hour course with the increased laboratory and lecture work is being followed in all of the large schools and universities of the country. Professor Howell says that in the near future all the science courses at Maryville College will be scheduled on this plan.

Naomi Willingham (at performance of "One Mysterious Night")—"That egg looks like a Pearson's egg. All it needs is a little coaxing."

Nez (dissecting a turtle)—"Look here, Mildred, this vein is clamped shut with steel clips."

Mildred—"Yes, that's a very closed (vericose) vein."

SUPERIOR SCOTTIES

For the past few weeks this would be scribe has lived in a veritable nightmare in which the principle figures are inmates of this institution with four years standing. It seems that no matter how many seniors are disposed of through this column, there is always another innumerable host of them which must have the bushels removed from the light of each member. From the remaining number, we have selected as this week's victims a pair of men proficient in two opposite lines, Bill Graham and Porter French.

Bill Graham is a native son of Detroit, Michigan, the horseless city. He is one of Maryville's foremost varsity debaters, having presumably gotten his training as a buggy whip salesman in his home town. But, no matter where or how he received his argumentative training, his teacher was extremely proficient in the art of imparting such erudition, for Bill has lost very few debates this season. Besides his laurels in debating he is a staff editor of the Echo, a position requiring no little ability. Whatever his calling for the immediate years may be, we are sure of the fact that his linguistic accomplishments will be of great use to him.
